Evidence was insufficient to sustain finding that bondsman was guilty of infraction of court rule providing that any bondsman who procures or assists in procuring or attempts to procure retention or employment of any attorney to represent any person charged with offense cognizable in Municipal Court for the District of Columbia, or solicits or receives or enters into any agreement to receive any fee, commission money, or property or things of value for procuring or assisting or attempting to procure retention or employment of any attorney to represent any person charged with offense cognizable in Municipal Court, shall be suspended. Matter of Leon B. Greene (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 130 A. 2d 593).

Grounds for renewal of license

Order of District Court denying application of a professional bondsman for renewal of his license to engage in bonding business on ground that applicant lacked qualifications for a bondsman was set aside. In re Carter (1951, 192 F. 2d 15, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 310, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 89, 342 U.S. 862, 96 L. Ed. 648, rehearing denied 72 S. Ct. 173, 342 U.S. 889, 96 L. Ed. 667).

Moral turpitude

"Moral turpitude", within statute precluding licensing as a bondsman a person convicted of any offense involving moral turpitude, includes crimes in which fraud was an ingredient. In the Matter of Nathaniel Madden (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 184 A. 2d 204).

Conviction of an offense involving moral turpitude precludes qualification for licensing of a bondsman, and courts have no latitude or discretion in the matter. Id.

Conviction for fraudulent filing of Federal income tax returns was conviction of an offense involving "moral turpitude," within statute precluding licensing as a bondsman a person convicted of an offense involving moral turpitude. Id.

Nature of license

License to engage in bonding business, once granted, becomes a right, which ought not to be taken away on the strength of vague, indefinite, and uncorroborated testimony. Matter of Leon B. Greene (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 130 A. 2d 593).

Revocation of license

When an authorization to engage in the bonding business has been approved by the district court and is outstanding, it can be revoked, prior to the expiration of the term, only upon a proceeding which contains the elements of due process of law, i. e., a hearing and revelation of all matter upon which a decision is to be based. In re Carter (1949, 177 F. 2d 75, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 229, certiorari denied 70 S. Ct. 250, 338 U.S. 900, 94 L. Ed. 554).

§ 23-609. Giving advance information of proposed raid prohibited.

It shall be unlawful for any police officer or other public official, in advance of any raid by police or other peace officers or public officials or the execution of any search warrant or warrant of arrest, to give or furnish, either directly or indirectly, any information concerning such proposed raid or arrest to any person engaged in any manner in the bonding business, or to any attorney at law: Provided, however, That it shall not be unlawful for any police or other peace officer, in conducting any raid or in executing any search warrant or warrant of arrest, to communicate to any attorney at law or person engaged in the bonding business, any fact necessary to enable such officer to obtain from such attorney at law or person engaged in the bonding business information necessary to enable such officer to carry out said raid or execute such process. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1485, ch. 206, § 9.)

§ 23-610. Designation of official to take bail or collateral when court is not in session.

The judges of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions shall have the authority to appoint some official of the Metropolitan police force of the District of Columbia to act as a clerk of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions with authority to take bail or collateral from persons charged with offenses triable in the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions in criminal cases in the District of Columbia at all times when the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions is not open and its clerks accessible. The official so appointed shall have the same authority at said times with reference to taking bonds or collateral as the clerk of the Municipal Court had on March 3, 1933; shall receive no compensation for said services other than his regular salary; shall be subject to the orders and rules of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions in discharge of his said duties, and may be removed as such clerk at any time by the judges of the municipal court. The United States District Court for the District of Columbia and the Juvenile Court of the District of Columbia each shall have power by order to authorize the official, appointed by the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, to take bond of persons arrested upon writs and processes from those courts in criminal cases between four o'clock postmeridian and nine o'clock antemeridian and upon Sundays and holidays, and each of such courts shall have power at any time by order to revoke such authority granted by it. (Mar. 3, 1933, 47 Stat. 1485, ch. 206, § 10; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. (Jan. 30, 1925, 43 Stat. 798, ch. 115, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Authority to execute capital punishment

Regardless of the legislation under which the appeal was brought, Congress had unmistakably invested the respondent, the superintendent of the jail, with authority within the District to carry into effect the death sentence in capital cases. Price v. Moyer (1923, 288 F. 269, 53 App. D.C. 63).

§ 23-702. Commissioners to provide death chamber, appoint executioner and assistants, and fix fees.

The commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized and required to provide a death chamber and necessary apparatus for inflicting the death penalty by electrocution, to designate an executioner and necessary assistants, not exceeding three in number, and to fix the fees thereof for services. (Jan. 30, 1925, 43 Stat. 799, ch. 115, § 3.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

This section must be read in connection with § 23-114 and with their legislative history. When this is done, it is clear that this section is intended not for the benefit of defendants upon whom death sentences are to be imposed, but as an aid to the prison authorities charged with execution of such sentences. Wheeler v. Reid (1949, 175 F. 2d 829, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

§ 23-704. Who may be present at executions—Fact of execution to be certified to clerk of court.

At the execution of the death penalty as herein prescribed there shall be present the following persons, and no more, to wit:

The executioner and his assistant; the physician of the prison and one other physician if the condemned person so desires; the condemned person's counsel and relatives, not exceeding three, if they so desire; the prison chaplain and such other ministers of the Gospel, not exceeding two, as may attend by desire of the condemned; the superintendent of the prison, or, in the event of his disability, a deputy designated by him; and not fewer than three nor more than five respectable citizens whom the superintendent of the prison shall designate, and, if necessary to insure their attendance, shall subpoena to be present. The fact of execution shall be certified by the prison physician and the executioner to the clerk of the court in which sentence was pronounced, which certificate shall be filed by the clerk with the papers in the case. (Jan. 30, 1925, 43 Stat. 799, ch. 115, § 4.)

§ 23-705. Who may not be present at executions.

No person whatever under the age of twenty-one years, shall be allowed to witness any such execution. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1203.)

§ 23-706. Place of execution.

Persons adjudged to suffer death shall be executed within the walls of the jail of the District, or within the yard or inclosure thereof, and not elsewhere. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1200.)

Chapter 8.—OUT-OF-STATE WITNESSES

Sec.

23-801. Definitions.

23-802. Hearing on recall of out-of-state witnesses by State Courts—Determination—Travel allowance—Penalty.

23-803. Certificate providing for attendance of witnesses at criminal prosecutions in the District of Columbia—Travel allowance—Penalty.

23-804. Exemption from arrest.

§ 23-801. Definitions.

As used in this chapter—

(a) The term "witness" includes a person whose testimony is desired in any proceeding or investigation by a grand jury or in a criminal action, prosecution, or proceeding.

(b) The word "State" includes any Territory of the United States and the District of Columbia.

(c) The word "summons" includes a subpoena, order, or other notice requiring the appearance of a witness. (Mar. 5, 1952, 66 Stat. 15, ch. 82, § 2.)

SHORT TITLE

Section 1 of act Mar. 5, 1952, provided: "This Act [this chapter] may be cited as the 'District of Columbia Uniform Act to Secure the Attendance of Witnesses From Without a State in Criminal Proceedings.'"

SEPARABILITY OF PROVISIONS

Section 6 of act Mar. 5, 1952, provided: "If any provision of this Act [this chapter] or the application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, such invalidity shall not apply to other provisions of this Act."

(a) If a judge of a court of record in any State which by its laws has made provision for commanding persons within that State to attend and testify in the District of Columbia certifies under the seal of such court (1) that there is a criminal prosecution pending in such court, or that a grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence, (2) that a person being within the District of Columbia is a material witness in such prosecution, or grand jury investigation, and (3) that his presence will be required for a specified number of days, upon presentation of such certificate to any judge of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, such judge shall fix a time and place for a hearing, and shall make an order directing the witness to appear at a time and place certain for the hearing.

(b) If at such hearing the judge determines that the witness is material and necessary, that it will not cause undue hardship to the witness to be compelled to attend and testify in the prosecution or a grand jury investigation in the other State, and that the laws of the State in which the prosecution is pending, or grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence and of any other State through which the witness may be required to pass by ordinary course of travel, will give to him protection from arrest and the service of civil and criminal process, he shall issue a summons, with a copy of the certificate attached, directing the witness to attend and testify in the court where the prosecution is pending, or where a grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence at a time and place specified in the summons. In any such hearing the certificate shall be prima facie evidence of all the facts stated therein.

(c) If said certificate recommends that the witness be taken into immediate custody and delivered to an officer of the requesting State to assure his attendance in the requesting State, such judge may, in lieu of notification of the hearing, direct that such witness be forthwith brought before him for said hearing; and the judge at the hearing being satisfied of the desirability of such custody and delivery, for which determination the certificate shall be prima facie proof of such desirability may, in lieu of issuing subpoena or summons, order that said witness be forthwith taken into custody and delivered to an officer of the requesting State.

(d) If the witness, who is summoned as above provided, after being paid or tendered by some properly authorized person the sum of 10 cents a mile for each mile by the ordinary traveled route to and from the court where the prosecution is pending and $5 for each day that he is required to travel and attend as a witness, fails without good cause to attend and testify as directed in the summons, he shall be punished in the manner provided for the punishment of any witness who disobeys a summons issued from the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions. (Mar. 5, 1952, 66 Stat. 15, ch. 82, § 3; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1.)

CHANGE OF NAME

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "municipal court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Hearing mandatory

Under Uniform Act to Secure Attendance of Witnesses from Without a State in Criminal Proceedings, it is mandatory that a hearing be had and a determination made as to whether witness is material and necessary, and that it will not cause undue hardship to witness to be compelled to attend and testify, and the certificate is prima facie evidence of all facts stated therein. United States ex. rel. State of Pennsylvania v. J. M. McDevitt (D.C. App. 1963, 195 A. 2d 741).

In proceeding to issue process to require a person to return as a witness to testify before investigating grand jury in Pennsylvania, evidence supported findings that it was not established that person was material and necessary witness or that compelling his attendance would not cause him undue hardship, and hence denial of application was not an abuse of discretion. Id.

§ 23-803. Certificate providing for attendance of witnesses at criminal prosecutions in the District of Columbia—Travel allowance—Penalty.

(a) If a person in any State, which by its laws has made provision for commanding persons within its borders to attend and testify in criminal prosecutions, or grand jury investigations commenced or about to commence, in the District of Columbia, is a material witness in a prosecution pending in a court of record in the District of Columbia, or in a grand jury investigation which has commenced or is about to commence, a judge of such court may issue a certificate under seal of the court stating these facts and specifying the number of days the witness will be required. Said certificate may include a recommendation that the witness be taken into immediate custody and delivered to an officer of the United States or the District of Columbia to assure his attendance in the District of Columbia. This certificate shall be presented to a judge of a court of record in the county in which the witness is found.

(b) If the witness is summoned to attend and testify in the District of Columbia he shall be tendered the sum of 10 cents a mile for each mile by the ordinary traveled route to and from the court where the prosecution is pending or where the grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence, and $5 for each day that he is required to travel and attend as a witness. A witness who has appeared in accordance with the provisions of the summons shall not be required to remain within the District of Columbia a longer period of time than the period mentioned in the certificate, unless otherwise ordered by the court. If such witness, after coming into the District of Columbia, fails without good cause to attend and testify as directed in the summons, he may be punished in the manner provided for the punishment of any other witness who disobeys a summons issued from the court in the District of Columbia where the prosecution has been instituted or the grand jury investigation has commenced or is about to commence. (Mar. 5, 1952, 66 Stat. 15, ch. 82, § 4.)

§ 23-804. Exemption from arrest.

(a) If a person comes into the District of Columbia in obedience to a summons directing him to attend and testify in the District of Columbia he shall not while in the District of Columbia pursuant to such summons be subject to arrest or the service of process, civil or criminal, in connection with matters which arose before his entrance into the District of Columbia under the summons.

(b) If a person passes through the District of Columbia while going to another State in obedience to a summons to attend and testify in that State or while returning therefrom, he shall not while so passing through the District of Columbia be subject to arrest or the service of process, civil or criminal, in connection with matters which arose before his entrance into the District of Columbia under the summons. (Mar. 5, 1952, 66 Stat. 16, ch. 82 § 5.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Immunity from process

Letter directing defendant to appear at federal office, on account of criminal complaint, lest warrant be issued for arrest, was not a "summons within the meaning of the Uniform Act to Secure the Attendance of Witnesses from without a State in Criminal Proceedings," and defendant who appeared accordingly was not exempt from process under District of Columbia statute exempting persons appearing in obedience to summons. R. C. Buffkin v. Alum-Co. National, Inc., et al. (1963, 331 F. 2d 96, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 22).

§ 23-903. Interviews with detainees—Investigations and reports—Information as confidential—Consideration and use of reports in making bail determinations.

(a) The agency shall, except when impracticable, interview any person detained pursuant to law or charged with an offense in the District of Columbia who is to appear before a United States Commissioner or whose case arose in or is before any court named in section 23-902(1). Such interview when requested by a judicial officer shall also be undertaken with respect to any person charged with intoxication or traffic violation. The agency shall seek independent verification of information obtained during the interview, shall secure any such person's prior criminal record which shall be made available by the Metropolitan Police Department, and shall prepare a written report of such information for submission to the appropriate judicial officer. The agency shall present such report with or without a recommendation for release on personal recognition, personal bond, or other nonfinancial conditions, but with no other recommendation, to the appropriate judicial officer and shall provide copies of such report to the United States Attorney for the District of Columbia, to the Corporation Counsel of the District of Columbia (if pertinent) and to counsel for the person concerning whom the report is made. #### CODIFICATION

Section, acts June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 864, ch. 433, § 1; Mar. 4, 1919, 40 Stat. 1324, ch. 122, which related to appointment of probation officers, assistant probation officers and other probation personnel by the United States District Court for the District of Columbia and the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, and their general powers and duties, has been omitted from this Code as superseded and now covered by §§ 11-933 and 11-934 of this Code, and by 18 U.S.C. §§ 3654-3656.

Act Mar. 4, 1923, 42 Stat. 1488, ch. 265 (Classification Act of 1923), which also had been cited as one of the sources of this section, and which was later superseded by the Classification Act of 1949 (Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 954, ch. 782, since repealed and superseded, in turn), was not a specific amendment of this section, but, in reclassifying government employees by salary grades, had affected the provisions of this section that had prescribed salaries for the specified positions. Present provisions relating to compensation of probation officers and other probation personnel are now covered by §§ 11-933 and 11-934 of this Code; 5 U.S.C. §§ 5101 et seq., 5331 et seq., and 18 U.S.C. § 3656. See, also, the several acts set out as notes under § 603 of title 28, U.S.C.

Acts June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1, which also had been cited as sources of this section, were not specific amendments of this section, having only affected the names of the courts mentioned.

Section of act June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 864, ch. 433, § 2, dealt with the authority of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia and the former Municipal Court to place certain convicted offenders on probation. The section insofar as it related to the United States District Court was repealed by act June 25, 1958, 72 Stat. 216, Pub. L. 85-463, § 2. The surviving provisions of the section are now reenacted as section 16-710.

§ 24-103. Investigations and reports by probation officers.

The probation officers shall carefully investigate all cases referred to them by the court, and make recommendations to the court to enable it to decide whether the defendant ought to be placed under probation, and shall report to the court, from time to time as may be required by it, touching all cases in their care, to the end that the court may be at all times fully informed of the circumstances and conduct of probationers. (June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 864, ch. 433, § 3.)

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

Where probationer, against whom judgment of pater-nity had been entered, was committed once for being in arrears in weekly payments for support of child, but was released and was warned of action which the court would take for defaults in the future, and the court waited some 8 months, during which period probationer fell at least 12 payments in arrears, before acting on its warning and committing probationer for 30 days, there was no arbitrary, capricious, or wilful treatment of probationer at hands of court, and court did not abuse its discretion Stevens v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 127 A. 2d 147).

Recommending sentence

Where accused pleaded guilty to maintaining disorderly house and, on plea for probation, trial judge announced, that probation officer had recommended maximum sentence and, on objection to consideration of recommendation, trial judge, without express ruling thereon, sentenced defendant to the near maximum penalty, sentence was not set aside. Ishkanian v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 35 A. 2d 176).

A recommendation by a probation officer to trial judge as to sentence to be imposed is not merely unauthorized by this chapter but is an infringement upon court's judicial function, which officer has no right to exercise and judge no right to permit. Id.

Sentencing procedure

In sentencing, the judge must consider a program of rehabilitation designed to preclude, so far as current learning can furnish a guide, a repetition of the crime, and to such end Congress has placed several aids at disposal of judge, including provisions for presentence investigation, for commitment prior to sentence to a hospital for examination to determine mental competence of the offender, and for appointment of psychiatrist and psychologist. Wm. H. Leach v. United States (1963, 320 F. 2d 670, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

Modification or revocation of order.

Upon the expiration of the term fixed for such probation, the probation officer shall report that fact to the court, with a statement of the conduct of the probationer while on probation, and the court may thereupon discharge the probationer from further supervision, or may extend the probation, as shall seem advisable. At any time during the probationary term the court may modify the terms and conditions of the order of probation, or may terminate such probation, when in the opinion of the court the ends of justice shall require, and when the probation is so terminated the court shall enter an order discharging the probationer from serving the imposed penalty; or the court may revoke the order of probation and cause the rearrest of the probationer and impose a sentence and require him to serve the sentence or pay the fine originally imposed, or both, as the case may be, and the time of probation shall not be taken into account to diminish the time for which he was originally sentenced. (June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 865, ch. 433, § 4.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Abuse of discretion

Where probationer, against whom judgment of paternity had been entered, was committed once for being in arrears in weekly payments for support of child, but was released and was warned of action which the court would take for defaults in the future, and the court waited some 8 months, during which period probationer fell at least 12 payments in arrears, before acting on its warning and committing probationer for 30 days, there was no arbitrary, capricious, or wilful treatment of probationer at hands of court, and court did not abuse its discretion. Stevens v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 127 A. 2d 147).

Extension of probation

Where this section under which probation was extended did not require a hearing either at the time of extension or of revocation of probation, and procedure in the statute was complied with, probationer was not entitled to order setting aside revocation of extended probation on ground that extension of probation was entered ex parte. United States v. Freeman (D.C.D.C. 1958, 160 F. Supp. 532, affirmed 254 F. 2d 352, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 15).

The extension of the probation every six months after the return unexecuted of an attachment for violation of terms of probation kept the probation alive and did not violate this section, which does not limit the number or length of extensions of probation. Cooper v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 771).

Probable cause

A probationer who had been arrested on another charge was properly arrested by probation officer for violation of terms of probation when she appeared in another court to answer the new charge, since only the execution of the sentence had been suspended and the requirement as to probable cause for the commission of an offense did not apply to her. Cooper v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 771).

Revocation

The court had jurisdiction to reconsider defendant's probation and revoke it if the public interest seemed to justify such action. Cooper v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 48 A. 2d 771).

That the judge who had originally sentenced defendant was no longer in office did not prevent another judge of the same court from revoking the defendant's probation. Id.

Rights of probationer

Probationer, against whom judgment of paternity has been entered, does not stand on equal footing with other citizens, and privilege of probation could be revoked by court in any procedural fashion authorized by statute, and, apart from statute, probationer, committed summarily, has no recourse to the Constitution and may not insist on a trial in any strict or formal sense. Stevens v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1956, 127 A. 2d 147).

§ 24-105. Quarters for probation officers—Payment of expenses.

The chief probation officer of each court shall be entitled, for himself and his assistants, to a room in the building occupied by that court, and all necessary stationery and supplies for the transaction of the business of his office, and all the probation officers except volunteer officers shall be entitled to their necessary expenses in performing the duties of their office, under the direction of the court, the amount of the expense for such stationery, supplies, and expenses to be fixed and allowed by the court upon proper vouchers submitted to it by the probation officers, and accounts duly verified by their oath. (June 25, 1910, 36 Stat. 865, ch. 433, § 5; Mar. 4, 1919, 40 Stat. 1325, ch. 122.)

CODIFICATION

Provisions of section 5 of act June 25, 1910, as amended by act Mar. 4, 1919, which authorized an appropriation of $8,000 for the payment of expenses, are omitted as obsolete.

CROSS REFERENCE

Annual estimate of expenditures, see § 47-213.

§ 24-106. Services of a psychiatrist and a psychologist available to probation officers, the Board of Parole and other designated officers.

The Commissioners shall appoint a qualified psychiatrist and a qualified psychologist whose services shall be available to the following officers to assist them in carrying out their duties: (1) In criminal cases, the judges of the district court and the probation officers of the district court and the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, (2) such officers of the juvenile court of the District of Columbia as the judge thereof shall designate, (3) such officers of the Department of Corrections as the Director thereof shall designate, and (4) the Board of Parole of the District. (June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 105, ch. 159, § 405; Aug. 16, 1954, 68 Stat. 730, ch. 737, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1.)

CHANGE OF NAME

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "Municipal Court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded Act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions. See section 11-101.

AMENDMENT

1954—Act Aug. 16, 1954, substituted "(1) In criminal cases, the judges of the district court and the probation officers", for "(1) the probation officers."

All positions under the previously existing Board of Parole were transferred to the new Board including the duties, powers, and authorities of all officers and employees. Upon appointment of the members of the Board of Parole, the powers of the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole created by section 24-201, not specifically repealed, shall be transferred to and vested in the Board of Parole. The officers and employees of the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole, except the members thereof, together with all official records, furniture and supplies, and all unexpended balances of any appropriations, shall be transferred to the Board of Parole. It shall be the duty of the parole executive to prepare for the consideration of the Board of Parole all applications of prisoners for parole in such form and at such times and together with such information and records as the Board of Parole may require, to perform such administrative duties as the Board may prescribe, and to supervise prisoners on parole in accordance with the terms and conditions prescribed by the Board. The Department of Corrections, and all other agencies and officials of the District shall cooperate with the Board and shall furnish the Board with such information, files, and records as it may deem necessary in the performance of its duties: Provided, That confidential information and records shall not be required to be produced. (July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 378, ch. 263, § 2.)

§ 24-201c. Applications for reduction of minimum sentence—Jurisdiction of court—Limits on reduction for certain crimes.

When by reason of his training and response to the rehabilitation program of the Department of Corrections it appears to the Board that there is a reasonable probability that a prisoner will live and remain at liberty without violating the law, and that his immediate release is not incompatible with the welfare of society, but he has not served his minimum sentence, the Board in its discretion may apply to the court imposing sentence for a reduction of his minimum sentence. The court shall have jurisdiction to act upon the application at any time prior to the expiration of the minimum sentence and no hearing shall be required. If a prisoner is serving a sentence for a crime for which a minimum sentence is prescribed by section 24-203(b) his minimum sentence shall not be reduced under this section below the minimum sentence so prescribed. (July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 379, ch. 263, § 4; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 92, ch. 159, § 201 (b).)

§ 24-203. Imposition of indeterminate sentences authorized—Life and death sentences.

(a) Except as provided in subsections (b) and (c), in imposing sentence on a person convicted in the District of Columbia of a felony, the justice or judge of the court imposing such sentence shall sentence the person for a maximum period not exceeding the maximum fixed by law, and for a minimum period not exceeding one-third of the maximum sentence imposed, and any person so convicted and sentenced may be released on parole as herein provided at any time after having served the minimum sentence. Where the maximum sentence imposed is life imprisonment, a minimum sentence shall be imposed which shall not exceed fifteen years' imprisonment. Nothing in sections 22-2601, 24-201, 24-202 to 24-209 and 24-425 shall abrogate the power of the justice or judge to sentence the convicted prisoner to the death penalty as on June 6, 1940 or thereafter may be provided by law.

Amendment of section by act June 29, 1953, not applicable with respect to any sentence imposed for a crime committed before June 29, 1953, see section 201(c) of act June 29, 1953, set out as a note under section 24-201c.

SHORT TITLE

Section 1 of act June 29, 1953, provided that: "This Act [which added §§ 1-319, 2-1901, 4-134a, 4-134b, 4-134c, 4-156a, 4-186, 4-187, 11-332, 22-109, 22-1002, 22-1515, 22-3601, 23-115, 23-306, 24-106, 25-128, 25-139, amended §§ 4-134, 4-135, 4-137, 4-156, 11-605, 11-606, 11-756, 11-1402, 11-1417, 22-201, 22-505, 22-507, 22-1107, 22-1121, 22-1207, 22-1301, 22-1502, 22-1505, 22-1508, 22-1514, 22-2201, 22-2202, 22-2203, 22-2204a, 22-2205, 22-2208, 22-2701, 22-3203, 22-3204, 22-3207, 22-3208, 22-3210, 22-3214, 22-3302, 23-401, 23-411, 23-608, 24-201c, 24-203, 25-107, 25-109 to 25-111, 25-115, 25-121, 25-128, 25-129, repealed § 4-109, and enacted provisions set out as notes under §§ 1-319, 4-186, 24-201c, 25-109] may be cited as the 'District of Columbia Law Enforcement Act of 1953'."

SAVINGS PROVISION

Section 2(b) of act June 6, 1940, provided that act June 6, 1940 should not affect the penalty, sentence, or forfeiture for felonies committed prior thereto.

ELIGIBILITY FOR PAROLE OF PERSONS CONVICTED OF FELONIES COMMITTED PRIOR TO JUNE 6, 1940

Section 9 of act June 6, 1940, provides as follows: "(a) Where as justice or a judge of the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia has imposed or shall impose a life sentence on a prisoner convicted of a felony committed before this amendatory act takes effect such prisoner shall be eligible to parole under the provisions of said act approved July 15, 1932, as amended, after having served fifteen years of his life sentence.

"(b) Where a justice or judge of the District Court of the United States has imposed or shall impose a sentence for a definite term of imprisonment on a prisoner convicted of a felony committed before this amendatory act takes effect, such prisoner shall be eligible to parole under the provisions of said act approved July 15, 1932, as amended, after having served one-third of the sentence imposed."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Application of statute

This act is applicable to persons convicted in the District of Columbia of offenses defined in the general laws of the United States. Sims v. Rives (1936, 84 F. 2d 871, 66 App. D.C. 24, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 960, 298 U.S. 682, 80 L. Ed. 1402).

Constitutionality

The Indeterminate Sentence Act applies to convictions in the District for offenses defined in the general laws of the United States, and thus applied is constitutionally valid. Farnsworth v. Zerbst (C.C.A. Ga., 1938, 98 F. 2d 541).

Contempt

This section is inapplicable to a criminal contempt conviction not only because it ought not and is not intended to apply, but also because it cannot be made applicable in view of fact that trial judge has nonarbitrary discretion in matter of sentence. Warring v. Huff (1941, 122 F. 2d 641, 74 App. D.C. 302, certiorari denied 62 S. Ct. 183, 314 U. S. 678, 86 L. Ed. 543).

Crime committed before passage of act

Indeterminate Sentence Act was not applicable where crime of grand larceny was committed before passage of that act. De Benque v. United States (1936, 85 F. 2d 202, 66 App. D.C. 36, 106 A.L.R. 839, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 960, 298 U.S. 681, 80 L. Ed. 1402, rehearing denied 57 S. Ct. 6, 299 U.S. 620, 81 L. Ed. 457).

Where defendants were found guilty in 1939 of having committed robbery in District of Columbia on June 10, 1932, sentence to prison of 3 to 15 years was not void on theory that it should be for not less than 6 months nor more than 15 years. United States v. Neufield (D.C.D.C. 1945, 62 F. Supp. 600).

Claim of defendants that much had come to light after their conviction which would show that defendants were innocent could not be considered in passing on motion to set aside sentences as void because sentences allegedly did not comply with law in effect when offenses were committed. Id.

Jurisdiction upon conditional release

Where defendant was sentenced in 1936 to 30-year term for second-degree murder and was given conditional release when his accumulated good time and industrial good time allowances and his time already served totaled 30 years, defendant was thereafter under the supervision of the United States Board of Parole until his maximum sentence expired, not counting his good time and industrial time allowances. Johnson v. Ward, U.S. Marshal, etc. (D.C.D.C. 1959, 171 F. Supp. 26).

Meaning of indeterminate sentence

An indeterminate sentence is one for the maximum period imposed by the court, subject to termination by the Parole Board at any time after service of the minimum period. Story v. Rives (1938, 97 F. 2d 182, 68 App. D.C. 325, certiorari denied 59 S. Ct. 71, 305 U.S. 595, 83 L. Ed. 377). See, also, United States v. Neufield (D.C.D.C. 1945, 62 F. Supp. 600).

An "indeterminate sentence" differs from a "determinate sentence" only in that the former imposes a minimum term; the good time and industrial time off provisions, however, are geared to the maximum term and the minimum term does not affect the computation. Johnson v. Ward, U.S. Marshal etc. (D.C.D.C. 1959, 171 F. Supp. 26).

Second-degree murder

Indeterminate Sentence Act is inapplicable to second-degree murder and the existing statute providing a penalty of imprisonment for life or for not less than 20 years remains in effect. Anderson v. Rives (1936, 85 F. 2d 673, 66 App. D.C. 174).

Sentences

Prospect of having conviction "automatically" set aside under Youth Corrections Act was a difference so important as to outweigh possibility of longer confinement and to warrant conclusion that second sentence, of thirty-four months to one hundred and two months, under Indeterminate Sentence Law, was more severe than first sentence, of three to nine years, under Youth Corrections Act, for robbery; and, accordingly, second sentence, entered on motion to correct, was invalid where offender had already begun to serve first sentence. E. J. Tatum v. United States (1962, 310 F. 2d 854, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 49).

Where the first sentences imposed under Indeterminate Sentence law were void, since the said statute was by its own terms inapplicable, the passing of the term did not deprive the court of power to resentence. De Benque v. United States (1936, 85 F. 2d 202, 66 App. D.C. 36, 106 A.L.R. 839, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 960, 298 U.S. 681, 80 L. Ed. 1402, rehearing denied 57 S. Ct. 6, 299 U.S. 620, 81 L. Ed. 457).

This provision brings the described sentences, although not indeterminate ones, within the new scheme by treating one-fifth thereof as the equivalent of the minimum in an indeterminate sentence and may include prisoners sentenced before the date of the act if imprisoned in the institutions under the jurisdiction of the board, but it does not extend the board's jurisdiction to prisoners in other institutions nor require their return to the District although convicted there before the act was passed. Aderhold v. Lee (C.C.A. 5, 1934, 68 F. 2d 824).

As maximum sentence on each count was 3 years, and as it did not exceed the maximum of 10 years fixed by law, and when minimum sentence on each of four counts was 2 years, the sentence therefore did not exceed one-fifth of the maximum period fixed by law of 10 years and was not in violation of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole law. United States ex rel. Bracey v. Hill (C.C.A. 3, 1935, 77 F. 2d 970). See, also, Bracey v. Zerbst (C.C.A. 10, 1938, 93 F. 2d 8).

Sentence fixing a maximum of 12 years conformed with the act, as did the minimum period of 3 years, being for a minimum period not exceeding one-fifth of the maximum period fixed by law. McDonald v. Johnston (C.C.A. 9, 1937, 86 F. 2d 329).

A sentence is legal so far as it is within provisions of law and jurisdiction of court, and is void only as to excess when such excess is separable and may be dealt with without disturbing valid portion of sentence. United States v. Neufield (D.C.D.C. 1945, 62 F. Supp. 600).

§ 24-204. Parole authorized—Conditions—Custody.

(a) Whenever it shall appear to the Board of Parole that there is a reasonable probability that a prisoner will live and remain at liberty without violating the law, that his release is not incompatible with the welfare of society, and that he has served the minimum sentence imposed or the prescribed portion of his sentence, as the case may be, the Board may authorize his release on parole upon such terms and conditions as the Board shall from time to time prescribe. While on parole, a prisoner shall remain in the legal custody and under the control of the Attorney General of the United States or his authorized representative until the expiration of the maximum of the term or terms specified in his sentence without regard to good time allowance.

(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of subsection (a) of this section, the Board of Parole may, subject to the approval of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia, promulgate rules and regulations under which the Board of Parole, in its discretion, may discharge a parolee from supervision prior to the expiration of the maximum term or terms for which he was sentenced. (July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 697, ch. 492, § 4; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 242, ch. 254, § 3; July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 378, ch. 263, § 3; May 22, 1965, 79 Stat. 113, Pub. L. 89-24, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

1965—Act May 22, 1965, amended section by adding (a) at the beginning and by adding subsection (b) thereto.

1947—Act July 17, 1947, amended section generally.

1940—Act June 6, 1940, inserted "or to such other place as the board may indicate," after "return to his home;" substituted the Attorney General or his representative in place of superintendent of the institution as the party to have control of the paroled prisoner; "without regard to the good-time allowance" for "less such good-time allowance as is, or may hereafter be, provided by law," and "paroled: Provided, however, That the conditions prescribed and the residential limits may be thereafter changed or modified as the Board in its judgment may determine" for "paroled, which limits, however, may be thereafter changed in the discretion of the board."

COMMISSIONERS AUTHORITY NOT AFFECTED

Sec. 2 Act May 22, 1965, provided: Nothing in this Act shall be construed so as to affect the authority vested in the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia by Reorganization Plan Numbered 5 of 1952 (66 Stat. 824). The performance of any function vested by this Act in the Board of Commissioners or in any office or agency under the jurisdiction and control of said Board of Commissioners may be delegated by said Board of Commissioners in accordance with section 3 of such plan.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Applicability of statute

This section concerning paroles is not applicable to prisoner who is given a conditional release. Johnson v. Ward, U.S. Marshal, etc. (D.C.D.C. 1959, 171 F. Supp. 26).

Discretion of board

Material facts in prisoner's suit against parole board claiming that racial discrimination was basis of denial of parole must be such as would legitimately tend to show that parole board acted under color of law, and thereby subjected prisoner to deprivation of his federal rights. R. Richardson, Jr. v. H. F. Rivers, D.C. Board of Parole et al. (1964, 335 F. 2d 996, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 333).

Prisoner's conclusory assertions that racial discrimination was basis of parole board's denial of parole as against board's affidavits in denying discrimination did not create a genuine issue as to a material fact when viewed in light of board's broad discretionary power. Id.

A prisoner may be released from imprisonment before he has served the maximum period of his sentence, less lawful good-time allowance, only in the discretion of the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole. De Benque v. United States (1936, 85 F. 2d 202, 66 App. D.C. 36, 106 A.L.R. 839).

The District of Columbia Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole has authority to impose conditions or to exercise supervision over prisoners convicted in the District of Columbia and thereafter released because of good conduct allowance. In re Reed (1947, 158 F. 2d 323, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 310).

Intent of Congress

Congress intended to provide uniform administration of Federal and District of Columbia law with respect to control of released prisoners. Johnson v. Ward, U.S. Marshal (1960, 278 F. 2d 245, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

Jurisdiction upon conditional release

Where defendant was sentenced in 1936 to 30-year term for second-degree murder and was given conditional release when his accumulated good time and industrial good time allowances and his time already served totaled 30 years, defendant was thereafter under the supervision of the United States Board of Parole until his maximum sentence expired, not counting his good time and industrial time allowances. Johnson v. Ward, U.S. Marshal etc. (D.C.D.C. 1959, 171 F. Supp. 26).

Prisoners confined outside district

Same privileges of parole are accorded to prisoners sentenced in the District of Columbia and committed to penal institutions outside of the District as to those sentenced and confined within the District. Bracey v. Hill. (D.C. Pa., 1935, 11 F. Supp. 148).

Parties interested

Where federal prisoner was released pursuant to 18 U.S.C. § 4164, a prisoner who has served term for which he was sentenced, less deductions allowed for good conduct, shall upon release be treated as if released on parole and be subject to laws relating to parole of federal prisoners until expiration of maximum term specified in sentence, released prisoner was under supervision of parole board until maximum sentence, not counting time off for good behavior, expired, as against contention that because parole law in effect when original criminal acts were committed provided for measurement of parole period by maximum sentence less good time allowance, prisoner could not be subject to conditions of parole law after his release because he had served maximum sentence less good-time allowance. Hicks v. Reid (1952, 194 F. 2d 327, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 109, certiorari denied 73 S. Ct. 51, 344 U.S. 840, 97 L. Ed. 653).

§ 24-205. Violation of parole—Warrant—Arrest—Return to confinement.

If said Board of Parole, or any member thereof, shall have reliable information that a prisoner has violated his parole, said board, or any member thereof, at any time within the term or terms of the prisoner's sentence, may issue a warrant to any officer hereinafter authorized to execute the same for the retaking of such prisoner. Any officer of the District of Columbia penal institutions, any officer of the Metropolitan Police Department of the District of Columbia, or any federal officer authorized to serve criminal process within the United States to whom such warrant shall be delivered is authorized and required to execute such warrant by taking such prisoner and returning or removing him to the penal institution of the District of Columbia from which he was paroled or to such penal or correctional institution as may be designated by the Attorney General of the United States. (July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 698, ch. 492, § 5; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 242, ch. 254, § 4; July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 378, ch. 263, § 2.)

AMENDMENT

1940—Act June 6, 1940, substituted "him to said penal institution," for "or removing him to the penal institution of the District of Columbia from which he was paroled or to such penal or correctional institution as may be designated by the Attorney General of the United States."

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Board of Parole was substituted for Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole to conform to act July 17, 1947, which transferred the powers of the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole not specifically repealed, to the Board of Parole. See § 24-201b.

Crime committed while on parole

Petition for writ of habeas corpus, on the ground that petitioner's confinement after expiration of his sentence was illegal, was denied where petitioner had committed a crime while on parole, and the judge imposing the second sentence had no power to make it and the unexpired portion of the first sentence run concurrently. Hammerer v. Huff (1940, 110 F. 2d 113, 71 App. D.C. 246).

Jail sentence while on probation

When probationer was actually serving a jail sentence while on probation with respect to another sentence, even in jail, he was subject to the conditions of the probation and by its terms he was to refrain from violation of law. Burns v. United States (1932, 53 S. Ct. 154, 287 U.S. 216, 77 L. Ed. 266).

Jurisdiction

One hundred-eighty days before expiration of maximum five-year term, mandatory releasee's release became unconditional, he was no longer deemed as if released on parole, board of parole no longer had jurisdiction over him, board had no authority to issue parole violation warrant on basis of prior parole violations and releasee could not be required to serve the full five-year term. Birch v. Anderson (1965, 358 F. 2d 520, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 153).

Defendant, a narcotics violator who had been imprisoned in a District of Columbia penal institution and then conditionally released, was subject to provisions of District of Columbia Code dealing with parole. T. Gaskins v. R. F. Kennedy, Attorney General, et ano. (1965, 350 F. 2d 311.)

Notwithstanding defendant was convicted of violating general federal statute, as distinguished from a criminal law of the District of Columbia, and was released under federal mandatory good time statute from District of Columbia penal institution, District parole board had authority to arrest him under District of Columbia code provision authorizing arrest of parole violators. C. Fuller v. K. A. Weakley, Supt. Lorton Reformatory etc., et al. (1965, 349 F. 2d 90, 4th Ct.).

The District of Columbia Parole Board did not err in acting pursuant to D.C. Parole Act with regard to prisoner who had been convicted of a federal crime rather than offense made criminal by D.C. Code, since the act establishing D.C. Parole Board transferred authority over prisoners held in District prisons to D.C. Board, and provisions of D.C. Parole Act, rather than federal parole law, were to be applied to such prisoners. R. A. Howerton v. Hugh F. Rivers et al. (1963, 326 F. 2d 653, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 110).

Where petitioner was released from District of Columbia Reformatory on parole, but a warrant was subsequently issued against him for violation of that parole and petitioner was confined at a Federal Penitentiary in Kansas upon conviction of a new and separate offense in Missouri, District of Columbia Board of Parole did not lose its jurisdiction over petitioner to Federal Parole Board and had the right to file a detainer against petitioner. Noll v. Board of Parole for Government of District of Columbia (1951, 191 F. 2d 653, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Parties interested

Defendant who had not been paroled or retaken on warrant was not in a position to challenge the validity of this section under the Fourth Amendment. Sims v. Rives (1936, 84 F. 2d 871, 66 App. D.C. 24, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 960, 298 U.S. 682, 80 L. Ed. 1402).

Return to confinement

Where petitioner who had been granted parole by Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole for District of Columbia was re-arrested on reliable information for parole violation, was taken to United States Penitentiary outside District, hearing was had before Board of Parole, and certificate of revocation was signed by assistant parole executive of United States Board of Parole and transmitted to warden, certificate of revocation was valid although not issued by Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole for District of Columbia. Stillwell v. Looney (D.C.D.C. 1953, 110 F. Supp. 1, affirmed 207 F. 2d 359).

Review

There is no right of judicial review of exercise by parole board of its discretionary powers. Boddie v. Weakley (1966, 456 F. 2d 242, Fourth Circuit).

Unreasonable delay

Parole board's seven-month delay in executing its parole violator's warrant was not unreasonable, especially since reason for delay was to allow accused to serve two intervening sentences. Ginyard v. Clemmer (1966, 357 F. 2d 291, 123 U.S. App. D.C. 100).

Unexpired sentence

The unexpired portion of a parole violator's original sentence begins to run not when he is in prison by arrest or conviction for a new and separate offense but only when his parole has been revoked and he has been returned to custody of revoking authority. Noll v. Board of Parole for Government of District of Columbia (1951, 191 F. 2d 653, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Where petitioner was released from District of Columbia Reformatory on parole but a subsequent warrant was issued for violation of that parole, fact that petitioner served time in various places of detention other than in District of Columbia did not fulfill requirement of serving District of Columbia sentence. Id.

§ 24-206. Revocation of parole after retaking—Hearing—New parole.

When a prisoner has been retaken upon a warrant issued by the Board of Parole, he shall be given an opportunity to appear before the Board, a member thereof, or an examiner designated by the Board. At such hearing he may be represented by counsel. The Board may then, or at any time in its discretion, terminate the parole or modify the terms and conditions thereof. If the order of parole shall be revoked, the prisoner, unless subsequently reparaoled, shall serve the remainder of the sentence originally imposed less any commutation for good conduct which may be earned by him after his return to custody. For the purpose of computing commutation for good conduct, the remainder of the sentence originally imposed shall be considered as a new sentence. The time a prisoner was on parole shall not be taken into account to diminish the time for which he was sentenced.

In the event a prisoner is confined in, or as a parolee is returned to a penal or correctional institution other than a penal or correctional institution of the District of Columbia, the Board of Parole created by section 723a of title 18, U.S. Code, shall have and exercise the same power and authority as the Board of Parole of the District of Columbia had the prisoner been confined in or returned to a penal or correctional institution of the District of Columbia. (July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 698, ch. 492, § 6; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 242, ch. 254, § 5; July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 379, ch. 263, § 5.)

REFERENCES IN TEXT

Title 18 U.S.C. § 723a, referred to in the text, was repealed by act June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 862, ch. 645, § 21, and is now covered by 18 U.S.C. § 4201.

AMENDMENTS

1947—Act July 17, 1947, amended section generally, and among other changes, permitted the parole violator, upon recommitment, to earn commutation for good conduct.

1940—Act June 6, 1940, added the provisions relating to the authority of the Board of Parole when a prisoner is removed to an institution designated by the Attorney General.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appearance and hearing

Alleged parole violator was entitled to present testimony of witnesses appearing voluntarily. G. J. Reed, Chairman, U.S. Board of Parole et al. v. L. D. Butterworth (1961, 297 F. 2d 776, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

The provision of this section that a paroled prisoner arrested for violation of parole should be given an opportunity to appear before board meant an effective appearance, including presence of counsel, if desired by prisoner, and receipt of testimony if he has testimony to present. Fleming v. Tate (1946, 156 F. 2d 848, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 205).

Participation by counsel in proceedings against parole violator need be no greater than necessary to insure that board is accurately informed from parolee's standpoint before it acts, and permitted presentation of testimony by parolee is governed by same rule. Id.

Prisoner who had been retaken on warrant issued by Board of Parole was entitled to explain before Board his assertion that he had been leading a decent life and was entitled to more than a pro forma proceeding, and he would either be given an opportunity to explain such matters before Board or be discharged. United States ex rel. McCreary v. Kenton (D.C.D.C. 1960, 190 F. Supp. 689).

There is no denial of administrative due process to prisoner who is not entitled to have witnesses summoned and heard or who may not appear with counsel at hearing concerning revocation of parole. Id.

This section providing that a prisoner shall be given an opportunity to "appear" before the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of District of Columbia contemplates an effective appearance and not the mere physical presence of prisoner, and implies that he must be given a "hearing" wherein he is entitled to be represented by retained counsel, present evidence, and adduce witnesses. In re Tate (D.C.D.C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 961).

Under this section providing that a prisoner returned to an institution for alleged violation of his parole shall be given an opportunity to appear before the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of District of Columbia, a summary and informal hearing is sufficient. Id.

Assignment of counsel

Where it was undisputed that revocation of prisoner's conditional release was due to his failure to make report to parole supervisor, it was not necessary that indigent prisoner be furnished counsel at routine revocation hearing. Gaskins v. Kennedy (1965, 350 F. 2d 311, Fourth Circuit).

Under this section providing that a prisoner returned to an institution for alleged violation of his parole shall be given an opportunity to appear before the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of District of Columbia, right of counsel is statutory and not constitutional, and prisoner would not be entitled to have counsel assigned to represent him. In re Tate (D.C.D.C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 961).

Certificate of revocation

Where petitioner who had been granted parole by Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole for District of Columbia was re-arrested on reliable information for parole violation, was taken to United States Penitentiary outside District, hearing was had before Board of Parole, and certificate of revocation was signed by assistant parole executive of United States Board of Parole and transmitted to warden, certificate of revocation was valid although not issued by Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole for District of Columbia. Stillwell v. Looney (D.C.D.C. 1953, 110 F. Supp. 1, affirmed 207 F. 2d 359).

Commutation of sentence

Any right to commutation which defendant may have earned for good conduct at any time prior to recommitment was conditional and was forfeited by violation of parole. Jones v. Clemmer (1947, 163 F. 2d 852, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 288).

The amendment of July 17, 1947, to this section permitting parole violator to earn commutation for good conduct applied to service of remainder of sentences after recommitment, although sentences were originally imposed prior to such amendment. Id.

Construction

The amendment of July 17, 1947, to this section so as to permit parole violator upon recommitment to earn commutation for good conduct was remedial and was to be construed liberally. Jones v. Clemmer (1947, 163 F. 2d 852, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 288).

Deprivation of rights

Colorable claim of deprivation of rights to assistance of retained counsel and to present testimony of voluntary witnesses in parole revocation hearing is justiciable. Boddie v. Weakley (1966, 356 F. 2d 242, Fourth Circuit).

Discretion of board

Under this section, parolee should be permitted to present any pertinent matter, and, although board's discretion in continuing or revoking parole is uncontrolled, it cannot act in disregard of facts or refuse to hear argument. Fleming v. Tate (1946, 156 F. 2d 848, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 205).

The granting or revocation of a parole is within discretion of Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of the District of Columbia. In re Tate (D.C.D.C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 961).

Good time allowance

Where prisoner, who was sentenced for violation of District of Columbia Code and transferred to federal penitentiary at Leavenworth, was later conditionally released and placed under supervision of United States Board of Parole at Washington, D.C., but was later taken into custody on a warrant issued by United States Board of Parole for violation of conditions of his release and transferred to a penal institution operated by District of Columbia, prisoner after recommitment accumulated good time at rate of six days per month as fixed by District of Columbia Code and not at rate of eight days per month as was the case when he was confined in federal penitentiary. G. P. Clokey v. U.S. Parole Board et al. (1962, 310 F. 2d 86, U.S. App. 4th Ct.).

Habeas corpus

A parole violator, who was returned to prison without permitting counsel who had previously represented prisoner to appear in his behalf or permitting his employer to testify, was entitled to release in habeas corpus proceeding. Fleming v. Tate (1946, 156 F. 2d 848, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 205).

On writ of habeas corpus, District Court had no jurisdiction to review on merits a revocation of a parole by the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of District of Columbia, and only issue was whether petitioner had been deprived of his legal rights by manner in which revocation hearing was conducted. In re Tate (D.C.D.C. 1946, 63 F. Supp. 961).

Where, at hearing before Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole of District of Columbia to revoke a parole, parolee's counsel was not permitted to appear, parolee's employer was not permitted to testify, and parole was revoked, parolee's right under this section to appear before the board was violated and parolee would be discharged on habeas corpus without prejudice to subsequent proceedings for revocation of his parole in conformity with this section. Id.

Jurisdiction

Defendant, a narcotics violator who had been imprisoned in a District of Columbia penal institution and then conditionally released, was subject to provisions of District of Columbia Code dealing with parole. Gaskins v. Kennedy (1965, 350 F. 2d 311, Fourth Circuit).

Although defendant had been convicted of violating a general federal law, as distinguished from a criminal statute of the District of Columbia, defendant who had been in prison in District of Columbia penal institution and conditionally released was subject to supervision of the District parole board and statute empowering board to revoke parole was applicable to him. Id.

Where petitioner was released from District of Columbia Reformatory on parole, but a warrant was subsequently issued against him for violation of that parole and petitioner was confined at a Federal Penitentiary in Kansas upon conviction of a new and separate offense in Missouri, District of Columbia Board of Parole did not lose its jurisdiction over petitioner to Federal Parole Board and had the right to file a detainer against petitioner. Noll v. Board of Parole for Government of District of Columbia (1951, 191 F. 2d 653, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Revocation of parole

Failure of Board of Parole to give immediate hearing and revoke parole when paroled prisoner was returned to reformatory pursuant to sentences for crimes committed while on parole did not permit parole to continue running in satisfaction of original sentences after prisoner's re-entry of reformatory. Washington v. Clemmer (1948, 169 F. 2d 300, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 268).

Right to counsel

Prisoner is not entitled to services of appointed counsel in routine parole revocation hearing, but he has statutory right to assistance of retained counsel, and there is a judicially enforceable right to fundamental fairness, and right to fairness includes right to present testimony of voluntary witnesses. Boddie v. Weakley (1966, 356 F. 2d 242, Fourth Circuit).

That indigent parolee was not furnished counsel at hearing pursuant to which his parole was revoked did not render his subsequent confinement unlawful. R. E. Jones v. H. F. Rivers, et al., D. Clemmer et al. (C.A. 4th, 1964, 338 F. 2d 862).

Alleged parole violator was entitled to counsel at hearing. G. J. Reed, Chairman, U.S. Board of Parole et al. v. L. D. Butterworth (1961, 297 F. 2d 776, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

In proceeding for writ of habeas corpus by petitioner who had been arrested for violation of conditional release and imprisoned, where there was no showing that petitioner was advised of his right to have his counsel present at hearing before parole board respecting revocation of conditional release, record failed to disclose that petitioner had made an election not to have his counsel present at hearing. Moore v. Reid et al. (1957, 246 F. 2d 654, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 373).

Where person was arrested and imprisoned for violation of conditional release and brought before the District of Columbia Parole Board for hearing on revocation of conditional release, under circumstances, his failure to have counsel present at hearing was critical and effectively denied him of his statutory right to appear before board. Id.

Under this section giving a paroled prisoner an opportunity to appear before Parole Board at hearing on revocation of his parole, appearance includes right to counsel if the prisoner so elects. Id.

Rules of evidence

Although parole violator is entitled to present testimony at hearing before board, it is not required that receipt of testimony be governed by strict rules of evidence. Fleming v. Tate (1946, 156 F. 2d 848, 81 U.S. App. D.C. 205).

Sentence upon reimprisonment

Prisoner was not entitled, on return to prison following revocation of parole, to credit against remaining sentence for time spent on parole. R. A. Howerton v. Hugh F. Rivers et al. (1963, 326 F. 2d 653, 117 U.S. App. D.C. 110).

Prisoner was not entitled, on return to prison following revocation of parole, to credit against remaining sentence for time spent on parole. E. Bates v. H. F. Rivers, Executive etc. (1963, 323 F. 2d 311, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 306).

Title 18 U.S.C. § 4164, providing that federal prisoners shall be subject to all provisions of law relating to the parole of United States prisoners, did not require that a District of Columbia prisoner who had his conditional release revoked be recommitted under good conduct deduction provisions of the general federal statutes without regard to this section providing for computation of good conduct deductions for recommitted parolees, and fact that prisoner, as a result of application of this section was required to serve more time than a prisoner convicted under general federal law did not deny prisoner the equal protection or due process of law as guaranteed by the Fifth Amendment. Gilstrap v. Clemmer et al. (C.A. Va. 1960, 284 F. 2d 804).

The provision of this former section that unexpired term of imprisonment of any paroled prisoner shall begin to run from date he is returned to institution does not require that original sentence shall run from date of his imprisonment for new and separate offense, but refers only to reimprisonment on original sentence under order of parole board. Washington v. Clemmer (1948, 169 F. 2d 300, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 268).

Service of sentence

The unexpired portion of a parole violator's original sentence begins to run not when he is in prison by arrest or conviction for a new and separate offense but only when his parole has been revoked and he has been returned to custody of revoking authority. Noll v. Board of Parole for Government of District of Columbia (1951, 191 F. 2d 653, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Where petitioner was released from District of Columbia Reformatory on parole but a subsequent warrant was issued for violation of that parole, fact that petitioner served time in various places of detention other than in District of Columbia did not fulfill requirement of serving District of Columbia sentence. Id.

Violation of conditions

District of Columbia Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole had power to impose conditions upon release of prisoner who had served full time of sentence with deductions for good conduct and in event of violation of conditions to recommit him to serve out balance of his term. Gould v. Green (1944, 141 F. 2d 533, 78 U.S. App. D. C. 363).

§ 24-207. Repeal of inconsistent laws—Savings provision.

All acts or parts of acts inconsistent with the provisions of sections 22-2601, 24-201, 24-202 to 24-209 and 24-425 are hereby repealed: Provided, however, That for any felony committed before July 15, 1932, the penalty, sentence, or forfeiture provided by law for such felony at the time such felony was committed shall remain in full force and effect and shall be imposed, notwithstanding said sections. (July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 698, ch. 492, § 7.)

REFERENCES IN TEXT

Sections 24-201 and 24-202, referred to in the text, were repealed by act July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 379, ch. 263, § 7.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Prisoners confined outside District

Parole board under Indeterminate Sentence Act had no jurisdiction over prisoners convicted of murder in the District of Columbia, but confined in the United States penitentiary at Atlanta, Ga. Aderhold v. Lee (C.C.A. 5, 1934, 68 F. 2d 824, certiorari denied 54 S. Ct. 718, 292 U.S. 633, 78 L. Ed. 1486).

Purpose

This section was intended to repeal those provisions of existing acts requiring the imposition of a definite, as distinguished from an indeterminate, sentence. Anderson v. Rives (1936, 85 F. 2d 673, 66 App. D.C. 174).

§ 24-208. Power of Board—Prisoners sentenced to more than 180 days—Minimum sentence required to be served.

The power of the Board of Parole shall extend to all prisoners whose sentences exceed one hundred and eighty days regardless of the nature of the offense: Provided, That in the case of a prisoner convicted of an offense other than a felony, including violations of municipal regulations and ordinances and Acts of Congress in the nature of municipal regulations and ordinances, the prisoner may not be paroled until he has served one-third of the sentence imposed, and in the case of two or more sentences for other than a felony, no parole may be granted until after the prisoner has served one-third of the aggregate sentences imposed. (July 15, 1932, 47 Stat. 698, ch. 492, § 9; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 242, ch. 254, § 7 (a); July 17, 1947, 61 Stat. 379, ch. 263, § 6.)

AMENDMENTS

1947—Act July 17, 1947, amended section generally.

1940—Act June 6, 1940, substituted “any prisoner convicted of two or more crimes other than a felony, including violations of municipal regulations and ordinances and Acts of Congress in the nature of municipal regulations and ordinances, when the aggregate of the sentences imposed is in excess of one year, said Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole may parole said prisoner, under the provisions of this Act, after said prisoner has served one-third of the aggregate sentence imposed”, for “a prisoner convicted of felony committed prior to the effective date of this Act [July 15, 1932] and in the case of any prisoner convicted of misdemeanor when the aggregate sentence imposed is in excess of one year, said Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole may parole said prisoner, under the provisions of this Act, after said prisoner has served one-fifth of the sentence imposed.”

CONVICTION OF PRIOR MISDEMEANORS OR FELONIES

Subsection (b) of section 7 of act June 6, 1940, provided: “In the case of a prisoner convicted of misdemeanors committed prior to the effective date of this amendatory act [June 6, 1940], when the aggregate sentence imposed is in excess of one year, and in the case of a prisoner convicted of felony committed prior to the effective date of said act approved July 15, 1932, said Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole may parole said prisoner under the provisions of said act approved July 15, 1932, as amended, after said prisoner has served one-fifth of the sentence imposed.”

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Powers of board

Under this section creating District of Columbia Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole and providing for transfer of powers from federal board of parole to district board upon appointment of members of district board, the district board receives such powers over prisoners confined in penal institutions of district as existed in federal board of parole on date of appointment of members of district board, and not merely powers which existed in federal board of parole at time this chapter became effective. Gould v. Green (1944, 141 F. 2d 533, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

Under this section creating District of Columbia Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole and providing for transfer of powers from federal board of parole over prisoners confined in penal institutions in District of Columbia to district board upon appointment of members of district board, authority of district board was not limited to prisoners thereafter convicted. Id.

§ 24-209. Federal Parole Board—Authority over United States prisoners convicted in the District of Columbia.

The Board of Parole created by section 723a of title 18, U.S. Code, shall have and exercise the same power and authority over prisoners convicted in the District of Columbia of crimes against the United States and now or hereafter confined in any United States penitentiary or prison (other than the penal institutions of the District of Columbia) as is vested in the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole over prisoners confined in the penal institutions of the District of Columbia. (July 15, 1932, ch. 492, § 10, as added June 5, 1934, 48 Stat. 880, ch. 391.)

REFERENCES IN TEXT

Title 18 U.S.C. § 723a, referred to in the text, was repealed by act June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 862, ch. 645, § 21, and is now covered by 18 U.S.C. § 4201.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

There is no doubt that Congress intended this section to be applicable to persons convicted in the District of Columbia of crimes against the general laws of the United States. Sims v. Rives (1936, 84 F. 2d 871, 66 App. D. C. 24).

This section gives to the United States Board of Parole the same power and authority over prisoners convicted in the District of Columbia of crimes against the United States as is vested in the Board of Indeterminate Sentence and Parole. Story v. Rives (1938, 97 F. 2d 182, 68 App. D.C. 325).

The term “prisoners confined in”, as used in this section transferring power over prisoners confined in penal institutions of District of Columbia from United States Board of Parole to the District Board of Penal Institutions, is used to designate group of persons by institutions rather than to delimit powers of District board to such persons only while they are in confinement. Ex parte Gould (D.C.D.C. 1943, 51 F. Supp. 354).

The power of United States Board of Parole to impose conditions on release on account of deductions for good conduct of United States prisoners passed from United States Board of Parole to District Board of Penal Institutions with respect to United States prisoners in penal institutions of the District of Columbia. Id.

Jurisdiction

Where petitioner was released from District of Columbia Reformatory on parole, but a warrant was subsequently issued against him for violation of that parole and petitioner was confined at a Federal Penitentiary in Kansas upon conviction of a new and separate offense in Missouri, District of Columbia Board of Parole did not lose its jurisdiction over petitioner to Federal Parole Board and had the right to file a detainer against petitioner. Noll v. Board of Parole for Government of District of Columbia (1951, 191 F. 2d 653, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Prisoners confined outside District

This section is not inconsistent with the authority of the Attorney General to transfer prisoners from the District of Columbia. Bracey v. Hill (D.C. Pa. 1935, 11 F. Supp. 148).

The same privileges of parole are accorded prisoners sentenced in the District of Columbia and committed to penal institutions outside of the District as to those sentenced and confined within the District. Id.

This section removes the question whether a defendant, who was sentenced in the District of Columbia, could be committed to a penal institution outside of the District because of the deprivation of parole. Id.

One sentenced for violation of the laws of the District of Columbia, convicted and confined in District, could be confined outside the District, and such confinement does not violate any constitutional rights. MacAboy v. Klecka (D.C. Md. 1938, 22 F. Supp. 960).

The United States Board of Parole and not the District Board of Penal Institutions, has jurisdiction over prisoners convicted in District of Columbia and transferred to some Federal institution other than penal institutions of the District. Ex parte Gould (D.C.D.C. 1943, 51 F. Supp. 354).

Release of prisoners not on parole

Neither this section nor §§ 24-201 to 24-208 have any bearing upon the release of prisoners other than on parole, and neither restricts in any way the power of the United States Board to supervise prisoners so released from institutions other than in the District under the provisions of section 4 of the act of June 29, 1932 (18 U.S.C. former § 716b [now 18 U.S.C. § 4164]). Story v. Rives (1938, 97 F. 2d 182, 69 App. D.C. 325).

Release of prisoners on parole

This act constituted an extension of power in the United States Board over District of Columbia prisoners in that it permitted the board to release such prisoners on parole from non-District institutions after serving only one-fifth of their maximum terms. Story v. Rives (1938, 97 F. 2d 182, 68 App. D.C. 325).

Service of sentence

The unexpired portion of a parole violator's original sentence begins to run not when he is in prison by arrest or conviction for a new and separate offense but only when his parole has been revoked and he has been returned to custody of revoking authority. Noll v. Board of Parole for Government of District of Columbia (1951, 191 F. 2d 653, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 206).

Where petitioner was released from District of Columbia Reformatory on parole but a subsequent warrant was issued for violation of that parole, fact that petitioner served time in various places of detention other than in District of Columbia did not fulfill requirement of serving District of Columbia sentence. Id.

United States prisoner

Prisoner sentenced for violation of the laws of the District of Columbia is a "United States prisoner" within the meaning of 18 U.S.C. § 716b [now 18 U.S.C. § 4164]. MacAboy v. Klecka (D.C. Md. 1938, 22 F. Supp. 960).

Chapter 3.—INSANE CRIMINALS

Sec.

24-301. Commitment of persons of unsound mind to the District of Columbia General Hospital—Certification to the court—Acquittal by jury on grounds of insanity—Confinement in a mental institution—Conditions for release after confinement—Conditional release—Expenses—Writ of habeas corpus—Inconsistent provisions of Federal Statutes superseded.

24-302. Commitment of mentally ill person while serving sentence.

24-303. Restoration to sanity—Delivery of person to court—Delivery of person to Director of Department of Corrections.

§ 24-301. Commitment of persons of unsound mind to the District of Columbia General Hospital—Certification to the court—Acquittal by jury on grounds of insanity—Confinement in a mental institution—Conditions for release after confinement—Conditional release—Expenses—Writ of habeas corpus—Inconsistent provisions of Federal Statutes superseded.

(a) Whenever a person is arrested, indicted, charged by information, or is charged in the juvenile court of the District of Columbia, for or with an offense and, prior to the imposition of sentence or prior to the expiration of any period of probation, it shall appear to the court from the court's own observations, or from prima facie evidence submitted to the court, that the accused is of unsound mind or is mentally incompetent so as to be unable to understand the proceedings against him or properly to assist in his own defense, the court may order the accused committed to the District of Columbia General Hospital or other mental hospital designated by the court, for such reasonable period as the court may determine for examination and observation and for care and treatment if such is necessary by the psychiatric staff of said hospital. If, after such examination and observation, the superintendent of the hospital, in the case of a mental hospital, or the chief psychiatrist of the District of Columbia General Hospital, in the case of District of Columbia General Hospital, shall report that in his opinion the accused is of unsound mind or mentally incompetent, such report shall be sufficient to authorize the court to commit by order the accused to a hospital for the mentally ill unless the accused or the Government objects, in which event, the court, after hearing without a jury, shall make a judicial determination of the competency of the accused to stand trial. If the court shall find the accused to be then of unsound mind or mentally incompetent to stand trial, the court shall order the accused confined to a hospital for the mentally ill.

(b) Whenever an accused person confined to a hospital for the mentally ill is restored to mental competency in the opinion of the superintendent of said hospital, the superintendent shall certify such fact to the clerk of the court in which the indictment, information, or charge against the accused is pending and such certification shall be sufficient to authorize the court to enter an order thereon adjudicating him to be competent to stand trial, unless the accused or the Government objects, in which event, the court, after hearing without a jury, shall make a judicial determination of the competency of the accused to stand trial.

(c) When any person tried upon an indictment or information for an offense, or tried in the juvenile court of the District of Columbia for an offense, is acquitted solely on the ground that he was insane at the time of its commission, that fact shall be set forth by the jury in their verdict.

(d) If any person tried upon an indictment or information for an offense, or tried in the juvenile court of the District of Columbia for an offense, is acquitted solely on the ground that he was insane at the time of its commission, the court shall order such person to be confined in a hospital for the mentally ill.

(e) Where any person has been confined in a hospital for the mentally ill pursuant to subsection (d) of this section, and the superintendent of such hospital certifies (1) that such person has recovered his sanity, (2) that, in the opinion of the superintendent, such person will not in the reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others, and (3) in the opinion of the superintendent, the person is entitled to his unconditional release from the hospital, and such certificate is filed with the clerk of the court in which the person was tried, and a copy thereof served on the United States Attorney or the Corporation Counsel of the District of Columbia, whichever office prosecuted the accused, such certificate shall be sufficient to authorize the court to order the unconditional release of the person so confined from further hospitalization at the expiration of fifteen days from the time said certificate was filed and served as above; but the court in its discretion may, or upon objection of the United States or the District of Columbia shall, after due notice, hold a hearing at which evidence as to the mental condition of the person so confined may be submitted, including the testimony of one or more psychiatrists from said hospital. The court shall weigh the evidence and, if the court finds that such person has recovered his sanity and will not in the reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others, the court shall order such person unconditionally released from further confinement in said hospital. If the court does not so find, the court shall order such person returned to said hospital. Where, in the judgment of the superintendent of such hospital, a person confined under subsection (d) above is not in such condition as to warrant his unconditional release, but is in a condition to be conditionally released under supervision, and such certificate is filed and served as above provided, such certificate shall be sufficient to authorize the court to order the release of such person under such conditions as the court shall see fit at the expiration of fifteen days from the time such certificate is filed and served pursuant to this section: Provided, That the provisions as to hearing prior to unconditional release shall also apply to conditional releases, and, if, after a hearing and weighing the evidence, the court shall find that the condition of such person warrants his conditional release, the court shall order his release under such conditions as the court shall see fit, or, if the court does not so find, the court shall order such person returned to such hospital.

(f) When an accused person shall be acquitted solely on the ground of insanity and ordered confined in a hospital for the mentally ill, such person and his estate shall be charged with the expense of his support in such hospital.

(g) Nothing herein contained shall preclude a person confined under the authority of this section from establishing his eligibility for release under the provisions of this section by a writ of habeas corpus.

(h) The provisions of this section shall supersede in the District of Columbia the provisions of any Federal statutes or parts thereof inconsistent with this section. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1340, ch. 854, § 927; Apr. 14, 1906, 34 Stat. 113, ch. 1624; July 2, 1945, 59 Stat. 311, ch. 217; Aug. 9, 1955, 69 Stat. 609, ch. 673, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

1955—Act Aug. 9, 1955, amended section generally.

1945—Act July 2, 1945, inserted the references to the juvenile court of the District of Columbia wherever appearing, provided for committing the accused to the Gallinger Municipal Hospital for psychiatric evaluation, and for a report on the accused's sanity by the psychiatric staff, and substituted "Federal Security Administrator" for "Secretary of the Interior."

1906—Act Apr. 14, 1906, inserted "or is charged by an information" following "whenever a person is indicted."

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Reorganization Order No. 57 of the Board of Commissioners dated June 30, 1953, and effective Aug. 15, 1953, established under the direction and control of a Commissioner, a Department of Public Health headed by a Director, for the purpose of planning, implementing, and directing public health and hospital care programs, and for performing certain other allied medical functions. The order abolished the previously existing Gallinger Municipal Hospital and transferred all of its positions and functions to the new department. It further provided that within the department the District of Columbia General Hospital is to perform all functions previously performed by Gallinger Municipal Hospital. This order was issued pursuant to Reorganization Plan No. 5 of 1952. The order and plan are set out in the Appendix to title 1, Administration.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Acceptance of guilty plea

Where psychiatrist's report on defendant's competency to stand trial on bad check charge had included statement that defendant's crimes were product of specified mental disease particularly affecting financial judgment and that defendant required further treatment to insure against repetition of the offenses, court properly refused to accept plea of guilty and proceeded to trial to determine that defendant was not guilty by reason of insanity, though defendant had been judicially declared competent to stand trial and to assist in his own defense. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. v. F. C. Lynch (1961, 288 F. 2d 388, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 404; reversed on other grounds 1962, 82 S. Ct. 1063).

Admissibility of statements made by accused

Statute to effect that no statement made by accused in course of examination into his sanity or mental competency shall be admitted in evidence against accused on issue of guilt in criminal proceeding is applicable to mental examinations ordered by District of Columbia courts when it appears that accused is of unsound mind or mentally incompetent to understand proceedings against him. P. A. Battle v. D. C. Cameron, Superintendent etc. (1966, 260 F. Supp. 804).

Adequate assistance of counsel

Failure of petitioner's counsel to object to certificate of competency was not shown to have constituted inadequate assistance of counsel. Mordecai v. United States (D.C.D.C. 1966, 252 F. Supp. 694).

Adjudication of insanity

Commitment to mental hospital pursuant to code after verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity is not adjudication of insanity or incompetency. W. Green v. United States (1965, 351 F. 2d 198, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

Appeal

Mental patient had standing to appeal District Court's order releasing him to prison from institution to which he had been committed after being found not guilty of robbery by reason of insanity. L. W. Green v. United States (1965, 349 F. 2d 203, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 226).

Where accused was found not guilty by reason of insanity and was committed to hospital and some two months thereafter accused petitioned for writ of habeas corpus without prepayment of costs and District Court denied such petition without a hearing and without stating reasons for denial, case would be remanded and District Court, if it rejected allegation of poverty, would be required to state basis for such rejection, and if leave to file without costs was permitted or if accused should pay necessary filing fees, hospital superintendent would be directed to report as to accused's condition, and upon the return the District Court should conduct hearing to determine whether accused had recovered sanity and would not be dangerous to himself or others in reasonable future. Tatem, Sr. v. United States (1960, 275 F. 2d 894, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 230).

Where it appeared to Court of Appeals reviewing conviction of an attempted abortion resulting in death that evidence did not permit trier of fact to conclude beyond a reasonable doubt that defendant had no mental disease or defect, case would be remanded with instructions that unless Government advised trial court without unreasonable delay that it can meet its burden of proof at a new trial, defendant is to be acquitted on ground of insanity and committed to a mental hospital and dealt with in accordance with statute, that is, hospitalized until she is free from such abnormal condition as would render her dangerous to herself or community in the reasonably foreseeable future. Hopkins v. United States (1960, 275 F. 2d 155, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 126).

Where trial court did not have benefit of construction of Court of Appeals respecting this section providing for the conditional release of patients who have been committed to mental hospital after acquittal of crime by reason of insanity, Court of Appeals would refrain from review of evidence and allow trial court to evaluate it in the first instance in light of principles held applicable. Hough v. United States (1959, 271 F. 2d 458, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Though jury was not warranted on evidence in failing to entertain reasonable doubt that except for diseased mental condition defendant would have committed robberies, Court of Appeals would not direct that defendant be acquitted by reason of insanity, but would remand for a new trial, where testimony of expert who had not testified at second trial would be available at retrial, resolvable ambiguities existed in testimony, and dearth of prosecution's nonmedical testimony, might be overcome. Douglas v. United States (1956, 239 F. 2d 52, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 232).

Appeal from commitment to St. Elizabeths Hospital under this section was moot in view of the fact that petitioner had been determined by a jury to be of sound mind and had been released from the hospital. Savage v. White (1926, 14 F. 2d 352, 56 App. D.C. 365).

Burden of proof

Burden rests with party seeking commitment of accused to mental institution to prove that accused is then of unsound mind. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 307 U.S. 618, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Where there is evidence that accused was of unsound mind when offenses occurred, prosecution is under necessity of establishing to satisfaction of jury beyond reasonable doubt that offenses were not result of accused's insanity. Douglas v. United States (1956, 239 F. 2d 52, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 232).

In order to justify conviction, where there is evidence that accused was of unsound mind when offenses occurred, proof, considered with presumption of sanity, must exclude beyond reasonable doubt the hypothesis that conduct indicted was product of a diseased mind or mental defect. Id.

When lack of mental capacity is raised as a defense to a charge of crime, the law presumes that the defendant is sane, but as soon as some evidence of mental disorder is introduced, sanity must be proved beyond a reasonable doubt as part of prosecution's case. Durham v. United States (1954, 214 F. 2d 862, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 228, 45 A.L.R. 2d 1430).

In forgery prosecution, testimony of two psychiatrists and a lay witness to effect that defendant was, in their opinion, suffering from mental illness when he committed the crimes charged satisfied requirement that defendant produce some evidence, and shifted burden of proving sanity to government. United States v. Amburgey (D.C.D.C. 1960, 189 F. Supp. 687).

Person who sought release from hospital to which he had been committed after having been found not guilty of housebreaking and larceny on ground of insanity had burden of proving by a preponderance of evidence that he had recovered his sanity, and would not in reasonably foreseeable future be dangerous to himself or others by reason of mental disease or defect, and that failure of superintendent of hospital to certify him for release was arbitrary or capricious. S. V. Robertson v. D. C. Cameron (D.C.D.C. 1963, 224 F. Supp. 60).

Once a man has been committed to a hospital after verdict of not guilty by reason in insanity, government need not thereafter be forced to prove his insanity as price of continuing treatment. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. v. F. C. Lynch (1961, 288 F. 2d 388, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 404; reversed on other grounds 1962, 82 S. Ct. 1063).

Petitioner maintaining proceeding for writ of habeas corpus to secure release from mental institution in which he has been confined upon his acquittal of criminal charge by reason of insanity has heavy burden of proof that he is not dangerous or potentially dangerous to himself or others, exceeding a standard of proof by a preponderance of evidence, and in a close case, even where preponderance of evidence favors the petitioner, the doubt, if reasonable doubt exists about danger to public or patient, cannot be resolved so as to risk danger to public or individual. Ragsdale v. Overholser, Supt. etc. (C.A.D.C. 1960, 281 F. 2d 943).

In habeas corpus proceeding brought by petitioner claiming right to be released from hospital for the mentally ill, it was necessary for petitioner to show not only that he had recovered his sanity but also that superintendent of hospital was arbitrarily and capriciously withholding certificate of recovered sanity; and, on record presented, such burden was not sustained. O'Beirne v. Overholser, Superintendent etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 180 F. Supp. 572).

Certification of sanity

The letter from hospital superintendent stating conclusion that accused was considered competent to stand trial, without supporting information and reasons, would not come within meaning of terms "report" or "certificate" as used in District of Columbia statute authorizing admission of hospital reports or certificates on mental competency. P. Holloway v. United States (1964, 343 F. 2d 265, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

On remand for new hearing on defendant's competency to stand trial after erroneous denial of pre-trial motion for mental examination, the judicial determination of defendant's present competency must be an informed one and could not likely be made from superintendent's letter stating, without supporting information and reasons, that accused was considered competent to stand trial. Id.

To be "arbitrary" or "capricious", refusal of superintendent of hospital to certify that person committed to hospital after being found not guilty of criminal charge on ground of insanity has recovered his sanity and is entitled to unconditional release must be without a reasonable or rational basis, but it need not be made in bad faith. S. V. Robertson v. D. C. Cameron (D.C.D.C. 1963, 224 F. Supp. 60).

Superintendent of hospital to which person is committed after having been found not guilty of a crime on ground of insanity may not act according to his personal notion or whim, no matter how well intentioned or bona fide his action may be, in determining whether person committed has recovered his sanity and is entitled to an unconditional release. Id.

Refusal of superintendent of hospital to which person had been committed after being found not guilty of crime on ground of insanity to make certificate as basis for committed person's release was arbitrary and capricious, in view of showing of grounds for release. Id.

Mental hospital superintendent's return in habeas corpus proceeding by inmate, asserting generally that inmate had not recovered from "abnormal mental condition" and required further treatment, without explaining quoted phrase or describing past or future treatment, was insufficient on its face. H. T. O'Beirne v. W. Overholser (D.C.D.C. 1961, 193 F. Supp. 652; reversed on other grounds 302 F. 2d 852).

One who had been found not guilty by reason of insanity and committed to mental hospital could not be detained in hospital beyond period of maximum sentence possible for the offense charged, because of "sociopathic personality" which was not sufficient basis for a civil adjudication of mental incompetency, even if such condition tended to make him an habitual petty criminal. Id.

Fact that a person is an habitual petty criminal could not subject him to permanent incarceration in criminal ward of mental institution, and such disposition may not be used as a substitute for laws dealing expressly with habitual criminals. Id.

Court may not authorize release of person confined in hospital for mentally ill unless hospital superintendent certifies that he has recovered his sanity. O'Beirne v. Overholser, Superintendent etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 180 F. Supp. 572).

Purpose of requirement of this section that superintendent of hospital certify that person seeking release has recovered his sanity is to safeguard public against release of insane criminals who might possibly repeat their depredations. Id.

Commitment after acquittal

The moment that defendant in criminal case is found not guilty, whether on the ground of insanity or any other ground, criminal court ceases to have any control over him and presiding judge no longer has authority to hold a hearing under statute dealing with commitment of defendants in criminal cases for mental examination or treatment and cannot commit defendant to a mental institution thereunder. C. Mullen v. D. C. Cameron (D.C.D.C. 1966, 255 F. Supp. 326).

Under District of Columbia statute relating to commitment for mental examination or treatment of defendants in criminal cases who may appear to be incompetent to stand trial, commitment may be made at any time prior to imposition of sentence or prior to expiration of any period of probation, since during those periods the criminal court still has control over defendant. Id.

Commitment of habeas corpus petitioner to mental institution under statute dealing with commitment of defendant in criminal case for mental examination or treatment after petitioner had been found not guilty of charge of assault on ground of insanity, a defense which she had not interposed, was invalid but court would stay its order sustaining writ of habeas corpus for 30 days to enable government to institute civil commitment proceedings if it was deemed advisable. Id.

Commitment procedure

In event of an acquittal of accused by reason of insanity following his affirmative refusal to rely on such ground as a defense the automatic commitment procedures of District of Columbia statute would not apply. T. W. Whalem v. United States (1965, 346 F. 2d 812, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 331).

Supreme Court granted certiorari, where important questions were raised as to procedure for confining criminally insane in District of Columbia and as to possible constitutional infirmities in statute under which commitment was made as applied to circumstances in case. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Although inmate of mental hospital had not been informed that possible alternative to commitment, pursuant to this section requiring confinement in mental hospital of those acquitted solely on ground of insanity, was to ask for new trial, inmate whose only possible defense was insanity and whose chances for acquittal on a second trial were minuscule was properly committed to hospital after being acquitted. Curry v. Overholser, Supt. etc. (C.A.D.C. 1960, 287 F. 2d 137).

When person suspected of insanity is also accused of crime, trial court is not to be permitted to commit such person to a mental hospital without benefit of a jury or of the Mental Health Commission, even though the person is competent to stand trial, but there must be a report and recommendation by the commission, a jury's verdict if demanded, and a district court order. Williams v. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1958, 259 F. 2d 175, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

Committing magistrates' authority

Committing magistrate, including judge of District of Columbia Court of General Sessions when sitting as committing magistrate, does not have power to make finding that person charged with felony is mentally incompetent to stand trial and thereby preclude action on that important question by district court for the District of Columbia. J. C. Mauce v. D. C. Cameron (1966, 260 F. Supp. 851).

Where petitioner was arrested on felony charge, he was found by judge of District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, sitting as committing magistrate, to be incompetent to stand trial and he was committed to mental institution, he was entitled to habeas corpus relief but only relief that could be granted was that report of District of Columbia General Hospital to effect that petitioner was not competent to stand trial be referred to District Court for District of Columbia and that hearing be set in that court on basis of the report on question of mental competency. Id.

Competency to stand trial

Defendant's testimony wherein he admitted that he had been using narcotics throughout the trial and even during lunch recess that very day and testimony of court-appointed psychiatrist that defendant's use of narcotics had previously produced "acute brain syndrome", a mental disorder, raised substantial doubt as to his competency, and therefore imposed on trial court, which had initially found defendant competent to stand trial, a duty to inquire anew into competency. D. L. Hansford v. United States (1966, 365 F. 2d 920, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 387).

To be competent to stand trial, defendant's memory and intellectual abilities must not be substantially impaired by mental disorder. Id.

Competency to stand trial depends on whether defendant understands nature of proceedings against him and is properly able to assist in his own defense. United States v. H. L. Womack (D.C.D.C. 1962, 211 F. Supp. 578).

Under District of Columbia law pertaining to insane criminals, any hearing must be on issue of defendant's competency to stand trial, and nothing more. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 147 A. 2d 773).

Conditional release

Under this section governing conditional release of persons who have been committed to mental hospital after acquittal of crime by reason of insanity, to order conditional release upon a challenged certification court must conclude individual has recovered sufficiently so that under proposed conditions, or under conditions which this section empowers court to impose, such person will not in the reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others. Hough v. United States (1959, 271 F. 2d 458, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Constitutionality

Mental hospital inmate who had been committed, under statute, on acquittal of charge of indecent exposure was entitled, in habeas corpus proceeding, to question constitutionality of mandatory commitment statute, as applied to inmate, on ground that he was not receiving treatments. B. Darnell v. D. C. Cameron, Supt. etc. (1965, 348 F. 2d 64, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 58).

District of Columbia statute requiring mandatory confinement of persons found not guilty by reason of insanity is constitutional. J. L. Foller v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1961, 292 F. 2d 732, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

Provision requiring commitment to mental institution of persons acquitted of crimes by reason of insanity did not deprive one committed pursuant thereto of liberty without due process of law, as there was rational connection between known evidence of the person's mental disease and mandatory commitment provision, and as statute authorizes one so confined to test legality of confinement by habeas corpus proceeding which provides de novo hearing to examine into mental condition. Ragsdale v. Overholser, Supt. etc. (C.A.D.C. 1960, 281 F. 2d 943).

"There can be no reasonable objection to the validity of the provision of this section. It makes ample provision for the inquiry which is conducted with due regard to the protection of the defendant." Wagner v. White (1912, 38 App. D.C. 554.)

This section is constitutional and valid. Ormsby v. United States (C.C.A. 6, 1921, 273 F. 977).

Construction

Amendments of statute relating to judicial determination of competency or incompetency were enacted to overrule that much of prior opinion holding that accused could not be ordered to trial on basis of certification of accused's competency to stand trial by superintendent of mental institution wherein accused had been examined. T. W. Whalem v. United States (1965, 346 F. 2d 812, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 331).

Statute to effect that person acquitted solely on ground that he was insane at time of commission of offense shall be ordered by court to be confined in hospital for mentally ill forecloses trial judge from exercising any discretion and does not require finding by trial judge, jury, or medical board as to accused's mental health on date of judgment of acquittal. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Statute to effect that person acquitted solely on ground that he was insane at time of commission of offense shall be confined in hospital for mentally ill is applicable only to defendant who affirmatively relies upon defense of insanity in any way and such defense need not be asserted by formal plea, but statute does not apply to one who has maintained that he was mentally responsible when alleged offense was committed. Id.

Accused, who did not claim that he had been insane when offenses were committed and who presented no evidence to support an acquittal by reason of insanity, was not properly confined in hospital for mentally ill upon finding of trial judge that he was not guilty on ground that he was insane at time of commission of offenses. Id.

Statutory construction confining itself to bare words of statute is dangerous in that literalness may strangle meaning. Id.

Statute should be interpreted, if fairly possible, in such way as to free it from not insubstantial constitutional doubts. Id.

Criminal responsibility

In determining issue whether or not indicted conduct was product of mental disease or mental defect, or whether accused acted because of mental disorder, there need be only reasonable doubt about it to entitle accused to an acquittal. Douglas v. United States (1956, 239 F. 2d 52, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 232).

While issue of criminal responsibility of defendant suffering from mental disease is not an issue of fact in same sense as the commission of the offense, it still is an issue of fact. Id.

The court-formulated test of insanity that accused is not criminally responsible if his unlawful act was product of mental disease or mental defect could not be applied retrospectively but only prospectively. Watson, Jr. v. United States (1956, 234 F. 2d 42, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 221).

Term "disease", as used in rule that an accused is not criminally responsible if his unlawful act was product of mental disease or mental defect, means condition which is considered capable of either improving or deteriorating, and term "defect" as so used means condition which is not considered capable of improving or deteriorating and which may be either congenital, or traumatic, or the residual effect of physical or mental disease. Durham v. United States (1954, 214 F. 2d 862, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 228, 45 A.L.R. 2d 1430).

In District of Columbia, formulation of tests of criminal responsibility is entrusted to the courts, and they may adopt changes in such tests retroactively. Id.

Whenever there is some evidence that the accused suffered from a diseased or defective mental condition at the time the unlawful act was committed, trial court must provide jury with guides for determining whether accused can be held criminally responsible. Id.

An accused is not criminally responsible if his unlawful act was product of mental disease or mental defect. Id.

A defendant is entitled to verdict of not guilty on ground of insanity, if jury finds that offense charged was insane act by application of any one of three tests as to whether defendant was able to distinguish between right and wrong, able to adhere to right and refrain from doing wrong, or suffered from mental disease or defect which caused criminal act. United States v. Fielding (1956, 148 F. Supp. 46, reversed on other grounds 251 F. 2d 878, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 167).

Defense of insanity

Defendant who was denied pretrial mental examination and thus lacked opportunity to establish basis of insanity defense could not be charged with acquiescing in subsequently appointed counsel's failure to assert defense. Cannady v. United States (1965, 351 F. 2d 817, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

On adequate averment, defendant has right to assistance of court in developing basis for his insanity defense, and such assistance may take form of commitment for mental examination, examination through Mental Health Commission or Legal Psychiatric Service, or appointment of private experts. A. J. Brown v. United States (1964, 331 F. 2d 822, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 76).

Where indigent defendant in attempting to utilize defense of insanity based on drug addiction was denied even minimal assistance of free subpoena through averments in his motions were not inherently incredible on their face and there was no evidence that averments were untrue or that request was otherwise frivolous, defendant was entitled to new trial after fair opportunity to prepare defense of insanity. Id.

Directed verdict

Where a trial court, in a criminal prosecution, should have directed a judgment of acquittal by reason of insanity, notwithstanding the verdict, judgment of conviction would be vacated on appeal and case remanded with directions. Isaac v. United States (C.A.D.C. 1960, 284 F. 2d 168).

On record presented, in robbery prosecution, it was error to deny defendant's motion for directed verdict on ground of insanity. Satterwhite v. United States (1959, 267 F. 2d 675, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 398).

Discretion of court

Decision to proceed to trial in absence of objection to hospital report that defendant was competent to stand trial was decision calling for exercise of discretion by court. B. T. Wider v. United States (1965, 348 F. 2d 358, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 129).

Hospital report that defendant was mentally competent to stand trial was not binding on court. Id.

Though hospital report stated that defendant was mentally competent to stand trial, facts of case required exercise of discretion by court by way of further investigation into competency of defendant to stand trial. Id.

Record failed to establish that district court abused its discretion in denying application for conditional release, under statute governing release of one committed to mental institution after being found not guilty of crime by reason of insanity, based on certificate of superintendent of hospital in which applicant was confined. M. W. Durnham v. United States (1962, 308 F. 2d 332, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

Under statute requiring appropriate certificate of superintendent of mental hospital as a condition precedent to release of person committed, court may not substitute its own judgment for that of superintendent and may not try the matter de novo in habeas corpus proceeding, but superintendent's action or failure to act may not be deemed final or conclusive for all purposes. H. T. O'Bierne v. W. Overholser (D.C.D.C. 1961, 193 F. Supp. 652, reversed on other grounds 302 F. 2d 852).

Court may step in to determine whether action or failure to act on part of superintendent of mental hospital is arbitrary and capricious. Id.

In proceeding brought by one who was confined to mental institution following his acquittal of criminal charge by reason of insanity, to secure his release from institution, District Court, in denying writ, made permissible choice between expert evidence that he was dangerous and other evidence, including testimony of laymen, tending to suggest that he was not. Ragsdale v. Overholser, Supt. etc. (C.A.D.C. 1960, 281 F. 2d 943).

Under this section authorizing persons confined to mental institution by reason of having been acquitted of crime on ground of insanity to test legality of their commitments by habeas corpus, certificate of superintendent of mental institution, in form of conclusion, may be disregarded by the district judge if it is not supported by medical recitals which satisfy or persuade him that the conclusion is correct. Id.

"Whether a prima facie case has been made by the petitioner requiring submission of the issue (of insanity) to a jury is a question submitted to the sound discretion of the trial judge." Gonzales v. United States (1913, 40 App. D.C. 450). See, also, Neely v. United States (1945, 150 F. 2d 977, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 187, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 166, 326 U.S. 768, 90 L. Ed. 463).

Refusal of trial court to submit to a jury the question of defendant's mental responsibility was not an abuse of its discretion, where there had never been any suggestion that he should be restrained of his liberty because of insanity, and where at his trial it did not appear and was not suggested that he was not fully and entirely responsible from a mental standpoint. Jackson v. United States (1928, 25 F. 2d 549, 58 App. D.C. 125).

Due process

To require defendant to assume burden of proof on issue of insanity does not violate due process. United States v. J. A. Naples (D.C.D.C. 1961, 192 F. Supp. 23, reversed on other grounds 307 F. 2d 618).

Evidence

Evidence in habeas corpus proceeding by person committed to hospital for mentally ill after being found not guilty of crime on ground of insanity established that person committed had recovered his sanity and was not likely in reasonably foreseeable future to be dangerous to himself or others by reason of any mental disease or defect. S. V. Robertson v. D. C. Cameron (D.C.D.C. 1963, 224 F. Supp. 60).

Evidence supported finding that inmate, who was seeking release from confinement in mental hospital as insane criminal, was at time of the habeas corpus proceeding suffering from abnormal mental condition and would be dangerous to himself and others if released. Curry v. Overholser, Supt. etc. (C.A.D.C. 1960, 287 F. 2d 137).

In habeas corpus proceeding by one who had been committed to mental hospital after being found not guilty of robbery by reason of insanity, where superintendent of hospital had refused to certify that petitioner had recovered sanity and would not in reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others, evidence did not warrant release of petitioner despite opinion of two psychiatrists denying present mental disease, where seven psychiatrists agreed that petitioner was a sociopathic personality with dyssocial outlook and would be dangerous to community if released. Overholser etc. v. Leach (1958, 257 F. 2d 667, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 289, certiorari denied 79 S. Ct. 1152, 359 U.S. 1013, 3 L. Ed. 2d 1038).

When issue of insanity is raised by introduction of "some evidence" so that presumption of sanity is no longer absolute, trier of fact must weigh the whole evidence, including that supplied by the presumption of sanity, on the issue of capacity in law of accused to commit the crime, and failure so to weigh the whole evidence on such issue is reversible error. Durham v. United States (1954, 214 F. 2d 862, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 228, 45 A.L.R. 2d 1430).

Evidence concerning events of defendant's youth, none of them more recent than 15 years prior to time of hearing on petition for sanity inquisition after conviction of murder, and indicating that defendant as a youth had been reckless, imprudent, and brutal, was of no value to establish insanity. Neely v. United States (1945, 150 F. 2d 977, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 187, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 166, 326 U.S. 768, 90 L. Ed. 463).

Opinion evidence by lay witness that a defendant convicted of murder was insane, was valueless to establish prima facie that defendant was insane so as to authorize granting of a petition for sanity inquisition. Id.

Denial of motion of one of the two defendants jointly indicted on charge of killing another in perpetrating robbery for a mental examination was not error, where moving defendant did not make prima facie showing of mental incapacity. Wheeler v. United States (1948, 165 F. 2d 225, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 363, certiorari denied 68 S. Ct. 448, 830 U.S. 333, 92 L. Ed. 1115.) See, also, Wheeler v. Reid (1949, 175 F. 2d 829, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

In prosecution for drunkenness, evidence which was taken in prior proceeding to determine competency of defendant to stand trial could not be used to sustain a finding of not guilty by reason of insanity. In re Williams (D.C.D.C. 1958, 165 F. Supp. 879).

In prosecution for intoxication, evidence was insufficient to support trial judge's finding that defendant was not guilty because of insanity. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 147 A. 2d 773).

In prosecution for intoxication, trial judge, in determining issue of defendant's competency under District of Columbia law to stand trial, could not use evidence introduced in previous hearing as to defendant's sanity where hearing was held after defendant entered plea of guilty on same charge. Id.

Expense of support

Where disability compensation due incompetent veteran was discontinued by Veterans' Administration because veteran was being cared for by government, government retained money for care of veteran, and veteran was not liable for board and maintenance at government hospital. Silverstein v. United States (1954, 210 F. 2d 19, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 174).

Findings

Absence of findings relating reason for denial of habeas corpus petitioned for by one committed to mental hospital to mental hospital following acquittal by reason of insanity required reviewing court to retain jurisdiction and remand to give District Court opportunity to amplify record to set forth such reasons. J. A. Whittaker v. W. Overholser Sup't etc. (1962, 299 F. 2d 447, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 66).

Grounds for commitment

Commitment to Saint Elizabeth's Hospital for observation may be ordered for determination of questions other than the competency to understand the proceedings. Leach v. United States (1965, 353 F. 2d 451, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Only those who need treatment and may be dangerous may be confined to hospital for mentally ill. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Habeas corpus

Conclusion that petitioner who had been committed to hospital under statute following directed verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity failed to sustain burden of showing entitlement to unconditional release from hospital the superintendent of which had stated both at time of trial and on habeas corpus that he was without mental disorder was not without evidentiary support, in view of conflicting psychiatric testimony. F. A. Miller v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1964, 335 F. 2d 986, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 323).

Affirmance of judgment denying writ of habeas corpus to one who had been committed to hospital pursuant to statute following verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity was without prejudice to filing of new petition for writ. Id.

Evidence disclosed that petitioner seeking habeas corpus was receiving psychiatric treatment during his confinement in hospital following acquittal by reason of insanity. J. L. Foller v. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1961, 292 F. 2d 732, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 239).

Evidence disclosed that director of hospital, to which petitioner had been committed following his acquittal by reason of insanity, was not arbitrary in refusing discharge. Id.

All indigent inmates who petition for habeas corpus for release from confinement in a hospital, including those committed as insane prisoners, may demand expert testimony of members of Commission on Mental Health, or court on its own motion may require it. Curry v. Overholser, Supt. etc. (C.A.D.C. 1960, 287 F. 2d 137).

Habeas corpus jurisdiction of District Court was properly invoked for release from hospital to which petitioner was committed by Municipal Court on being found not guilty of crime by reason of insanity. O'Beirne v. Overholser (C.A.D.C. 1960, 287 F. 2d 133).

In habeas corpus proceeding brought by one who had been committed to mental institution upon acquittal of criminal charges on ground of insanity, brought to secure release from institution, finding that petitioner was no longer mentally ill was clearly erroneous. Overholser, Sup't etc. v. Russell (1960, 283 F. 2d 195, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 400).

Under statutory provisions authorizing one confined to mental institution because of his acquittal of crime by reason of insanity to maintain habeas corpus proceeding to test legality of his confinement, habeas corpus hearing is de novo proceeding to examine into petitioner's existing mental condition, and at such hearing he is free to put in evidence, both lay and expert, to demonstrate that he has recovered to the point where he will not be dangerous to himself or others. Ragsdale v. Overholser, Sup't etc. (C.A.D.C. 1960, 281 F. 2d 943).

Where accused who had been adjudged insane pursuant to verdict of jury appointed to inquire into his sanity and who had been ordered confined to hospital subsequently filed petition for writ of habeas corpus which contained crucial statement that he was of sound mind and acting superintendent of hospital in response to rule to show cause why writ should not issue alleged that accused was of unsound mind, giving details of asserted malady and opinion that accused was not mentally competent to stand trial, an issue of fact as to whether accused had regained his sanity was presented, he was entitled to hearing thereon and court erred in dismissing petition without hearing. Lewis v. Overholser, Supt etc. (1960, 274 F. 2d 592, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 83).

Where petitioner was committed to hospital after acquittal by reason of insanity and his petition for habeas corpus failed to allege that he would not in the reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others and the hospital superintendent stated that he could not certify that the petitioner had recovered and petitioner failed to put in issue the superintendent's conclusion, district judge properly concluded that a hearing was not necessary. Fielding v. Overholser, Superintendent, etc. (1959, 268 F. 2d 898, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 23).

Where, after setting aside accused's plea of guilty to charge of public drunkenness, and committing accused to hospital for examination and observation, the municipal court found accused of unsound mind and ordered him confined to another hospital but did not determine whether accused was competent to stand trial, accused would be entitled to release on writ of habeas corpus unless the municipal court determined that he was mentally incompetent to stand trial and ordered him confined on that ground or unless proper lunacy proceedings were instituted. Williams v. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1958, 259 F. 2d 175, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

In habeas corpus proceeding brought by petitioner who had been committed to St. Elizabeths Hospital after being found not guilty of criminal charge by reason of insanity and who alleged that he was receiving no individual psychotherapy at hospital and that no further institutional care was necessary, petitioner was not, on facts disclosed, entitled to independent examination by member of mental health commission. Hayward v. Overholser, Sup't etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 191 F. Supp. 464).

Records of Municipal Court imported verity, and in habeas corpus proceeding brought by patient of hospital for the mentally ill, court would not go behind record to determine whether patient had had opportunity to present his defense in Municipal Court prosecution in which he had been found not guilty by reason of insanity at time offense was committed. O'Beirne v. Overholser, Superintendent, etc. (D.C.D.C. 1960, 180 F. Supp. 572).

Use of writ of habeas corpus may not be limited by statute, and person who claims to be deprived of his liberty illegally may always resort to writ. Id.

In habeas corpus proceeding brought by petitioner claiming right to be released from hospital for the mentally ill, court could not try de novo issue as to whether petitioner had ever been insane, or whether he had recovered his sanity. Id.

Where municipal court found accused charged with being drunk or intoxicated on a public street to be of unsound mind and committed him to mental hospital, but made no judicial determination on competency to stand trial, such failure constituted an illegal detention cognizable under writ of habeas corpus since such failure resulted in denial of a right given him by statute as well as his right, if competent, to speedy trial under the constitution. Williams v. Overholser (D.C.D.C. 1958, 162 F. Supp. 514, modified on other grounds 259 F. 2d 175, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

It is not the function of the district court to determine in habeas corpus proceeding, the mental competency of an accused to stand trial on a charge pending against him in the municipal court, but the only court that may determine that fact is the court having jurisdiction of such charge. Id.

Hearing

If District Court were to find that habeas corpus petition filed by one committed to mental hospital following acquittal by reason of insanity, which, together with return, presented factual issue, was not procedurally premature, court was to grant hearing on question of eligibility for release under statute. J. A. Whittaker v. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 299 F. 2d 447, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 66).

Habeas corpus petition filed by one who was confined to hospital following acquittal by reason of insanity, alleging that he was free from named mental conditions, of sound mind and not dangerous to himself or society, together with return, presented question of fact requiring resolution, assuming it was not raised in untimely fashion. Id.

Independent examination

Denial of independent medical examination by patient who opposed his requested release from mental hospital to prison was error, where there had been no psychiatric inquiry as to his fitness for release, but inasmuch as it appeared that later he had been sent to hospital for psychiatric treatment, case would be remanded for further proceedings to clarify situation and to enable patient to make representations or file pleadings as would express his interest. L. W. Green v. United States (1965, 349 F. 2d 203, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 226).

Patient in mental hospital has right to independent psychiatric assistance where psychiatric inquiry undertaken by state may be slanted to state's interest and patient should be afforded such assistance in suitable cases even though no such risk appears. Id.

Inmate who had been confined for more than one year without an independent examination as to his mental health by an expert appointed by the district court was entitled, in connection with his petition for release, as a matter of right, to such independent examination to test findings and conclusions of the hospital staff where he was confined. J. Watson v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't, etc. (1962, 312 F. 2d 878, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 151).

Indeterminate commitment

That accused has pleaded guilty or that government has established that he committed criminal act constitutes only strong evidence that his continued liberty would imperil preservation of public peace and does not justify indeterminate commitment to mental institution on bare reasonable doubt as to past sanity. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Inquiry after acquittal

Under statute giving court authority to conduct hearing whenever a person is arrested, indicted, or charged by information and to commit person to mental hospital, trial court had jurisdiction to conduct hearing to determine competency of defendant after his acquittal on grounds of insanity, despite his refusal to raise issue in criminal trial. United States v. C. L. Limber (D.C. App. 1963, 192 A. 2d 530).

After jury returns verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity, inquiry as to whether accused is presently commitable as person of unsound mind may be undertaken. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Defendant does not have absolute right to have his guilty plea accepted and trial judge may enter plea of not guilty in behalf of accused, but, if that is done, and defendant, despite his own assertions of sanity, is found not guilty by reason of insanity, commitment to hospital for mentally ill must be either under statute providing procedure for confining accused who, though found competent to stand trial, is nevertheless commitable as person of unsound mind, or civil commitment provisions. Id.

Instructions

In prosecution for murder, instruction that if verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity was returned defendant would be committed to mental hospital until such time as it was established that he was no longer insane, was not objectionable for failure to add that he would be kept in hospital until he would not in reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others. Starr, Jr. v. United States (1959, 264 F. 2d 377, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 91, certiorari denied 79 S. Ct. 652, 359 U.S. 936, 3 L. Ed. 2d 639).

If it affirmatively appears on record that defendant, who pleaded not guilty by reason of insanity, did not want instruction as to effect of verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity, Court of Appeals will not regard failure of trial court to give such instruction as grounds for reversal. Lyles v. United States (1958, 254 F. 2d 725, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 22, certiorari denied 78 S. Ct. 997, 356 U.S. 961, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1067).

When instruction is given jury as to effect of verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity, jury should simply be informed that such verdict means that accused will be confined in hospital for mentally ill until superintendent has certified, and court is satisfied, that accused has recovered his sanity and will not in reasonable future be dangerous to himself or to others, in which event and at which time court shall order his release either unconditionally or under such conditions as court may see fit. Id.

Where defendant pleads not guilty by reason of insanity, jury has right to know meaning of verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity as accurately as it knows by common knowledge the meaning of verdict of guilty and verdict of not guilty. Id.

Evidence of mental condition at a given time is relevant to determination of mental condition at another time not unreasonably far removed, and it might be proper to inquire as to probability that as of time of act charged, an accused's mental condition was the same as it was found to be somewhat earlier, or somewhat later, but such rule does not justify judge in warning jury that if they acquit accused who has pleaded insanity they will be releasing a dangerous man to prey upon society. Blunt v. United States (1957, 244 F. 2d 355, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 266).

In prosecution for housebreaking, wherein judge told jury that hospital Acting Superintendent had advised court that accused was found competent to stand trial and assist in his own defense, and after stating that court would commit accused to hospital if he were found not guilty by reason of insanity, judge added that accused would remain there until determined to be "of sound mind" by hospital authorities and that "if the authorities adhered to their last opinion on this point, he will be released very shortly", latter statement was highly prejudicial since it implied a warning that dire consequences might result from finding that accused was not guilty by reason of insanity. Durham v. United States (1956, 237 F. 2d 760, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 132).

When accused person has pleaded insanity, counsel may and judge should inform jury that if he is acquitted by reason of insanity he will be presumed to be insane and may be confined in hospital for insane as long as public safety and welfare require. Taylor v. United States (1955, 222 F. 2d 398, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 373).

Instructions to jury relative to criminal responsibility must in substance advise jury that they may find defendant guilty only if they find, beyond reasonable doubt, from evidence and from facts fairly deducible, (1) that defendant was not suffering from diseased or defective mental condition at time of the act, or (2) that the act was not the result of such condition. Durham v. United States (1954, 214 F. 2d 862, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 228, 45 A.L.R. 2d 1430).

Judge's comments on evidence

If trial judge submits to jury question of probable release of defendant at some future date from mental hospital, submits evidence to jury on that point, or comments to jury respecting speculative possibilities in that regard, trial judge commits error. A. Lyles v. United States (1958, 254 F. 2d 725, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 22, certiorari denied 78 S. Ct. 997, 356 U.S. 961, 2 L. Ed. 1067).

Statement by trial judge that doctor testified that on prior occasion he found no mental disorder whatever in defendant, and that defendant was a man of average intelligence, was not reversible error, though made in connection with statement to jury that if defendant should be acquitted by reason of insanity, he would be committed to a mental institution, where statement as to testimony of doctor was a remark in single sentence in middle of long charge, and trial judge did not relate testimony of doctor to time of trial or to any possible future time. Id.

Judicial determination

Manslaughter sentences were not void because of absence of judicial adjudication that defendant was competent to stand trial, though he had previously been found to be insane, where certificate of superintendent of hospital stating that defendant had recovered his reason and was then of sound mind was filed in court before defendant pleaded guilty, and court ordered examination by two independent psychiatrists who reported that defendant was of sound mind at the time. J. W. Hunter v. United States (1963, 323 F. 2d 625, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 323).

If accused denies that he is mentally ill, he is entitled to judicial determination of his mental state despite hospital board's certification that he is of unsound mind. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

Under this section trial court may or may not make a finding on whether accused is of unsound mind, but must determine whether he is mentally competent to stand trial, when objection is made to the report from hospital and a hearing is held, and if accused is found to be of unsound mind this section requires court to commit defendant to a mental hospital, and if court also determines him to be incompetent to stand trial statute requires the same commitment, but section requires a judicial determination in the latter type of mental condition, but does not require a determination in the former. Williams v. Overholser (D.C.D.C. 1958, 162 F. Supp. 514, modified on other grounds 259 F. 2d 175, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

Jurisdiction of court

1963 robbery conviction was not invalid on ground that, since defendant had been committed to hospital following his 1961 acquittal by reason of insanity, district court was without jurisdiction to try him, in absence of hearing to determine his competency to stand trial in 1963, where prior to both 1961 and 1963 trials defendant was referred to hospital for mental examination resulting, in both instances, in certification by hospital that he was competent to stand trial, and 1963 certification was not objected to by either defendant or government. Green v. United States (1965, 351 F. 2d 198, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

Jurisdiction to commit

Municipal court did not have jurisdiction under D.C. Code 1961 § 24-301(a) to commit person to mental hospital where court had found accused not guilty by reason of insanity but had finally disposed of the criminal charges against accused more than a year before such commitment and had erroneously committed accused under D.C. Code 1961 § 24-301(d). Dr. D. C. Cameron v. W. V. Fisher (1963, 320 F. 2d 731, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 9).

Jury trial

This section providing for commitment of accused found incompetent to stand trial to a mental hospital is not unconstitutional for absence of provision for jury trial since all that is required is due process which is satisfied by judicial hearing which is provided for. Williams v. Overholser (D.C.D.C. 1958, 162 F. Supp. 514, modified on other grounds 259 F. 2d 175, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

Law governing

Where doctor, who had examined defendant for purpose of determining his mental competency to stand trial, did not testify to any statement made by defendant on issue of guilt and judge's finding of mental competency to stand trial was not brought to notice of jury, it was immaterial whether commitment to mental institution for determination of mental competency to stand trial was made under federal statute or under District of Columbia statute; and neither statute barred doctor's testimony expressing his opinion that defendant was sane when he committed act. Edmonds v. United States (1959, 273 F. 2d 108, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 373, certiorari denied 80 S. Ct. 1062, 362 U.S. 977, 4 L. Ed. 2d 1012).

If this section stating procedure to be followed by federal District Court for District of Columbia in determining an accused person's mental competence to stand trial requires a jury, it has been superseded in that respect by 18 U.S.C. § 4244 which does not require a jury and which has general application in Federal Court throughout nation, and federal District Court for District of Columbia did not err in proceeding under later statute without intervention of jury in determining mental competency of an accused to stand trial on murder charge. Jordan v. United States (1953, 207 F. 2d 28, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 65).

Motion for leave to appeal

Where defendant's motion to vacate sentences was denied without hearing and district judge also denied defendant's application for leave to appeal in forma pauperis, defendant's motion in the Court of Appeals for leave to so appeal and for appointment of counsel would be granted in view of fact that trial judge denied such motion without hearing on erroneous grounds that competency to stand trial was not subject to collateral attack but was waived if not advanced at trial, and that defendant did not allege he was in fact mentally incompetent when tried, and that an amendment to this section abrogated requirement for a judicial determination of restored competency before trial. Blunt v. United States (1957, 244 F. 2d 355, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 266).

New trial

An inadequate determination by court of question whether defendant is mentally competent to stand trial is not curable by nunc pro tunc hearing, and defendant is entitled to new trial. B. T. Wider v. United States (1965, 348 F. 2d 358, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 129).

Nunc pro tunc hearing

Even if district court erred in not conducting hearing on issue of competency at time of entry of plea of guilty, petitioner could thereafter demand no more than nunc pro tunc hearing. Mordecai v. United States (D.C.D.C. 1966, 252 F. Supp. 694).

Potentially dangerous

Mere fact that person committed under statute to mental institution following acquittal of criminal charge by reason of insanity has some dangerous propensity does not, standing alone, warrant his continued confinement but dangerous propensities must be related to or arise out of abnormal mental condition, whether such condition was that which constituted basis for acquittal. W. Overholser v. H. T. O'Bierne (1962, 302 F. 2d 852, 112 U.S. App. D.C. 267).

That one confined to mental institution because of his acquittal of criminal charges for insanity would no longer be committable under civil procedure could constitute no ground for his release where there was no showing that he had recovered to point where he was free from abnormal mental condition or that his release would not expose himself or public to danger in reasonably foreseeable future. Id.

Under rule that to be eligible for release from mental hospital, inmate must be free from such "abnormal mental conditions" as would make him dangerous to himself or community in reasonably foreseeable future, quoted words refer to a mental disease or mental defect, and not just any condition that is outside of the ordinary norm. H. T. O'Bierne v. W. Overholser (D.C.D.C. 1961, 193 F. Supp. 652; reversed on other grounds 302 F. 2d 852).

Under this section concerning commitment of insane criminals to hospital, a sane person cannot be confined in a mental hospital simply because he is thought to be potentially dangerous if released and his dangerous tendencies must be attributable to an abnormal mental condition if he is to be retained in confinement. Starr, Jr. v. United States (1959, 264 F. 2d 377, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 91, certiorari denied 79 S. Ct. 652, 359 U.S. 936, 3 L. Ed. 2d 639).

Under this section relating to commitment of insane criminals to hospital, a defendant, acquitted because of insanity and committed to mental hospital because of the verdict, may not be released if, despite some recovery, doctors certify and in the exercise of its own function the court finds he is, and in the reasonably foreseeable future will be, dangerous because of mental disease or defect. Id.

Prejudicial cross-examination

In murder prosecution wherein sole defense was insanity, and defendant's gibberish testimony was such as to raise issues as to whether defendant feigned such testimony and whether at time of the third trial his mental condition represented his condition at time of act charged, cross-examination disclosing defendant's failure to take stand at two previous trials which resulted in convictions was erroneous and was not harmless but was sufficiently prejudicial to warrant the granting of a mistrial even though defense made no request for cautionary instructions. W. L. Stewart v. United States (1961, 366 U.S. 1, 81 S. Ct. 941; reversed on other grounds 275 F. 2d 617).

Presentence examination

A diagnosis of a state prison, as part of a pre-sentence report, that defendant was a psychopathic personality, unstable, recidivistic and antisocial might have been a sufficient prima facie case for ordering a mental examination of the defendant before sentence, but even if it was not, there was enough basis to make clear the usefulness of a psychological evaluation in determining sentence. W. R. Leach v. United States (1964, 334 F. 2d 945, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 197).

Psychiatric evaluation of a prisoner through the Legal Psychiatric Services or through the Prison Bureau program, like a pre-sentence report, is a useful tool for rehabilitative rather than retributive sentencing, and it has a crucial place in the sentencing process. Id.

Presumption of sanity

In prosecution for housebreaking, psychiatrist's opinion that defendant had been of unsound mind on date when crime was committed was sufficient to satisfy "some evidence" test and thereby to shift to prosecution the burden of proving defendant's sanity, though psychiatrist could not state categorically that defendant had not known right from wrong. Durham v. United States (1954, 214 F. 2d 862, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 228, 45 A.L.R. 2d 1430).

Trial court's erroneous holding that there was no evidence of alleged housebreaker's mental state as of date when crime was committed, and that presumption of sanity therefore prevailed, was prejudicial and required reversal. Id.

Pretrial mental examination

Where accused raised defense of insanity so that it was necessary to conduct an examination of his person, there was nothing arbitrary or unconstitutional in committing him for reasonable length of time as provided by statute to mental hospital in order that examination might be conducted and accused was not thereby deprived of his right to bail. P. A. Battle v. D. C. Cameron, Superintendent etc. (1966, 260 F. Supp. 804).

Affidavit of defense counsel, in support of motion for pretrial mental examination, reciting that counsel had serious doubts as to defendant's mental capacity to assist him intelligently and as to his mental health, believing that crime may have resulted from distorted mind, based, inter alia, on unspecified personal observations, oddities in defendant's behavior and beliefs and fact that defendant had relatives who were afflicted with mental disorder, raised sufficient possibility that crimes were product of mental disease or defect to require granting of motion, and its denial was reversible error. Cannady v. United States (1965, 351 F. 2d 817, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 120).

Notwithstanding that about two weeks after trial and seven months after defendant's erroneously denied pretrial motion for mental examination psychiatrist examined defendant in cell block and reported that defendant was then competent and presumably had been at trial but that he was unable to reach conclusion as to dates of alleged offenses, at least time and facilities normally available for pretrial examinations were to be made available following reversal of conviction, and prospective hearing was required. Id.

The erroneous denial of defendant's pre-trial motion for a mental examination required the remanding of case for a new hearing to ascertain defendant's present competency to stand trial and for a new trial on forgery charge if defendant were found competent, rather than a nunc pro tunc hearing for judicial determination of defendant's competency at time of his original trial. P. Holloway v. United States (1964, 343 F. 2d 265, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 396).

Although a trial judge has some discretion in denying a motion for a mental examination as not timely, if counsel learns of defendant's alleged symptoms on day the trial is scheduled to begin, a motion submitted at that time cannot be denied as late. L. P. Mitchell v. United States (1963, 316 F. 2d 354, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 353).

A written motion on morning of trial for a mental examination of defendant based on allegations that defendant had displayed to counsel certain letters which raised inquiry with respect to his mental situation, and based on allegation that counsel had learned that defendant was an epileptic and exhibited unexplained and repeated criminal activities was, under the circumstances, adequate and timely, and denial thereof was prejudicial error. Id.

On a motion for an order directing a mental examination, defendant is not required to produce, in order to get the examination, enough evidence to prove that he is incompetent or irresponsible. Id.

Nature of crime of sodomy, with which accused was charged, was not sufficient alone, to require the District Court, before accepting guilty plea, to order a mental examination of accused, although court could properly consider nature of crime in that connection, and where there was no indication by prosecuting attorney, that accused might be a sexual psychopath, and no request for a mental examination was made by prosecution or accused, convictions could not be set aside in collateral proceeding, such as coram nobis, because of court's failure to order examination on its own motion. Carter v. United States (1960, 283 F. 2d 200, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 405).

A prosecutor who knows that the accused's mental state at the time of the crime will be the critical issue at trial has an obligation to see that any pretrial mental examination of the accused that may be ordered be broad enough to cast light on that issue, and such course is required not only to protect the rights of the accused, but also to protect society's interest in hospitalizing the accused, if his violent acts sprang from mental disorder, so that he will not be released, as he would be after completion of a prison sentence, without medical assurance that he is not likely to be dangerous to himself or others in the reasonably foreseeable future. Winn v. United States (1959, 270 F. 2d 326, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 133).

There is a vast difference between that mental state which permits an accused to be tried and that which permits him to be held responsible for a crime, and in view of fact that an examination made for the purpose of determining competency to stand trial requires less than an examination designed to determine sanity for the purpose of criminal responsibility, it is not to be assumed that a psychiatrist who has been ordered to prepare an opinion as to man's trial competency will conduct a type of examination which is necessary to provide the trier of facts with information essential for a proper determination of criminal responsibility. Id.

Where the prosecuting attorney moved for a complete and thorough mental examination of the accused, but district court's order upon the motion required only such examination as was necessary to permit formulation of an opinion as to whether defendant was presently of unsound mind or mentally incompetent so as to be unable to understand the proceeding against him or properly to assist in his own defense, the complete and thorough type of examination required for a proper determination of the issue of responsibility would be deemed never made because it was not ordered as requested in the prosecutor's pretrial motion, and therefore defendant's conviction would be reversed and he would be granted a new trial. Id.

Procedure

Where doctors who testified at habeas corpus proceeding for release of inmate who had been committed after acquittal by reason of insanity were among those whom he had called as witnesses in his own behalf at criminal trial and were thoroughly familiar with his history and behavior at hospital, and inmate did not request testimony of members of Commission on Mental Health, although private psychiatrists were not available to testify as to inmate's mental condition at time of proceeding, inmate received due process of law. Curry v. Overholser, Sup't etc. (C.A.D.C. 1960, 287 F. 2d 137).

Under statutes relating to insane criminals, a reasonable doubt about insanity of accused required acquittal and authorized hospital confinement. Ragsdale v. Overholser, Sup't etc. (C.A.D.C. 1960, 281 F. 2d 943).

Procedure which governs lunacy inquisition in case of person charged with criminal offense is different from that governing ordinary lunacy inquisition. Evans v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 876).

Procedure after certification

Whenever court receives a certification of incompetency or a certification of restoration of competency and there is no objection by either the accused or the government, court may, in former case, forthwith commit the accused to a mental hospital and, in the latter case, immediately proceed with trial. T. W. Whalen v. United States (1965, 346 F. 2d 812, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 331).

Where the two hospitals to which accused was referred for mental examination certified him as competent to stand trial, in absence of objection either from the accused or the government court could, in its discretion, proceed with trial without holding a hearing to determine competence. Id.

Psychiatrist's report

Psychiatrist's reports on whether defendant was mentally competent to stand trial properly included evaluation of defendant's mental condition at time crimes were committed. W. Overholser, Sup't, etc. v. F. C. Lynch (1961, 288 F. 2d 388, 109 U.S. App. D.C. 404; reversed on other grounds 1962, 82 S. Ct. 1063).

Public policy

That personal liberty should depend on such an arbitrary circumstance as mental hospital's change of "administrative policy" in determining whether sociopathic personality should be treated as a mental disease, as affecting release of committed person, would be contrary to basic principles of freedom. H. T. O'Bierne v. W. Overholser (D.C.D.C. 1961, 193 F. Supp. 652; reversed on other grounds 302 F. 2d 852).

The community is not without means of protecting itself if at time that a prisoner's sentence ends he is found to be a sexual psychopath, or to be insane or mentally incompetent. Carter v. United States (1960, 283 F. 2d 200, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 405).

The existence of possibilities to protect society from, and to treat, prisoner convicted of sodomy, or other sexual crimes, in the event he is found to be a sexual psychopath, or insane, of unsound mind or otherwise defective during imprisonment or at time his sentence ends, does not relieve bench and bar of responsibility of endeavoring to reach at the earliest possible stage, ideally prior to trial and sentence, the approach to a particular case which appears to be most just and appropriate, having regard to the individual's mental condition, his history, and the possibility of rehabilitating him and restoring him to usefulness in the community. Id.

Policies underlying distinction in treatment between mentally responsible law breakers, who are sent to prison, and mentally irresponsible law breakers, who are sent to hospitals, are (1) that it is both wrong and foolish to punish where there is no blame and where punishment cannot correct, and (2) that community's security may be better protected by hospitalization than by imprisonment. Williams v. United States (1958, 250 F. 2d 19, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 51).

Purpose

Purpose of ordering a mental examination for a defendant is to get evidence on whether he is or is not competent to stand trial, and another purpose is to get evidence on whether, if there is a trial, the jury should be instructed on insanity and criminal responsibility. L. P. Mitchell v. United States (1963, 316 F. 2d 354, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 353).

Although this section respecting release of persons committed to mental hospitals after acquittal by reason of insanity does not speak of temporary release from hospital, its purpose is to assure that members of exceptional class be kept under hospital restraint until District Court, in exercise of a discretion reviewable by Court of Appeals, approves relaxation of that restraint. Hough v. United States (1959, 271 F. 2d 458, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Purpose of this section pertaining to commitment to hospital of an accused who is mentally incompetent to stand trial is to prescribe procedure for determining whether an accused can understand the proceedings against him and properly assist in his defense and, in event he cannot, to provide for his confinement in a hospital instead of a jail until he can. Williams v. Overholser, Sup't, etc. (1958, 259 F. 2d 175, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 18).

The purpose of this section providing that whenever prima facie evidence is submitted that accused is insane, the court may cause a jury to be impaneled to inquire into the sanity of accused, is to prevent the infliction of punishment upon a person so lacking in mental capacity as to be unable to understand the nature and purpose of the punishment. Neely v. United States (1945, 150 F. 2d 977, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 187, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 166, 326 U.S. 768, 90 L. Ed. 463).

Purpose of this section making it mandatory for court to commit to a mental hospital any defendant in a criminal case who is found not guilty on ground of insanity, and placing certain safeguards against release of such person from mental hospital after his commitment thereto, is to protect public and discourage unfounded pleas of insanity and statute must be construed in a manner to best effectuate those objectives. In re Milton T. Rosenfield (D.C.D.C. 1958, 157 F. Supp. 18, remanded on other grounds 262 F. 2d 34, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 322).

Purpose of this section providing for mental examination of person charged with crime before trial is to determine whether prisoner is then capable of understanding the nature and object of the proceedings so as to properly conduct his defense at a trial of the charge against him. Evans v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 876).

Record of determination of competency

Where defendant's motion for mental examination has been granted, determination of competency should be noted of record. Watson v. United States (1956, 234 F. 2d 42, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 221).

Release

Principal concern of statute governing release of persons committed after being found not guilty by reason of insanity is for procedures to protect public from premature release of dangerous persons. L. W. Green v. United States (1965, 349 F. 2d 203, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 226).

That patient has fears that his release from mental institution will endanger himself or community to which he is being released may be considered on issue of release and determination is reviewable on appeal. Id.

Person found not guilty of criminal offense on ground of insanity may not be released unless superintendent of hospital to which he has been committed certifies that person committed has recovered his sanity, and that, in superintendent's opinion, the person will not in reasonably foreseeable future be dangerous to himself or others and is entitled to an unconditional release. S. V. Robertson v. D. C. Cameron (D.C.D.C. 1963, 224 F. Supp. 60).

Under this section providing that a person committed to hospital for mentally ill because he was acquitted for criminal offense solely on ground that he was insane at time of commission may be unconditionally released by District Court if superintendent of hospital certifies, inter alia, that in his opinion such person will not in reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others, the danger to the public need not be possible physical violence or crime of violence but it is enough to preclude release if there is competent evidence that he may commit any criminal act. Overholser Sup't etc. v. Russell (1960, 283 F. 2d 195, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 400).

In view of this section providing that person who has been committed to hospital for mentally ill because he was acquitted of criminal offense solely on ground of insanity at time of commission may be released unconditionally by District Court if superintendent certifies that he has recovered, that he will not in reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others, and that, in opinion of superintendent, he is entitled to unconditional release, to demonstrate at habeas corpus hearing that he is entitled to unconditional release, the patient must show that he has recovered, that he will not in reasonable future be dangerous to others and that superintendent acted arbitrarily and capriciously in refusing to certify him and recommend him for unconditional release. Id.

This section governing release of one committed to mental institution after being found not guilty of crime by reason of insanity, based upon certificate that such person has recovered sanity and will not in a reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others, does not, by phrase "establishing his eligibility for release", establish the test of whether particular individual, engaged in ordinary pursuits of life, is committable to mental institution under the law governing civil commitments, but requires freedom from such abnormal mental condition as would make the individual dangerous to himself or the community in the reasonably foreseeable future. Overholser etc. v. Leach (1958, 257 F. 2d 667, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 289, certiorari denied 79 S. Ct. 1152, 359 U.S. 1013, 3 L. Ed. 2d 1038).

Insane person, found not guilty of homicide by reason of insanity, and committed to asylum, must prove sanity and that he is no longer a menace, to obtain release. Barry v. White (1933, 64 F. 2d 707, 62 App. D.C. 69).

In habeas corpus proceeding seeking unconditional release from mental institution to which petitioner had been committed after acquittal on ground of insanity, return to writ of habeas corpus filed on behalf of superintendent of mental hospital stating that psychosis from which petitioner was suffering was in remission since his readmission to hospital on a certain date did not warrant granting of petitioner's unconditional release from hospital. In re Milton T. Rosenfield (D.C.D.C. 1958, 157 F. Supp. 18, remanded on other grounds 262 F. 2d 34, 104 U.S. App. D.C. 322).

Where the examination of accused as to his insanity was made by the Commission of Health at accused's request, and in support of his attempt to make a prima facie showing so as to authorize granting of petition for sanity inquisition after conviction of murder, the court was not required to disregard the Commission's report on theory that to permit its consideration would have the effect of a waiver of privilege upon part of accused. Neely v. United States (1945, 150 F. 2d 977, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 187, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 166, 326 U.S. 768, 90 L. Ed. 463).

Restored competency

Determination of accused's eligibility to stand trial may be established by a finding of "restored competency" or a finding that he never was incompetent, and hence assuming that a proceeding to set aside original adjudication of incompetency is required, substance of such proceeding was provided by hearing in which hospital psychiatrist testified that accused was not a mental defective and that there was no indication of organic brain injury or mental illness. V. E. Jenkins v. United States (1962, 307 F. 2d 637, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 300).

Revocation of conditional release

Order for conditional release of defendant who had been committed to mental hospital on acquittal of offense by reason of insanity could be revoked only by court which granted conditional release and only after full hearing. B. Darnell v. D. C. Cameron, Sup't etc. (1965, 348 F. 2d 64, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 58).

Right to counsel

Though due process does not absolutely require appointment of counsel in all cases where person is deprived of his liberty because of unsound mind, where person charged with criminal offense of assault was subjected to lunacy inquisition prior to trial, due process required that defendant be represented by counsel in spite of ostensible waiver of that right or privilege. Evans v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 876).

A lunacy inquisition, held before trial to determine if accused is capable of going to trial, is not a criminal proceeding and does not fall within ambit of the Sixth Amendment. Id.

Scope of review

The scope of Court of Appeals' review of process by which criminal sentence is determined is at least broad enough to insure the use of necessary sentencing aids to obtain relevant information. Leach v. United States (1965, 353 F. 2d 451, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Notwithstanding the plainly unsatisfactory nature of reports concerning mental condition of defendant, because of defendant's refusal to cooperate in any further psychiatric examinations it would be unfair to defendant and perhaps a futile exercise to remand case for a third time, and Court of Appeals affirmed the maximum sentence imposed by trial judge following robbery conviction. Id.

Sentencing procedure

In imposing a statutorily permissible sentence, a sentencing judge has wide discretion which will not ordinarily be disturbed on appeal. Leach v. United States (1965, 353 F. 2d 451, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 280).

Although generally an appellate court will not review sentences that are within the statutory maximum, a sentencing judge should use some of the resources which the Congress has provided in regard to psychiatric evaluation of a prisoner, and should not arbitrarily ignore the data properly obtained thereby in fixing a sentence. W. R. Leach v. United States (1964, 334 F. 2d 945, 118 U.S. App. D.C. 197).

Setting aside verdict

In appropriate case there is duty to set aside verdict of guilty and to direct verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity; though this duty is to be performed with caution because of deference due jury in resolving factual issues. Douglas v. United States (1956, 239 F. 2d 52, 99 U.S. App. D.C. 232).

Speedy trial

Under circumstances, defendant, whose first trial resulted in hung jury and whose judgment of conviction on second trial was vacated, was denied constitutional right to speedy trial where he was not finally tried until 43 months after indictment. C. C. Marshall v. United States (1964, 337 F. 2d 119, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 83).

Suspension of proceedings

The sole effect of section 301 et seq. of this title governing procedure in case of insanity of person charged with crime is to suspend the criminal proceedings during the period of insanity but jurisdiction of court continues and when sanity is restored, the case may proceed as if the interregnum had not occurred. Haislip v. United States (1942, 129 F. 2d 53, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 91).

Sole effect of this section providing for mental examination of person charged with criminal offense before trial is, in proper case, to suspend criminal proceedings during period of insanity. Evans v. United States (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 876).

Temporary leave

Where hospital authorities have decided that a patient committed to the hospital after acquittal by reason of insanity has reached stage where temporary leave from hospital is necessary and proper, authorities should certify that fact to District Court and obtain an appropriate order. Hough v. United States (1959, 271 F. 2d 458, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 192).

Verdict

Under this section providing for commitment to mental institution of persons acquitted of criminal charges by reason of insanity, it is contemplated that a person acquitted on a charge calling for a maximum sentence of 18 months may be confined to mental institution for two, five or ten years or beyond that, and nothing less will fulfill protective and rehabilitative purposes of this section. Ragsdale v. Overholser, Supt. etc. (C.A.D.C. 1960, 281 F. 2d 943).

A general verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity carried with it a finding that, except for the question as to his sanity, defendant was guilty as charged. Rucker v. United States (1960, 280 F. 2d 623, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 75).

In prosecution for assault with intent to kill and possession of a rifle with intent to use it unlawfully against another, where the court found the defendant not guilty by reason of insanity and it did not appear that defendant actually understood and acquiesced that the question of his guilt was being tried in that it did not appear that he understood and acquiesced in what was being accomplished without witnesses or evidence and he protested promptly a few days after the verdict, the defendant was entitled to a new trial. Id.

It is common knowledge that verdict of not guilty means that prisoner goes free and that verdict of guilty means that he is subject to such punishment as court may impose, but it is not common knowledge that verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity means that he will be confined in hospital for mentally ill until superintendent of hospital certifies, and court is satisfied, that he has recovered his sanity. Lyles v. United States (1958, 254 F. 2d 725, 103 U.S. App. D.C. 22, certiorari denied 78 S. Ct. 997, 356 U.S. 961, 2 L. Ed. 2d 1067).

Verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity means that defendant will be confined in hospital for mentally ill until superintendent of hospital certifies, and court is satisfied, that defendant has recovered his sanity and will not in reasonable future be dangerous to himself or others. Id.

Instruction that if defendant is found not guilty on ground of insanity, it then becomes duty of court to commit him to hospital, where he will remain until he is cured, and it is deemed safe to release him, and that when such time arrives, he will be released and will suffer no further consequences from his offense, was not reversibly erroneous. Id.

Whenever defense of insanity is fairly raised, trial judge should instruct jury as to legal meaning of verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity. Id.

Where accused was found to be of unsound mind and was committed to hospital, the verdict of insanity spoke as of the date thereof and was a legal determination that accused was not then mentally qualified to stand trial but when he was restored to sanity, certificate of hospital superintendent to that effect removed the previous bar. Haislip v. United States (1942, 129 F. 2d 53, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 91).

Verdict of insanity of accused given as result of lunacy inquisition spoke as of that date and was legal determination that defendant was not then mentally qualified to stand trial. Evans v. United States (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 83 A. 2d 876).

Estoppel

Inmate who had elected to seek verdict of not guilty by reason of insanity could not be heard to complain of commitment to mental hospital pursuant to this section requiring confinement in mental hospital of those acquitted solely on ground of insanity. Curry v. Overholser, Supt. etc. (C.A.D.C. 1960, 287 F. 2d 137).

§ 24-302. Commitment of mentally ill person while serving sentence.

Any person while serving sentence of any court of the District of Columbia for crime, in a District of Columbia penal institution, and who, in the opinion of the Director of the Department of Corrections of the District of Columbia, is mentally ill, shall be referred by such Director to the psychiatrist functioning under section 24-106, and if such psychiatrist certifies that the person is mentally ill, this shall be sufficient to authorize the Director to transfer such person to a hospital for the mentally ill to receive care and treatment during the continuance of his mental illness. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1340, ch. 854, § 928; Aug. 9, 1955, 69 Stat. 611, ch. 673, § 2.)

AMENDMENT

1955—Act Aug. 9, 1955, amended section generally. Prior to amendment, section read as follows: "Any person becoming insane while undergoing a sentence of any court of the District of Columbia for crime may, in like manner, be committed to said hospital for the insane, by order of the Secretary of the Interior, to receive the same treatment as other patients during the continuance of his disorder."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

The fact that conviction is affirmed does not foreclose possibility of further inquiry whether sentence should be served in penitentiary or in mental hospital, since any prisoner found to be mentally ill may be transferred to such a hospital. D. O. Williams v. United States (1963, 312 F. 2d 862, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 135).

If accused who pleads guilty is found to be in need of psychiatric assistance, he may be transferred to hospital for mentally ill following sentence. F. C. Lynch v. W. Overholser, Sup't etc. (1962, 369 U.S. 705, 82 S. Ct. 1063, rev'g 288 F. 2d 388).

The community is not without means of protecting itself if at time that a prisoner's sentence ends he is found to be a sexual psychopath, or to be insane or mentally incompetent. Carter v. United States (1960, 283 F. 2d 200, 108 U.S. App. D.C. 405).

The existence of possibilities to protect society from, and to treat, prisoner convicted of sodomy, or other sexual crimes, in the event he is found to be a sexual psychopath, or insane, of unsound mind or otherwise defective during imprisonment or at time his sentence ends, does not relieve bench and bar of responsibility of endeavoring to reach at the earliest possible stage, ideally prior to trial and sentence, the approach to a particular case which appears to be most just and appropriate, having regard to the individual's mental condition, his history, and the possibility of rehabilitating him and restoring him to usefulness in the community. Id.

If prisoner serving sentence on conviction of crime is presently insane or of unsound mind or otherwise defective, prison authorities may and presumably should transfer him to an appropriate institution, so that he may be given treatment for his condition. Id.

Evidence

Where several psychiatrists testified that defendant was a psychopath or sociopath on day of killings and some thought condition a mental disease, evidence was sufficient to raise issue of insanity and require government to disprove beyond a reasonable doubt the claim that crimes were product of mental disease or defect. D. O. Williams v. United States (1963, 312 F. 2d 862, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 135).

Exclusion of conclusory portions of report by psychologist that tests indicated that defendant was suffering from effects of organic damage to central nervous system, even if error, was harmless where report was cumulative, psychologists had been permitted to testify to results of tests, and some of the psychiatrists who testified based their findings on report. Id.

In murder prosecution, where only three of eleven psychiatrists could say that killings in question were product of defendant's mental disease or defect, evidence was insufficient to raise, as a matter of law, reasonable doubt as to defendant's sanity and conflict in medical testimony became issue for jury. Id.

Motion after sentence

Motion of defendant, made after his entry of plea of guilty to narcotics charge in open court and his sentence therefor, to set aside plea of guilty and to have himself committed to mental hospital to determine his mental competence to understand proceedings against him or to properly assist in his own defense, and affidavit of defendant's wife were insufficient to require court to allow withdrawal of plea of guilty. D. Hopkins v. United States (1963, 318 F. 2d 186, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 215).

§ 24-303. Restoration to sanity—Delivery of person to court—Delivery of person to Director of Department of Corrections.

(a) When any person confined in a hospital for the mentally ill, charged with crime and subject to be tried therefor, shall be found competent to stand trial in the opinion of the superintendent of such hospital, the superintendent shall certify such fact to the clerk of the court in which the indictment, information, or charge is pending, in accordance with the procedure specified in section 24-301, and deliver such person to the court according to its proper precept.

(b) When any person confined in a hospital for the mentally ill while serving sentence shall be restored to mental health within the opinion of the superintendent of the hospital, the superintendent shall certify such fact to the Director of the Department of Corrections of the District of Columbia and such certification shall be sufficient to deliver such person to such Director according to his request. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1340, ch. 854, § 929; Aug. 9, 1955, 69 Stat. 611, ch. 673, § 3.)

AMENDMENT

1955—Act Aug. 9, 1955, amended section generally. Prior to amendment, section read as follows: "When any person confined in the hospital for the insane, charged with crime and subject to be tried therefor or undergoing sentence therefor, shall be restored to sanity the superintendent of the hospital shall give notice thereof to the justice holding the criminal court and deliver him to the court according to its proper precept."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Certification of sanity

Where accused charged with incest was found by jury to be of unsound mind and was committed to hospital, upon discharge of accused from hospital as cured and in absence of anything showing invalidity of certificate of hospital superintendent, court was required to proceed with trial on the suspended criminal indictment and no further proceedings on the question of sanity was necessary. Haislip v. United States (1942, 129 F. 2d 53, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 91).

Where accused was found to be of unsound mind and was committed to hospital, the verdict of insanity spoke as of the date thereof and was a legal determination that accused was not then mentally qualified to stand trial but when he was restored to sanity, certificate of hospital superintendent to that effect removed the previous bar. Id.

Construction with other laws

Where accused was charged with incest, found to be of unsound mind and committed to hospital and thereafter hospital superintendent certified that accused was not insane, in determining whether trial court had duty to ascertain judicially if superintendent's certificate correctly fixed accused's mental condition, § 21-320 [now repealed] relating to method of inquisition in case of persons believed to be of unsound mind was inapplicable. Haislip v. United States (1942, 129 F. 2d 53, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 91).

Habeas corpus

"But we find in this section nothing that precludes the right of the prisoner to have a judicial inquiry made into the fact of restoration to sanity," and he may apply for a habeas corpus in the event that the superintendent refuses to certify to his restoration to sanity. Wagner v. White (1912, 38 App. D.C. 554).

In habeas corpus proceeding by petitioner, who had been committed as an insane person pursuant to verdict, in murder prosecution, of not guilty by reason of insanity, evidence sustained determination that petitioner had not been restored to mental health and justified discharge of writ. Orencia v. Overholser (1947, 163 F. 2d 763, 82 U.S. App. D.C. 285).

1963 robbery conviction was not invalid on ground that, since defendant had been committed to hospital following his 1961 acquittal by reason of insanity, district court was without jurisdiction to try him, in absence of hearing to determine his competency to stand trial in 1963, where prior to both 1961 and 1963 trials defendant was referred to hospital for mental examination resulting, in both instances, in certification by hospital that he was competent to stand trial, and 1963 certification was not objected to by either defendant or government. L.W. Green v. United States (1965, 351 F. 2d 198, 122 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

The sole effect of § 24-301 et seq. is to suspend the criminal proceedings during the period of insanity but jurisdiction of court continues and when sanity is restored, the case may proceed as if the interregnum had not occurred. Haislip v. United States (1942, 129 F. 2d 53, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 91).

Prisoner convicted but not sentenced

This section includes one convicted of crime but not yet sentenced. Ormsby v. United States (C.C.A. 6, 1921, 273 F. 977).

 24-470. Status of prisoner employed in free community under this subchapter.

SUBCHAPTER I.—PRISONS

Section of act Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 934, designated places of imprisonment, according to length of maximum sentence imposed by the court, with special provisions for cumulative sentences, and designated in which court, as between the District Court and the Municipal Court (now the Court of General Sessions), criminal prosecutions should or might be brought, according to the maximum punishment prescribed for the offense. The provisions are now covered by §§ 11-963(a)(1) and 24-425. See, also, § 11-521 and 18 U.S.C. § 4082 et seq.

§ 24-402. Sentence of prisoners to jail, reformatory, or penitentiary for more than one year—Jurisdiction of Commissioners over prisoners in reformatory—Transfer of prisoners from penitentiary to reformatory.

Whenever any person has been convicted of crime in any court in the District of Columbia and sentenced to imprisonment for more than one year by the court, the imprisonment during the term for which he may have been sentenced or during the residue of said term may be in some suitable jail or penitentiary or in the reformatory of the District of Columbia; and it shall be sufficient for the court to sentence the defendant to imprisonment in the penitentiary without specifying the particular prison or the reformatory of the District of Columbia and the imprisonment shall be in such penitentiary, jail, or the reformatory of the District of Columbia as the Attorney-General shall from time to time designate: Provided, That the commissioners of the District of Columbia are vested with jurisdiction over such male and female prisoners as may be designated by the Attorney-General for confinement in the reformatory of the District of Columbia from the time they are delivered into their custody or into the custody of their authorized superintendent, deputy, or deputies, and until such prisoners are released or discharged under due process of law: And provided further, That the residue of the term of imprisonment of any person who has prior to July 1, 1916, been convicted of crime in any court in the District of Columbia and sentenced to imprisonment for more than one year by the court may be in the reformatory of the District of Columbia instead of the penitentiary where such persons may be confined on July 1, 1916, and the Attorney-General, when so requested by the commissioners of the District of Columbia, is authorized to, and he shall, deliver into the custody of the superintendent of said reformatory or his deputy or deputies any such person confined in any penitentiary in pursuance of any judgment of conviction in and sentence by any court in the District of Columbia, and the commissioners of the District of Columbia are vested with jurisdiction over such prisoners from the time they are delivered into the custody of said superintendent or his duly authorized deputy or deputies, including the time when they are in transit between such penitentiary and the reformatory of the District of Columbia, and during the period they are in such reformatory or until they are released or discharged under due process of law. The Attorney-General shall pay the cost of the maintenance of said prisoners so transferred, said payment to be from appropriations for support of convicts, District of Columbia, in like manner as payments are made for the support of District convicts in federal penitentiaries. Nothing herein contained shall be construed as applying to the National Training School for Boys or the National Training School for Girls. (Sept. 1, 1916, 39 Stat. 711, ch. 433.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

Act Sept. 1, 1916, provided in part that: "The provisions of this paragraph shall take effect on and after July first, nineteen hundred and sixteen."

CROSS REFERENCE

Place of imprisonment to be designated by Attorney General, see § 24-425.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Constitutional law

Act giving Attorney General power to designate places of confinement for Federal prisoners does not violate Fifth Amendment. Stewart v. Johnston (C.C.A. 9, 1938, 97 F. 2d 548).

Federal institutions

This section impliedly recognizes the fact that District of Columbia prisoners may be incarcerated in Federal institutions. Story v. Rives (1938, 97 F. 2d 182, 68 App. D.C. 325).

Prisoner released on parole by Federal parole board as a matter of discretion but Congress adopted a new procedure of conditional release because it realized that society would be better served if prisoners were subjected to the same supervision as parolees. Id.

Penal or correctional institutions

A sentence to serve a term in a penal institution could not be served in a correctional institution, except under authority given to the Attorney General to transfer prisoners. Wilson v. Aderhold (C.C.A. 5, 1936, 84 F. 2d 806).

Place of confinement

The Attorney General of the United States had the authority to designate an institution located outside of the District of Columbia and beyond the control of local penal officials for service of sentence by one who was convicted in the District of Columbia of a violation of § 22-1504, since the offense punished thereby was an "offense against the United States" within meaning of this section. Beard v. Bennett (1940, 114 F. 2d 578, 72 App. D.C. 269).

Attorney General was duly authorized to designate the prison where a defendant was sentenced in the courts of the District of Columbia to imprisonment exceeding one year, and his designation was in proper form. (Decided under D.C. 1901, § 925). Myers v. Morgan (C.C.A. 8, 1915, 224 F. 413).

Attorney General, under the broad powers conferred upon him, had authority to cause appellee to be placed and held in the Atlanta penitentiary under any general sentence of imprisonment for more than a year, the court could have imposed. Aderhold v. Edwards (C.C.A. 5, 1934, 71 F. 2d 297).

Religious services

Allowing some religious groups to hold religious services at reformatory and jail at public expense while denying that right to another discriminated against prisoner of the other faith in violation of orders of Commissioners of District of Columbia requiring prison officials to make facilities available without regard to race or religion. Wm. T. X. Fulwood v. Clemmer, Director, etc. and Anderson, Acting Sup't etc. (D.C.D.C. 1962, 206 F. Supp. 370).

Regulation and discipline of prisoners convicted of offenses against United States has been committed to prison authorities. Id.

Transfer of prisoners

Transfer of inmates of Atlanta penitentiary who are eligible to parole, to an institution in District of Columbia, can not be required by the courts. Aderhold v. Lee (C.C.A. 5, 1934, 68 F. 2d 824, certiorari denied 54 S. Ct. 718, 292 U.S. 633, 78 L. Ed. 1486).

Attorney General has authority to change the place of confinement from a Federal penitentiary to a local jail, when it is proper to do so, in the exercise of his discretion, and it is not necessary that a prisoner be remanded to the trial court merely for the purpose of having the designation of the jail changed. Cox v. McConnell (C.C.A. 5, 1936, 80 F. 2d 258).

In imposing sentences, courts are restricted to specifying the type of institution in which the prisoner is to be confined and he is committed to the custody of the Attorney General, who designates the place of confinement, and the Attorney General may transfer any prisoner from one institution to another for any reason sufficient to himself. Zerbst v. Kidwell (C.C.A. 5, 1938, 92 F. 2d 756).

Title 18 U.S.C. § 753f (now §§ 4082, 4083) if in any respect inconsistent with this section, is so only to the extent that it broadens the Attorney General's authority so that he may designate a place of confinement other than one of the District of Columbia. Beard v. Bennett (1940, 114 F. 2d 578, 72 App. D.C. 269).

§ 24-403. Transfer of prisoners from jail to workhouse.

The United States District Court for the District of Columbia, the Attorney-General, and the superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail, when so requested by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, shall deliver into the custody of the superintendent or the authorized deputy or deputies of said superintendent of the workhouse, male and female prisoners sentenced to confinement in said jail for offenses against the common law or against statutes or ordinances relating to the District of Columbia, and, in the discretion of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia and the Attorney-General, male and female prisoners serving sentence in said jail for offenses against the United States, for such work or services as may be necessary, in the discretion of the commissioners of said District, in connection with the construction, maintenance, and operation of said workhouse, or the prosecution of any other public work at said institution or in the District of Columbia: Provided, That, on the direction of said commissioners, male and female prisoners confined in any existing workhouse existing on March 2, 1911, or in the Washington Asylum and Jail of the District of Columbia shall be delivered into the custody of said superintendent or the authorized deputy or deputies of said superintendent aforesaid, to perform similar work or services to those hereinbefore required of male and female prisoners serving sentences in the District of Columbia Jail: Provided further, That the Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby vested with jurisdiction over such male and female prisoners from the time they are so delivered into the custody of said superintendent or the duly authorized deputy or deputies of said superintendent, including the time when such prisoners are in transit between the District of Columbia and the site acquired for such workhouse, and during the period such prisoners are on such site or in the District of Columbia until they are released or discharged under due process of law. (Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1002, ch. 192; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127.)

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1936, substituted "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia" for "Supreme Court of the District of Columbia."

Act June 25, 1948, eff. Sept. 1, 1948, as amended by act May 24, 1949, substituted "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" for "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Habeas corpus

District Court had jurisdiction to issue habeas corpus writ, for petitioner was committed by a court of the District to a jail of the District under the control of an official of the District who in turn was personally within the District and within the jurisdiction of the court Sanders v. Allen (1939, 100 F. 2d 717, 69 App. D.C. 307).

Transfer to workhouse

Provision of this section authorizing transfer to the workhouse by direction of the commissioners was attached by law to the sentence, and had the same effect as if the court, under statutory authority, had expressed in the sentence that the convict might be transferred to the workhouse under order of the commissioners. Whittaker v. Brannan (C.C.A. 4, 1918, 252 F. 556).

§ 24-404. Commutation of fine.

In all cases in the District of Columbia where a defendant is sent to jail or to the workhouse in default of the payment of a fine he shall be released upon the payment of the balance of the fine due by him after crediting thereon as paid an amount equal to the proportion the time thus served by him in the jail or workhouse bears to the whole time he was to serve under the sentence. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 936.)

§ 24-405. Deduction for good conduct—Discharge.

All persons sentenced to and imprisoned in the jail or in the workhouse of the District of Columbia, and confined there for a term of one month or longer who conduct themselves so that no charge of misconduct shall be sustained against them shall have a deduction upon a sentence of not more than one year of five days for each month; upon a sentence of more than one year and less than three years, six days for each month; upon a sentence of not less than three years and less than five years, seven days for each month; upon a sentence of not less than five years and less than ten years, eight days for each month; and upon a sentence of ten years or more, ten days for each month, and shall be entitled to their discharge so much the earlier upon the certificate of the superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail for those confined in the jail, and upon the certificate of the superintendent of the workhouse for those confined in the workhouse, of their good conduct during their imprisonment. When a prisoner has two or more sentences the aggregate of his several sentences shall be the basis upon which his deduction shall be estimated. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1341, ch. 854, § 937; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192; June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 245, ch. 254, § 10.)

CODIFICATION

Act Mar. 2, 1911, combined as one institution, known as the Washington Asylum and Jail, the jail of the District of Columbia and the Washington Asylum, and created the position of Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail and vested in him the powers theretofore vested in and exercised by the warden of the former jail and the superintendent of the former Washington Asylum.

AMENDMENT

1940—Act June 6, 1940, among other changes, substituted provisions prescribing the maximum deduction for good behavior for persons confined under particular sentences for provisions which authorized a deduction of 5 days for each month, inserted provisions requiring the aggregate of several sentences to be the basis for deduction, and eliminated provisions which required the judge to make a docket entry of the discharge.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Good conduct allowance

The good conduct deduction under the District of Columbia Code does not apply to those sentenced to a penitentiary. Johnson v. Ward, U.S. Marshal (1960, 278 F. 2d 245, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 365).

An allowance on a sentence for good conduct is a privilege and not a vested right. It may be denied as to all cumulative sentences for an infraction of the rules occurring during the service of any of the sentences. Aderhold v. Hudson (C.C.A. 5, 1939, 84 F. 2d 559).

§ 24-406. Prisoners in workhouse and reformatory to be returned to and released in District of Columbia.

All inmates of the workhouse and reformatory for the District of Columbia shall be returned to and released in said District on the day of the expiration of sentence. (June 10, 1910, 36 Stat. 464, ch. 282.)

§ 24-407. Jail and Washington Asylum combined.

The jail of the District of Columbia and the Washington Asylum of said District shall be combined as one institution, known as the Washington Asylum and Jail. (Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192.)

§ 24-408. Commitments to Washington Asylum and Jail.

Whenever and wherever authority of law exists to sentence, commit, order committed, or confine any person to or in the jail of the District of Columbia or the Washington Asylum of said District, said authority shall be exercised by sentence, commitment, order of commitment, or confinement to or in said Washington Asylum and Jail. (Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192.)

§ 24-409. Omitted.

CODIFICATION

Section, which consisted of that part of § 6 of act Mar. 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, which vested in the Board of Public Welfare (now Department of Public Welfare and Department of Public Health) complete and exclusive management and control of the workhouse at Occoquan, Virginia, the reformatory at Lorton, Virginia, and the Washington Asylum and Jail, has been omitted from this Code as obsolete and superseded by § 24-441 et seq., and Reorganization Order No. 34 of the Board of Commissioners, dated May 28, 1953, as amended, the latter set out in Appendix to title 1. See, also, note under § 24-441, and note under § 3-106.

§ 24-410. Detention of United States prisoners in Washington Asylum and Jail.

The Board of Public Welfare is hereby authorized and directed to receive and keep in the Washington Asylum and Jail all prisoners committed thereto for offenses against the United States. (Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Board of Public Welfare abolished and specified functions transferred to Department of Public Health and Department of Public Welfare, see note under section 3-102.

§ 24-411. Superintendent and all other employees—Appointment—Discharge—Supervision of Board of Public Welfare.

The superintendents and all other employees engaged on March 16, 1926 in the operation of the workhouse at Occoquan in the State of Virginia, the reformatory at Lorton in the State of Virginia, and the Washington Asylum and Jail shall after March 16, 1926 be subject to the supervision of the Board. Each superintendent shall have the management and control of the institution to which he is appointed and shall be subordinate to the director of public welfare. The superintendent and all other employees of each of the institutions enumerated in this section shall be appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia upon nomination by the Board and shall be subject to discharge by the Commissioners upon recommendation of the Board. (Mar. 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, § 7.)

CODIFICATION

The provisions of this section, § 7 of act Mar. 16, 1926, are also set out as § 3-107 of this Code. As set out here, the reference to the two penal institutions in Virginia and the Washington Asylum and Jail, and the reference to "this section", have been substituted for "the institutions enumerated in section 6" and "section 6", respectively. Section 6 of act Mar. 16, 1926, which is set out as § 3-106 of this Code, enumerates a number of nonpenal institutions in addition to the workhouse at Occoquan, Va., the reformatory at Lorton, Va., and the Washington Asylum and Jail. Formerly, § 6 was also set out in this chapter as § 24-409, but only in part, the enumeration being restricted to the three penal institutions mentioned, to conform with the subject matter of this chapter. Section 24-409 has been omitted from this Code as superseded by § 24-441 et seq. and Reorganization Order No. 34, dated May 28, 1953, as amended. Those sections and order also affected said § 3-106, insofar as the latter includes the said three penal institutions in its enumeration of institutions. See, also, notes under § 3-106, former § 24-409, and § 24-441.

Act. Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192, established the office of superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail, provided for the appointment of such superintendent by the Commissioners of the District, and provided further that the superintendent should give bond to the District of Columbia for the faithful performance of the duties of his office, "as are now or may hereafter be prescribed", in the penal sum of $5,000, with surety or sureties to be approved by the Commissioners (D.C. Code, 1929 ed., title 6, § 411). Such provisions have been omitted from this section and from this Code as apparently obsolete and superseded by later enactments, such as the provisions of the act of Mar. 16, 1926, set out as this section, of which § 15 repealed acts inconsistent therewith (see note below), and the provisions of act June 28, 1935, 69 Stat. 281, ch. 332, §§ 1-3, as amended (§§ 1-213 to 1-213b of this Code), relating to bonds of officers and employees of the District of Columbia.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Board of Public Welfare abolished and specified functions transferred to Department of Public Health and Department of Public Welfare, see note under section 3-102.

Act Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192, transferred the functions, powers and duties of the warden of the jail and of the superintendent of the Washington Asylum to the superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail.

REPEAL OF INCONSISTENT ACTS

Section 15 of act Mar. 16, 1926, repealed all acts or parts of acts inconsistent therewith.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Superintendent of District jail

Superintendent of District of Columbia Jail, in so far as he was custodian of federal prisoner, was an "officer or employee of the United States", within 28 U.S.C. § 1252 authorizing direct appeal to Supreme Court from interlocutory or final judgment, decree or order of any court of the United States holding act of Congress unconstitutional in any civil action, suit or proceeding to which United States or any of its agencies, or any officer or employee thereof, as such officer or employee, is a party. Reid, Superintendent v. Covert (1956, 76 S. Ct. 880, 351 U.S. 487, 100 L. Ed. 1352, rehearing denied 77 S. Ct. 23, 352 U.S. 813, reversed on other grounds 77 S. Ct. 1222, 354 U.S. 1, 1 L. Ed. 2d 1148).

§ 24-412. Employment of prisoners.

Persons sentenced to imprisonment in the jail may be employed at such labor and under such regulations as may be prescribed by the Board of Public Welfare and the proceeds thereof applied to defray the expenses of the trial and conviction of any such person. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1192; Mar. 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, § 6.)

AMENDMENT

1926—Act Mar. 16, 1926, substituted "Board of Public Welfare" for "Supreme Court of the District."

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Board of Public Welfare abolished and specified functions transferred to Department of Public Health and Department of Public Welfare, see note under section 3-102.

§ 24-413. Commitment by marshal.

Nothing in sections 24-412 and 24-415 shall be construed to impair or interfere with the authority of the marshal of the District to commit persons to the jail or to produce them in open court or before any judicial officer when thereto required. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1193.)

§ 24-414. Delivery of prisoners to marshal.

It shall be the duty of the superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail to receive such prisoners and to deliver them to the marshal or his duly authorized deputy, on the written request of either, for the purpose of taking them before any court or judicial officer, as provided in section 24-413. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1194; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Powers and duties of the warden of the jail were transferred to the superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail by act Mar 2, 1911. See note under section 24-411.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Police custody

Where defendant had been duly committed to jail upon other charges and was being legally detained, and defendant was delivered to custody of policemen by jail officials for purpose of going to police headquarters to take a lie detector test, to which defendant had agreed to submit, though jailer exceeded his authority in surrendering defendant, fact that defendant was in temporary care of police at time of making written confession to murder charge did not render confession inadmissible at his trial. Tyler v. United States (1952, 193 F. 2d 24, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 2, certiorari denied 72 S. Ct. 639, 343 U.S. 908, 96 L. Ed. 1326).

The superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail shall be accountable for the safe-keeping of all prisoners legally committed thereto. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1191; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192; Mar. 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, § 6.)

CODIFICATION

Provisions relating to the warden's exclusive supervision and control of the jail have been deleted in view of act Mar. 16, 1926, which vested complete and exclusive management of the Washington Asylum and Jail in the Board of Public Welfare.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Powers and duties of the warden of the jail were transferred to the superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail by act Mar 2, 1911. See note under section 24-411.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appointment

Defendant is superintendent by virtue of an appointment from the Commissioners of the District, and under his direction and control are the jail building itself and all other buildings used in connection with it, including the hospital building, where the plaintiff was received. All the subordinates of the superintendent receive their appointments from the Commissioners themselves, and are not subject to discharge by the superintendent. Zinkhan v. District of Columbia (1921, 271 F. 542, 50 App. D.C. 312).

Bond

Office of warden was abolished and a new office created, viz the office of Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail, under appointment by the Commissioners of the District, and such officer's bond was required to be given to the District. Touching this bond there is no statutory provision that allows action thereon to be brought by a third party. District of Columbia to Use of Langelotti v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1921, 271 F. 383, 50 App. D.C. 309).

§ 24-416. Annual report by Superintendent of Washington Asylum and Jail.

The superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail shall annually, in the month of November, make a detailed report to the Attorney-General. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1379, ch. 854, § 1197; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Powers and duties of the warden of the jail were transferred to the superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail by act Mar 2, 1911. See note under section 24-411.

§ 24-417. Superintendent required to execute judgments in capital cases—Failure of Congress to make specific appropriation not abolition of position or repeal of authority.

The Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail appointed by the commissioners of the District of Columbia is hereby directed, authorized, and required to execute the judgments of the law prior to March 4, 1923, pronounced and thereafter to be pronounced in the District of Columbia by the courts thereof in all capital cases, and the power prior to March 4, 1923, given to and now vested in such commissioners to appoint such superintendent and all appointments to the position of such superintendent made by such commissioners are hereby ratified and confirmed; and any failure on the part of Congress, either prior to or after March 4, 1923, to make a specific appropriation for the salary or compensation of such superintendent shall not be construed either as an abolition of such position of Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail or as a repeal of the power and authority of such commissioners to appoint such superintendent. (Mar. 4, 1923, 42 Stat. 1533, ch. 292.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Method of capital punishment, duty to provide death chamber and apparatus, death sentence to be in writing, persons present at electrocution, see §§ 23-701 to 23-706.

§ 24-418. Sale of products of workhouse and reformatory.

The commissioners are authorized, under such regulations as they may prescribe, to sell the surplus products of the workhouse and the reformatory. All moneys derived from such sales shall be paid into the treasury of the United States to the credit of the United States and to the credit of the District of Columbia, in the same proportions as the appropriations for such institutions are paid from the treasury of the United States and the revenues of the District of Columbia. All moneys received at the reformatory as income thereof from the sale of brooms to the various branches of the government of the District of Columbia shall remain available for the purchase of material for the manufacture of additional brooms to be similarly disposed of. (June 5, 1920, 41 Stat. 869, ch. 234; Feb. 28, 1923, 42 Stat. 1357, ch. 148.)

CROSS REFERENCES

§ 24-418a. Sale of gun mountings to States of the Union and their political subdivisions.

Any State of the United States or any political subdivision of any such State is authorized to purchase from the District of Columbia Reformatory located at Lorton, Virginia, at fair market prices determined by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, gun mountings and carriages for guns for use at historic sites and for museum display purposes. Receipts from sales authorized under this section shall be deposited to the credit of the working capital fund established for the industrial enterprises at the workhouse and reformatory of the District of Columbia to the same extent and in the same manner as provided for receipts from the sale of products and services of such industrial enterprises in section 47-131. (June 1, 1957, 71 Stat. 45, Pub. L. 85-45, § 1.)

REFERENCES IN TEXT

Section 47-131, referred to in text, was repealed by act Oct. 3, 1964, Pub. L. 88-622, § 6, and is now covered by sections 24-451 to 24-455.

§ 24-419. Omitted.

CODIFICATION

Section, act Mar. 16, 1926, 44 Stat. 209, ch. 58, § 7, which was previously classified to this section and section 24-411, is omitted since the sections are identical and there is no reason to duplicate the provisions in this Code.

§ 24-420. Grounds of jail increased.

The buildings and grounds adjoining the Washington Asylum in the District of Columbia, used prior to June 16, 1880, as a Naval and Army magazine are added to the grounds of the Washington Asylum and Jail and subjected to the control of the commissioners of the District of Columbia as part of the asylum until otherwise ordered. (June 16, 1880, 21 Stat. 270, ch. 235; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192.)

CONSOLIDATION OF JAIL AND WASHINGTON ASYLUM

§ 24-421. Subsistence of prisoners—Payment by Attorney-General.

There shall be allowed and paid by the Attorney-General for the subsistence of prisoners in the custody of any marshal of the United States and the Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail in the District of Columbia such sum as it reasonably and actually costs to subsist them. And it shall be the duty of the Attorney-General to prescribe such regulations for the government of the marshals and the Superintendent of the Washington Asylum and Jail in the District of Columbia in relation to their duties under sections 24-412 to 24-416 and 24-421 as will enable him to determine the actual and reasonable expenses incurred. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1380, ch. 854, § 1204; Mar. 2, 1911, 36 Stat. 1003, ch. 192.)

CONSOLIDATION OF JAIL AND WASHINGTON ASYLUM

"Washington Asylum and Jail" was substituted for "jail" to conform to act Mar. 2, 1911, which combined the jail of the District of Columbia and the Washington Asylum. See section 24-407.

§ 24-422. Maintenance of jail—Support of prisoners—Estimates of expenses.

All expenses incurred for maintenance of the jail of the District of Columbia and for support of prisoners therein shall be paid out of the revenues of the District of Columbia, and estimates for such expenses shall each year be submitted in the annual estimates for the expenses of the government of the District of Columbia. (Aug. 18, 1894, 28 Stat. 417, ch. 301; June 29, 1922, 42 Stat. 668, ch. 249.)

CODIFICATION

Provisions which related to apportionment of expenses were omitted in view of act May 16, 1938, 52 Stat. 375, ch. 223, § 8.

§ 24-423. Cost of care of District of Columbia convicts charged against District—United States reimbursed—Miscellaneous receipts.

The United States shall be reimbursed, as heretofore, for the maintenance of District of Columbia inmates, and all sums paid by such District for such maintenance for the service of the fiscal year 1927 and subsequent fiscal years shall be covered into the treasury as "Miscellaneous receipts." (Apr. 29, 1926, 44 Stat. 347, ch. 195, title II.)

§ 24-424. Cost of care of District of Columbia convicts charged against District—Accounts.

The cost of the care and custody of District of Columbia convicts in any federal penitentiary shall be charged against the District of Columbia in quarterly accounts to be rendered by the disbursing officer of said penitentiary; and the amount to be charged against the District of Columbia shall be ascertained by multiplying the average daily number of District of Columbia convicts confined in the penitentiary during the quarter by the per capita cost for all prisoners in such penitentiary for the same quarter but excluding expenses of construction or extraordinary repair of buildings. (Mar. 3, 1915, 38 Stat. 869, ch. 75, § 1.)

§ 24-425. Place of imprisonment—Designation by Attorney General—Transfer.

All prisoners convicted in the District of Columbia for any offense, including violations of municipal regulations and ordinances and Acts of Congress in the nature of municipal regulations and ordinances, shall be committed, for their terms of imprisonment, and to such types of institutions as the court may direct, to the custody of the Attorney General of the United States or his authorized representative, who shall designate the places of confinements where the sentences of all such persons shall be served. The Attorney General may designate any available, suitable, and appropriate institutions, whether maintained by the District of Columbia Government, the federal government, or otherwise, or whether within or without the District of Columbia. The Attorney General is also authorized to order the transfer of any such person from one institution to another if, in his judgment, it shall be for the well-being of the prisoner or relieve overcrowding or unhealthful conditions in the institution where such prisoner is confined, or for other reasons. (July 15, 1932, ch. 492, § 11, as added June 6, 1940, 54 Stat. 244, ch. 254, § 8.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Authority of Attorney General to designate Commissioners to perform functions vested under this section, see § 24-468.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Escape from custody of Attorney General

Transfer of physical custody of defendant to a mental hospital from a District of Columbia jail pursuant to statute authorizing director of the Department of Corrections to make such a transfer was not inconsistent with nor exclusive of the legal custody of the Attorney General, and therefore defendant's escape from such hospital was an escape from the "custody of the Attorney General," within the Federal Escape Act. L. A. Frazier v. United States (1964, 339 F. 2d 745, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 246).

Transfer of prisoners

Habeas corpus proceeding by defendant, who alleged that he had been transferred from confinement in Virginia to jail in District of Columbia while petition for appeal in forma pauperis from denial of previous petition for habeas corpus was pending in Court of Appeals for Fourth Circuit in order to hamper such previous habeas corpus proceeding, did not present moot question, and defendant was entitled to hearing at least as to legality of his transfer in view of failure of District of Columbia to controvert defendant's allegations. J. A. Bolden, Jr. v. D. C. Clemmer et al. (1961, 298 F. 2d 306, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 392).

SUBCHAPTER II.—DEPARTMENT OF CORRECTIONS

§ 24-441. Department of Corrections created—Director.

There is created in and for the District of Columbia a Department of Corrections to be in charge of a Director who shall be appointed by the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. (June 27, 1946, 60 Stat. 320, ch. 507, § 1.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Reorganization Order No. 34 of the Board of Commissioners dated May 28, 1953, and effective June 21, 1953, established under the direction and control of a Commissioner, a Department of Corrections headed by a director. The Department was established to provide for the custody, care, discipline, and instruction of all persons committed to the Workhouse, Lorton Reformatory, Women's Reformatory, and the D.C. Jail. All positions under the previously existing Department of Corrections including the duties, powers, and authorities of all officers and employees were assigned to the new Department of Corrections and the previously existing Department was abolished. This order was issued pursuant to Reorg. Plan No. 5 of 1952. The order and plan are set out in the Appendix to title 1, Appendix.

CROSS REFERENCE

Director of Department of Corrections to designate officers of the Department to whom services of a psychiatrist and a psychologist are available, see § 24-106.

§ 24-442. Powers of Department over institutions—Rules and regulations.

Said Department of Corrections under the general direction and supervision of the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall have charge of the management and regulation of the Workhouse at Occoquan in the State of Virginia, the Reformatory at Lorton in the State of Virginia, and the Washington Asylum and Jail, and be responsible for the safekeeping, care, protection, instruction, and discipline of all persons committed to such institutions. The Department of Corrections with the approval of the Commissioners shall have power to promulgate rules and regulations for the government of such institutions and to establish and conduct industries, farms, and other activities, to classify the inmates, and to provide for their proper treatment, care, rehabilitation, and reformation. (June 27, 1946, 60 Stat. 320, ch. 507, § 2.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Department of Corrections under the direction and control of a Commissioner, and headed by a director, established to succeed the existing Department of Corrections, see note under section 24-441.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Admissibility of statements made to jail employee

Statement defendant gave jail employee, who was questioning defendant for purpose relating to jail's classification and treatment of inmates, was inadmissible, although defendant signed it and had not been advised that it would not be used against him, where, had defendant made inquiry, he would have received promise that his answers would not be used against him. J. W. Killough v. United States (1964, 336 F. 2d 929, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 10).

Discipline of prisoners

Allowing some religious groups to hold religious services at reformatory and jail at public expense while denying that right to another discriminated against prisoner of the other faith in violation of orders of Commissioners of District of Columbia requiring prison officials to make facilities available without regard to race or religion. Wm. T. X. Fulwood v. Clemmer, Director etc. and Anderson, Acting Sup't. etc. (D.C.D.C. 1962, 206 F. Supp. 370).

Regulation and discipline of prisoners convicted of offenses against United States has been committed to prison authorities. Id.

Review of administrator's actions

Actions of prison authorities, including granting or withdrawal of claimed privileges of prisoners, are not reviewable by the court in "mandamus proceeding" in the absence of specific allegations particularly showing a clear breach of duty by prison administrators. White and Childs v. D. L. Clemmer, Director, District of Columbia Department of Corrections et al. (1961, 295 F. 2d 132, 111 U.S. App. D.C. 145).

Federal prisoners' pleadings seeking relief in nature of mandamus because of claimed deprivation of civil rights on account of their religion failed to allege with sufficient particularity a basis for redress by court where prison administration had been committed by statute to prison authorities and no breach of their statutory duty had been shown. Id.

§ 24-443. Board of Public Welfare powers transferred to Department—Officers and employees.

With respect to the said institutions, the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall succeed to all the powers and authority, and to all the duties and obligations vested in or imposed by law upon the Board of Public Welfare of the District of Columbia. The officers and employees and all plant and equipment, official records, furniture, and supplies of the said institutions are hereby transferred to the Department of Corrections. (June 27, 1946, 60 Stat. 321, ch. 507, § 5.)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

§ 24-446. Cost of care and custody of persons confined in institutions.

The cost of the care and custody of persons confined in the said institutions charged with or convicted of offenses under any law of the United States not applicable exclusively to the District of Columbia shall be charged against the department or agency of the United States primarily responsible for the care and custody of such persons in quarterly accounts to be rendered by the Disbursing Officer of the District of Columbia. The amount to be charged for such care and custody shall be ascertained by multiplying the average daily number of such persons so confined during the quarter by the per capita cost for the same quarter for all prisoners in the institution where confined, excluding expenses of construction or extraordinary repair of buildings. The sum so derived shall be credited to the current appropriation for the maintenance and operation of such institutions. (June 27, 1946, 60 Stat. 321, ch. 507, § 6.)

§ 24-452. Availability of fund for performance of services and production of commodities for rehabilitation of inmates—Accounting for the fund.

The fund shall be available without fiscal-year limitation and shall be used for the performance of such services and the production of such commodities as, in the judgment of the Board of Commissioners of the District of Columbia (hereinafter referred to as "Commissioners"), will contribute to the rehabilitation, knowledge, and skill in trades and occupations of inmates of the institutions in the Department of Corrections of the District of Columbia, thereby equipping them with a means of livelihood upon release. The accounting for the fund shall be maintained on the accrual basis, including provision for employees' accrued annual leave and depreciation of fixed assets, and financial reports shall be prepared on the basis of such accounting. Not later than six months' after the end of each fiscal year, the Director of the Department of Corrections of the District of Columbia shall submit to the Commissioners a report of the financial condition of the fund and the results of operations for such fiscal year. ## § 24-501. Purpose.

The purpose of this chapter is to establish a program for the rehabilitation of alcoholics, promote temperance, and provide for the medical, psychiatric, and other scientific treatment of chronic alcoholics; to minimize the deleterious effects of excessive drinking on those who pass through the courts of the District of Columbia; to reduce the financial burden imposed upon the people of the District of Columbia by the abusive use of alcoholic beverages, as is reflected in mounting accident rates, decreased personal efficiency, growing absenteeism, and a general increase in the amount and seriousness of crime in the District of Columbia, and to substitute for jail sentences for drunkenness medical and other scientific methods of treatment which will benefit the individual involved and more fully protect the public. In order to accomplish this purpose and alleviate the problem of chronic alcoholism, the courts of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized to take judicial notice of the fact that a chronic alcoholic is a sick person and in need of proper medical, institutional, advisory, and rehabilitative treatment, and the court is authorized to direct that he receive appropriate medical, psychiatric, or other treatment as provided under the terms of this chapter. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 744, ch. 472, § 1.)

Judicial notice

Federal District Court would take judicial notice of congressional finding that a chronic alcoholic is a sick person in need of proper medical, institutional, and rehabilitative treatment. J. B. Driver v. A. Hinnant, Sup't etc. (D.C.D.C. 1965, 243 F. Supp. 95).

§ 24-502. "Chronic alcoholic" defined.

The term "chronic alcoholic" means any person who chronically and habitually uses alcoholic beverages to the extent that he has lost the power of self-control with respect to the use of such beverages, or while under the influence of alcohol endangers the public morals, health, safety, or welfare. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 744, ch. 472, § 2.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence

Expert medical and psychiatric evidence established that defendant charged with public intoxication was chronic alcoholic who had lost control over his use of alcoholic beverages. DeW. Easter v. District of Columbia (1966, 361 F. 2d 50, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

§ 24-503. Alcoholic clinic.

(a) The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are hereby authorized and directed to establish and equip a clinic in connection either with some existing hospital or with some correctional institution or other facility for the diagnosis, classification, hospitalization, confinement, treatment, and study of persons who are found to be chronic alcoholics, as defined herein, by the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions.

(b) The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are also directed to utilize the alcoholic clinic services for the treatment of the chronic alcoholic as authorized by this chapter and for the purpose of preparing and administering a program for the rehabilitation of alcoholics and the promotion of temperance through teaching and training of professional personnel and use through community organization. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 744, ch. 472, § 3; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1.)

CHANGE OF NAME

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "Municipal Court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

§ 24-504. Suspension of criminal proceedings—Hearing—Commitment to clinic.

In any criminal case, brought to trial before the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions, in which the evidence indicates that the defendant is a chronic alcoholic within the meaning of section 24-502, the judge may suspend the proceedings in the case and order that a hearing be held, upon sufficient notice, to determine whether the defendant is a chronic alcoholic. The hearing shall be conducted by the judge without a jury, unless the defendant requests a jury. The defendant shall be entitled to representation at the hearing by an attorney of his own choice, and if the defendant does not select an attorney, the court shall appoint an attorney to represent the defendant. If, after the hearing, the judge, or the jury, as the case may be, determines that the defendant is a chronic alcoholic, the court may order that he be committed to the clinic for diagnosis, classification, and treatment as his condition may require, provided the term of commitment shall not exceed ninety days. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 4; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1.)

CHANGE OF NAME

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "Municipal Court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Congressional problem

Defendant's argument that district commissioners had not complied with statute by certifying to court that proper and adequate treatment facilities and personnel were available to carry out alcoholic rehabilitation program was improperly addressed to attention of court, which was wholly without means of solving problem, redress and correction, if need be, lying with Congress for enlargement and improvements of program for rehabilitation of alcoholics. D. Easter v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1965, 209 A. 2d 625; rev'd on other grounds 361 F. 2d 50).

Discretion of court

Defendant who is determined to be chronic alcoholic may in judge's discretion be committed for treatment or he may be released, but he may not be punished. DeW. Easter v. District of Columbia (1966, 361 F. 2d 50, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

This section which provides that the court may order the defendant committed to a clinic clearly indicates that such commitment is generally a matter of discretion of the court. Peebles v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 75 A. 2d 845).

§ 24-505. Classification and diagnostic center.

The director of the clinic shall provide a classification and diagnostic center. Every person committed to the clinic shall first be sent to this classification and diagnostic center for observation, examination, and classification. The classification center shall make a complete study of each person committed, including mental and physical condition, personal traits, pertinent circumstances of school and family life, and any delinquency, criminal experience, or other factors contributing to his addiction to alcohol. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 5.)

§ 24-506. Director's recommendation to committing judge—Court order—Designation of director as representative of Attorney General.

(a) The director may then recommend to the committing judge that the person committed (1) be permitted to remain at liberty conditionally and under supervision, or (2) be placed in an appropriate agency, hospital, institution in the District of Columbia for treatment as a chronic alcoholic, or (3) be returned to the court from which he was committed for trial upon the original offense charged or for such action as the court may deem proper. The court may thereupon, in its discretion, issue such orders as it deems necessary and proper in the case.

(b) The Attorney General of the United States may, in order to carry out the purposes of this chapter, designate the director of the clinic as his authorized representative under section 24-425. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 6.)

§ 24-507. Discharge at expiration of term—Second hearing on director's recommendation—Recommitment.

At the expiration of the term of commitment the chronic alcoholic must be discharged, unless the director of the clinic recommends to the court prior to the expiration of the term of commitment that he is in need of additional treatment in an appropriate hospital or institution, in which event the court will conduct a second hearing, in the same manner and upon the same conditions as provided in section 24-504 for the first hearing, as to his condition, and may order the chronic alcoholic recommitment for an additional period of ninety days or less as his condition requires. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 7.)

§ 24-508. Supervision by probation officer or other agency.

A chronic alcoholic committed to the clinic and who is permitted to remain at liberty or conditionally released shall be under the supervision of the probation office of the court in which he was committed, or the clinic, or such other agency, public or private, as the court may determine. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 8.)

§ 24-509. Certification of adequate facilities.

No chronic alcoholic shall be committed to a clinic, agency, hospital, or institution under the terms of this chapter until the District Commissioners shall certify to the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions the extent to which proper and adequate treatment facilities and personnel have been provided to carry out the purposes of this chapter. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 745, ch. 472, § 9; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1.)

CHANGE OF NAME

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "municipal court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Availability of facilities

That facilities contemplated by Act of Congress pertaining to rehabilitation of alcoholics had not been made available did not detract from legal effect of provisions of 1947 Act defining nature of sickness, DeW. Easter v. District of Columbia (1966, 361 F. 2d 50, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

§ 24-510. Voluntary submission for treatment—Admission—Payment of costs—Rules and regulations—Rights as citizen retained.

(a) Any resident of the District of Columbia who is a chronic alcoholic within the meaning of this chapter may voluntarily submit himself for admission, examination, and treatment in the clinic. If he is found to be a chronic alcoholic, the applicant may be admitted to the clinic for such period of time as is estimated by the director as necessary to effect a cure. He may be given such treatment, guidance, and help as the director deems appropriate except that he may not be committed to a correctional institution. Any such chronic alcoholic voluntarily applying may be required to pay the cost of his subsistence, care, and treatment. All such money shall be covered into the credit of the appropriation from which the expenditure was made. The Commissioners may establish or approve such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this section.

(b) Any resident of the District of Columbia who voluntarily submits himself for admission and treatment in the clinic shall not forfeit or abridge thereby any of his rights as a citizen of the United States, nor shall the fact that he has submitted himself for admission and treatment or that he has been given help or has submitted himself to any study, treatment, or guidance be used against him in any proceeding in any court. The record of any application under this section by any individual for admission and treatment in the clinic and the record of any study of, or treatment, guidance, or help furnished to, any individual admitted in the clinic under this section shall be confidential, and not be divulged except on order of the court. No order may be made under section 24-506 with respect to any such individual except as provided under the rules and regulations of the Commissioners in effect at the time such individual voluntarily submitted himself for admission and treatment in the clinic. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 746, ch. 472, § 10.)

§ 24-511. Contract for treatment by appropriate agency.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia may contract with any appropriate agency not under its control, which has proper and adequate treatment facilities and personnel to carry out the purposes of this chapter, for the custody, care, subsistence, treatment, and training of persons committed to the alcoholic clinic herein authorized. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 746, ch. 472, § 11.)

§ 24-512. Director of clinic—Personnel.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized and directed to appoint a director of the clinic, who shall be a qualified physician with such training in psychiatry as they may prescribe, the necessary medical officers, psychiatrists, probation officers, social-case workers, and other personnel needed to carry out the purposes of this chapter. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 746, ch. 472, § 12.)

§ 24-513. Director's recommendations—Publication of data.

The director of the clinic shall from time to time submit to the Commissioners such recommendations as will further the rehabilitation of chronic alcoholics, prevent the excessive and abusive use of alcoholic beverages, promote temperance, and he shall also gather and publish as complete and accurate data as is possible relating to the physiological, psychological, economic, and social effects of the abusive use of alcoholic beverages and shall prepare and publish materials, data, and information to be used in a program of public education in the District of Columbia directed toward the prevention and use of alcoholic beverages excessively and abusively. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 746, ch. 472, § 13.)

§ 24-514. Advisory committee.

The Commissioners shall appoint a committee, to be composed of six outstanding residents of the District of Columbia, to advise and consult with the Commissioners and to assist them in carrying out the provisions of this chapter. The members of the committee shall serve without compensation and shall serve for a period of one year and until their successors are appointed. (Aug. 4, 1947, 61 Stat. 747, ch. 472, § 15.)

The Congress intends that Federal criminal laws shall be enforced against drug users as well as other persons, and sections 24-601 to 24-611 shall not be used to substitute treatment for punishment in cases of crime committed by drug users. (June 24, 1953, 67 Stat. 77, ch. 149, § 2; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 609, ch. 676, title I, § 101.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

This chapter is not a criminal statute and when it places a juvenile under jurisdiction of Juvenile Court in an institution for treatment, it does no more than change custody of juvenile under commitment and does not impair Juvenile Court jurisdiction. In re Whisaker (D.C. D.C. 1955, 134 F. Supp. 864).

This chapter providing for commitment of all narcotics addicts to institutions for treatment, except persons charged with a criminal offense, does not impliedly repeal Juvenile Court Act, § 11-901 et seq. [now §§ 11-1501 et seq., 16-2301 et seq.], insofar as jurisdiction over juveniles who are addicted to narcotics is concerned. Id.

Juveniles

The intention of Congress was to include juveniles within the operation of this chapter. In re Whisaker (D.C.D.C. 1955, 134 F. Supp. 864).

Under this chapter, court had authority to examine juvenile for purpose of determining whether she should be committed for treatment as a narcotics user, even though juvenile had been previously committed to the Department of Public Welfare by the Juvenile Court. Id.

(b) The term "narcotic drugs" shall have the same meaning as that given to such term by section 4731 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954.

(c) The term "patient" means any person ordered to appear before the Commissioners, pursuant to the provisions of section 24-603.

(d) The term "Commissioners" means the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, sitting as a Board, or their designated agent or agents. (June 24, 1953, 67 Stat. 77, ch. 149, § 3; July 24, 1956, 70 Stat. 609, ch. 676, title I, § 101.)

The head of the hospital shall submit written reports within such periods as the court may direct, but no longer than six months after the commitment and for successive intervals of time thereafter, and state reasons why the patient has not been released. ## NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

This chapter is not a criminal statute and when it places a juvenile under jurisdiction of Juvenile Court in an institution for treatment, it does no more than change custody of juvenile under commitment and does not impair Juvenile Court jurisdiction. In re Whisaker (D.C.D.C. 1955, 134 F. Supp. 864).

"In order to afford the District of Columbia the facilities required to carry out the Act of June 24, 1953 (Public Law 76, Eighty-third Congress), as amended, and to help it meet its responsibility for the detention, care, and treatment of noncriminal narcotic addicts, it is hereby declared to be the purpose of this Act [ §§ 24-613 to 24-615] to authorize the limited use of suitable Public Health Service facilities at the expense of the District of Columbia for such detention, care, and treatment."

No such addict shall be admitted unless (1) he is committed prior to July 1, 1958; and (2) at the time of his commitment, the number of persons in hospitals of the Service who have been admitted pursuant to this subsection is less than one hundred; and (3) suitable accommodations are available after all eligible addicts convicted of offenses against the United States have been admitted.

(b) Any person admitted to a hospital of the Service pursuant to subsection (a) shall be discharged therefrom (1) upon order of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, or (2) when he is found by the Surgeon General to be cured and rehabilitated. When any such person is so discharged, the Surgeon General shall give notice thereof to the United States District Court for the District of Columbia and shall deliver such person to such court for such further action as such court may deem necessary and proper under the provisions of sections 24-601 to 24-611.

(c) With respect to the detention, transfer, parole, or discharge of any person committed to a hospital of the Service in accordance with subsection (a), the Surgeon General and the officer in charge of the hospital, in addition to authority otherwise vested in them, shall have such authority as may be conferred upon them, respectively, by the order of the committing court.

(d) The cost of providing care and treatment for persons admitted to a hospital of the Service pursuant to subsection (a) shall be a charge upon the District of Columbia and shall be paid by the District of Columbia to the Public Health Service, either in advance or otherwise, as may be determined by the Surgeon General. Such cost may be determined for each addict or on the basis of rates established for all or particular classes of patients, and shall include the cost of transportation to and from facilities of the Public Health Service. Moneys so paid to the Public Health Service shall be covered into the Treasury of the United States as miscellaneous receipts. Appropriations available for the care and treatment of addicts admitted to a hospital of the Service under this section shall be available, subject to regulations, for paying the cost of transportation to the District of Columbia, including subsistence allowance while traveling, for any such addict who is discharged. ## NOTES TO DECISIONS

Barroom

A barroom is a place in which intoxicating liquors are sold to be drunk on the premises. Army & Navy Club v. District of Columbia (1896, 8 App. D.C. 544).

Evidence

In prosecution for keeping for sale and selling alcoholic beverages without license, testimony of officers that from their experience in tasting and smelling liquor, it was their conclusion that liquid purchased at club was liquor, and that they tasted liquid and it contained whiskey, was sufficient proof of corpus delicti, notwithstanding failure to prove alcoholic content by chemical analysis. Stagecrafters Club v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 89 A. 2d 876).

Judicial notice

From testimony that officers, from their experience in tasting and smelling liquor, concluded that liquid purchased was liquor, and that they tasted liquid and that it contained whiskey, courts may take judicial notice of alcoholic content of whiskey. Stagecrafters Club v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 89 A. 2d 876).

Hotel

Requirement in District of Columbia licensing regulations that a building must have at least 30 bedrooms in order to be licensed as a hotel was within licensing authority of Commissioners of the District of Columbia. Courembis v. District of Columbia et al. (1951, 193 F. 2d 18, 89 U.S. App. D.C. 372).

Requirement of District of Columbia licensing regulations that a building must have at least 30 bedrooms in order to be licensed as a hotel was not arbitrary. Id.

Where plaintiff's application for building permit showed that he wished to operate a hotel but two weeks before plaintiff got his permit Commissioners of District of Columbia had given public notice of a hearing with regard to proposed new licensing regulations, and a month after he got permit and several months before he completed his alterations, new licensing regulations were adopted providing that a building must have at least 30 bedrooms to be licensed as a hotel, and it did not appear that plaintiff was prevented from continuing to use his 18 bedroom property as before, there was no basis for estoppel against refusal to grant license to operate a hotel. Id.

Regulations, validity of

Under District of Columbia statute imposing a tax on all beer sold and prescribing monthly reports of beer "sold by him during the preceding calendar month", regulations of the Commissioners taxing beer in warehouse and before it is sold were not authorized. American Sales Co. v. District of Columbia (1961, 292 F. 2d 751, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

§ 25-104. Alcoholic Beverage Control Board—Appointment—Term—Employees.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall appoint a Board of three persons, subject to removal by the Commissioners, to be called the "Alcoholic Beverage Control Board," each of the members of which shall be a citizen of the United States and a resident of the District of Columbia for at least three years immediately preceding his appointment and have during that period claimed residence nowhere else. Of the three persons first appointed as members of said Board, one shall be appointed for two years, one for three years and one for four years, and thereafter all appointments shall be for the term of four years, except such appointments as may be made for the remainder of unexpired terms. Vacancies caused by death, resignation, or otherwise shall be filled by the Commissioners only for the unexpired terms. Members shall be eligible for reappointment. The Commissioners shall designate one of the members of the Board to be chairman thereof. The Commissioners are authorized to employ such other personal services, including three additional assistant corporation counsel, as may be necessary to carry out the provisions of this chapter, and to provide for the expenses of the Board. The salaries of employees, other than members of the Board, shall be fixed in accordance with the provisions of section 305, chapter 51, subchapter III of chapter 53, and sections 5341, 5342, 5504, 5509 and 7154, of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]. The Commissioners shall include in their annual estimates such amounts as may be required for the salaries and expenses herein authorized. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 321, ch. 4, § 4; Apr. 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 176, ch. 217, § 2; Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 972, ch. 782, title XI, § 1106(a).)

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

All functions of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, including functions of all officers and employees, were transferred to the Board of Commissioners, the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, including the office of the chairman of the Board, was abolished effective at such time as the Board of Commissioners should specify but not later than June 30, 1953, a new office or agency was authorized to be established with such name or title as the Board of Commissioners should determine, and the Board of Commissioners was empowered to delegate the performance of any of its functions with stated exceptions, including the transferred functions, to any member of the Board of Commissioners or any other officer, employee or agency of the Government of the District of Columbia and to transfer personnel, property, records and funds by 1952 Reorg. Plan No. 5, eff. July 1, 1952, 66 Stat. 824.

The order abolished the previously existing Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. This order was issued pursuant to 1952 Reorg. Order No. 5.

The Reorganization Orders and Plan are set out in the Appendix to title 1, Administration.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Injunction

Where there was no genuine issue of material fact as to whether alcoholic beverage control board had discriminated against liquor licensee in deciding not to renew his license, suit to enjoin board from putting such decision into effect was properly resolved by summary judgment procedure. Minkoff v. Payne et al. (1954, 210 F. 2d 689, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 123).

§ 25-104a. Classification of positions of members of Board.

The positions of members of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board for the District of Columbia shall be classified in accordance with section 305, chapter 51, subchapter III of chapter 53, and sections 5341, 5342, 5504, 5509 and 7154, of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]. (April 20, 1948, 62 Stat. 176, ch. 217, § 1; Oct. 28, 1949, 63 Stat. 972, ch. 782, title XI, § 1106(a).)

CODIFICATION

The reference in this section to "section 305, chapter 51, subchapter III of chapter 53, and sections 5341, 5342, 5504, 5509, and 7154 of title 5, U.S. Code [relating to the classification of government employees and related matters]" was substituted for "the Classification Act of 1949, as amended", on authority of § 7(b) of act Sept. 6, 1966, Pub. beverages, nor receive any commission or profit whatsoever from any person authorized by virtue of this chapter to manufacture or sell alcoholic beverages. No provision of this section, however, shall prevent any such member or such employee from purchasing, transporting, and keeping in his possession any alcoholic beverage for the personal use of himself or members of his family or guests. ### § 25-106. Jurisdiction of Board over licenses—Appeal from revocation—Duties.

The right, power, and jurisdiction to issue, transfer, revoke, and suspend all licenses under this chapter shall be vested solely in the Board, and the action of the Board on any question of fact shall be final and conclusive; except that, in case a license is revoked or is suspended for a period of more than thirty days by the Board, the licensee may, within ten days after the order of revocation, or the order of suspension for a period of more than thirty days is entered, appeal in writing to the Commissioners to review said action of the Board, the hearings on said appeal to be submitted either orally or in writing at the discretion of the Commissioners, and the Commissioners shall not be required to take evidence, either oral, written, or documentary. The decision of the Commissioners on any question of fact involved in such appeal shall be final and conclusive. Pending such appeal, the license shall stand suspended unless the Commissioners shall otherwise order.

The right and power shall be vested in the Board, for good cause shown, to issue permits for the sales of stocks of beverages located in the District of Columbia by individuals, corporations or associations, partnerships, executors, administrators, being owners thereof, receivers or other representatives of a court, to persons licensed under this chapter.

Said Board shall have such other authority and perform such other duties as the Commissioners may, by regulation, prescribe. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 322, ch. 4, § 6; Aug. 27, 1935, 49 Stat. 897, ch. 756, § 2.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Examination of witnesses

In hearing on application for renewal of liquor license, which alcoholic beverage control board refused to renew on ground that applicant was not generally fit and did not have necessary good moral character, which conclusion was based in part upon alleged conspiracy with bootleggers not to make bookkeeping entries required by Internal Revenue Code, applicant's cross-examination of one of the alleged bootleggers, on question of bias, was not so restricted as to constitute lack of procedural due process. Minkoff v. Payne et al. (1954, 210 F. 2d 689, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 123).

Findings of the Board

Alcoholic Beverage Control Board is authorized to make finding that two liquor stores within 300 feet proximity are inappropriate for particular neighborhood, notwithstanding absence of any formal regulation promulgated by District Commissioners regarding necessary distances between liquor stores. Pollack v. Simonson (1965, 350 F. 2d 740, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 362).

Hearing

Alcoholic Beverage Control Act does not explicitly require hearing before denial of application for transfer of license. Pollack v. Simonson (1965, 350 F. 2d 740, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 362).

Injunction

Where this section provided that decision of Board of Commissioners of District of Columbia on questions of fact on appeal from Alcoholic Beverage Control Board should be final, but order revoking liquor license was upheld by a one to one vote, an injunction would be granted against enforcement of order which would terminate when appeal was reinstated, and after appeal was reinstated the license would stand suspended during time reasonably necessary for commissioners to reach a final decision. Lambros v. Young (1945, 145 F. 2d 341, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 247).

Under circumstances disclosed, including showing that net effect of board's failure to prescribe adequate rules and regulations had been to by-pass wishes of community, plaintiffs were entitled to preliminary injunction against operation of liquor store pending review of board's grant of application for transfer of liquor license. Palisades Citizens Association Inc., et al. v. Weakly et al. (1958, 166 F. Supp. 591, appeal dismissed in part, reversed in part on other grounds, 265 F. 2d 372, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Interim affirmance

The effect of a one to one vote of Board of Commissioners of District of Columbia upholding order of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board revoking liquor license is an interim affirmance of the Board which suspends the license until final decision of the commissioners. Lambros v. Young (1945, 145 F. 2d 341, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 247).

Mandamus

In action in the nature of a petition for writ of mandamus to require Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to issue a retailers' Class "C" license to petitioning restaurant, question before the court was whether action of the Board was based upon substantial evidence, and if it was, mandamus would not lie, whereas if it was not, next question was whether action of Board was arbitrary or capricious. Clore Restaurant v. Payne (D.C.D.C. 1947, 72 F. Supp. 677).

Mutually exclusive applicants

Where it was not suggested at separate hearings on applications to transfer liquor licenses that the two applications were mutually exclusive and no formal regulation required that liquor stores be situated more than 300 feet apart, denial of plaintiffs' application on sole ground that license of other applicant had been issued for location less than 300 feet from plaintiffs' proposed location was improper for failure of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to give proper notice to plaintiffs that it considered applications mutually exclusive. Pollack v. Simonson (1965, 350 F. 2d 740, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 362).

Alcoholic Beverage Control Board may, in its discretion, hold formal comparative hearing, or follow some other procedure to inform itself in choosing between mutually exclusive applicants. Id.

Procedure for renewal of license

In application for renewal of liquor license, board properly followed procedure applicable to application for license in first instance, rather than that prescribed for revocation or suspension of license already issued. Minkoff v. Payne et al. (1954, 210 F. 2d 689, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 123).

Questions of fact

Under this section governing appeal to Board of Commissioners of District of Columbia from Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, provision that decision of commissioners on questions of fact should be final means that the Board of Commissioners must actually make a decision. Lambros v. Young (1945, 145 F. 2d 341, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 247).

A one to one vote of Board of Commissioners of District of Columbia upholding order of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board revoking liquor license did not constitute a "decision of fact" within this section providing that decision of commissioners on question of fact should be final. Id.

Review—Administrative

Decision of alcoholic beverage control board rejecting application for renewal of liquor license was not reviewable by commissioners of the District of Columbia. Minkoff v. Payne et al. (1954, 210 F. 2d 689, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 123).

— Judicial

Right of review in liquor license case was not restricted to owners of stores immediately adjacent to licensed premises nor to unsuccessful applicants, and property owners who had taken an active interest at hearing and had presented the "wishes of the neighborhood" were entitled to seek judicial review under District of Columbia Alcoholic Beverage Control Act. Palisades Citizens Association Inc., et al. v. Weakly et al. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 166 F. Supp. 591, appeal dismissed in part, reversed in part on other grounds 265 F. 2d 372, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Where the ruling of the majority of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board denying application for a retailers' Class "C" license is based upon sound legal principles and upon substantial evidence, the federal court would not be justified in interfering, but if there is no substantial evidence upon which to predicate a rejection, the action of the Board is subject to judicial review. Clore Restaurant v. Payne (D.C.D.C. 1947, 72 F. Supp. 677).

Suspension

While license of any person appealing from order of Board revoking license is suspended until final decision of Board of Commissioners, the commissioners have no right to cause suspension of license to continue indefinitely by arbitrarily refusing to decide issue of fact. Lambros v. Young (1945, 145 F. 2d 341, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 247).

§ 25-107. Powers of Commissioners—Rules and regulations—Licenses.

The Commissioners are hereby authorized to prescribe such rules and regulations not inconsistent with this chapter as they may deem necessary to carry out the purposes thereof and to control and regulate the manufacture, sale, keeping for sale, offer for sale, solicitation of orders for sale, importation, exportation, and transportation of alcoholic beverages in the District of Columbia for the protection of the public health, comfort, safety, and morals, and the Commissioners are further authorized to prescribe such rules and regulations not inconsistent with this chapter as they may deem necessary to properly and adequately control the consumption of alcoholic beverages on premises licensed under paragraph (1) of section 25-111, with specific authority to prescribe the hours during which alcoholic beverages may be consumed on such premises.

The Commissioners shall have specific authority to make rules and regulations for the issuance, transfer, and revocation of licenses; to facilitate and insure the collection of taxes; to govern the operation of the business of licensees, with full power and authority to prescribe the terms and conditions under which alcoholic beverages may be sold by each class of licensees; to forbid the issuance of licenses for manufacture, sale, or storage of alcoholic beverages in such localities in, and such sections and portions of, the District of Columbia as they may deem proper in the public interest; to limit the number of licenses of each class to be issued in the District of Columbia and to limit the number of licenses of each class in any locality in, or sections or portions of the District of Columbia as they may deem proper in the public interest; to forbid the issuance of licenses for businesses conducted on such premises as they, in the public interest, may deem inappropriate; to forbid the issuance of any class or classes of licenses for businesses established subsequent to January 24, 1934, near or around schools, colleges, universities, churches, or public institutions, to prescribe the hours during which beverages may be sold and to forbid the sale on Sundays; but the Commissioners shall not authorize the sale by any licensee, other than the holder of a retailer's license, class E, of any beverages on Sundays other than light wines and beer, and any such sale is hereby prohibited. Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, the Commissioners shall not authorize the sale by any licensee, other than the holder of a retailer's license, class E, of any beverages on the day of the presidential election in the District of Columbia during the hours when the polls are open, and any such sales are hereby prohibited.

The powers and authorities expressly enumerated are to be construed as in addition to, and not by way of limitation of, the general powers herein granted. Different regulations may be prescribed for the different classes of licenses, for the different classes of beverages, and for different localities in or sections or portions of the District of Columbia.

Any regulations promulgated hereunder shall become effective five days after being published in any daily newspaper of general circulation in the District of Columbia. Such regulations may be altered or amended from time to time as the Commissioners may deem desirable. The Commissioners shall also have authority in any time of public emergency, without previous notice of advertisement, to prohibit the sale of any or all beverages during the period of such emergency. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 322, ch. 4, § 7; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 102, ch. 159, § 404(a); Oct. 4, 1961, 75 Stat. 820, Pub. L. 87-389, § 3.)

AMENDMENTS

1961—Section 3, act Oct. 4, 1961, amended the second paragraph by inserting at the end of the first sentence the following new sentence: "Notwithstanding any other provision of this chapter, the Commissioners shall not authorize the sale by any licensee, other than the holder of a retailer's license, class E, of any beverages on the day of the presidential election in the District of Columbia during the hours when the polls are open, and any such sales are hereby prohibited."

1953—Act June 29, 1953, amended section by adding after the word "morals" in the first paragraph the provision authorizing the Commissioners to prescribe rules and regulations necessary to control consumption of alcoholic beverages on licensed premises.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Double jeopardy

Convictions for violations of this act and the Liquor Taxing Act of 1934, did not place defendant in double jeopardy, the evidence required in the two cases being different. Sims v. Rives (1936, 84 F. 2d 871, 66 App. D.C. 24, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 960, 298 U.S. 682, 80 L. Ed. 1402).

Regulations, validity of

Section of the District of Columbia Code giving Commissioners authority to make regulations for issuance of liquor licenses and to forbid issuance of liquor licenses for businesses established subsequent to January 24, 1934, near or around schools, precluded promulgation of regulations forbidding liquor licenses to businesses established prior to January 24, 1934, because they are near schools, and prohibitory regulation was inapplicable to a restaurant business established in 1928. H. S. Hensel et al. v. Alcoholic Beverage Control Board et al. (1963, 321 F. 2d 754, 116 U.S. App. D.C. 141).

Regulation of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board prescribing the terms upon which credit may be extended to liquor retailer by wholesalers and manufacturers was valid. Press Liquors, Inc. v. F. E. Weakley, Chairman etc. (1963, 317 F. 2d 135, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 71).

Under District of Columbia statute imposing a tax on all beer sold and prescribing monthly reports of beer "sold by him during the preceding calendar month", regulation of the Commissioners taxing beer in warehouse and before it is sold were not authorized. American Sales Co. v. District of Columbia (1961, 292 F. 2d 751, 110 U.S. App. D.C. 258).

§ 25-108. Alcohol for nonbeverage purposes not affected—Penalty for unlawful sales.

No provision of this chapter shall apply to alcohol intended for use in the manufacture and sale of any of the following when they are unfit for beverage purposes, namely:

(a) Denatured alcohol produced and used pursuant to Acts of Congress and regulations promulgated thereunder;

(b) Patent, proprietary, medicinal, pharmaceutical, antiseptic, and toilet preparations;

(c) Flavoring extracts, syrups, and food products;

(d) Scientific, chemical, mechanical, and industrial products.

Any person who shall knowingly sell any of the products enumerated in paragraphs (a), (b), (c), or (d) for beverage purposes, or who shall sell any of the same under circumstances from which he might reasonably deduce the intention of the purchaser to use them for such purposes, shall be subject to the penalties provided for in section 25-132. ## § 25-109. Sale without license prohibited—Exceptions.

(a) No individual, partnership, association, or corporation shall, within the District of Columbia, manufacture for sale, keep for sale, or sell any alcoholic beverage without having first obtained a license under this chapter for such manufacture or sale, except as provided in section 25-131.

It shall be unlawful for any person operating any premises where food, nonalcoholic beverages, or entertainment are sold or provided for compensation, and where facilities are especially provided and service is rendered for the consumption of alcoholic beverages, who does not possess a license under this chapter, to permit the consumption of such alcoholic beverages on such premises.

(b) No individual shall, within the District of Columbia, offer for sale or solicit any order for the sale of any alcoholic beverage, irrespective of whether such sale is to be made within or without the District of Columbia, unless such individual has first obtained a license of the character described in section 25-111, subsection (k).

Nothing in this subsection shall apply to any offer for sale or solicitation made upon the premises designated in the license of the vendor.

No individual shall within the District of Columbia offer any beverage for sale to, or solicit orders for the sale of any beverage from, any person not a licensee under this chapter, irrespective of whether such sale is to be made within or without the District of Columbia.

(c) A physician may administer alcoholic beverages to a bona fide patient in cases of actual need when, in the judgment of the physician, the use of alcoholic beverages is necessary.

(d) A dentist who deems it necessary that a bona fide patient being then under treatment by him is in actual need of and should be supplied with alcoholic beverages as a stimulant or restorative, may administer to the patient alcoholic beverages.

(e) A veterinarian who deems it necessary may, in the course of his practice, administer or cause to be administered alcoholic beverages to a dumb animal.

(f) A person in charge of an institution regularly conducted as a hospital or sanatorium for the care of persons in ill health, or as a home devoted exclusively to the care of aged people, may administer or cause to be administered alcoholic beverages to any bona fide patient or inmate of the institution who is in need of the same, either by way of external application or otherwise for emergency medicinal purposes, and may charge for the alcoholic beverages so administered. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 323, ch. 4, § 9; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 102, ch. 159, § 404(b).)

CODIFICATION

AMENDMENT

1953—Subsec. (a) amended by act June 29, 1953, which added paragraph making unlawful the consumption of alcoholic beverages on unlicensed premises as therein described.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1953 AMENDMENT

Section 404(k) of act of June 29, 1953, provided that "Subsections (b) and (h) of this section [amending this section and section 25-128] shall take effect sixty days after the enactment of the Act [June 29, 1953]."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Affidavits of juror

Affidavit in present case does not present facts justifying an exception to the rule that jurors in the federal courts will not be heard for the purpose of impeaching the verdict returned where the facts sought to be shown are such that they essentially inhere in the verdict and only an extreme case will bring about an exception. Edwards v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 68 A. 2d 286).

Argument to jury

No prejudicial error was committed by the prosecuting attorney, who, in his argument to the jury, explained the failure to introduce the marked money by saying "it had not been introduced because it could not be determined which was used for the purchase of the whiskey and which was used for other purposes" and assuming that "other purposes" referred to the purchase of lottery tickets, there was no prejudicial error since there was no testimony in respect of claim that defendants were anywise connected with the sale of lottery tickets. Edwards v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 68 A. 2d 286).

Arrest, search and seizure

Where police officer purchased whiskey from certain party with marked money in attempt to locate his source of supply, and as purchase was being completed, another officer appeared with warrant for party's arrest, arrested party stated he had purchased the whisky from defendant, and officers searched defendant, found part of the marked money on him, and arrested him, officers had no right to search defendant, and evidence found in such search should have been excluded in prosecution for keeping for sale and selling alcohol beverage without license to do so. Smallwood v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 116 A. 2d 599).

Right to search person incident to lawful arrest is beyond question, but search of body is illegal when purpose of search is to discover grounds as yet unknown for arrest or accusation. Id.

Where defendants were charged with violating statute in the sale of alcoholic beverages, the intervention of Sunday did not prevent a valid execution of the search warrant but the relevancy of the validity of the search warrant was not apparent where under the ruling of the trial court, no evidence seized under the warrant was used in evidence against defendant. Edwards v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 68 A. 2d 286).

Cross-examination

In prosecution for keeping and selling alcoholic beverages without license, defendant, whose counsel elicited police detective's testimony that he did not ask defendant for written statement because he knew from defendant's record that she had been around and would not have given him such a statement in answer to question on cross-examination as to whether reason why witness did not ask for statement was because defendant denied her guilt at all times, was in no position to complain of such testimony as to defendant's record on appeal from judgment on verdict of conviction. Young v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 102 A. 2d 754).

Evidence—Admissibility

Where sole issue determined by convictions of corporate tenant and its officers was sale of liquor on leased premises in violation of statute, judgments of conviction were admissible as prima facie evidence of unlawful use of premises by tenant in subsequent civil suit by tenant. Stagecrafters' Club v. District of Columbia Division of American Legion (D.C.D.C. 1953, 111 F. Supp. 127).

In prosecution for keeping for sale and selling alcoholic beverages without a license, Municipal Court properly permitted police officer, who participated in arrest of defendant, to testify that, when defendant was arrested, defendant complained that the police had arrested him before for selling whiskey, since the statement by the defendant to the police officer was part of the res gestae and admissible though it tended to show the commission of an independent crime. Jackson v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 125 A. 2d 50).

Where police officer under assumed name joined non-profit social club operating "after-hours bottle club" which would not have given him membership card had they known he was police officer and purpose of his mission, but membership was available to anyone who walked up to door and paid membership fee, and officer did not obtain membership card surreptitiously, there was no fraudulent entry or entry by false representation which would warrant suppression of evidence in prosecution for keeping for sale and selling alcoholic beverages without license. Stagecrafters' Club v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 89 A. 2d 876).

Sufficiency

Evidence sustained conviction for unlicensed keeping for sale and selling of alcoholic beverages. R. L. Baer et ano. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 182 A. 2d 839).

Evidence was sufficient to sustain convictions of keeping for sale and selling alcoholic beverages without a license. G. Williams & S. Stokes v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 167 A. 2d 893).

Forfeiture of lease

Landlord's acceptance of rent after tenant's conviction for selling liquor on leased premises without license did not constitute waiver of landlord's right, under lease, to forfeit lease for breach of tenant's covenant that premises would not be used for any unlawful purpose in view of facts that landlord had specifically reserved its right to declare a forfeiture if conviction were affirmed on appeal and that no rent was accepted after affirmance of conviction. Stagecrafters' Club, Inc. v. District of Columbia Division of American Legion (D.C.D.C. 1953, 110 F. Supp. 481, supplemented 111 F. Supp. 127).

Evidence sustained conviction for selling and keeping for sale alcoholic beverages without a license. Turner v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 132 A. 2d 149).

In prosecution for unlicensed sale of alcoholic beverages, evidence established sufficient proof of continuous possession by the Government of the bottled evidence by the Bureau of Internal Revenue so as to justify denial of directed verdict of acquittal though there was no testimony by receiving clerk as to his possession and disposition of the bottles. Kelly v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 102 A. 2d 308).

In prosecution for keeping for sale and selling alcoholic beverages without license, evidence was sufficient to submit case to jury. Stagecrafters' Club v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 89 A. 2d 876).

— Suppression

Where counsel for defendant charged with keeping and selling alcoholic beverages without a license objected to admission of bottles of liquor and marked money on ground search warrant had not been produced in evidence, without moving to suppress during more than two weeks between arraignment and trial, admission of testimony that raiding officers who came upon premises after the first group of officers had made their purchases were there pursuant to a search warrant, was not error. Hoover v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 730).

Instructions

In prosecution for keeping and selling alcoholic beverages without license, instructions to jury that seller's transfer of goods to buyer through means of another person in seller's presence is a sale, in answer to jury's inquiry as to whether accused must have physically delivered merchandise and physically received money therefor from consumer to be considered the seller, was not erroneous as peremptorily directing jury to find defendant guilty nor as misleading or inaccurate. Young v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 102 A. 2d 754).

Joint trial

In prosecution for violations of the Alcoholic Beverage Control Law, defendants were properly charged and tried together since it would be assumed that average jury would not be so bereft of intelligence and discrimination that it would be unable to properly decide if any of the defendants had violated law. Simato et al. v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1954, 108 A. 2d 376).

Motion to quash information

On hearing on motion to quash information charging keeping for sale and selling alcoholic beverages without license, testimony of officers that they bought drinks of whiskey at club was sufficient to warrant denial of motion, apart from allegedly improperly obtained evidence under warrant. Stagecrafters' Club v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 89 A. 2d 876).

Place of committing offense

Failure of government in prosecution for keeping and selling alcoholic beverages without a license, to offer specific proof offenses were committed in District of Columbia, but merely giving location of house by its street number, was not ground for reversal. Hoover v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 730).

Separate offenses

In prosecution for keeping and selling alcoholic beverages without a license, the admission of evidence that defendant, who had been identified as person who paid rent for house and one by whose bedside whisky and marked money were found, had come from an adjoining bedroom into room where liquor was being sold and consumed, and joined in a crap game, was not erroneous as allowing proof of separate offense. Hoover v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1945, 42 A. 2d 730).

Witnesses, competency of

On hearing on motion to quash information charging keeping for sale and selling alcoholic beverages without license, fact that officers who testified that they bought drinks at club were unable to recall from unprompted memory, and that parts of testimony gave conclusions of law, would not justify calling officers legally incompetent. Stagecrafters' Club v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1952, 89 A. 2d 876).

§ 25-110. Licenses — Applications for — To whom granted—Records.

The Board is authorized to issue licenses to individuals, partnerships, or corporations, but not to unincorporated associations, on application duly made therefor, for the manufacture, sale, offer for sale, consumption on premises of clubs where food, nonalcoholic beverages, or entertainment are sold or provided for compensation, or solicitation of orders for sale of alcoholic beverages within the District of Columbia. The Board shall keep a full record of all applications for licenses, and of all recommendations for and remonstrances against the granting of licenses and of the action taken thereon. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 324, ch. 4, § 10; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 103, ch. 159, § 404(c).)

AMENDMENT

1953—Act June 29, 1953, amended section to empower the Board to issue licenses to permit the consumption of alcoholic beverages on premises of clubs where food, non-alcoholic beverages or entertainment are sold or provided for compensation.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Status of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, see notes under section 25-104.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Mandamus

Rejection by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, of application for a retailers' Class "C" license on ground that area was adequately serviced, was arbitrary and capricious, in absence of any evidence on the point. Clore Restaurant v. Payne (D.C.D.C. 1947, 72 F. Supp. 677).

In action in the nature of a petition for writ of mandamus to require Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to issue a retailers' Class "C" license to petitioning restaurant, question before the court was whether action of the Board was based upon substantial evidence, and if it was, mandamus would not lie, whereas if it was not, next question was whether action of Board was arbitrary or capricious. Id.

Licenses issued under authority of this chapter shall be of twelve kinds:

(a) Manufacturer's license, class A.—To operate a rectifying plant, a distillery, or a winery. Except in the case of clubs and hotels, no beer or light wines shall be sold or served to a customer in any closed container. In the case of restaurants, taverns, and passenger-carrying marine vessels and club cars or dining cars on a railroad, said beer and light wines shall be sold or served only to persons seated at public tables or at bona fide lunch counters, except that beer and light wines may be sold or served to assemblages of more than six individuals in a private room when such room has been previously approved by the Board. In the case of hotels, beer and light wines may be sold and served only in the private room of a registered guest or to persons seated at public tables or at bona fide lunch counters or to assemblages of more than six individuals in a private room when such room has been previously approved by the Board. Such package shall not be opened after sale, nor its contents consumed, on the premises where sold. Such prescription, when filled, shall be canceled by writing across its face the word "Canceled" together with the date on which it is presented and filled, and such prescriptions shall be numbered consecutively as filled and kept on file in consecutive order. No such prescription shall be refilled. The annual fee for such license shall be $40.

tors, executive committee, or similar body chosen by the members at least once each calendar year, and no officer, agent, or employee of the club is paid, directly or indirectly, or receives in the form of salary or other compensation, any profit from the conduct and operation of the club beyond the amount of such salary as may be fixed and voted by the members or by its directors or other governing body. Such a license shall authorize the holder thereof to permit consumption of alcoholic beverages on such parts of the licensed premises as may be approved by the Board. The annual fee for such a license shall be $100.

Nothing in this chapter shall be construed as repealing any portion of section 7 of the District of Columbia Appropriation Act for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1903, approved July 1, 1902, as amended (32 Stat. 622, ch. 1352, § 7). (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 324, ch. 4, § 11; Apr. 30, 1934, 48 Stat. 654, ch. 181, § 1; June 18, 1934, 48 Stat. 997, ch. 588; July 2, 1935, 49 Stat. 444, ch. 359; Aug. 27, 1935, 49 Stat. 898, 899, ch. 756, §§ 3-7; June 15, 1938, 52 Stat. 691, ch. 396, §§ 1, 2; May 27, 1949, 63 Stat. 133, ch. 146, title V, § 501; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 103, ch. 159, § 404(d); May 31, 1962, 76 Stat. 89, Pub. L. 87-470, § 1.)

§ 25-113. Holding of license of more than one class forbidden—Definition of "licensee."

(a) The holder of a manufacturer's or wholesaler's license issued hereunder shall not be entitled to hold any other class of license. A person, not licensed hereunder, owning an establishment for the manufacture of beverages located outside the District of Columbia may hold one wholesale license, and shall not be entitled to hold any other license.

(b) No licensee holding a retailer's license, class C or class D, shall, by direct ownership, stock ownership, or interlocking directors, hold, directly or indirectly, any license other than retailer's licenses class C, class D, or class E. No licensee holding a retailer's license class A or class B shall, by direct ownership, stock ownership, or interlocking directors, hold, directly or indirectly, more than one license except retailer's licenses class E. When used in this subsection the word "licensee" shall include any stockholder holding directly or indirectly twenty-five per centum or more of the common stock or any officer of such licensee if such licensee is a corporation. Every license shall particularly describe the place where the rights thereunder are to be exercised, and beverages shall not be manufactured or kept for sale or sold by any licensee except at the place so described in his license: Provided, however, That the holder of a manufacturer's or wholesaler's license or the holder of a retailer's license, class C, and class D, issued for a passenger-carrying marine vessel or club car or a dining car on a railroad may store beverages, with the consent of the Board, upon premises other than the premises designated in the license. Every annual license shall date from the 1st day of February in each year and expire on the 31st day of January next after its issuance, except as hereinafter provided. #### § 25-115. Applications for licenses—Qualification of applicants—Moral character—Citizenship—Prior convictions—Ownership—Interest of manufacturer in retail business—Character of premises—Advertising application—Hearing of protests—Objection of property owners—Removal of bonded liquor from Government warehouses—Penalty.

(a) Any individual, partnership, or corporation desiring a license under this chapter shall file with the Board an application in such form as the Commissioners may prescribe, and such application shall contain such additional information as the Board may require, and (except in the case of an application for a manufacturer's license, retailer's license, class E, or solicitor's license) shall contain a statement setting forth the name and address of the true and actual owner of the premises upon which the business to be licensed is to be conducted. Before a license is issued the Board shall satisfy itself:

1. That the applicant, if an individual, or, if a partnership, each of the members of the partnership, or, if a corporation, each of its principal officers and directors, is of good moral character and generally fit for the trust to be in him reposed.

2. That the applicant, if an individual, or, if a partnership, each of the members of the partnership, or, if a corporation, each of its principal officers, is a citizen of the United States, not less than twenty-one years of age, and has not, within five years prior to the filing of such application, been convicted of a misdemeanor under the National Prohibition Act, as amended and supplemented, or, within ten years prior to such filing, been convicted of any felony.

3. Except in the case of an application for a solicitor's license, that the applicant is the true and actual owner of the business for which the license is desired, and that he intends to carry on the business authorized by the license for himself and not as the agent of any individual, partnership, association, or corporation, and that he intends to superintend in person the management of the business licensed, or intends to have some other person, to be approved by the Board, manage the business for him, which said manager must possess all of the qualifications required of a licensee hereunder.

4. That in the case of an applicant for a wholesaler's license or a retailer's license (except a retailer's license class E), no manufacturer or wholesaler of beverages other than the applicant (including a stockholder holding 25 per centum or more of the common stock, or an officer of any manufacturer or wholesaler of beverages, if such manufacturer or wholesaler is a corporation), has such a substantial interest, direct or indirect, in the business for which the license is requested, or in the premises in respect of which such license is to be issued, as in the judgment of the Board may tend to influence such licensee to purchase beverages from such manufacturer or wholesaler, and that such business will not be conducted with any money, equipment, furniture, fixtures, or property rented from or loaned or given by any such manufacturer or wholesaler (including such stockholder or officer) or sold by such manufacturer or wholesaler (including such stockholder or officer) to any such licensee for less than the fair market value or upon a conditional sale agreement or chattel trust.

5. That the place for which the license is to be issued is an appropriate one considering the character of the premises, its surroundings, and the wishes of the persons residing or owning property in the neighborhood of the premises for which the license is desired.

(b) Before granting a license under section 25-111(l) or a retailer's license, except a retailer's license class E or class F, the Board shall give notice by advertisement published once a week and for at least two weeks in some newspaper of general circulation published in the District of Columbia. The advertisement so published shall contain the name of the applicant and a description by street and number, or other plain designation, of the particular location for which the license is requested and the class of license desired. Such notice shall state that remonstrants are entitled to be heard before the granting of such licenses and shall name the time and place of such hearing. There shall also be posted by the Board a notice, in a conspicuous place, on the outside of the premises. This notice shall state that remonstrants are entitled to be heard before the granting of such license and shall name the same time and place for such hearing as set out in the public advertisement; and, if remonstrance against the granting of such license is filed, no final action shall be taken by the Board until the remonstrant shall have had an opportunity to be heard, under rules and regulations prescribed by said Board. Any person wilfully removing, obliterating, marring, or defacing said notice shall be deemed guilty of a violation of this chapter. The provisions of this subsection relating to notice by advertisement in some newspaper of general circulation shall not apply to the issuance of a license to a retailer for any place of business if such retailer is the holder of a license of the same class for the same place and if said last-mentioned license is in effect on the date the application for the new license is filed.

(c) Except in the case of a retailer's license class C or class D or a license issued under section 25-111(l) to be issued for a hotel or club or a retailer's license class B or class E, no place for which a license under this chapter has not been issued and in effect on the date the written objections hereinafter provided for are filed, shall be deemed appropriate if the owners of a majority of the real property within a radius of six hundred feet of the boundary lines of the lot or parcel of ground upon which is situated the place for which the license is desired, shall, on a form to be prescribed by the Commissioners filed with the Board, object to the granting of such license. In determining the sufficiency of such objections the owners of all such property not lying within a residential use district as defined in the zoning regulations and shown in the official atlases of the Zoning Commission shall be taken as consenting to the granting of such license, except that the Commissioners shall have power to file objections on behalf of any property lying within such radius owned by the United States or the District of Columbia. This subsection shall be construed as a limitation upon the discretion of the Board in granting a license and not as a limitation upon the discretion of the Board in refusing a license: Provided, however, That none of the provisions of this chapter shall prevent the Board from promulgating regulations to permit the lawful bona fide owners of warehouse receipts for bonded liquors stored in Government warehouses either in the District of Columbia or elsewhere from withdrawing such bonded liquors for personal use on payment to the Collector of Taxes for the District of Columbia, taxes at such rates as provided in this chapter: Provided, That such bona fide holder of such warehouse receipts held legal title to such warehouse receipts prior to the passage of this chapter.

(d) A separate application shall be filed with respect to each place of business, except that a company engaged in interstate commerce may file one application for a license for the operation thereunder of all of its dining, club, and lounge cars operated on railroads within the District of Columbia. The required license fee shall be paid to the collector of taxes and his duplicate receipt shall accompany the application for license. In the event the license is denied the fee shall be returned. Every such application shall be verified by the affidavit of the applicant, if an individual, or by all of the members of a partnership, or by the president or vice president of a corporation. If any false statement is knowingly made in such application, or in any accompanying statement under oath which may be required by the Commissioners or the Board, the person making the same shall be deemed guilty of perjury. The making of a false statement in any such application, or in any such accompanying statement, whether made with or without the knowledge or consent of the applicant, shall, in the discretion of the Board, constitute sufficient cause for the revocation of the license. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 327, ch. 4, § 14; Aug. 25, 1937, 50 Stat. 802, 803, ch. 766, §§ 1, 2; June 15, 1938, 52 Stat. 691, ch. 396, § 3; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 103, ch. 159, § 404 (e), (f).)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Rejection by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board, of application for a retailers' Class "C" license on ground that area was adequately serviced, was arbitrary and capricious, in absence of any evidence on the point. Clore Restaurant v. Payne (D.C.D.C. 1947, 72 F. Supp. 677).

Competing applicants

Under statute providing that Alcoholic Beverage Control Board may consider character of premises, its surroundings and wishes of persons residing or owning property in neighborhood in reviewing application for transfer of licensee, Board, if it finds that two liquor stores within 300 feet proximity are inappropriate for particular neighborhood and must necessarily choose between competing applicants each applicant must be given opportunity to show that his application should be favored so that specific public standards, not unbridled discretion, will control Board's consideration of license application. Pollack v. Simonson (1965, 350 F. 2d 740, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 362).

Factors considered in grant of license

In license transfer case, question is whether wishes of neighborhood and character of premises warrant granting of liquor license for locality; and previous location and history of store are beside the point. Palisades Citizens Association Inc. et al. v. Weakly et al. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 166 F. Supp. 591, appeal dismissed in part, reversed in part on other grounds 265 F. 2d 372, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Injunction

Under circumstances disclosed, including showing that net effect of board's failure to prescribe adequate rules and regulations had been to by-pass wishes of community, plaintiffs were entitled to preliminary injunction against operation of liquor store pending review of board's grant of application for transfer of liquor license. Palisades Citizens Association Inc. et al. v. Weakly et al. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 166 F. Supp. 591, appeal dismissed in part, reversed in part on other grounds 265 F. 2d 372, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Mandamus

In action in the nature of a petition for writ of mandamus to require Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to issue a retailers' Class "C" license to petitioning restaurant, question before the court was whether action of the Board was based upon substantial evidence, and if it was, mandamus would not lie, whereas if it was not, next question was whether action of Board was arbitrary or capricious. Clore Restaurant v. Payne (D.C.D.C. 1947, 72 F. Supp. 677).

Parties

Under statute forbidding alcoholic beverage control board of District of Columbia to issue license for new location to operate liquor store if the owners of a majority of the real property within a radius of 600 feet of the place for which the license is desired object to the granting of such license, individuals who own property within 600-foot radius of new location and an association having members who own property within such 600-foot radius had standing to bring action against licensee and members of the board to set aside license for new location. MacArthur Liquors Inc. v. Palisades Citizens Ass'n Inc. et al. (1959, 265 F. 2d 372, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Procedural errors

Where owners within 600-foot radius of proposed new location of retail liquor store, objected to granting license for the new location on District of Columbia alcoholic beverage control board's form meant for use in connection with statute requiring board, before granting license, to consider wishes of persons residing or owning property in neighborhood of premises rather than on board's form meant for use in connection with statute forbidding board to issue license for new location if owners of majority of real property within 600-foot radius of new location object, the board should not have refused to correct the owners signing such form but should have either ignored the formal error or allowed it to be corrected. MacArthur Liquors, Inc. v. Palisades Citizens Ass'n Inc., et al. (1959, 265 F. 2d 372, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

Review

Right of review in liquor license case was not restricted to owners of stores immediately adjacent to licensed premises nor to unsuccessful applicants, and property owners who had taken an active interest at hearing and had presented the "wishes of the neighborhood" were entitled to seek judicial review under District of Columbia Alcoholic Beverage Control Act. Palisades Citizens Association Inc. et al. v. Weakly et al. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 166 F. Supp. 591, appeal dismissed in part, reversed in part on other grounds 265 F. 2d 372, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 180).

§ 25-116. Issuing licenses in certain districts restricted.

(a) No retailer's licenses except of classes B or E shall be issued for any business conducted in a residential-use district as defined in the zoning regulations and shown in the official atlases of the Zoning Commission, except for a restaurant or tavern conducted in a hotel, apartment house, or club, and then only when the entrance to such restaurant or tavern is entirely inside of the hotel, apartment house, or club and no sign or display is visible from the outside of the building.

(b) No wholesaler's license shall be issued for any establishment conducted in such residential-use district and no manufacturer's license shall be issued for any establishment conducted in a residential or first commercial-use district as defined in the zoning regulations and shown in the official atlases of the Zoning Commission. (d) The provisions of subsection (b) of this section shall not apply in any case where an application is made for the issuance or transfer of a wholesaler's or manufacturer's license for a place of business conducted in a residential- or first commercial-use district as defined in the zoning regulations and shown in the official atlases of the Zoning Commission if the zoning of such place of business was changed from a less restricted use to such residential- or first commercial-use during a period when a license of the same class for which application is made was in effect at such place of business: Provided, That a license of the same class at such place of business is in effect on the date the application for the new license, or transfer, is filed.

(e) Nothing contained in this section shall be construed as entitling a licensee to any preferential treatment or be construed as making inapplicable any provision in any other section of this chapter, in any case where an application is made pursuant to this section for the issuance or transfer of a retailer's license for a place of business conducted in a residential-use district, or for the issuance or transfer of a wholesaler's or manufacturer's license for a place of business conducted in a residential- or first commercial-use district, as such districts are defined in the zoning regulations and shown in the official atlases of the Zoning Commission, and the applicant for the issuance or transfer of any of the said licenses is the holder of a similar license for any of the said places of business in effect on the date the application for the new license, or transfer, is filed. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 328, ch. 4, § 15; June 16, 1934, 48 Stat. 974, ch. 552; May 22, 1958, 72 Stat. 132, Pub. L. 85-423, § 1.)

AMENDMENTS

1958—Act May 22, 1958, designated existing provisions as subsecs. (a) and (b) and added subsecs. (c)–(e).

1934—Act June 16, 1934, added class B to the exception.

§ 25-117. Transfer of license—Fee—Conditions imposed.

No license shall be transferred by the licensee to any other person or to any other place, except with the written consent of the Board, upon a regular application therefor in writing and after notice and hearing, as herein provided for an original application for license, and the fee to be paid by the party applying for such transfer shall be $100, which shall be paid to the Collector of Taxes for the District of Columbia before such transfer is made: Provided, That the Board shall not allow the transfer of the license of any person against whom there is pending in the courts or before the Board any charge of keeping a disorderly house, or of violating this chapter or the laws against gambling in the District of Columbia. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 330, ch. 4, § 16; May 27, 1949, 63 Stat. 135, ch. 146, title V, § 503.)

AMENDMENT

§ 25-118. Revocation of license—Causes—Hearing—Discretionary closing for one year.

Board, the business for which the license was issued, or allows the premises with respect to which the license of such licensee was issued, to be used for any unlawful, disorderly, or immoral purpose, or knowingly employs in the sale or distribution of beverages any person who has, within five years prior thereto, been convicted of a misdemeanor under the National Prohibition Act, as amended and supplemented, or, within ten years prior thereto, been convicted of any felony, or such licensee otherwise fails to carry out in good faith the provisions of this chapter, the license of said licensee may be revoked or suspended by the Board after the licensee has been given an opportunity to be heard in his defense, subject to review by the Commissioners in case of revocation or in case of suspension for a period of more than thirty days, as herein provided. In case a license issued hereunder shall be revoked or suspended, no part of the license fee shall be returned, and the Board may, in its discretion, subject to review by the Commissioners, as a part of the order of revocation provide that no license shall be granted for the same place for the period of one year next after such revocation, and in case such order shall be made no license shall, during said year, be issued for said place or to a person or persons whose license is so revoked for any other location.

In the event the Board at any time shall order the suspension of any license a notice may be posted by the Board, in a conspicuous place, on the outside of the licensed premises, at or near the main street entrance thereto; which notice shall state that the license theretofore issued to the licensee has been suspended and shall state the time for which said license is suspended, and state that the suspension is ordered because of a violation of this chapter, or of the Commissioners' regulations adopted under authority of this chapter. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 330, ch. 4, § 17; Aug. 27, 1935, 49 Stat. 900, ch. 756, § 9; Aug. 25, 1937, 50 Stat. 803, ch. 766, § 3; Apr. 26, 1950, 64 Stat. 88, ch. 106.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Delinquent retailer

The Alcoholic Beverage Control Board does not have authority to prohibit further purchases by a liquor retailer who is delinquent in the payment of his account to wholesalers but can only revoke or suspend license of retailer for violating rules or regulations concerning credit. Press Liquors, Inc. v. F. E. Weakley, Chairman etc. (1963, 317 F. 2d 135, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 71).

Injunction

An injunction against enforcement of order of Alcoholic Beverage Control Board revoking liquor license should not issue for any period while failure of Board of Commissioners of District of Columbia to reach a decision on appeal is caused by unavoidable circumstances such as absence of a commissioner or necessary delay in considering and deciding the case. Lambros v. Young (1945, 145 F. 2d 341, 79 U. S. App. D. C. 247).

§ 25-119. Revocation of license when manufacturer interested—Manufacturer forbidden to loan money or furnish equipment for wholesaler or retailer—Extending credit permitted—"Manufacturer" defined.

If any manufacturer of beverages, whether licensed hereunder or not, by direct ownership, stock ownership, interlocking directors, mortgage, or lien, or by any other means shall have such a substantial interest, whether direct or indirect, in the business of any wholesale or retail licensee or in the premises on which said business is conducted as in the judgment of the Board may tend to influence such licensee to purchase beverages from such manufacturer, the Board may, in its discretion, revoke the license issued in respect of the business in which such manufacturer is interested, subject to review by the Commissioners as herein provided. No such manufacturer of beverages shall loan or give any money to any wholesale or retail licensee, or sell, rent, loan, or give to such licensee any equipment, furniture, fixtures, or property, or give or sell any service to such licensee: Provided, however, That with the prior approval of the Board, a manufacturer may sell, give, rent, or loan to a wholesale or retail licensee any service or article of property costing such manufacturer not more than $10. No wholesale or retail licensee shall receive or accept any loan or gift of money from any such manufacturer or purchase from, rent from, borrow or receive by gift from such manufacturer any equipment, furniture, fixtures, or property, or accept or receive any service from such manufacturer: Provided, however, That, with the prior approval of the Board, a wholesale or retail licensee may purchase from, rent from, borrow, or receive by gift from such manufacturer any service or article of property costing such manufacturer not more than $10. Nothing herein contained, however, shall prohibit the sale of alcoholic and nonalcoholic beverages and the reasonable extension of credit therefor by a manufacturer to a wholesale or retail licensee. When used in this section the word "manufacturer" shall include any stockholder holding directly or indirectly 25 per centum or more of the common stock or any officer of a manufacturer of beverages, if a corporation, whether licensed hereunder or not. This section shall not apply to retail licenses, class E, or to the wholesale license held by a person not licensed as a manufacturer hereunder owning an establishment for the manufacture of beverages outside of the District of Columbia. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 330, ch. 4, § 18; Aug. 27, 1935, 49 Stat. 902, ch. 756, § 15.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

Sections of Alcoholic Beverage Control Act prohibiting a manufacturer or wholesaler of alcoholic beverages from lending money or property to a retailer apply only to a manufacturer or wholesaler who has such a substantial interest in the business of its customer, or in his premises, as in the judgment of the Board may tend to influence the customer to purchase beverages from him. Press Liquors, Inc. v. F. E. Weakley, Chairman etc. (1963, 317 F. 2d 135, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 71).

§ 25-120. Revocation of license when wholesaler interested—Wholesaler forbidden to loan money or furnish equipment to retailer—Extending credit not prohibited—"Wholesaler" defined.

If any wholesaler of beverages, whether licensed hereunder or not, by direct ownership, stock ownership, interlocking directors, mortgage or lien or by any other means shall have such a substantial interest either direct or indirect in the business of any retail licensee or in the premises on which said business is conducted as in the judgment of the Board may tend to influence such licensee to purchase beverages from such wholesaler, the Board may in its discretion revoke the license issued in respect of the business in which such wholesaler is interested, subject to review by the commissioners as herein provided. No such wholesaler of beverages shall lend or give any money to any retail licensee or sell to such licensee, any equipment, furniture, fixtures, or property, except merchandise sold at the fair market value for resale by such licensee, or rent, loan, or give to such licensee any equipment, furniture, fixtures, or property, or give or sell any service to such licensee: Provided, however, That, with the prior approval of the Board, a wholesaler may sell, give, rent, or loan to such licensee any service or article of property costing such wholesaler not more than $10. #### EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1953 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act June 29, 1953, effective sixty days after June 29, 1953, see section 404(k) of act June 29, 1953, set out as a note under section 25-109.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Where defendant, convicted of being drunk in a public park and unable to pay fine, was imprisoned, his argument that general authority given by sections 11-606 and 11-616 was limited by this section, was without merit where the general statute existed before the special one Congress must have been aware of the older statutes, and had it intended later to modify the earlier, would have done so. Peeples v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 75 A. 2d 845).

Arrest by narcotics officer

Local narcotics officer had authority extended by statute to police officers generally to make arrest without warrant of person committing offense in his presence of drinking alcoholic beverage in public place. L. R. Hutcherson v. United States (1965, 345 F. 2d 964, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 274).

Arrest without warrant

Officer who observed man in alley drinking from bottle labeled wine had probable cause for arrest without warrant for offense of drinking alcoholic beverage in alley. L. R. Hutcherson v. United States (1965, 345 F. 2d 964, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 274).

Chronic alcoholism as a crime

Chronic alcoholism is defense to charge of public intoxication and is not itself a crime. DeW. Easter v. District of Columbia (1966, 361 F. 2d 50, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

Chronic alcoholism resulting in public intoxication cannot be held to be criminal on theory that before sickness became chronic there was in some earlier period a voluntary act or series of acts which led to chronic condition. Id.

Evidence

Evidence sustained convictions for disorderly conduct and drinking in public. J. M. Heard v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1962, 179 A. 2d 723).

In prosecution for intoxication, evidence was insufficient to support trial judge's finding that defendant was not guilty because of insanity. Williams v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 147 A. 2d 773).

Fine

Defendant on charge of intoxication upon public street could constitutionally be subjected to fine greater than collateral he was required to post. H. E. Coleman v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1964, 203 A. 2d 918).

Imposition of fine of $100 (statutory maximum) for intoxication on public street was not cruel and inhuman punishment, although defendant had been required to post only $10 collateral as security for appearance for trial. Id.

Search without warrant

Police officer's search of person lawfully arrested for drinking alcoholic beverage in alley wherein heroin was discovered in belt under shirt was justified by lawful arrest and by admission of person arrested that he had weapon which he seemed to be about to reach for under his clothing. L. R. Hutcherson v. United States (1965, 345 F. 2d 964, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 274).

§ 25-129. Search warrants for illegal alcoholic beverages—Penalty for resisting officer—Disposition of illegal beverages—Payment of bona fide liens.

(a) A search warrant may be issued by any judge of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions or by a United States commissioner for the District of Columbia when any alcoholic beverages are manufactured for sale, kept for sale, sold, or consumed in violation of the provisions of this chapter, and any such alcoholic beverages and any other property designed for use in connection with such unlawful manufacture for sale, keeping for sale, selling, or consumption may be seized thereunder, and shall be subject to such disposition as the court may make thereof, and such alcoholic beverages may be taken on the warrant from any house or other place in which it is concealed.

(b) A search warrant can not be issued but upon probable cause supported by affidavit particularly describing the property and the place to be searched.

(c) The judge or commissioner must, before issuing the warrant, examine on oath the complainant and any witness he may produce, and require their affidavits or take their depositions in writing and cause them to be subscribed by the parties making them.

(d) The affidavits or depositions must set forth the facts tending to establish the grounds of the application or probable cause for believing that they exist.

(e) If the judge or commissioner is thereupon satisfied of the existence of the grounds of the application or that there is probable cause to believe their existence, he must issue a search warrant signed by him with his name of office to the major and superintendent of police of the District of Columbia or any member of the Metropolitan police department, stating the particular grounds or probable cause for its issue and the names of the persons whose affidavits have been taken in support thereof, and commanding him forthwith to search the place named for the property specified and to bring it before the judge or commissioner.

(f) A search warrant may in all cases be served by any of the officers mentioned in its direction, but by no other person, except in aid of the officer on his requiring it, he being present and acting in its execution.

(g) The officer may break open any outer or inner door or window of a house, or any part of a house, or anything therein, to execute the warrant, if, after notice of his authority and purpose, he is refused admittance.

(h) The judge or commissioner must insert a direction in the warrant that it be served in the daytime unless the affidavit is positive that the property is in the place to be searched in which case he must insert a direction that it be served at any time in the day or night.

(i) A search warrant must be executed and returned to the judge or commissioner who issued it within ten days after its date; after the expiration of this time the warrant, unless executed, is void.

(j) When the officer takes property under the warrant, he must give a copy of the warrant together with a receipt for the property taken (specifying it in detail) to the person from whom it was taken by him, or in whose possession it was found; or, in the absence of any person, he must leave it in the place where he found the property.

(k) The officer must forthwith return the warrant to the judge or commissioner and deliver to him a written inventory of the property taken, made publicly or in the presence of the person from whose possession it was taken, and of the applicant for the warrant, if they are present, verified by the affidavit of the officer at the foot of the inventory and taken before the judge or commissioner at the time, to the following effect: "I, R. S., the officer by whom this warrant was executed, do swear that the above inventory contains a true and detailed account of all the property taken by me on the warrant."

(l) The judge or commissioner must thereupon, if required, deliver a copy of the inventory to the person from whose possession the property was taken and to the applicant for the warrant.

(m) The judge or commissioner must annex the affidavits, search warrant, return, inventory, and evidence, and at once file the same, together with a copy of the record of his proceedings, with the clerk of the municipal court.

(n) Whoever shall knowingly and wilfully obstruct, resist, or oppose any such officer or person in serving or attempting to serve or execute any such search warrant, or shall assault, beat, or wound any such officer or person, knowing him to be an officer or person so authorized, shall be fined not more than $1,000 or imprisoned not more than two years.

(o) If the accused be discharged, the beverages and other property seized shall be returned to the person in whose possession they were found; if he be convicted, the said beverages and other property shall be forfeited, and may be destroyed by the police department or delivered for medicinal, mechanical, or scientific uses to any department or agency of the United States Government or the District of Columbia government or any hospital or other charitable institution in the District of Columbia, or sold at public auction, as the court may direct.

(p) If any of said property so seized, other than the said beverages and the containers thereof, shall be subject to a lien which is established by intervention or otherwise to the satisfaction of the court as being bona fide and as having been created without the lienor's having any notice that said property was to be used in connection with the illegal manufacture for sale, keeping for sale, or selling of alcoholic beverages, the court, upon the conviction of the accused, shall order a sale of said property at public auction and the officer making the sale, after deducting the expenses of keeping the property, the fee for the seizure and the cost of the sale, shall pay all such liens according to their priorities, and such lien or liens shall be transferred from the property to the proceeds of the sale thereof. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 334, ch. 4, § 29; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 104, ch. 159, § 404(i); July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

1953—Subsec. (a) amended by act June 29, 1953, which substituted "The Municipal Court for the District of Columbia" for "the police court of the District of Columbia" to conform to change in name effected by act

Apr. 1, 1942, substituted "commissioner" for "Commissioner" and provided for the seizure of alcoholic beverages and other property designed for use in connection with unlawful consumption.

TRANSFER OF FUNCTIONS

Chief of Police as successor to Major and Superintendent of Police, see note under section 4-103.

CHANGE OF NAME

"Municipal Court for the District of Columbia" was substituted for "police court of the District of Columbia" in subsec. (a) and "Municipal Court" for "police court" in subsec. (m) to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the Police Court and the Municipal Court.

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for "Municipal Court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

CROSS REFERENCES

Search warrants generally, see § 23-301 et seq.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Applications for search warrant

A lapse of four days between time police officers observed illegal activities on premises and time police department made application for search warrant based on policeman's affidavit describing sale of alcoholic beverages on premises without a license was not, under the circumstances, unreasonable as a matter of law. G. Williams & S. Stokes v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 167 A. 2d 893).

Search warrant—Application for

Elapse of nine days between time police officer purchased liquor on premises and time officer made application for night search warrant based on policeman's affidavit describing sale of alcoholic beverages on premises without a license was not unreasonable under circumstances including showing that officer described the premises as having a bar and a bartender, tables enough for at least 20 persons and food and beverage service. Underdown v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 217 A. 2d 659).

The test of whether too long a period of time had passed between commission of unlawful acts and issuance of a search warrant is one of reasonableness, although a less flexible standard is applied when the warrant is one that must be based on "positive" knowledge. Id.

Where alcoholic beverages are purchased in circumstances indicating a continuing business in sale of illicit liquor, there is a strong presumption that the liquor will be found on the premises for a reasonable time thereafter. Id.

—Execution of Five-day delay in execution of night warrant for search of premises where alcoholic beverages were being sold without a license was not unreasonable since an after-hours liquor establishment might operate only on weekend evenings so that it was reasonable to wait until following weekend to execute the warrant. Underdown v. District of Columbia (D.C. App. 1966, 217 A. 2d 659).

Since the statute and warrant for search of premises for alcoholic beverages provided that it must be executed within 10 days, execution before expiration of that time limit was reasonable. Id.

Subject of search

Where, in searching defendant's premises under a valid search warrant authorizing search for alcoholic beverages or any property designed for use in connection with violation of Alcoholic Beverage Control Act, police officer looked behind a movable partition closing off a fireplace and discovered two large clean paper bags in the midst of rubble, and, although the feel and weight of such bags indicated to him that they did not contain bottles, the officer looked into the bags and discovered therein a quantity of marihuana, the officer's action in looking into the bags did not constitute an unreasonable search, but was lawful. United States v. White (D.C.D.C. 1954, 122 F. Supp. 664).

Any minor who falsely represents his age for the purpose of procuring any beverage shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor and be fined for each offense not more than $25 and, in default in the payment of such fine, shall be imprisoned not exceeding ten days. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 335, ch. 4, § 30.)

§ 25-131. Issuance of new permits under Beverage License Act of 1933 forbidden—Surrender of permit and refund of fees—Repeal.

After the date of the approval of this chapter no permit shall be issued under the Act of Congress entitled "An Act to provide revenue for the District of Columbia by the taxation of beverages and for other purposes," approved April 5, 1933, and no permits issued thereunder shall be renewed, but the Commissioners are hereby authorized to extend the expiration dates of permits issued under said act to a date designated by them not to exceed sixty days after the approval of this chapter, upon such terms and conditions, including the payment of such fees as the Commissioners may prescribe. Any permittee thereunder may make an application for a license under this chapter and, if said application is approved by the Board, such permittee shall surrender his permit and he shall be allowed a refund of the permit fee prorated as hereinafter provided. Any permittee under said Act of April 5, 1933, may surrender his permit and receive a refund of the permit fee prorated from the date of surrender of such permit to the date of expiration thereof. All such refunds shall be paid from the permanent indefinite appropriation for refunding erroneously paid taxes in the District of Columbia. All permits issued under said Act of April 5, 1933, shall remain in force and effect for the respective periods for which they were issued, unless sooner surrendered. After the approval of this chapter no taxes shall be collected under section 11 of the Act approved April 5, 1933. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 336, ch. 4, § 31.)

REFERENCES IN TEXT

The Beverage License Act of 1933 was repealed by section 31 of act Jan. 24, 1934, effective one year from Jan. 24, 1934.

Whosoever violates any of the provisions of this chapter for which no specific penalty is provided, or any of the rules and regulations promulgated pursuant thereto, shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 or by imprisonment for not longer than one year or by both such fine and imprisonment in the discretion of the court.

Prosecutions for violations of this chapter shall be on information filed in the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions by the corporation counsel or any of his assistants, except for such violations as are felonies, and prosecutions for such violations as are felonies, shall be by the United States Attorney in and for the District of Columbia or any of his assistants. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 336, ch. 4, § 33; Apr. 1, 1942, 56 Stat. 190, ch. 207, § 1; July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1.)

CHANGE OF NAME

"Municipal court" was substituted for "police court" to conform to act Apr. 1, 1942, which consolidated the Police Court and the Municipal Court.

Act July 8, 1963, § 1, substituted "District of Columbia Court of General Sessions" for municipal court for the District of Columbia". Said section 1 superseded act Oct. 23, 1962, 76 Stat. 1171, Pub. L. 87-873, § 1, which contained identical provisions.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Consolidation

It was not error for trial court to refuse to consolidate the counts of keeping liquor for sale where motion was made at end of government's case on ground that appellant could have asked for a bill of particulars before trial and could have pleaded a defective information. Davenport v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 67 A. 2d 522).

Examination of witnesses

A court may not limit cross-examination upon a pertinent subject at the outset, but after a substantial exploration of the subject, a judge is within his right in limiting examination which may become needlessly protracted and where the record discloses that during a trial for the illegal sale of alcoholic beverages, appellant's counsel was permitted freely and fully to cross-examine all government witnesses, there was no undue restriction or limitation upon the right of cross-examination. Davenport v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 209, appeal denied 180 F. 2d 909, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 430).

Where government witness admitted that during a recess, he had talked with another government witness who had been excluded from the court room, trial court did not abuse its discretion in permitting him to testify. Id.

Failure to report violation

It is an offense for any officer to fail to report prohibition violations to the corporation counsel. Donnelley v. United States (1928, 48 S. Ct. 400, 276 U.S. 505, 72 L. Ed. 767).

Instructions

Where judge's charge stated "I charge you it is his constitutional right not to take the stand if he [the appellant] wishes not to do so," it was not prejudicial error not to have stated that the fact appellant had not taken the witness stand, should not be construed in any way to his prejudice. Davenport v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 67 A. 2d 522).

Police officers who, though privately employed, are engaged in keeping law and order in a public place, are neither informers nor detectives engaged in the business of spying for hire and are not the type of witnesses whose testimony the court must instruct must be received with caution. Davenport v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 65 A. 2d 209, appeal denied 180 F. 2d 909, 85 U.S. App. D.C. 430).

Officers of the United States

Prohibition agent appointed by the commissioner, with the approval of the Secretary of Treasury, is not an "officer of the United States"; however police captains are officers of the District but not of the United States. Keehn v. United States (C.C.A. 1, 1924, 300 F. 493).

§ 25-133. Sale by retailer of beverages on credit prohibited—Exceptions.

No holder of a retailer's license, except a retailer's license, class E, shall sell on credit any beverages except beer and light wines. This section shall not prohibit a club from extending credit to its members or the guests of members or a hotel from extending credit to its registered guests. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 336, ch. 4, § 35.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Other provisions concerning sale of beverages on credit, see §§ 25-119, 25-120.

§ 25-134. Containers to be labeled—Content.

No rectified or blended spirits shall be sold unless the container in which it is sold shall bear a legible label firmly affixed thereto stating the nature and percentage of each ingredient therein (except water), the age of each such ingredient, and the alcoholic content of such spirits by volume. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 336, ch. 4, § 36.)

§ 25-135. Offenses under National Prohibition Act to be prosecuted.

Any offense committed, or any right accrued, or any penalty or obligation incurred, or any seizure or forfeiture made, prior to the effective date of this chapter, under the provisions of the National Prohibition Act, as amended and supplemented, or under any permit or regulation issued thereunder, or under any other provision of law repealed by this chapter, may be prosecuted or enforced in the same manner and with the same effect as if this chapter had not been enacted. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 337, ch. 4, § 37.)

If any provision of this chapter, or the application thereof to any person or circumstances, is held invalid, the remainder of the chapter, and the application of such provisions to other persons or circumstances, shall not be affected thereby. (Jan. 24, 1934, 48 Stat. 337, ch. 4, § 38.)

§ 25-137. Unlawful transportation—Penalty.

(a) It shall be unlawful for anyone, except a public or common carrier or the holder of a manufacturer's, wholesaler's, or retailer's license issued under this chapter, to transport, import, bring, or ship or cause to be transported, imported, brought, or shipped into the District of Columbia from without the District of Columbia any wines, spirits, or beer in a quantity in excess of one gallon at any one time.

(b) No public or common carrier shall transport or bring into the District of Columbia wine, spirits, or beer in a quantity in excess of one gallon at any one time for delivery to any one person in the District of Columbia other than the holder of a manufacturer's, wholesaler's, or retailer's license issued under this chapter.

(c) The provisions of this section shall not apply to bona fide possessors of old stocks who are moving into the District of Columbia nor to embassies or diplomatic representatives of foreign countries, nor to wines imported for religious or sacramental purposes, nor to wine, spirits, and beer to be delivered to the holder of a manufacturer's, wholesaler's, or retailer's license issued under this chapter.

(d) The penalty for violation of this section shall consist of the forfeiture of the beverages transported, imported, or shipped or caused to be transported, imported, brought, or shipped in violation of this section, and a fine of not more than $500 or imprisonment for not more than six months. (Jan. 24, 1934, ch. 4, § 39, as added Aug. 25, 1937, 50 Stat. 803, ch. 766, § 4.)

§ 25-138. Tax on beer.

(a) There shall be levied and collected by the District of Columbia on all beer sold by the holder of a manufacturer's or wholesaler's license, except such beer as may have been purchased from a licensee under this chapter, and except such beer as may be sold to a dealer licensed under the laws of any State or Territory of the United States and not licensed under this chapter, and on all beer purchased for resale by the holder of a retailer's license, except such beer as may have been purchased from a licensee under this chapter, a tax of $2.00 for every barrel containing not more than thirty-one gallons and at a like rate for any other quantity or for the fractional parts thereof. Unless the Commissioners shall by regulation prescribe otherwise, the collection and payment of such tax shall be in the manner following:

(1) Each holder of a manufacturer's or wholesaler's license shall, on or before the 10th day of each month, furnish to the assessor of the District of Columbia, on a form to be prescribed by the Commissioners, a statement under oath showing the quantity of beer subject to taxation hereunder sold by him during the preceding calendar month and shall, on or before the 15th day of each month, pay to the collector of taxes of the District of Columbia the tax hereby imposed upon the quantity of beer subject to taxation hereunder sold by him during the preceding calendar month.

(2) No licensee holding a retailer's license shall transport or cause to be transported into the District of Columbia for resale any beer, other than the regular stock on hand in a passenger-carrying marine vessel operating in and beyond the District of Columbia, or a club car or a dining car on a railroad operating in and beyond the District of Columbia, for which a retailer's license, class C or D, has been issued under this chapter, unless such licensee has first obtained a permit so to do from the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board. No such permit shall issue until the tax imposed by this section shall have been paid for the beer for which the permit is requested. Such permit shall specifically set forth the quantity, character, and brand or trade name of the beer to be transported and the names and addresses of the seller and of the purchaser. Such permit shall accompany such beer during its transportation in the District of Columbia to the licensed premises of such retail licensee and shall be exhibited upon the demand of any police officer or duly authorized inspector of the Board. Such permit shall, immediately upon receipt of the beer by the retail licensee, be marked "canceled" and retained by him.

(b) The Commissioners are authorized and empowered to prescribe by regulation such other methods or devices or both for the assessment, evidencing of payment, and collection of the taxes imposed by this section in addition to or in lieu of the method hereinbefore set forth whenever, in their judgment, such action is necessary to prevent frauds or evasions.

(c) The taxes imposed hereby, when collected, shall be deposited in the Treasury of the United States to the credit of the District of Columbia. #### § 25-139. Building or place of violation declared a nuisance—Procedure to enjoin or abate.

(a) Any building, ground, premises, or place where any intoxicating beverage is manufactured, sold, kept for sale, or permitted to be consumed in violation of this chapter is hereby declared to be a nuisance, and may be enjoined and abated as hereinafter provided.

(b) An action to enjoin any nuisance defined in subsection (a) of this section may be brought in the name of the District of Columbia by the corporation counsel of the District of Columbia or any of his assistants, in the civil branch of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions against any person conducting or maintaining such nuisance or knowingly permitting such nuisance to be conducted or maintained. The rules of the Court of General Sessions relating to the granting of an injunction or restraining order shall be applicable with respect to actions brought under this subsection, except that the District as complaining party shall not be required to furnish bond or security. It shall not be necessary for the court to find the building, ground, premises, or place was being unlawfully used as aforesaid at the time of the hearing, but on finding that the material allegations of the complaint are true, the court shall enter an order restraining the defendant from manufacturing, selling, keeping for sale, or permitting to be consumed any alcoholic beverage in violation of this chapter. When an injunction, either temporary or permanent, has been granted it shall be binding on the defendant throughout the District of Columbia. Upon final judgment of the court ordering such nuisance to be abated, the court may order that the defendant, or any one claiming under him, shall not occupy or use, for a period of one year thereafter, the building, ground, premises, or place upon which the nuisance existed, but the court may, in its discretion, permit the defendant to occupy or use the said building, ground, premises, or place, if the defendant shall give bond with sufficient security to be approved by the court, in the penal and liquidated sum of not less than $500 nor more than $1,000, payable to the District of Columbia, and conditioned that intoxicating beverages will not thereafter be manufactured, sold, kept for sale, or permitted to be consumed in or upon the building, grounds, premises, or place in violation of this chapter.

(c) In the case of the violation of any injunction, temporary or permanent, rendered pursuant to the provisions of this section, proceedings for punishment for contempt may be commenced by the corporation counsel or any of his assistants, by filing with the court in the same case in which the injunction was issued a petition under oath setting out the alleged offense constituting the violation and serving a copy of said petition upon the defendant requiring him to appear and answer the same within ten days from the service thereof. The trial shall be promptly held and may be upon affidavits or either party may demand the production and oral examination of the witnesses. Any person found guilty of contempt under the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine of not more than $1,000 or by imprisonment for not more than twelve months, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (Jan. 24, 1934, ch. 4, § 41, as added June 29, 1953, 67 Stat. 104, ch. 159, § 404 (j); July 8, 1963, 77 Stat. 77, Pub. L. 88-60, § 1.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Authority to take possession

Comptroller's authority and power to take possession was precisely the power given him by statute to take possession of a national bank; and, if we are correct in this position, then it follows equally that under the powers vested in him by law he was authorized to investigate the condition of the bank and declare it insolvent, and to appoint a receiver and make an assessment against the stockholders. Dunn v. O'Connor (1937, 89 F. 2d 820, 67 App. D. C. 76).

Constitutionality

This act is constitutional. Lyons v. Bank of Discount (C.C. N.Y. 1907, 154 F. 391).

Construction

This act incorporates all the United States Bank Acts which have to do with administration in the case of insolvent banks and gives to the Comptroller the same control and management as in the case of national banks. Hamilton v. Offutt (1935, 78 F. 2d 735, 64 App. D. C. 385).

Determination of Comptroller of Currency as to necessity for assessments is conclusive. Harper v. Moran (1935, 76 F. 2d 980, 64 App. D. C. 210, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 104, 296 U.S. 592, 80 L. Ed. 419).

Foreign bank

Where foreign bank establishes house in District of Columbia, it submitted itself to the provisions of this act. Washington Loan & Trust Co. v. Allman (1934, 70 F. 2d 282, 63 App. D. C. 116).

The liquidation of bank organized under West Virginia law and doing business solely in District of Columbia was governed by this chapter, and not by law of West Virginia. Parsons v. Barry (D.C.D.C. 1945, 59 F. Supp. 221, affirmed 148 F. 2d 21, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 409, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 32, 326 U.S. 726, 90 L. Ed. 431, rehearing denied 66 S. Ct. 136, 326 U.S. 808, 90 L. Ed. 492).

Insolvency

Where the Comptroller of the Currency has held a bank to be insolvent and has appointed a receiver for it, the court will not substitute its judgment for the judgment of the Comptroller, unless it appears by convincing proof that the Comptroller's action is plainly arbitrary, and made in bad faith. United States Sav. Bank v. Morgenthau (1936, 85 F. 2d 811, 66 App. D. C. 234).

Liability of stockholders

This section does not impose double liability on stockholders where State laws impose none. Hamilton v. Offutt (1935, 78 F. 2d 735, 64 App. D. C. 385, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 121, 296 U.S. 592, 80 L. Ed. 419). See, also, Hamilton v. Bergling (1936, 85 F. 2d 249, 66 App. D. C. 83).

Though bank stockholders' liability under state law may be enforced in the District of Columbia by a receiver appointed by the Comptroller of the Currency, both the existence and the duration of the liability must be determined by the law of the state of the bank's incorporation. Moran v. Cobb (1941, 120 F. 2d 16, 73 App. D. C. 200, certiorari dismissed 62 S. Ct. 134, 314 U. S. 703, 86 L. Ed. 562).

National Savings Bank

The National Savings Bank of the District of Columbia was organized by the act of May 24, 1870, to accept deposits from depositors, to invest such funds for their benefit, and disburse revenues to the depositors and the corporators have no shares and receive no profits, and have not such interest as will warrant an action for an account and distribution of the profits. Huntington v. National Sav. Bank (1877, 96 U. S. 388, 6 Otto 388, 24 L. Ed. 777).

Payment of interest in liquidation

When assets of insolvent bank being liquidated under Comptroller of the Currency are sufficient to pay more than 100 percent of principal amount of depositors' claims, depositors are entitled to interest on their claims from date of suspension until paid, computed at statutory or legal rate of jurisdiction in which the liquidation is had. Parsons v. Barry (D.C.D.C. 1945, 59 F. Supp. 221, affirmed 148 F. 2d 21, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 409, certiorari denied 66 S. Ct. 32, 326 U.S. 726, 90 L. Ed. 431, rehearing denied 66 S. Ct. 136, 326 U. S. 808, 90 L. Ed. 492).

Interest on time and savings deposits should be computed to date of bank's closing at contract rate, and after closing, deposits, whether savings or demand, should bear interest at local statutory rate on judgments. Id.

A judgment of United States Court of Appeals for District of Columbia that no part of assets of closed bank organized under state authority and doing business in District of Columbia could be turned over by receiver to stockholders until after principal and interest on debts were paid was res judicata of depositors' right to interest on their deposits. Id.

Personal liability of directors

Directors of bank not liable personally for deposits made after expiration of charter, where bank continued business. Thompson v. Park Sav. Bank (1935, 77 F. 2d 955, 64 App. D. C. 308, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 104, 296 U. S. 592, 80 L. Ed. 419).

Receiver

Receiver is the mere instrument of the Comptroller, and the declaration of the Comptroller, rather than the receiver, is the essential factor in determining the necessity for the assessment and where the Comptroller has made the decision, his conclusion is not subject to attack or open to review except for fraud. Harper v. Moran (1935, 76 F. 2d 980, 64 App. D. C. 210).

Plaintiff was appointed and qualified as receiver of the bank by the Comptroller of the Currency. Moran v. Schlosberg (1937, 90 F. 2d 408, 67 App. D. C. 163).

Reorganization plan

Comptroller of the Currency was acting within his statutory authority in holding that the plan of reorganization proposed by appellant was not fair and equitable as to the depositors and other creditors of the bank, and is not in the public interest, and that the Comptroller was right in refusing to adopt appellant's proposed plan, and consequently that his action in this behalf was not arbitrary or capricious. Cooper v. Woodin (1934, 72 F. 2d 179, 63 App. D. C. 311).

§ 26-102. Examination by Comptroller of the Currency—Section 84 of title 12, U.S. Code, extended to banks and trust companies—Reserves.

(a) The Comptroller of the Currency, in addition to the powers now conferred upon him by law for the examination of national banks, is hereby further authorized, whenever he may deem it advisable, to cause examination to be made into the condition of any bank mentioned in section 26-101. The expense of such examination shall be paid in the manner provided by section 482 of title 12, U. S. Code, relating to the examination of national banks.

(b) The provisions of section 84 of title 12, U.S. Code, are hereby extended to apply to all banks and trust companies doing business in the District of Columbia.

(c) Each bank and trust company doing business in the District of Columbia and not a member of the Federal Reserve System shall within six months from March 4, 1933, establish and maintain reserves on the same basis and subject to the same conditions as may by law on March 4, 1933, or thereafter be prescribed for national banks located in the District of Columbia, except that such reserves shall be established and maintained at such agency or agencies which shall have the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency: Provided, however, (1) That the required reserves carried by such bank or trust company with an agency or agencies may, under the regulations and subject to such penalties as may be prescribed by the Comptroller of the Currency, be checked against and withdrawn by such bank or trust company for the purpose of meeting existing liabilities, and (2) that no such bank or trust company shall at any time make new loans or shall pay any dividends unless and until the total reserves required by law shall be fully restored. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1303, ch. 854, § 714; June 25, 1906, ch. 3533, 34 Stat. 458; Mar. 4, 1933, 47 Stat. 1566, ch. 274, § 3.)

AMENDMENTS

1933—Act Mar. 4, 1933, substituted the word “advisable” for the word “useful” in the first sentence of subsec. (a) and added subsecs. (b) and (c).

1906—Act June 25, 1906, substituted the reference to § 26-101 for “in the District of Columbia organized under Act of Congress,” deleted a former second sentence: “The Comptroller, at his discretion may report to Congress the results of such examination”, and substituted the reference to § 482 of title 12, U.S. Code, for “out of any appropriation made by Congress for special bank examinations”.

ALTERATION, AMENDMENT OR REPEAL

Section 9 of act Mar. 4, 1933, provided that: “The right to alter, amend, or repeal this Act is hereby expressly reserved. If any clause, sentence, paragraph, or part of this Act shall for any reason be adjudged by any court of competent jurisdiction to be invalid, such judgment shall not affect, impair, or invalidate the remainder of this Act, but shall be confined in its operation to the clause, sentence, paragraph, or part thereof directly involved in the controversy in which such judgment shall have been rendered.”

Woodin* (1934, 72 F. 2d 179, 63 App. D. C. 311).

§ 26-103. Banking—Foreign corporations not to engage in—Approval of Comptroller of the Currency—“Branches” defined—Building associations—Dissolution of solvent banking corporations—Penalties.

(a) No banking business shall be done in the District of Columbia except by corporations organized in accordance with the provisions of this Code, as amended, or by national banking associations organized in accordance with the laws of the United States, except that this paragraph shall not apply to (1) corporations engaged in and doing a banking business on March 4, 1933, (2) individuals, partnerships, associations, or corporations primarily engaged as brokers in buying, selling, exchanging, and/or otherwise dealing in stocks, bonds, and/or other securities, for the account of others, and incidentally thereto conducts banking transactions, (3) individuals, partnerships, associations, or corporations not doing a bank-of-deposit business.

(b) No corporation shall engage in or do the business of a bank of deposit or a fiduciary business in the District of Columbia nor shall any branch be established to carry on any phase of such banking or fiduciary business in the District of Columbia until the approval and consent of the Comptroller of the Currency is secured. The term “branch” as used in this section shall be held to include any branch bank, branch office, branch agency, additional office, or any place of business located in the District of Columbia, at which deposits are received, or checks paid, or money lent, or at which the public is served or any phase of business conducted by the parent institution.

(d) Any solvent financial institution in the District of Columbia under the supervision of the Comptroller of the Currency may go into liquidation and discontinue business by the vote of its shareholders owning two-thirds of its stock. (e) If any financial institution under the supervision of the Comptroller of the Currency, which has not gone into liquidation and for which a receiver has not already been appointed for other lawful cause, shall discontinue its operations for a period of sixty days, the Comptroller of the Currency may, if he deems it advisable, appoint a receiver for such institution.

(f) Any financial institution over which the Comptroller of the Currency has or had supervision which prior to March 4, 1933, had in any manner ceased to do a banking business shall not resume such banking business and shall advise the Comptroller of the Currency when its business has been fully liquidated, whereupon by operation of this section its charter is terminated. Such financial institution may in the discretion of the Comptroller of the Currency be subject to all the provisions of paragraph (d) of this section.

(g) Each person, copartnership, each director, liquidating committee or liquidating agent, and each one of the officers and employees of an association or corporation violating any of the provisions of this section shall be punished by a fine not exceeding $1,000, or imprisonment not exceeding one year, or by both fine and imprisonment, in the discretion of the court. (Apr. 26, 1922, 42 Stat. 500, ch. 147; Mar. 4, 1933, 47 Stat. 1564, ch. 274, § 1; Sept. 15, 1951, 65 Stat. 324, ch. 404, § 3.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Banks operating prior to statute

Bank incorporated under a state law operating a bank in the District of Columbia prior to April 26, 1922, was entitled to continue (33 O. A. G. 395).

State law determining liability

In absence of words creating liability claimed, or finding by necessary implication that the section plainly and convincingly adopts the national banking law of double liability, the law of Virginia as the place where bank was created would govern in measuring liability of appellees as stockholders. Hamilton v. Offutt (1935, 78 F. 2d 735, 64 App. D. C. 385).

§ 26-104. Liability of stockholders of bank or savings company—"Entered into or incurred" defined—Certain provisions of U.S. Code extended to District of Columbia.

The words "entered into or incurred" as used in this section, shall be held to include any extension or renewal of any contracts, debt, and engagement renewed or extended after March 4, 1933.

(c) The provisions of sections 55, 62, 65, 67, 191-194, 197, and 198-200 of title 12, U.S. Code, are extended to apply to any bank, savings bank, or trust company organized, hereafter organized, or doing a banking business in the District of Columbia and to the shareholders of such institutions, except as limited by the provisions of paragraph (b) of this section: Provided, however, That the provisions of section 26-101 shall not be construed to be repealed by this section but shall have application to the banks, savings banks, savings companies, other than building associations, and trust companies embraced within this section.

(d) That portion of section 24 of the Judicial Code, as amended, applying to suits against national-banking associations shall be extended and shall apply to all actions arising under the provisions of this section. in the District of Columbia and of every banking institution organized by virtue of the laws of any of the States of the Union to do or doing a banking business in the District of Columbia, who acquire in any manner the shares of any such savings bank or savings company or such banking institutions other than building associations after the enactment of this Act, shall be held individually responsible equally and ratably, and not one for another, for all contracts, debts, and engagements of such bank or company, to the extent of the amount of their stock so acquired therein, at the par value thereof in addition to the amount invested in such shares."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Foreign bank doing business in District

When there was, at the time, no statute in the District creating double liability in the case of a stockholder of a foreign bank doing business exclusively in the District, the liability of the stockholder is determined by the charter of incorporation and laws of the State in which incorporation is had. Hamilton v. Bergling (1936, 85 F. 2d 249, 66 App. D.C. 83).

The additional liability imposed by section 26-104 upon the shareholders of savings banks, savings companies, and banking institutions and the additional liability imposed by section 26-322 upon the shareholders of trust companies, shall cease to apply on July 1, 1937, with respect to such savings banks, savings companies, banking institutions, and trust companies which shall be transacting business on such date: Provided, That not less than six months prior to such date, the savings bank, savings company, banking institution or trust company, desiring to take advantage hereof, shall have caused notice of such prospective termination of liability to be published in a newspaper published in the District of Columbia and having general circulation therein. tirement of any preferred stock or debentures of any such savings bank, savings company, banking institution, or trust company, out of its net earnings for such half-year period shall be deemed to be an addition to its surplus if, upon the retirement of such preferred stock or debentures, the amount so paid into such retirement fund for such period may then properly be carried to surplus. In any such case the savings bank, savings company, banking institution, or trust company shall be obligated to transfer to surplus the amount so paid into such retirement fund for such period, on account of the preferred stock or debentures as such stock or debentures are retired. #### § 26-110. Authority of notaries public employed by banks or trust company.

It shall be lawful for any notary public who is a stockholder, director, officer, or employee of a bank, trust company, or other corporation to take the acknowledgment of any party to any written instrument executed to or by such corporation, or to administer an oath to any other stockholder, director, officer, employee, or agent of such corporation, or to protest for nonacceptance or nonpayment drafts, checks, notes, acceptances, or other negotiable instruments which may be owned or held for collection by such corporation: Provided, That it shall be unlawful for any notary public to take the acknowledgment of an instrument executed by or to a bank or corporation of which he is a stockholder, director, officer, or employee, where such notary is a party to such instrument, either individually or as a representative of such corporation, or to protest any negotiable instrument owned or held for collection by such corporation, where such notary is individually a party to such instrument: Provided further, That it shall be unlawful for any notary public to take the oath of an officer or director of any bank or trust company of which he is an officer, or to take an oath of any person verifying a report of such bank or trust company to the Comptroller of the Currency. (Apr. 5, 1939, 53 Stat. 567, ch. 37, § 5.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Although a notary is a stockholder of a bank and its president, protest of notes by him is not invalid. Roberts v. International Bank (1928, 25 F. 2d 214, 58 App. D.C. 87).

Chapter 2.—JOINT ACCOUNTS—ADVERSE CLAIMANTS—TRUST ACCOUNTS

Sec.

- 26-201 Deposits or shares of stock in names of two or more persons—Payments—Liability of bank.
- 26-202. Safe deposit boxes in names of two or more persons—Right of access—Liability of bank.
- 26-203. Notice of adverse claim to deposit.
- 26-204. Payment of trust accounts on death of trustee.

§ 26-201. Deposits or shares of stock in names of two or more persons—Payments—Liability of bank.

When a deposit shall have been made in, or shall after May 15, 1928, be made in, or any collection item shall have been placed or shall after May 15, 1928, be placed with, any bank, trust company, savings bank, building association, or other banking institution, including national banks, transacting business in the District of Columbia, or when any shares of stock shall have been issued or shall after May 15, 1928, be issued by any building association, transacting business in the District of Columbia, in the names of two or more persons, including husband and wife, payable to either, or payable to either or the survivor or survivors, such deposit, or in any part thereof, or any interest or dividend thereon, and such collection item or its proceeds, or any interest or dividend thereon, or such shares of stock issued by a building association or any interest or dividend thereon, may be paid or delivered to either of said persons whether the other or others be living or not; and the receipt or acquittance of the person to whom such payment or delivery is made shall be a valid, sufficient, and complete release and discharge of the bank, trust company, savings bank, building association, or other banking institution, including national banks, for any payment or delivery so made. (May 15, 1928, 45 Stat. 533, ch. 568, § 1.)

CROSS REFERENCE

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Gift causa mortis

Where depositor, not in contemplation of impending death, had brother's name added to bank account, but did not pass a present interest therein to brother, and retained control of account, there was no "gift causa mortis". Gibson v. Industrial Bank of Washington (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 36 A. 2d 62).

Gift inter vivos

Where depositor had brother's name appended to bank account but passed no present interest thereto and retained control of account and passbook, there was no "gift inter vivos" to brother. Gibson v. Industrial Bank of Washington (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 36 A. 2d 62).

Joint account

Statute providing that no disposition of realty or personalty of married woman under 21 years of age or any portions thereof, by deed, mortgage, bill of sale, or other conveyance shall be valid if made by married woman under 21 years of age is modified by statute dealing with joint account of husband and wife in bank or other institutions such as building and loan association. C. M. Williams v. R. P. Williams, et al. (1965, 346 F. 2d 808, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 327).

Where substantial sums earned by minor wife were allegedly turned over by her to husband and were deposited with building and loan association in joint account in names of husband and wife, and on estrangement of husband and wife, husband withdrew balance in joint account and deposited it in new joint account in names of himself and his mother, association was not liable to wife on ground that association could not permit funds to be withdrawn by husband due to status of wife as minor. Id.

In action by husband's executors against widow to impress constructive trust on proceeds of bank account, for which printed bank cards which recited a right of survivorship had been signed by both husband and widow, and from which widow, after husband's death, withdrew all the funds for deposit elsewhere in her own name, evidence failed to rebut presumption, based on fact that funds for such account had been provided only by husband, that widow did not have a survivorship interest. Imirie v. Imirie and Bogley etc. (1957, 246 F. 2d 652, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 371).

A showing that name of depositor's brother was merely appended to bank account, without more, is insufficient to establish intention of depositor to establish a joint account with right of survivorship. Gibson v. Industrial Bank of Washington (D. C. Mun. App. 1944, 36 A. 2d 62).

§ 26-202. Safe deposit boxes in names of two or more persons—Right of access—Liability of bank.

When a safety deposit box or vault shall have been hired from any bank, trust company, savings bank, building association, or other banking institution, including national banks, or any other corporation transacting business in the District of Columbia, in the names of two or more persons, including husband and wife, with the right of access being given to either, or with access to either or the survivor or survivors of said persons, or property is held for safe-keeping by any such bank, trust company, savings bank, building association, or other corporation or banking institution, including national banks, for two or more persons, including husband and wife, with the right of delivery being given to either, or with the right of delivery to either or the survivor or survivors of said persons, any one or more of such persons, whether the other or others be living or not, shall have the right of access to such safety deposit box or vault and to remove the contents thereof, or any part of such contents, or to have delivered to him or them, the property so held for safe-keeping, or any part thereof, and in case of such removal or delivery the said bank, trust company, savings bank, building association, or other corporation or banking institution, including national banks, shall be exempt from any liability for permitting such access or removal or for the delivery to such person or persons. (May 15, 1928, 45 Stat. 534, ch. 568, § 2.)

§ 26-203. Notice of adverse claim to deposit.

Notice to any bank or trust company doing business in the District of Columbia of an adverse claim to a deposit standing on its books to the credit of any person shall not be effectual to cause said bank or trust company to recognize said adverse claimant unless said adverse claimant shall also either (1) procure a restraining order, injunction, or other appropriate process against said bank or trust company from a court of competent jurisdiction in a cause therein instituted by him wherein the person to whose credit the deposit stands is made a party and served with summons; or (2) execute to such bank or trust company, in form and with sureties acceptable to it, a bond indemnifying said bank or trust company from any and all liability, loss, damage, costs, and expenses, for and on account of the payment of such adverse claim or the dishonor of the check or other order of the person to whose credit the deposit stands on the books of said bank or trust company: Provided, That this section shall not apply to any instance where the person to whose credit the deposit stands is a fiduciary for such adverse claimant, and the facts constituting such relationship, together with the facts showing reasonable cause of belief on the part of the said claimant that the said fiduciary is about to misappropriate said deposit, are made to appear by the affidavit of such claimant. (Apr. 5, 1939, 53 Stat. 566, ch. 37, § 2.)

§ 26-204. Payment of trust accounts on death of trustee.

Whenever a deposit, savings account, or share account, which is in form in trust for another, shall be made or held by any person in any bank, trust company, savings and loan association, building association, building and loan association, or Federal savings and loan association, doing business in the District of Columbia, and no other or further notice of the existence and terms of a legal and valid trust shall have been given in writing to such bank, trust company, or other association, such deposit, savings account, or share account, or any part thereof, together with the dividends, or interest thereon, may, in the event of the death of the trustee, be paid to the person for whom such deposit, savings account, or share account was made or held, or to his legal representative. (Apr. 5, 1939, 53 Stat. 567, ch. 37, § 4; July 19, 1954, 68 Stat. 494, ch. 545, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

1954—Act July 19, 1954, made the section applicable to savings account and share account and savings and loan association, building association, building and loan association, and Federal savings and loan association.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Language of the act of incorporation "liable to the creditors" does not create an independent and direct property right of creditors enforceable only by them in an equity suit, but it is a right which, though created for their benefit, accrues to the Comptroller and through him to his receiver, by whom alone it is enforceable in the administration of the trust estate. Dunn v. O'Connor (1937, 89 F. 2d 820, 67 App. D.C. 76).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

State bank operating in District

Comptroller has the same control and management of an insolvent State bank operating in the District as in the case of national banks and it likewise includes all provisions for the collection of debts and the distribution of assets, and as well the enforcement of the liability of stockholders. Hamilton v. Offutt (1935, 78 F. 2d 735, 64 App. D.C. 385).

§ 26-314. Real estate which may be owned.

Any company operating under this chapter may lease, purchase, hold, and convey real property in which the offices of the company are located not to exceed in value the capital and surplus of the company, and such in addition as it may acquire in satisfaction of debts due the corporation under sales, decrees, judgments, and mortgages. But no such association shall hold the possession of any real estate under foreclosure of mortgage, or the title and possession of any real estate purchased to secure any debts due to it, for a longer period than five years. ## NOTES TO DECISIONS

Determination of liability

Liability of a stockholder is determined by the charter of incorporation and the laws of the State in which incorporation is had, and no liability will be read into statute where none exists. Hamilton v. Offutt (1935, 78 F. 2d 735, 64 App. D. C. 385, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 121, 296 U. S. 592, 80 L. Ed. 419).

Double liability

Taking possession of District bank by Comptroller does not impose double liability on stockholders unless State does. Hamilton v. Offutt (1935, 78 F. 2d 735, 64 App. D.C. 385, certiorari denied 56 S. Ct. 121, 296 U.S. 592, 80 L. Ed. 419).

Double liability is no more the asset of the corporation than the double liability created by the District statute with relation to trust companies and in either case it is an asset of creditors and not of the corporation. Dunn v. O'Connor (1937, 89 F. 2d 820, 67 App. D. C. 76).

§ 26-323. Stock to be paid up in money only—Exception—Companies doing business prior to January 1, 1902.

Nothing but money shall be considered as payment of any part of the capital stock, except that in the case of any company doing business on January 1, 1902, in the District of Columbia in any of the classes herein provided for, or under any act of Congress, or by virtue of the laws of any of the States, and which company had on that date actually received full payment in money of at least fifty per centum of the capital stock required by this chapter, and which company desires to obtain a charter under this chapter, all the assets or property may be received and considered as money at a value to be appraised and fixed by the Comptroller of the Currency: Provided, That all such assets and property are also transferred to and are thereafter owned by the company organized under this chapter. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1308, ch. 854, § 735.)

§ 26-324. Number of directors or trustees—Election—Tenure.

The stock, property, and concerns of such company shall be managed by not less than nine nor more than thirty directors or trustees, who shall, respectively, be stockholders, and citizens of the United States, and at least two-thirds of whom shall reside in the District of Columbia or within one hundred miles of the location of the principal office of the company, and shall, except the first year, be annually elected by the stockholders at such time and place and after such published notice as shall be determined by the bylaws of the company, and said directors or trustees shall hold until their successors are elected and qualified. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1308, ch. 854, § 736; Aug. 28, 1957, 71 Stat. 474, Pub. L. 85-199, § 1.)

Subordinate officers may be appointed by the directors or trustees, and all such officers may be required to give such security for the faithful performance of the duties of their offices as the directors or trustees may require. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1308, ch. 854, § 738.)

§ 26-327. Directors or trustees liable for debts if dividends are declared whereby corporation is rendered insolvent or debt is created thereby.

If the directors or trustees of any company shall declare or pay any dividend the payment of which would render it insolvent, or which would create a debt against such company, they shall be jointly and severally liable as guarantors for all the debts of the company then existing, and for all that shall be thereafter contracted while they shall, respectively, remain in office. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1308, ch. 854, § 740.)

§ 26-329. Directors or trustees personally liable when liabilities exceed assets.

If the liabilities of any company shall at any time exceed the amount of the fair cash value of the assets, the directors or trustees of such company assenting thereto shall be personally and individually liable for such excess to the creditors of the company, after the additional liability of the stockholders has been enforced. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1308, ch. 854, § 741.)

§ 26-330. Executors, administrators, guardians, or trustees not liable as stockholder—Estate liable.

No person holding stock in such company as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee shall be personally subject to any liability as stockholder of such company, but the estate and funds in the hands of such executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator or intestate or the ward or the person interested in such trust fund would have been if he had been living and competent to act and hold the stock in his own name. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1308, ch. 854, § 742.)

§ 26-331. Increase or decrease of capital stock—Approval by Comptroller—Distribution of assets.

§ 26-405. Associations existing under laws of other States doing business in District of Columbia must comply—Provisions requisite—Penalty.

No foreign association shall make loans of any kind or transact any building and loan business within the District of Columbia or maintain an office in the District of Columbia for the purpose of transacting such business until it procures from the Home Loan Bank Board a certificate of authority to do such business in said District, after complying with the following provisions:

(a) It shall deposit with the Treasurer of the United States $50,000 in cash or bonds of the United States or bonds which the United States guarantees the payment of both principal and interest. A foreign association may collect and use the interest on securities deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, as hereinabove provided, so long as it fulfills its obligations and complies with the laws of the District of Columbia. It may also exchange them for other securities of the United States or for cash. The deposit made by a foreign association with the Treasury of the United States shall be held as security for all claims of residents of the District of Columbia against such association, and be liable for all judgments or decrees thereon, and subjected to the payment thereof in the same manner as the property of other nonresidents. Should an association cease to do business in said District, the Treasurer of the United States, upon a certificate from the Home Loan Bank Board, may release securities in his discretion, retaining sufficient to satisfy all outstanding liabilities;

(b) It shall file with the Home Loan Bank Board a certified copy of its charter, constitution, and bylaws, and other rules and regulations showing its manner of conducting business, together with a statement such as is required semiannually from all associations;

(c) It shall file with the Home Loan Bank Board a power of attorney appointing a citizen of the District of Columbia, resident within said District, the agent or attorney for such foreign association upon whom process of law can be served. There must also be filed a certified copy of the vote or resolution of the directors appointing such agent or attorney, which appointment shall continue until another agent or attorney is substituted, and said writing or power of attorney shall stipulate and agree on the part of such foreign association making the same that any lawful process against said association, which is served on such agent or attorney, shall be of the same legal force and validity as if served on such association within the District of Columbia; and, also, that in the case of the death or absence of the agent or attorney so appointed, service or process may be made upon the Home Loan Bank Board, and such power of attorney cannot be revoked or modified (except that a new one may be substituted) so long as any liability remains outstanding against such foreign association in the District of Columbia. The term "process," used above, shall be held and deemed to include any writ, summons, or order whereby any action, suit, or proceeding shall be commenced, or which shall be issued in or upon any action, suit, or proceeding by any court, officer, or magistrate.

(d) It shall pay to the collector of taxes the following fees:

For filing an application for admission to do business in the District of Columbia, $500;

For each certificate of authority and annual renewal thereof, $200.

(e) When a foreign association has complied with the provisions of paragraph (c) of this section, and the Home Loan Bank Board is satisfied that it is doing or will do its building and loan business in the District of Columbia in accordance with the laws of the District of Columbia, such Board may issue its certificate of authority to such foreign association to do a building and loan business in the District of Columbia. Annually thereafter, if the Home Loan Bank Board is satisfied as herein provided, it shall issue a renewal of such certificate.

(f) Should the Home Loan Bank Board find that such foreign association does not conduct its building and loan business in accordance with law, or that the affairs of such association are in unsafe condition, or if such foreign association refuses to permit examination to be made, the Home Loan Bank Board may revoke the certificate of authority granted, after ninety days' notice, to such foreign association to do a building and loan business in the District of Columbia; Provided, That upon revocation of such certificate of authority the Home Loan Bank Board shall mail a notice thereof to the home office of such foreign association and cause a similar notice to be published in at least one daily newspaper of general circulation in the District of Columbia. After so notifying said home office and after the publication of said notice, it shall be unlawful for any agent of such foreign association to receive any further payments from shareholders residing in the District of Columbia.

(g) Every foreign association doing a building and loan business in the District of Columbia shall be subject to the same examination as are domestic associations and such examination may include examination of all subsidiaries of such foreign associations and all business operations wherever apparent: Provided, That the Home Loan Bank Board may accept reports of examination by other supervisory agents in lieu of making such examinations and provided that all the actual and necessary expenses of such examinations of such foreign associations shall be paid by the association examined.

(h) Whenever any taxes, fines, penalties, fees, licenses, or conditions precedent are imposed by the laws of any State upon building and loan associations organized or incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia, and doing business in the said State, in excess of the taxes, fines, penalties, fees, licenses, or conditions precedent imposed by the laws of the District of Columbia upon foreign associations doing a building and loan business in the District of Columbia, the same taxes, fines, penalties, fees, licenses, or conditions precedent shall be imposed upon every association incorporated under the laws of such State doing, or applying to do, a building and loan business in the District of Columbia, so long as such excess taxes, fines, penalties, fees, licenses, or conditions precedent are imposed by such State; and upon the failure of any association incorporated under the laws of such State to comply therewith the Home Loan Bank Board shall revoke the certificate of authority of such association to do a building and loan business in the District of Columbia or shall refuse to grant such certificate of authority in the first instance.

(i) A foreign association which does a building and loan business in the District of Columbia without first complying with the provisions of this chapter, or which willfully violates or fails to comply with the provisions of laws relating to foreign associations, shall forfeit and pay not less than $25 or more than $500, to be recovered by an action in the name of the United States and on collection paid into the Treasury of the United States. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 691a, as added Mar. 4, 1909, 35 Stat. 1059, ch. 303, § 2, and amended July 18, 1939, 53 Stat. 1060, ch. 322, § 1; Sept. 15, 1951, 65 Stat. 323, ch. 404, § 2.)

1951—Act Sept. 15, 1951, amended the section by changing references to the Comptroller of the Currency to the Home Loan Bank Board.

Subsec. (g) amended by act Sept. 15, 1951, which deleted the final provision which read: "if said examination is made beyond the limits of the District of Columbia, but if made within the limits of the District of Columbia, the cost of the examination to be at the same rate and upon the same terms as provided in § 26-404."

1939—Act July 8, 1939, amended section generally. Prior to such amendment, section read as follows: "That any building association incorporated or unincorporated, organized and existing under the laws of any State or Territory, except the District of Columbia, to do or now doing, in the District of Columbia, a building association business or otherwise operating as a building association, shall be subject to all the provisions of the foregoing section of this act in respect of the powers of the Comptroller of the Currency hereunder, and, any such association or corporation shall at all times keep on deposit with the Comptroller of the Currency in money or stocks, bonds or mortgages or other securities to be approved by said officer not less than ten per centum of its capital and surplus as security for its depositors and creditors, and as a guarantee for the faithful performance of its contracts, and may also make such further deposit of its assets as above described with the Comptroller for such purpose as it may from time to time desire so to do."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1939 AMENDMENT

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Compliance with statutory requirements

The "Union Home Builders" and similar organizations must comply with statutory provisions as to examination and control by Comptroller of the Currency. (33 O. A. G. 418).

§ 26-406. Advancements.

The moneys accumulated from time to time shall be offered to such shareholder or shareholders as shall bid the highest premium for preference or priority of right to an advancement of the ultimate value of one or more of his or their respective shares. The said premium shall consist of a percentage on the amount of the advance and shall be deemed to be a consideration or bonus paid by the shareholder for the present and immediate use and possession of the future or ultimate value of the share so advanced, and shall not be deemed usurious. The said premium may either be deducted in advance from the amount to be advanced to the shareholder or be made payable in monthly installments, in addition to legal interest on the sum advanced, as the by-laws may provide. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1299, ch. 854, § 692.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Status of contract after insolvency

Where contract between borrowing member of a building association by the giving of a bond and a deed of trust to secure the bond, is that in consideration of sum advanced he will pay to the association monthly payments, the insolvency of the association and appointment of a receiver will not abrogate the contract between it and one of its members and the substitution for that contract of some other arrangement which a court may deem equitable. Armstrong v. United States Bldg. & Loan Assn. (1899, 15 App. D.C. 1).

Surrender of stock

Where building association advanced money to one of its members and received therefor an assignment of stock held by him, and a deed of trust upon his real estate to secure his notes, a suit by a person who purchased the property was entitled to a release of the deed of trust upon payment of remaining notes, and the association could not enforce payment of accruing dues after the payment of the last note. Eastern Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Olmsted (1900, 16 App. D.C. 387).

When borrower from building association surrenders his stock to the association upon mortgage loan being made to him, he becomes a creditor of the association and when accounting is made he is to be charged with amount actually received by him on account of loan, with interest, whether by way of premium, dues or interest. Croissant v. Empire State Realty Co. (1907, 29 App. D.C. 538).

Usurious premiums

A provision of building association mortgage that the borrower instead of paying the usual premium is to pay monthly during continuance of the mortgage, a specified sum called premium, in addition to legal rate of interest, is void as usurious payment. Middle States Loan v. Baker (1901, 19 App. D.C. 1).

The provision that premiums to be charged by building associations shall not be deemed usurious, is not retroactive, and it does not affect borrower's right to redeem mortgaged property from building association, when such right existed before the Code went into effect. Washington Nat. Bldg. & Loan Assn. v. Fiske (1902, 20 App. D.C. 514, certiorari denied 23 S. Ct. 848, 188 U.S. 740, 47 L. Ed. 677).

Test to determine whether building association loan is usurious is usually whether the promise to pay the sum above legal interest depends upon a contingency, and not upon the happening of a certain event. The loan is not usurious if it depends upon a contingency. Whelpley v. Ross (1905, 25 App. D.C. 207).

§ 26-407. Security for advancement.

For every advance made as aforesaid a bond in a penalty equal to the ultimate value of the shares advanced may be required, secured by a first mortgage or deed of trust on real estate, and a pledge of the shares advanced upon, as additional or collateral security, which bond shall be conditioned for the payment at the stated meetings of the corporation of the monthly dues on the share so advanced upon and the interest on the sum advanced, and the instalments of premium, if made so payable, and all fines chargeable upon arrears of payments, until said shares shall reach their ultimate value aforesaid, or said advance be otherwise canceled or discharged. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1299, ch. 854, § 693.)

§ 26-408. Profits.

The shares advanced upon shall participate equally with the other shares in the profits and the amounts paid by the advanced shareholders, together with such proportion of the profits accrued or such rate of interest as said by-laws may determine, the same as allowed on shares withdrawn not advanced upon, less all fines and a proportionate part of losses and other charges incurred. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1299, ch. 854, § 694.)

§ 26-409. Redemption of shares.

Where advances from the funds on hand can not be made on satisfactory terms, the shareholders failing to bid therefor, the by-laws may provide for the redemption of shares of stock, with the consent of the shareholders, and in case that can not be done, for the involuntary withdrawal and cancelation of shares, the said shares to be selected by lot, always from the oldest series, until exhausted, or the funds to be applied ratably among the owners of shares of the same series. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1300, ch. 854, § 695.)

§ 26-410. Withdrawal by shareholder.

A shareholder shall be entitled to withdraw at any time, by giving such notice as the by-laws may require, where no advance has been made on his shares, in which case he shall be entitled to receive the amount of dues paid in by him on each of his shares, together with such proportion of the profits accrued or such rate of interest as said by-laws may determine, less all fines due and a proportionate part of all losses and other charges incurred: Provided, That not more than one-half of the funds in the treasury at any time shall be applicable to the demands of the withdrawing shareholders without the consent of the board of trustees. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1300, ch. 854, § 696.)

§ 26-411. Repayment of advances.

A shareholder who has been advanced may at any time repay his advance upon application to the corporation, whereupon, on settlement of his account, he shall be charged with the full amount of the advance and of the accrued instalments of the premium, if that has been added to the advancement and made payable in instalments, together with all monthly dues, interest, and fines accrued and charged, and shall receive credit for all monthly dues paid on his shares and the profits thereon the same as are allowed under the by-laws on shares withdrawn not advanced upon, and, if the premium has been deducted in advance, with such proportion of the premium as the by-laws may direct, and the balance remaining due, over and above such credits, shall be received by said corporation in satisfaction and discharge of said advance: Provided, That in case of the insolvency of the association, he shall not be entitled to credit for the full amount of dues paid by him, but shall only be entitled to a dividend upon said amount, in common with the nonadvanced shareholders. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1300, ch. 854, § 697.)

§ 26-412. Forfeiture.

Any nonadvanced shareholder failing to pay the instalments due on his share and the fines due from him for such time as the by-laws shall determine, shall forfeit his stock, but may, on application, receive a return of the amount paid in on account of his stock, less the accrued fines. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1300, ch. 854, § 698.)

§ 26-413. Foreclosure.

In case any advanced shareholder shall fail to pay all dues, interest, or premiums and shall be in arrears for any part of the same for the period of two months, the payment of the same and of the principal of the advance may be enforced by a foreclosure of the securities given for the same, and if upon a statement of account, as in case of a voluntary settlement of said advance, as hereinbefore authorized, there shall be any surplus of the proceeds of sale of the property given as security over the amount found due from such advanced shareholder, together with all costs incurred by the corporation, such surplus shall be paid to said defaulting shareholder, or his assigns, and his shares of stock so advanced upon shall be the property of the corporation. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1300, ch. 854, § 699.)

§ 26-414. Investment of funds in real estate.

Such corporation shall not invest its fund in any real estate except what is necessary for the conduct of its business, but may purchase such property at sales made upon foreclosure of mortgages or in satisfaction of judgments or other liens held by it: Provided, That such property so purchased be sold within a reasonable time thereafter. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1300, ch. 854, § 700.)

Burden of proof

It is well established that one who alleges usury or any contractual illegality has the burden of proving it and it was incumbent on the District to adduce evidence establishing an excessive finance payment and the fact that the plaintiff bank did not prove the amount of insurance premium did not relieve the District of its burden of proof. District of Columbia v. Hamilton National Bank (D. C. Mun. App. 1950, 76 A. 2d 60).

Construction

"Loan shark law" making it illegal to engage in business of loaning money without procuring a license is a licensing statute, unrelated to and unaffected by usury statutes. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Ten Individual Defendants, Net Limited, Inc., et ano. (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

This chapter, the usury law, section 28-3303, and section 47-1701 et seq., regarding financial institutions are to be read together and when so read constitute a comprehensive code for business of lending money in the District of Columbia. Hartman v. Lubar (1943, 133 F. 2d 44, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 95, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1329, 319 U. S.

767, 87 L. Ed. 1716, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 30, 320 U. S. 808, 88 L. Ed. 488).

Defenses

Defense that contract violates this chapter is available, not only against the nominal maker of the loan, but against the principal for whom he acts and against the holder of an instrument given to secure payment of loan, if the holder knew of its illegality. Hartman v. Lubar (1943, 133 F. 2d 44, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 95, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1329, 319 U. S. 767, 87 L. Ed. 1716, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 30, 320 U. S. 808, 88 L. Ed. 488).

Evidence—Admissibility

In action to recover for wrongful foreclosure of deed of trust, evidence was admissible to show that lender was doing business in violation of Loan Shark Law making it unlawful for person to engage in business of loaning money at interest rate greater than 6% per annum without procuring license. Royall v. L. Yudelevit and W. H. Simons (1959, 268 F. 2d 577, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Where lender of approximately $900 took from borrower note for $1,000 payable in $20 weekly installments and secured by chattel trust deed, in replevin suit by trustee of endorsee finance company to recover the chattel, evidence that lender was principal stockholder and president of endorsee company, that trustee was officer of and counsel for the company, that loan was actually made by the company and that the company was engaged in business of lending money in District of Columbia at an interest rate greater than six percent without having procured a license was admissible to show illegality of the transaction and the resulting absence of title in trustee. Hartman v. Lubar (1943, 133 F. 2d 44, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 95, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1329, 319 U. S. 767, 87 L. Ed. 1716, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 30, 320 U. S. 808, 88 L. Ed. 488).

Where borrowers contended that lender was engaged in business of loaning money within this chapter and that payee of note was but a straw party for the lender, trial court properly refused to admit in evidence against lender other notes payable to same payee, where witness testified that the payee lent money herself. Knott v. Jackson (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 662).

Where there was evidence that indorsee finance company for which trustee brought replevin suit to recover chattels named in chattel trust deed securing a note was in the business of lending money rather than solely that of discounting notes in the sense of buying from a creditor an existing obligation at less than face value, proffered evidence consisting of court trials of five municipal court cases in which finance company sued to recover on notes assigned to it was material to defendant's defense that finance company was in business of lending money at rate of interest greater than 6 percent without required license and should have been admitted. Hartman v. Lubar (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 553).

— Sufficiency

Where it was established that lending agency in two instances violated statutes making it unlawful to "engage in business" of loaning money at rate greater than 6 percent per annum on any security without procuring a license, there was sufficient showing that agency did "engage in business" within meaning of statute. Columbia Auto Loan Inc. v. District of Columbia (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 78 A. 2d 857).

Evidence that lender had made five loans was not sufficient to warrant finding that lender was engaged in the "business of loaning money" within this chapter. Knott v. Jackson (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 662).

Illegal contracts

Every consideration of "public policy" suggests that a contract made in violation of this chapter should be unenforceable. Hartman v. Lubar (1943, 133 F. 2d 44, 77 U. S. App. D. C. 95, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1329, 319 U. S. 767, 87 L. Ed. 1716, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 30, 320 U. S. 808, 88 L. Ed. 488).

Where no legal insurance was obtained on automobile by lending agency when contract was executed under which charge was exacted which made the total more than 6 percent annually on amount loaned, even though part of the charge was called an "insurance premium", the charge was for "interest", and lending agency violated this section making it unlawful to engage in business of loaning money at rate greater than 6 percent per annum on any security without procuring a license. Columbia Auto Loan Inc. v. District of Columbia (D. C. Mun. App. 1951, 78 A. 2d 857).

— Rights under illegal contracts

Borrowing corporation which entered into allegedly usurious loan contract, illegal in that lender failed to comply with licensing requirement could recover damages sustained because of illegal contract unless lender could establish an adequate affirmative defense. Indian Lake Estates v. Ten Individual Defendants, Net Limited, Inc., et ano. (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

A borrower who enters into a usurious contract, void because lender violated Loan Shark Law for not having license, may recover from lender any damages sustained by reason of such void contract. Royall v. L. Yudelevit and W. H. Simons (1959, 268 F. 2d 577, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Inferences

Where defendant had subpoenas duces tecum served upon officers of indorsee finance company for which trustee was maintaining replevin suit to compel them to produce at trial all records regarding the company for purpose of showing that company was in business of lending money at rate of interest greater than 6 percent without required license, and officers failed to produce the records, jury could infer from failure to produce subpoenaed records that contents thereof would have been unfavorable to trustee's case. Hartman v. Lubar (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 553).

Liability—Lender

Where lender, not licensed as required by Loan Shark Law, grants usurious loan, and makes foreclosure possible by transfer of void note and deed of trust, lender is liable in damages resulting from foreclosure by his transferee, even if transferee was innocent throughout. Royall v. L. Yudelevit and W. H. Simons (1959, 268 F. 2d 577, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

— Transferee

Where one takes note and deed of trust with notice or knowledge that transferor had obtained them through usurious loan contract made in violation of Loan Shark Law requiring license of lender, a foreclosure thereunder by such person is unlawful and he is liable for damages caused thereby. Royall v. L. Yudelevit and W. H. Simons (1959, 268 F. 2d 577, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Occasional loans

A nonresident who makes occasional loans on real estate in the District, is not engaged "in the business" of loaning money within the meaning of the Loan Shark Law. Zirkle v. Daly (1932, 54 F. 2d 455, 60 App. D. C. 344).

Office outside the District

A pawnbroker violates this law if he stores pledged goods in the city of Washington, and uses it as a collecting center, but applications for loans are made just over the line in Virginia, to which place free automobile service is maintained, and loans are there made at an excessive rate. Horning v. District of Columbia (1920, 41 S. Ct. 53, 254 U. S. 135, 65 L. Ed. 185).

Pari delicto

Under Loan Shark Law requiring license of persons engaged in business of loaning money at interest rate greater than 6% per annum, borrower is not in pari delicto with lender and his participation with him in making loan does not bar borrower from asserting illegality of loan. Royall v. L. Yudelevit and W. H. Simons (1959, 268 F. 2d 577, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Persons protected by enactment

A borrower is member of class for whose protection statute, requiring license of persons engaged in business of loaning money at interest rate greater than 6% per annum, was enacted. Royall v. L. Yudelevit and W. H. Simons (1959, 268 F. 2d 577, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

Remedies

Borrower under usurious loan contract made in violation of statute requiring license of lender had right to elect whether to go into equity and ask that foreclosure sale, caused by transferee of void note and deed of trust, be set aside, or to let sale stand and ask for damages. Royall v. L. Yudelevit and W. H. Simons (1959, 268 F. 2d 577, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

An action at law for damages for wrongful foreclosure is an especially appropriate remedy where an innocent purchaser buys at foreclosure, because it gives relief against guilty rather than innocent party. Id.

Sales

In suit by conditional buyer of automobile against seller and finance company, to which conditional sale agreement and note covering deferred purchase price were negotiated, to have agreement and note declared void and to recover money paid under agreement, evidence sustained finding that the transaction was a sale and not a loan of money, and that therefore the sanctions of the Loan Shark Law did not apply. Brooks v. Auto Wholesalers (D. C. Mun. App. 1953, 101 A. 2d 255).

Small loans

Loan Shark Law was intended to apply only to persons making small loans upon personal security and not to a case in which a debt of $177,500 was secured by a first trust upon real estate. Von Rosen v. Dean (1920, 41 F. 2d 982, 59 App. D. C. 359).

This chapter is not a usury statute, but an act licensing, under limitations and restrictions, the lending of money in small sums on personal security, and was intended to apply only to persons making small loans on personal security. Knott v. Jackson (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 662).

Loan of nearly $700 was not a "small loan" within this chapter, which provides, under § 26-605, that person violating the provisions of this chapter shall forfeit all interest, and in addition a sum equal to one-fourth of the principal sum. Id.

Summary judgment

Assuming original contracts and engagements were illegal and void because of violation of usury statutes and "loan shark law," claims of complaint that parties entered into agreements purporting to settle and compromise original contracts and engagements and that settlement agreements did not eliminate illegality presented complex issues of fact and law and mixed questions of law and fact not susceptible of disposition by summary judgment. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Lichtman (1962, 311 F. 2d 776, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 90).

Unlicensed lender

A lender in a loan contract which is merely usurious may not be liable in damages, but if there is added the fact that the lender was not licensed as required by law, loan contract is unlawful and void, and a foreclosure thereunder is wrongful and gives rise to action for damages suffered therefrom. Royall v. L. Yudelevit and W. H. Simons (1959, 268 F. 2d 577, 106 U.S. App. D.C. 1).

§ 26-602. Application for license filed with Commissioners—Contents of application—Date and expiration of license—Notice of application posted and published—Protests—Hearings—Rejection of application.

Applications for license to conduct such business must be made in writing to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia, and shall contain the full names and addresses of applicants, if natural persons, and in the case of firms and voluntary associations, the full names and addresses of all the members thereof, and in the case of joint-stock companies, incorporated societies, and corporations, the full names and addresses of the officers and directors thereof and under what law or laws organized or incorporated, and the place where such business is to be conducted, and such other information as the said commissioners may require. Every license granted shall date from the first of the month in which it is issued and expire on the 31st day of the following October, and such license shall be kept conspicuously displayed in the place of business of the licensee. Every application shall be filed not less than thirty days prior to the granting of such license, and notice of the filing of such application shall be posted in the office of the Superintendent of Licenses of the said District and be published twice a week for three successive weeks in a daily newspaper published in the District of Columbia. Protest may be made by any person to the issuing of such license, and when such protests are filed with the said commissioners the latter shall give public notice of and hold a public hearing upon such protests before issuing such license. The said commissioners shall have the power to reject any application for license after a hearing upon such protest or for failure on the part of the applicant to observe this chapter, or when such applicant shall have violated its provisions. (Feb. 4, 1913, 37 Stat. 657, ch. 26, § 2; Mar. 3, 1917, 39 Stat. 1006, ch. 160.)

AMENDMENT

1917—Act Mar. 3, 1917, substituted "Superintendent of Licenses" for the "assessor."

§ 26-603. Bond to accompany application—Sureties—Actions on bond—Copy of bond to be furnished upon request—Renewal of bond.

Each application shall be accompanied by a bond to the District of Columbia in the penal sum of five thousand dollars, with two or more sufficient sureties, and conditioned that the obligor will not violate any law relating to such business. The execution of any such bond by a fidelity or surety company authorized by the laws of the United States to transact business therein shall be equivalent to the execution thereof by two sureties, and such company, if excepted to, shall justify in the manner required by law of fidelity and surety companies. If any person shall be aggrieved by the misconduct of any such licensed person, firm, voluntary association, joint-stock company, incorporated society, or corporation, or by his, their, or its violation of any law relating to such business, and shall recover a judgment therefor, such person or his personal representative or heirs or distributees may, after a return unsatisfied either in whole or in part of any execution issued upon such judgment, maintain an action in his own name upon such bond herein required in any court having jurisdiction of the amount claimed. The commissioners of the District of Columbia shall furnish to anyone applying therefor a certified copy of any such bond filed with them, upon the payment of a fee of twenty-five cents, and such certified copy shall be prima facie evidence in any court that such bond was duly executed and delivered by the person, firm, voluntary association, joint-stock company, incorporated society, or corporation whose names appear thereon. Said bond shall be renewed and refiled annually in October of each year, or the licensed person, firm, voluntary association, joint-stock company, incorporated society, or corporation shall within thirty days thereafter, cease doing business, and their license shall be revoked by the said commissioners, but said bond until renewed and refiled as aforesaid shall be and remain in full force and effect. (Feb. 4, 1913, 37 Stat. 658, ch. 26, § 3.)

§ 26-604. Register to be kept—Contents—Inspection of register—Annual statements.

Every person, firm, voluntary association, joint-stock company, incorporated society, or corporation conducting such business shall keep a register, approved by said commissioners, showing in English, the amount of money loaned, the date when loaned and when due, the person to whom loaned, the property or thing named as security for the loan, where the same is located and in whose possession, the amount of interest, all fees, commissions, charges, and renewals charged, under whatever name. Such register shall be open for inspection to the said commissioners, their officers and agents, on every day, except Sundays and legal holidays, between the hours of nine o'clock in the forenoon and five o'clock in the afternoon. Every such person, firm, voluntary association, joint-stock company, incorporated society, or corporation conducting such business shall, on or before the 20th day of January of each year, make to the said commissioners an annual statement in the form of a trial balance of its books on the 31st day of December in each year, specifying the different kinds of its liabilities and the different kinds of its assets, stating the amount of each, together with such other information as may be called for. (Feb. 4, 1913, 37 Stat. 658, ch. 26, § 4.)

§ 26-605. Rate of interest—Interest to cover all fees and expenses—Not to be deducted in advance—Statement to be furnished borrower—Amount of loans—Penalties.

No such person, firm, voluntary association, joint-stock company, incorporated society, or corporation shall charge or receive a greater rate of interest upon any loan made by him or it than one per centum per month on the actual amount of the loan, and this charge shall cover all fees, expenses, demands, and services of every character, including notarial and recording fees and charges, except upon the foreclosure of the security. The foregoing interest shall not be deducted from the principal of loan when same is made. Every such person, firm, voluntary association, joint-stock company, incorporated society, or corporation conducting such business shall furnish the borrower a written, type-written, or printed statement at the time the loan is made, showing, in English, in clear and distinct terms, the amount of the loan, the date when loaned and when due, the person to whom the loan is made, the name of the lender, the amount of interest charged, and the lender shall give the borrower a plain and complete receipt for all payments made on account of the loan at the time such payments are made. No such loan greater than two hundred dollars shall be made to any one person: Provided, That any person contracting, directly or indirectly, for, or receiving a greater rate of interest than that fixed in this chapter, shall forfeit all interest so contracted for or received; and in addition thereto shall forfeit to the borrower a sum of money, to be deducted from the amount due for principal, equal to one-fourth of the principal sum: And provided further, That any person in the employ of the Government who shall loan money in violation of the provisions of this chapter shall forfeit his office or position, and be removed from the same. (Feb. 4, 1913, 37 Stat. 659, ch. 26, § 5.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Advance deductions

In replevin by trustee of indorsee finance company to recover chattels named in trust deed securing a note, evidence that loan was usurious, in that an amount in excess of legal rate was deducted in advance and that plaintiff knew the amount deducted in advance, was sufficient to make defense of illegality available to defendant. Hartman v. Lubar (D. C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 553).

§ 26-606. Complaints—Hearings on complaints—Record of hearings—Revoking of, or refusal to grant license.

Complaints against any licensee or applicant for a license shall be made in writing to the said commissioners, and notice thereof of not less than three days shall be given to said licensee or applicant by serving upon him a concise statement of the facts constituting the complaint, and a hearing shall be had before the said commissioners within ten days from the date of the filing of the complaint, and no adjournment shall be taken for longer than one week. A daily calendar shall be kept of all hearings by the said commissioners, which shall be posted in a conspicuous place in their public office for at least three days before the date of such hearings. The said commissioners shall render their decision within eight days from the time the matter is finally submitted to them. Said commissioners shall keep a record of all such complaints and hearings, and may refuse to issue and shall suspend or revoke any license for any good cause shown, within the meaning and purpose of this chapter; and when it is shown to their satisfaction, whether as a result of a written complaint as aforesaid or otherwise, that any licensee or applicant under this chapter either before or after conviction, is guilty of any conduct in violation of this or any law relating to such business it shall be the duty of the said commissioners to suspend or revoke the license of such licensee or reject the petition of the applicant, but notice of the written complaint or proposed action shall be presented to and reasonable opportunity shall be given said licensee or applicant to be heard in his defense. Whenever for any cause such license is revoked, said commissioners shall not issue another license to said licensee until the expiration of at least one year from the date of revocation of such license, and not at all if such licensee shall have been convicted of a violation of this chapter under the provisions of section 26-607 thereof. (Feb. 4, 1913, 37 Stat. 659, ch. 26, § 6.)

in the discretion of the court. The said commissioners shall cause the corporation counsel to institute criminal proceedings for the enforcement of this chapter before any court of competent jurisdiction. (Feb. 4, 1913, 37 Stat. 659, ch. 26, § 7.)

§ 26-608. Attorneys' fees allowed on foreclosure.

In any foreclosure on any loan made under this chapter no charges for attorneys' or agents' fees shall be made or collected which will exceed ten per centum of the amount found due in such foreclosure proceedings. (Feb. 4, 1913, 37 Stat. 660, ch. 26, § 8.)

§ 26-609. Contracts for liquidated or other damages prohibited.

In any contract made in pursuance of the provisions of this chapter it shall be unlawful to incorporate any provision for liquidated or other damages as a penalty for any default or forfeiture thereunder. (Feb. 4, 1913, 37 Stat. 660, ch. 26, § 9.)

(a) Nothing contained in this chapter shall be held to apply to the legitimate business of national banks, licensed bankers, trust companies, savings banks, building and loan associations, small business investment companies licensed and operating under the Small Business Investment Act of 1958, or real estate brokers, as defined in sections 47-1701 to 47-1709, or to life insurance companies. As used in this section the term "life insurance companies" means and includes any life insurance company authorized to do business in the District of Columbia pursuant to the Life Insurance Act (48 Stat. 1127, et seq.) and any other life insurance company which has a valid, current license to do business as such in any State of the United States.

(b) Any person or any legal entity exempted from the provisions of this Act by such subsection (a) of this section making loans secured on real or personal property in the District of Columbia who or which does not maintain an office for doing business in the District of Columbia or a residence in said District where such person or legal entity may be served with process in any suit arising out of any such transaction or in connection with such property shall appoint and maintain at all times in the District of Columbia a resident agent upon whom process may be served in any such suit, and shall register with the Commissioners of the District of Columbia or with their designee the name and address of such resident agent. Any such person or legal entity which fails to appoint and maintain at all times in the District of Columbia such resident agent shall not, while such failure continues, be entitled to the exemption provided in this section. Whenever any such person or entity does not have in the District of Columbia an agent for service of process or such agent cannot with reasonable diligence be found at his registered address, then the said Commissioners or their designee shall be the agent for the service of process for such person or entity. Service of process on the Commissioners or their designee shall be made by delivering to, and leaving with them, or with any person having charge of their office, or with their designee, duplicate copies of the process accompanied by a fee in the amount of $2.00 and such service shall be sufficient service upon such person or entity. In the event of such service, the Commissioners, or their designee, shall immediately cause one of such copies to be forwarded by registered or certified mail, addressed to such person or entity at his or its address, as such address appears on the records of the Commissioners or their designee. Any such service shall be returnable in not less than thirty days unless the rules of the court issuing such process prescribe another period, in which case such prescribed period shall govern. Nothing contained in this section shall limit or affect the right to serve any process, notice, or demand required or permitted by law to be served on any such person or entity in any other manner now or hereafter permitted by law. (Feb. 4, 1913, 37 Stat. 660, ch. 26, § 10; June 11, 1960, 74 Stat. 196, Pub. L. 86-502, § 7; Dec. 5, 1963, 77 Stat. 344, Pub. L. 88-191, § 1.)

S. C. 248 (k)), pertaining to the collective investment of trust funds by national banks, establish common-trust funds for the purpose of furnishing investments to itself as fiduciary, or to itself and others as cofiduciaries; and may, as such fiduciary or cofiduciary, invest funds which it lawfully holds for investment in interests in such common-trust funds, if such investment is not prohibited by the instrument, judgment, decree, or order creating such fiduciary relationship, and if, in the case of cofiduciaries, the bank or trust company procures the written consent of its cofiduciaries to such investment. (a) A common trust fund, as herein defined, shall not be subject to any tax imposed by the District of Columbia Income and Franchise Tax Act of 1947, as amended, and for the purpose of said Act shall not be deemed to be a corporation.

(b) The net income of a common trust fund shall be computed in the same manner and on the same basis as in the case of an individual. Each participant in a common trust fund shall include, in computing its net income its proportionate share of the net income of such fund, whether or not distributed to it, and the amount so included in the net income of a participant shall be taxable to such participant, or its beneficiaries, in the manner and to the extent provided in title IX of the District of Columbia Income and Franchise Tax Act of 1947, as amended, as if any amount not distributed to the participant during its taxable year actually had been so distributed.

(c) No gain or loss shall be realized by a common trust fund upon the admission or withdrawal of a participant, or upon the admission or withdrawal of any interest of a participant. ### § 27-123. Reopening graves—Death from pestilential diseases.

No grave in said District shall be reopened, except for the purpose of disinterment, within ten years after burial of a person above twelve years of age, or within eight years after the burial of a child under twelve years of age, unless the grave has been, in the first instance, of sufficient depth to permit subsequent interments, in which case a layer of earth of not less than one foot thick shall be left undisturbed over the previously buried coffin, unless such coffin has been separately entombed in properly cemented stone or brick work; but if on reopening any grave the soil be found to be offensive, such soil shall not be disturbed. In no case shall a grave be opened in which has been buried the body of any person who has died of Asiatic cholera, yellow fever, typhus fever, smallpox (including varioloid), leprosy, the plague, tetanus, diphtheria, or scarlet fever: Provided, that the director of public health of the District of Columbia may, in his discretion, authorize the opening, under sanitary precautions, of any such grave, and the disinterment and reinterment in the same grave or other suitable burial ground, of the dead body of any person who has died of any of the contagious diseases enumerated above. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1297, ch. 854, § 680; Jan. 20, 1936, 49 Stat. 1095, ch. 12; Aug. 1, 1950, 64 Stat. 393, ch. 513, § 1.)

§ 27-124. Crematories—Consent of property owners—Permit.

No person shall, in the District of Columbia, build or maintain a crematory or other device for destroying human bodies, except within the limits of some duly-established cemetery in said District, unless such person or persons has in writing the consent of the owners of more than one-half of the property within a radius of two hundred feet from the place where such crematory is to be erected and maintained and a permit from the commissioners of said District for the erection and maintenance of such crematory or other device; such permit to be for a term of years, not exceeding five, to be specified therein: Provided, That this section shall not apply to such crematories or other devices for destroying human bodies as may have been erected and were in operation on March 3, 1901. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1298, ch. 854, § 682.)

It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to cremate or otherwise to destroy the dead body, or part of the dead body, of any human being in said

It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to embalm, inject, or by any similar method preserve the dead body, or part of the dead body, of any human being in said District within four hours after death or before the issue of the death certificate; and in case the death is believed to be due to other than natural causes, or the cause thereof is unknown, such embalming, injecting, or preserving shall at no time be done unless such death certificate has been signed or approved by the coroner of said District. Notwithstanding the provisions of this section, whenever any person is pronounced dead by a physician duly licensed or duly registered under the Healing Arts Practice Act of the District of Columbia, tissue donated in accordance with the provisions of the District of Columbia Tissue Bank Act may be removed by or under the supervision of a person licensed under the authority of section 2-253 for preservation in a tissue bank operating pursuant to such Act, without regard for any time limitation, or for any permit or certificate requirement, established by this section: Provided, That with respect to a dead human body in the custody of the Coroner or under his jurisdiction, no tissue shall be removed therefrom for preservation except with the specific approval of the Coroner in each case. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1298, ch. 854, § 683; Aug. 1, 1950, 64 Stat. 393, ch. 153, § 1; Sept. 10, 1962, 76 Stat. 537, Pub. L. 87-656, § 11.)

Nothing in sections 27-101 to 27-114, 27-115 to 27-117, 27-119a to 27-128 shall be construed to interfere with or prevent the disinterment of any body when such disinterment is ordered by one of the judges of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, or by the coroner of said district, after due notice to the Commissioners of the District of Columbia. The provisions hereof shall not be held to interfere with the disposal of the ashes of bodies which have been cremated. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1298, ch. 854, § 686; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 534, ch. 1329, § 686; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32 (a), (b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Post-mortem examinations

It was not error to admit testimony relative to the disinterment and post-mortem examination of the body of the deceased, and it was unnecessary that notice should be given the defendant of the intention on the part of the government to make the investigation. Nor is it material whether or not there was full compliance with this section. Laney v. United States (1924, 294 F. 412, 54 App. D.C. 56).

§ 27-129. Public crematory—Cremation required in certain cases.

Whenever the dead body of any person who has died from smallpox, Asiatic cholera, typhus fever, the plague, leprosy, glanders, scarlet fever, diphtheria, or epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis comes into the custody of any officer, employee, or agent of the District of Columbia to be disposed of at public expense, the said officer, employee, or agent shall cause said body to be incinerated. (Apr. 20, 1906, 34 Stat. 123, ch. 1641, § 1.)

§ 27-130. Establishment of crematory—Rules and regulations—Fees.

The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized and directed to operate on reservation thirteen, commonly known as the Washington Asylum grounds, in the city of Washington, in said District, a crematorium of size sufficient for the incineration of all bodies that can not, except at public expense, be disposed of within a reasonable time after death, and for the incineration of such other bodies as may be presented for that purpose by the persons having custody thereof. Said Commissioners are hereby authorized to make and enforce all rules necessary for the proper maintenance and operation of said crematorium, and to prescribe and collect for the incineration of bodies not necessarily disposed of at public expense fees in such amounts as may be required to defray the cost of incineration: Provided, That in any case the Commissioners may, by special order, waive or reduce the usual charges whenever, in the opinion of said Commissioners, to enforce such charges would be burdensome or oppressive upon the person or persons responsible for the disposal of the remains. All fees collected under the provisions of this section shall be paid to the collector of taxes of the District of Columbia, and be deposited by him in the Treasury of the United States wholly to the credit of the District of Columbia. (Apr. 20, 1906, 34 Stat. 123, ch. 1641, § 2; Feb. 22, 1921, 41 Stat. 1144, ch. 70, § 7.)

§ 28:1-102. Purposes; rules of construction; variation by agreement.

(1) This subtitle shall be liberally construed and applied to promote its underlying purposes and policies.

(2) Underlying purposes and policies of this subtitle are:

(a) to simplify, clarify and modernize the law governing commercial transactions;

(b) to permit the continued expansion of commercial practices through custom, usage and agreement of the parties;

(c) to make uniform the law among the various jurisdictions.

(3) The effect of provisions of this subtitle may be varied by agreement, except as otherwise provided in this subtitle and except that the obligations of good faith, diligence, reasonableness and care prescribed by this subtitle may not be disclaimed by agreement but the parties may by agreement determine the standards by which the performance of such obligations is to be measured if such standards are not manifestly unreasonable.

(5) In this subtitle unless the context otherwise requires:

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Impracticability of performance

The concept of impracticability assumes that performance was physically possible, a rule making nonperformance a condition precedent to recovery would unjustifiably encourage disappointment of expectations, and there is nothing necessarily inconsistent in claiming commercial impracticability for method of performance actually adopted and, accordingly, impossibility issue may be raised in suit to recover cost of alternative method of performance. Transatlantic Financing Corporation v. United States (1966, 363 F. 2d 312, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 183).

In some cases, even an express expectation may not, for purposes of doctrine of impossibility of performance, amount to a condition of performance. Id.

§ 28:1-103. Supplementary general principles of law applicable.

Unless displaced by the particular provisions of this subtitle, the principles of law and equity, including the law merchant and the law relative to capacity to contract, principal and agent, estoppel, fraud, misrepresentation, duress, coercion, mistake, bankruptcy, or other validating or invalidating cause shall supplement its provisions. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 631, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1-104. Construction against implicit repeal.

This subtitle being a general act intended as a unified coverage of its subject matter, no part of it shall be deemed to be impliedly repealed by subsequent legislation if such construction can reasonably be avoided. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 631, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1-105. Territorial application of this subtitle; parties' power to choose applicable law.

(1) Except as provided hereafter in this section, when a transaction bears a reasonable relation to the District and also to a state or nation the parties may agree that the law either of the District or of such state or nation shall govern their rights and duties. Failing such agreement this subtitle applies to transactions bearing an appropriate relation to the District.

(2) Where one of the following provisions of this subtitle specifies the applicable law, that provision governs and a contrary agreement is effective only to the extent permitted by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) so specified:

Rights of creditors against sold goods. Section 28:2-402.

Applicability of the article on bank deposits and collections. Section 28:4-102.

Bulk transfers subject to the article on bulk transfers. Section 28:6-102.

Applicability of the article on investment securities. Section 28:8-106.

Policy and scope of the article on secured transactions. Sections 28:9-102 and 28:9-103.

§ 28:1-106. Remedies to be liberally administered.

(1) The remedies provided by this subtitle shall be liberally administered to the end that the aggrieved party may be put in as good a position as if the other party had fully performed but neither consequential or special nor penal damages may be had except as specifically provided in this subtitle or by other rule of law.

(2) Any right or obligation declared by this subtitle is enforceable by action unless the provision declaring it specifies a different and limited effect. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1-107. Waiver or renunciation of claim or right after breach.

Any claim or right arising out of an alleged breach can be discharged in whole or in part without consideration by a written waiver or renunciation signed and delivered by the aggrieved party. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1-108. Severability.

If any provision or clause of this subtitle or application thereof to any person or circumstances is held invalid, such invalidity shall not affect other provisions or applications of this subtitle which can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this subtitle are declared to be severable. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1-109. Section captions.

Section captions are parts of this subtitle. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 2.—GENERAL DEFINITIONS AND PRINCIPLES OF INTERPRETATION

§ 28:1-201. General definitions.

Subject to additional definitions contained in the subsequent articles of this subtitle which are applicable to specific articles or parts thereof, and unless the context otherwise requires, in this subtitle:

(1) "Action" in the sense of a judicial proceeding includes recoupment, counterclaim, set-off, suit in equity and any other proceedings in which rights are determined.

(2) "Aggrieved party" means a party entitled to resort to a remedy.

(3) "Agreement" means the bargain of the parties in fact as found in their language or by implication from other circumstances including course of dealing or usage of trade or course of performance as provided in this subtitle (sections 28:1-205 and 2-208). Whether an agreement has legal consequences is determined by the provisions of this subtitle, if applicable; otherwise by the law of contracts (section 28:1-103). (Compare "Contract".)

(4) "Bank" means any person engaged in the business of banking.

(5) "Bearer" means the person in possession of an instrument, document of title, or security payable to bearer or indorsed in blank.

(6) "Bill of lading" means a document evidencing the receipt of goods for shipment issued by a person engaged in the business of transporting or forwarding goods, and includes an airbill. "Airbill" means a document serving for air transportation as a bill of lading does for marine or rail transportation, and includes an air consignment note or air waybill.

(7) "Branch" includes a separately incorporated foreign branch of a bank.

(8) "Burden of establishing" a fact means the burden of persuading the triers of fact that the existence of the fact is more probable than its non-existence.

(9) "Buyer in ordinary course of business" means a person who in good faith and without knowledge that the sale to him is in violation of the ownership rights or security interest of a third party in the goods buys in ordinary course from a person in the business of selling goods of that kind but does not include a pawnbroker. "Buying" may be for cash or by exchange of other property or on secured or unsecured credit and includes receiving goods or documents of title under a preexisting contract for sale but does not include a transfer in bulk or as security for or in total or partial satisfaction of a money debt.

(10) "Conspicuous": A term or clause is conspicuous when it is so written that a reasonable person against whom it is to operate ought to have noticed it. A printed heading in capitals (as: NON-NEGOTIABLE BILL OF LADING) is conspicuous. Language in the body of a form is "conspicuous" if it is in larger or other contrasting type or color. But in a telegram any stated term is "conspicuous". Whether a term or clause is "conspicuous" or not is for decision by the court.

(11) "Contract" means the total legal obligation which results from the parties' agreement as affected by this subtitle and any other applicable rules of law. (Compare "Agreement".)

(12) "Creditor" includes a general creditor, a secured creditor, a lien creditor and any representative of creditors, including an assignee for the benefit of creditors, a trustee in bankruptcy, a receiver in equity and an executor or administrator of an insolvent debtor's or assignor's estate.

(13) "Defendant" includes a person in the position of defendant in a cross-action or counterclaim.

(14) "Delivery" with respect to instruments, documents of title, chattel paper or securities means voluntary transfer of possession.

(14a) "District" means the District of Columbia; and "state" includes the District.

(15) "Document of title" includes bill of lading, dock warrant, dock receipt, warehouse receipt or order for the delivery of goods, and also any other document which in the regular course of business or financing is treated as adequately evidencing that the person in possession of it is entitled to receive, hold and dispose of the document and the goods it covers. To be a document of title a document must purport to be issued by or addressed to a bailee and purport to cover goods in the bailee's possession which are either identified or are fungible portions of an identified mass.

(16) "Fault" means wrongful act, omission or breach.

(17) "Fungible" with respect to goods or securities means goods or securities of which any unit is, by nature or usage of trade, the equivalent of any other like unit. Goods which are not fungible shall be deemed fungible for the purposes of this subtitle to the extent that under a particular agreement or document unlike units are treated as equivalents.

(18) "Genuine" means free of forgery or counterfeiting.

(19) "Good faith" means honesty in fact in the conduct or transaction concerned.

(20) "Holder" means a person who is in possession of a document of title or an instrument or an investment security drawn, issued or indorsed to him or to his order or to bearer or in blank.

(21) To "honor" is to pay or to accept and pay, or where a credit so engages to purchase or discount a draft complying with the terms of the credit.

(22) "Insolvency proceedings" includes any assignment for the benefit of creditors or other proceedings intended to liquidate or rehabilitate the estate of the person involved.

(23) A person is "insolvent" who either has ceased to pay his debts in the ordinary course of business or cannot pay his debts as they become due or is insolvent within the meaning of the federal bankruptcy law.

(24) "Money" means a medium of exchange authorized or adopted by a domestic or foreign government as a part of its currency.

(25) A person has "notice" of a fact when:

- (a) he has actual knowledge of it; or
  - (b) he has received a notice or notification of it;
- or

(c) from all the facts and circumstances known to him at the time in question he has reason to know that it exists.

A person “knows” or has “knowledge” of a fact when he has actual knowledge of it. “Discover” or “learn” or a word or phrase of similar import refers to knowledge rather than to reason to know. The time and circumstances under which a notice or notification may cease to be effective are not determined by this subtitle.

(26) A person “notifies” or “gives” a notice or notification to another by taking such steps as may be reasonably required to inform the other in ordinary course whether or not such other actually comes to know of it. A person “receives” a notice or notification when:

(a) it comes to his attention; or

(b) it is duly delivered at the place of business through which the contract was made or at any other place held out by him as the place for receipt of such communications.

(27) Notice, knowledge or a notice or notification received by an organization is effective for a particular transaction from the time when it is brought to the attention of the individual conducting that transaction, and in any event from the time when it would have been brought to his attention if the organization had exercised due diligence. An organization exercises due diligence if it maintains reasonable routines for communicating significant information to the person conducting the transaction and there is reasonable compliance with the routines. Due diligence does not require an individual acting for the organization to communicate information unless the communication is part of his regular duties or unless he has reason to know of the transaction and that the transaction would be materially affected by the information.

(28) “Organization” includes a corporation, government or governmental subdivision or agency, business trust, estate, trust, partnership or association, two or more persons having a joint or common interest, or any other legal or commercial entity.

(29) “Party”, as distinct from “third party”, means a person who has engaged in a transaction or made an agreement within this subtitle.

(30) “Person” includes an individual or an organization see section 28:1-102).

(31) “Presumption” or “presumed” means that the trier of fact must find the existence of the fact presumed unless and until evidence is introduced which would support a finding of its nonexistence.

(32) “Purchase” includes taking by sale, discount, negotiation, mortgage, pledge, lien, issue or re-issue, gift or any other voluntary transaction creating an interest in property.

(33) “Purchaser” means a person who takes by purchase.

(34) “Remedy” means any remedial right to which an aggrieved party is entitled with or without resort to tribunal.

(35) “Representative” includes an agent, an officer of a corporation or association, and a trustee, executor or administrator of an estate, or any other person empowered to act for another.

(36) “Rights” includes remedies.

(37) “Security interest” means an interest in personal property or fixtures which secures payment or performance of an obligation. The retention or reservation of title by a seller of goods notwithstanding shipment or delivery to the buyer (section 28:2-401) is limited in effect to a reservation of a “security interest”. The term also includes any interest of a buyer of accounts, chattel paper, or contract rights which is subject to article 9. The special property interest of a buyer of goods on identification of such goods to a contract for sale under section 28:2-401 is not a “security interest”, but a buyer may also acquire a “security interest” by complying with article 9. Unless a lease or consignment is intended as security, reservation of title thereunder is not a “security interest” but a consignment is in any event subject to the provisions on consignment sales (section 28:2-326). Whether a lease is intended as security is to be determined by the facts of each case; however, (a) the inclusion of an option to purchase does not of itself make the lease one intended for security, and (b) an agreement that upon compliance with the terms of the lease the lessee shall become or has the option to become the owner of the property for no additional consideration or for a nominal consideration does make the lease one intended for security.

(38) “Send” in connection with any writing or notice means to deposit in the mail or deliver for transmission by any other usual means of communication with postage or cost of transmission provided for and properly addressed and in the case of an instrument to an address specified thereon or otherwise agreed, or if there be none to any address reasonable under the circumstances. The receipt of any writing or notice within the time at which it would have arrived if properly sent has the effect of a proper sending.

(39) “Signed” includes any symbol executed or adopted by a party with present intention to authenticate a writing.

(40) “Surety” includes guarantor.

(41) “Telegram” includes a message transmitted by radio, teletype, cable, any mechanical method of transmission, or the like.

(42) “Term” means that portion of an agreement which relates to a particular matter.

(43) “Unauthorized” signature or indorsement means one made without actual, implied or apparent authority and includes a forgery.

(44) “Value”. Except as otherwise provided with respect to negotiable instruments and bank collections (sections 28:3-303, 28:4-208 and 28:4-209) a person gives “value” for rights if he acquires them:

(a) in return for a binding commitment to extend credit or for the extension of immediately available credit whether or not drawn upon and whether or not a charge-back is provided for in the event of difficulties in collection; or

(b) as security for or in total or partial satisfaction of a pre-existing claim; or

(c) by accepting delivery pursuant to a pre-existing contract for purchase; or

(d) generally, in return for any consideration sufficient to support a simple contract.

(45) “Warehouse receipt” means a receipt issued by a person engaged in the business of storing goods for hire.

(46) "Written" or "writing" includes printing, typewriting or any other intentional reduction to tangible form. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 632, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965; Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 679, Pub. L. 88-509, § 4.)

AMENDMENT

1964—Section 4 of act Aug. 30, 1964, effective Jan. 1, 1965, amended the last sentence of clause 27 by changing "such information" to read "the communication".

§ 28:1-202. Prima facie evidence by third party documents.

A document in due form purporting to be a bill of lading, policy or certificate of insurance, official weigher's or inspector's certificate, consular invoice, or any other document authorized or required by the contract to be issued by a third party shall be prima facie evidence of its own authenticity and genuineness and of the facts stated in the document by the third party. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 636, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1-203. Obligation of good faith.

Every contract or duty within this subtitle imposes an obligation of good faith in its performance or enforcement. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 636, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Impracticability of performance

The concept of impracticability assumes that performance was physically possible, a rule making nonperformance a condition precedent to recovery would unjustifiably encourage disappointment of expectations, and there is nothing necessarily inconsistent in claiming commercial impracticability for method of performance actually adopted and, accordingly, impossibility issue may be raised in suit to recover cost of alternative method of performance. Transatlantic Financing Corporation v. United States (1966, 363 F. 2d 312, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 183).

In some cases, even an express expectation may not, for purposes of doctrine of impossibility of performance, amount to a condition of performance. Id.

§ 28:1-204. Time; reasonable time; "seasonably".

(1) Whenever this subtitle requires any action to be taken within a reasonable time, any time which is not manifested unreasonable may be fixed by agreement.

(2) What is a reasonable time for taking any action depends on the nature, purpose and circumstances of such action.

(3) An action is taken, "seasonably" when it is taken at or within the time agreed or if no time is agreed at or within a reasonable time. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 636, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1-205. Course of dealing and usage of trade.

(1) A course of dealing is a sequence of previous conduct between the parties to a particular transaction which is fairly to be regarded as establishing a common basis of understanding for interpreting their expressions and other conduct.

(2) A usage of trade is any practice or method of dealing having such regularity of observance in a place, vocation or trade as to justify an expectation that it will be observed with respect to the transaction in question. The existence and scope of such a usage are to be proved as facts. If it is established that such a usage is embodied in a written trade code or similar writing the interpretation of the writing is for the court.

(3) A course of dealing between parties and any usage of trade in the vocation or trade in which they are engaged or of which they are or should be aware give particular meaning to and supplement or qualify terms of an agreement.

(4) The express terms of an agreement and an applicable course of dealing or usage of trade shall be construed wherever reasonable consistent with each other; but when such construction is unreasonable express terms control both course of dealing and usage of trade and course of dealing controls usage of trade.

(5) An applicable usage of trade in the place where any part of performance is to occur shall be used in interpreting the agreement as to that part of the performance.

(6) Evidence of a relevant usage of trade offered by one party is not admissible unless and until he has given the other party such notice as the court finds sufficient to prevent unfair surprise to the latter. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 636, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1-206. Statute of frauds for kinds of personal property not otherwise covered.

(1) Except in the cases described in subsection (2) of this section a contract for the sale of personal property is not enforceable by way of action or defense beyond five thousand dollars in amount or value of remedy unless there is some writing which indicates that a contract for sale has been made between the parties at a defined or stated price, reasonably identifies the subject matter, and is signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent.

(2) Subsection (1) of this section does not apply to contracts for the sale of goods (section 28:2-201) nor of securities (section 28:8-319) nor to security agreements (section 28:9-203). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 636, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1-207. Performance or acceptance under reservation of rights.

A party who with explicit reservation of rights performs or promises performance or assents to performance in a manner demanded or offered by the other party does not thereby prejudice the rights reserved. Such words as "without prejudice", "under protest" or the like are sufficient. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 637, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:1-208. Option to accelerate at will.

A term providing that one party or his successor in interest may accelerate payment or performance or require collateral or additional collateral "at will" or "when he deems himself insecure" or in words of similar import shall be construed to mean that he shall have power to do so only if he in good faith believes that the prospect of payment or performance is impaired. The burden of establishing lack of good faith is on the party against whom the power has been exercised. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 637, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

(1) "Merchant" means a person who deals in goods of the kind or otherwise by his occupation holds himself out as having knowledge or skill peculiar to the practices or goods involved in the transaction or to whom such knowledge or skill may be attributed by his employment of an agent or broker or other intermediary who by his occupation holds himself out as having such knowledge or skill.

(2) "Financing agency" means a bank, finance company or other person who in the ordinary course of business makes advances against goods or documents of title or who by arrangement with either the seller or the buyer intervenes in ordinary course to make or collect payment due or claimed under the contract for sale, as by purchasing or paying the seller's draft or making advances against it or by merely taking it for collection whether or not documents of title accompany the draft. "Financing agency" includes also a bank or other person who similarly intervenes between persons who are in the position of seller and buyer in respect to the goods (section 28: 2-707).

(3) "Between merchants" means in any transaction with respect to which both parties are chargeable with the knowledge or skill of merchants. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 640, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-105. Definitions: transferability; "goods"; "future" goods; "lot"; "commercial unit".

(1) "Goods" means all things (including specially manufactured goods) which are movable at the time of identification to the contract for sale other than the money in which the price is to be paid, investment securities (article 8) and things in action. "Goods" also includes the unborn young of animals and growing crops and other identified things attached to realty as described in the section on goods to be severed from realty (section 28: 2-107).

(2) Goods must be both existing and identified before any interest in them can pass. Goods which are not both existing and identified are "future" goods. A purported present sale of future goods or of any interest therein operates as a contract to sell.

(3) There may be a sale of a part interest in existing identified goods.

(4) An undivided share in an identified bulk of fungible goods is sufficiently identified to be sold although the quantity of the bulk is not determined. Any agreed proportion of such a bulk or any quantity thereof agreed upon by number, weight or other measure may to the extent of the seller's interest in the bulk be sold to the buyer who then becomes an owner in common.

(5) "Lot" means a parcel or a single article which is the subject matter of a separate sale or delivery, whether or not it is sufficient to perform the contract.

(6) "Commercial unit" means such a unit of goods as by commercial usage is a single whole for purposes of sale and division of which materially impairs its character or value on the market or in use. A commercial unit may be a single article (as a machine) or a set of articles (as a suite of furniture or an assortment of sizes) or a quantity (as a bale, gross, or carload) or any other unit treated in use or in the relevant market as a single whole. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 640, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

(1) In this article unless the context otherwise requires "contract" and "agreement" are limited to those relating to the present or future sale of goods. "Contract for sale" includes both a present sale of goods and a contract to sell goods at a future time. A "sale" consists in the passing of title from the seller to the buyer for a price (section 28: 2-401). A "present sale" means a sale which is accomplished by the making of the contract.

(2) Goods or conduct including any part of a performance are "conforming" or conform to the contract when they are in accordance with the obligations under the contract.

(3) "Termination" occurs when either party pursuant to a power created by agreement or law puts an end to the contract otherwise than for its breach. On "termination" all obligations which are still executory on both sides are discharged but any right based on prior breach or performance survives.

(4) "Cancellation" occurs when either party puts an end to the contract for breach by the other and its effect is the same as that of "termination" except that the cancelling party also retains any remedy for breach of the whole contract or any unperformed balance. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 641, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-107. Goods to be severed from realty; recording.

(1) A contract for the sale of timber, minerals or the like or a structure or its materials to be removed from realty is a contract for the sale of goods within this article if they are to be severed by the seller but until severance a purported present sale thereof which is not effective as a transfer of an interest in land is effective only as a contract to sell.

(2) A contract for the sale apart from the land of growing crops or other things attached to realty and capable of severance without material harm thereto but not described in subsection (1) is a contract for the sale of goods within this article whether the subject matter is to be severed by the buyer or by the seller even though it forms part of the realty at the time of contracting, and the parties can by identification effect a present sale before severance.

(3) The provisions of this section are subject to any third party rights provided by the law relating to realty records, and the contract for sale may be executed and recorded as a document transferring an interest in land and shall then constitute notice to third parties of the buyer's rights under the contract for sale. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 641, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 2.—FORM, FORMATION AND READJUSTMENT OF CONTRACT

§ 28:2-201. Formal requirements; statute of frauds.

(1) Except as otherwise provided in this section a contract for the sale of goods for the price of $500 or more is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless there is some writing sufficient to indicate that a contract for sale has been made between the parties and signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent or broker. A writing is not insufficient because it omits or incorrectly states a term agreed upon but the contract is not enforceable under this paragraph beyond the quantity of goods shown in such writing.

(2) Between merchants if within a reasonable time a writing in confirmation of the contract and sufficient against the sender is received and the party receiving it has reason to know its contents, it satisfies the requirements of subsection (1) against such party unless written notice of objection to its contents is given within ten days after it is received.

(3) A contract which does not satisfy the requirements of subsection (1) but which is valid in other respects is enforceable:

(a) if the goods are to be specially manufactured for the buyer and are not suitable for sale to others in the ordinary course of the seller's business and the seller, before notice of repudiation is received and under circumstances which reasonably indicate that the goods are for the buyer, has made either a substantial beginning of their manufacture or commitments for their procurement; or

(b) if the party against whom enforcement is sought admits in his pleading, testimony or otherwise in court that a contract for sale was made, but the contract is not enforceable under this provision beyond the quantity of goods admitted; or

(c) with respect to goods for which payment has been made and accepted or which have been received and accepted (section 28:2-606).

§ 28:2-202. Final written expression: parol or extrinsic evidence.

Terms with respect to which the confirmatory memoranda of the parties agree or which are otherwise set forth in a writing intended by the parties as a final expression of their agreement with respect to such terms as are included therein may not be contradicted by evidence of any prior agreement or of a contemporaneous oral agreement but may be explained or supplemented:

(a) by course of dealing or usage of trade (section 28:1-205) or by course of performance (section 28:2-208); and

(b) by evidence of consistent additional terms unless the court finds the writing to have been intended also as a complete and exclusive statement of the terms of the agreement.

§ 28:2-203. Seals inoperative.

The affixing of a seal to a writing evidencing a contract for sale or an offer to buy or sell goods does not constitute the writing a sealed instrument and the law with respect to sealed instruments does not apply to such a contract or offer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 642, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-204. Formation in general.

(1) A contract for sale of goods may be made in any manner sufficient to show agreement, including conduct by both parties which recognizes the existence of such a contract.

(2) An agreement sufficient to constitute a contract for sale may be found even though the moment of its making is undetermined.

(3) Even though one or more terms are left open a contract for sale does not fail for indefiniteness if the parties have intended to make a contract and there is a reasonably certain basis for giving an appropriate remedy. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 643, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-205. Firm offers.

An offer by a merchant to buy or sell goods in a signed writing which by its terms gives assurance that it will be held open is not revocable, for lack of consideration, during the time stated or if no time is stated for a reasonable time, but in no event may such period of irrevocability exceed three months; but any such term of assurance on a form supplied by the offeree must be separately signed by the offeror. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 643, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-206. Offer and acceptance in formation of contract.

(1) Unless otherwise unambiguously indicated by the language or circumstances:

(a) an offer to make a contract shall be construed as inviting acceptance in any manner and by any medium reasonable in the circumstances;

(b) an order or other offer to buy goods for prompt or current shipment shall be construed as inviting acceptance either by a prompt promise to ship or by the prompt or current shipment of conforming or non-conforming goods, but such a shipment of non-conforming goods does not constitute an acceptance if the seller seasonably notifies the buyer that the shipment is offered only as an accommodation to the buyer.

(2) Where the beginning of a requested performance is a reasonable mode of acceptance an offeror who is not notified of acceptance within a reasonable time may treat the offer as having lapsed before acceptance. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 643, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-207. Additional terms in acceptance or confirmation.

(1) A definite and seasonable expression of acceptance or a written confirmation which is sent within a reasonable time operates as an acceptance even though it states terms additional to or different from those offered or agreed upon, unless acceptance is expressly made conditional on assent to the additional or different terms.

(2) The additional terms are to be construed as proposals for addition to the contract. Between merchants such terms become part of the contract unless:

(a) the offer expressly limits acceptance to the terms of the offer;

(b) they materially alter it; or

(c) notification of objection to them has already been given or is given within a reasonable time after notice of them is received.

(3) Conduct by both parties which recognizes the existence of a contract is sufficient to establish a contract for sale although the writings of the parties do not otherwise establish a contract. In such case the terms of the particular contract consist of those terms on which the writings of the parties agree, together with any supplementary terms incorporated under any other provisions of this subtitle. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 643, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-208. Course of performance or practical construction.

(1) Where the contract for sale involves repeated occasions for performance by either party with knowledge of the nature of the performance and opportunity for objection to it by the other, any course of performance accepted or acquiesced in without objection shall be relevant to determine the meaning of the agreement.

(2) The express terms of the agreement and any such course of performance, as well as any course of dealing and usage of trade, shall be construed whenever reasonable as consistent with each other, but when such construction is unreasonable, express terms shall control course of performance and course of performance shall control both course of dealing and usage of trade (section 28:1-205).

(3) Subject to the provisions of the next section on modification and waiver, such course of performance shall be relevant to show a waiver or modification of any term inconsistent with such course of performance. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 644, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-209. Modification, rescission and waiver.

(1) An agreement modifying a contract within this article needs no consideration to be binding.

(2) A signed agreement which excludes modification or rescission except by a signed writing cannot be otherwise modified or rescinded, but except as between merchants such a requirement on a form supplied by the merchant must be separately signed by the other party.

(3) The requirements of the statute of frauds section of this article (section 28:2-201) must be satisfied if the contract as modified is within its provisions.

(4) Although an attempt at modification or rescission does not satisfy the requirements of subsection (2) or (3), it can operate as a waiver.

(5) A party who has made a waiver affecting an executory portion of the contract may retract the waiver by reasonable notification received by the other party that strict performance will be required by any term waived, unless the retraction would be unjust in view of a material change of position in reliance on the waiver. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 644, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-210. Delegation of performance; assignment of rights.

(1) A party may perform his duty through a delegate unless otherwise agreed or unless the other party has a substantial interest in having his original promisor perform or control the acts required by the contract. No delegation of performance relieves the party delegating of any duty to perform or any liability for breach.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed all rights of either seller or buyer can be assigned except where the assignment would materially change the duty of the other party, or increase materially the burden or risk imposed on him by his contract, or impair materially his chance of obtaining return performance. A right to damages for breach of the whole contract or a right arising out of the assignor's due performance of his entire obligation can be assigned despite agreement otherwise.

(3) Unless the circumstances indicate the contrary a prohibition of assignment of "the contract" is to be construed as barring only the delegation to the assignee of the assignor's performance.

(4) An assignment of "the contract" or of "all my rights under the contract" or an assignment in similar general terms is an assignment of rights and unless the language or the circumstances (as in an assignment for security) indicate the contrary, it is a delegation of performance of the duties of the assignor and its acceptance by the assignee constitutes a promise by him to perform those duties. This promise is enforceable by either the assignor or the other party to the original contract.

(5) The other party may treat any assignment which delegates performance as creating reasonable grounds for insecurity and may without prejudice to his rights against the assignor demand assurances from the assignee (section 28:2-609). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 644, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 3.—GENERAL OBLIGATION AND CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACT

§ 28:2-301. General obligations of parties.

The obligation of the seller is to transfer and deliver and that of the buyer is to accept and pay in accordance with the contract. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 645, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-302. Unconscionable contract or clause.

(1) If the court as a matter of law finds the contract or any clause of the contract to have been unconscionable at the time it was made the court may refuse to enforce the contract, or it may enforce the remainder of the contract without the unconscionable clause, or it may so limit the application of any unconscionable clause as to avoid any unconscionable result.

(2) When it is claimed or appears to the court that the contract or any clause thereof may be unconscionable the parties shall be afforded a reasonable opportunity to present evidence as to its commercial setting, purpose and effect to aid the court in making the determination. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 645, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Impracticability of performance

The concept of impracticability assumes that performance was physically possible, a rule making nonperformance a condition precedent to recovery would unjustifiably encourage disappointment of expectations, and there is nothing necessarily inconsistent in claiming commercial impracticability for the method of performance actually adopted and, accordingly, impossibility issue may be raised in suit to recover cost of alternative method of performance. Transatlantic Financing Corporation v. United States (1966, 363 F. 2d 312, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 183).

In some cases, even an express expectation may not, for purposes of doctrine of impossibility of performance, amount to a condition of performance. Id.

Unconscionable Contract

That Congress enacted Uniform Commercial Code specifically providing that court may refuse to enforce contract which it finds to be unconscionable at time it was made does not mean that common law of District of Columbia was otherwise at time of enactment nor preclude court from adopting similar rule in exercise of its powers to develop common law for District of Columbia. Williams v. Walker-Thomas Furniture Co. (1965, 350 F. 2d 445, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 315).

§ 28:2-303. Allocation or division of risks.

Where this article allocates a risk or a burden as between the parties "unless otherwise agreed", the agreement may not only shift the allocation but may also divide the risk or burden. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 645, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-304. Price payable in money, goods, realty, or otherwise.

(1) The price can be made payable in money or otherwise. If it is payable in whole or in part in goods each party is a seller of the goods which he is to transfer.

(2) Even though all or part of the price is payable in an interest in realty the transfer of the goods and the seller's obligations with reference to them are subject to this article, but not the transfer of the interest in realty or the transferor's obligations in connection therewith. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 645, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-305. Open price term.

(1) The parties if they so intend can conclude a contract for sale even though the price is not settled. In such a case the price is a reasonable price at the time for delivery if:

- (a) nothing is said as to price; or
- (b) the price is left to be agreed by the parties and they fail to agree; or
- (c) the price is to be fixed in terms of some agreed market or other standard as set or recorded by a third person or agency and it is not so set or recorded.

(2) A price to be fixed by the seller or by the buyer means a price for him to fix in good faith.

(3) When a price left to be fixed otherwise than by agreement of the parties fails to be fixed through fault of one party the other may at his option treat the contract as cancelled or himself fix a reasonable price.

(4) Where, however, the parties intend not to be bound unless the price be fixed or agreed and it is not fixed or agreed there is no contract. In such a case the buyer must return any goods already received or if unable so to do must pay their reasonable value at the time of delivery and the seller must return any portion of the price paid on account. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 645, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-306. Output, requirements and exclusive dealings.

(1) A term which measures the quantity by the output of the seller or the requirements of the buyer means such actual output or requirements as may occur in good faith, except that no quantity unreasonably disproportionate to any stated estimate or in the absence of a stated estimate to any normal or otherwise comparable prior output or requirements may be tendered or demanded.

(2) A lawful agreement by either the seller or the buyer for exclusive dealing in the kind of goods concerned imposes unless otherwise agreed an obligation by the seller to use best efforts to supply the goods and by the buyer to use best efforts to promote their sale. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 646, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-307. Delivery in single lot or several lots.

Unless otherwise agreed all goods called for by a contract for sale must be tendered in a single delivery and payment is due only on such tender but where the circumstances give either party the right to make or demand delivery in lots the price if it can be apportioned may be demanded for each lot. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 646, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-308. Absence of specified place for delivery.

Unless otherwise agreed:

- (a) the place for delivery of goods is the seller's place of business or if he has none his residence; but
- (b) in a contract for sale of identified goods which to the knowledge of the parties at the time of contracting are in some other place, that place is the place for their delivery; and

(c) documents of title may be delivered through customary banking channels.

§ 28:2-309. Absence of specific time provisions; notice of termination.

(1) The time for shipment or delivery or any other action under a contract if not provided in this article or agreed upon shall be a reasonable time.

(2) Where the contract provides for successive performances but is indefinite in duration it is valid for a reasonable time but unless otherwise agreed may be terminated at any time by either party.

(3) Termination of a contract by one party except on the happening of an agreed event requires that reasonable notification be received by the other party and an agreement dispensing with notification is invalid if its operation would be unconscionable. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 646, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-310. Open time for payment or running of credit; authority to ship under reservation.

Unless otherwise agreed:

(a) payment is due at the time and place at which the buyer is to receive the goods even though the place of shipment is the place of delivery; and

(b) if the seller is authorized to send the goods he may ship them under reservation, and may tender the documents of title, but the buyer may inspect the goods after their arrival before payment is due unless such inspection is inconsistent with the terms of the contract (section 28:2-513); and

(c) if delivery is authorized and made by way of documents of title otherwise than by subsection (b) then payment is due at the time and place at which the buyer is to receive the documents regardless of where the goods are to be received; and

(d) where the seller is required or authorized to ship the goods on credit the credit period runs from the time of shipment but post-dating the invoice or delaying its dispatch will correspondingly delay the starting of the credit period.

§ 28:2-311. Options and cooperation respecting performance.

(1) An agreement for sale which is otherwise sufficiently definite (subsection (3) of section 28:2-204) to be a contract is not made invalid by the fact that it leaves particulars of performance to be specified by one of the parties. Any such specification must be made in good faith and within limits set by commercial reasonableness.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed specifications relating to assortment of the goods are at the buyer's option and except as otherwise provided in subsections (1)(c) and (3) of section 28:2-319 specifications or arrangements relating to shipment are at the seller's option.

(3) Where such specification would materially affect the other party's performance but is not seasonably made or where one party's cooperation is necessary to the agreed performance of the other but is not seasonably forthcoming, the other party in addition to all other remedies:

(a) is excused for any resulting delay in his own performance; and

(b) may also either proceed to perform in any reasonable manner or after the time for a material part of his own performance treat the failure to specify or to cooperate as a breach by failure to deliver or accept the goods.

§ 28:2-312. Warranty of title and against infringement; buyer's obligation against infringement.

(1) Subject to subsection (2) there is in a contract for sale a warranty by the seller that:

(a) the title conveyed shall be good, and its transfer rightful; and

(b) the goods shall be delivered free from any security interest or other lien or encumbrance of which the buyer at the time of contracting has no knowledge.

(2) A warranty under subsection (1) will be excluded or modified only by specific language or by circumstances which give the buyer reason to know that the person selling does not claim title in himself or that he is purporting to sell only such right or title as he or a third person may have.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed a seller who is a merchant regularly dealing in goods of the kind warrants that the goods shall be delivered free of the rightful claim of any third person by way of infringement or the like but a buyer who furnishes specifications to the seller must hold the seller harmless against any such claim which arises out of compliance with the specifications. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 647, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-313. Express warranties by affirmation, promise, description, sample.

(1) Express warranties by the seller are created as follows:

(a) Any affirmation of fact or promise made by the seller to the buyer which relates to the goods and becomes part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods shall conform to the affirmation or promise.

(b) Any description of the goods which is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the goods shall conform to the description.

(c) Any sample or model which is made part of the basis of the bargain creates an express warranty that the whole of the goods shall conform to the sample or model.

(2) It is not necessary to the creation of an express warranty that the seller use formal words such as "warrant" or "guarantee" or that he have a specific intention to make a warranty, but an affirmation merely of the value of the goods or a statement purporting to be merely the seller's opinion or commendation of the goods does not create a warranty. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 647, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-314. Implied warranty: merchantability; usage of trade.

(1) Unless excluded or modified (section 28:2-316), a warranty that the goods shall be merchantable is implied in a contract for their sale if the seller is a merchant with respect to goods of that kind. Under this section the serving for value of food or drink to be consumed either on the premises or elsewhere is a sale.

(2) Goods to be merchantable must be at least such as

(a) pass without objection in the trade under the contract description; and

(b) in the case of fungible goods, are of fair average quality within the description; and

(c) are fit for the ordinary purposes for which such goods are used; and

(d) run, within the variations permitted by the agreement, of even kind, quality and quantity within each unit and among all units involved; and

(e) are adequately contained, packaged, and labeled as the agreement may require; and

(f) conform to the promises or affirmations of fact made on the container or label if any.

(3) Unless excluded or modified (section 28:2-316), other implied warranties may arise from course of dealing or usage of trade. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 648, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-315. Implied warranty: fitness for particular purpose.

Where the seller at the time of contracting has reason to know any particular purpose for which the goods are required and that the buyer is relying on the seller's skill or judgment to select or furnish suitable goods, there is unless excluded or modified under the next section an implied warranty that the goods shall be fit for such purpose. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 648, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-316. Exclusion or modification of warranties.

(1) Words or conduct relevant to the creation of an express warranty and words or conduct tending to negate or limit warranty shall be construed wherever reasonable as consistent with each other; but subject to the provisions of this article on parol or extrinsic evidence (section 28:2-202) negation or limitation is inoperative to the extent that such construction is unreasonable.

(2) Subject to subsection (3), to exclude or modify the implied warranty of merchantability or any part of it the language must mention merchantability and in case of a writing must be conspicuous, and to exclude or modify any implied warranty of fitness the exclusion must be by a writing and conspicuous. Language to exclude all implied warranties of fitness is sufficient if it states, for example, that "There are no warranties which extend beyond the description on the face hereof."

(3) Notwithstanding subsection (2)

(a) unless the circumstances indicate otherwise, all implied warranties are excluded by expressions like "as is", "with all faults" or other language which in common understanding calls the buyer's attention to the exclusion of warranties and makes plain that there is no implied warranty; and

(b) when the buyer before entering into the contract has examined the goods or the sample or model as fully as he desired or has refused to examine the goods there is no implied warranty with regard to defects which an examination ought in the circumstances to have revealed to him; and

(c) an implied warranty can also be excluded or modified by course of dealing or course of performance or usage of trade.

(4) Remedies for breach of warranty can be limited in accordance with the provisions of this article on liquidation or limitation of damages and on contractual modification of remedy (sections 28:2-718 and 28:2-719). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 648, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-317. Cumulation and conflict of warranties express or implied.

Warranties whether express or implied shall be construed as consistent with each other and as cumulative, but if such construction is unreasonable the intention of the parties shall determine which warranty is dominant. In ascertaining that intention the following rules apply:

(a) Exact or technical specifications displace an inconsistent sample or model or general language of description.

(b) A sample from an existing bulk displaces inconsistent general language of description.

(c) Express warranties displace inconsistent implied warranties other than an implied warranty of fitness for a particular purpose.

§ 28:2-318. Third party beneficiaries of warranties express or implied.

A seller's warranty whether express or implied extends to any natural person who is in the family or household of his buyer or who is a guest in his home if it is reasonable to expect that such person may use, consume or be affected by the goods and who is injured in person by breach of the warranty. A seller may not exclude or limit the operation of this section. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 649, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-319. F.O.B. and F.A.S. terms.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed the term F.O.B. (which means "free on board") at a named place, even though used only in connection with the stated price, is a delivery term under which

(a) when the term is F.O.B. the place of shipment, the seller must at that place ship the goods in the manner provided in this article (section 28:2-504) and bear the expense and risk of putting them into the possession of the carrier; or

(b) when the term is F.O.B. the place of destination, the seller must at his own expense and risk transport the goods to that place and there tender delivery of them in the manner provided in this article (section 28:2-503);

(c) when under either (a) or (b) the term is also F.O.B. vessel, car or other vehicle, the seller must in addition at his own expense and risk load the goods on board. If the term is F.O.B. vessel the buyer must name the vessel and in an appropriate case the seller must comply with the provisions of this article on the form of bill of lading (section 28:8-323).

(2) Unless otherwise agreed the term F.A.S. vessel (which means "free alongside") at a named port, even though used only in connection with the stated price, is a delivery term under which the seller must

(a) at his own expense and risk deliver the goods alongside the vessel in the manner usual in that port or on a dock designated and provided by the buyer; and

(b) obtain and tender a receipt for the goods in exchange for which the carrier is under a duty to issue a bill of lading.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed in any case falling within subsection (1) (a) or (c) or subsection (2) the buyer must seasonably give any needed instructions for making delivery, including when the term is F.A.S. or F.O.B. the loading berth of the vessel and in an appropriate case its name and sailing date. The seller may treat the failure of needed instructions as a failure of cooperation under this article (section 28:2-311). He may also at his option move the goods in any reasonable manner preparatory to delivery or shipment.

(4) Under the term F.O.B. vessel or F.A.S. unless otherwise agreed the buyer must make payment against tender of the required documents and the seller may not tender nor the buyer demand delivery of the goods in substitution for the documents. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 649, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-320. C.I.F. and C. & F. terms.

(1) The term C.I.F. means that the price includes in a lump sum the cost of the goods and the insurance and freight to the named destination. The term C. & F. or C.F. means that the price so includes cost and freight to the named destination.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed and even though used only in connection with the stated price and destination, the term C.I.F. destination or its equivalent requires the seller at his own expense and risk to

(a) put the goods into the possession of a carrier at the port for shipment and obtain a negotiable bill or bills of lading covering the entire transportation to the named destination; and

(b) load the goods and obtain a receipt from the carrier (which may be contained in the bill of lading) showing that the freight has been paid or provided for; and

(c) obtain a policy or certificate of insurance, including any war risk insurance, of a kind and on terms then current at the port of shipment in the usual amount, in the currency of the contract, shown to cover the same goods covered by the bill of lading and providing for payment of loss to the order of the buyer or for the account of whom it may concern; but the seller may add to the price the amount of the premium for any such war risk insurance; and

(d) prepare an invoice of the goods and procure any other documents required to effect shipment or to comply with the contract; and

(e) forward and tender with commercial promptness all the documents in due form and with any indorsement necessary to perfect the buyer's rights.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed the term C. & F. or its equivalent has the same effect and imposes upon the seller the same obligations and risks as a C.I.F. term except the obligation as to insurance.

(4) Under the term C.I.F. or C. & F. unless otherwise agreed the buyer must make payment against tender of the required documents and the seller may not tender nor the buyer demand delivery of the goods in substitution for the documents. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 650, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-321. C.I.F. or C. & F.: "net landed weights"; "payment on on<sup>1</sup> arrival"; warranty of condition on arrival.

Under a contract containing a term C.I.F. or C. & F.

(1) Where the price is based on or is to be adjusted according to "net landed weights", "delivered weights", "out turn" quantity or quality or the like, unless otherwise agreed the seller must reasonably estimate the price. The payment due on tender of the documents called for by the contract is the amount so estimated, but after final adjustment of the price a settlement must be made with commercial promptness.

(2) An agreement described in subsection (1) or any warranty of quality or condition of the goods on arrival places upon the seller the risk of ordinary deterioration, shrinkage and the like in transportation but has no effect on the place or time of identification to the contract for sale or delivery or on the passing of the risk of loss.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed where the contract provides for payment on or after arrival of the goods the seller must before payment allow such preliminary inspection as is feasible; but if the goods are lost delivery of the documents and payment are due when the goods should have arrived. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 650, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-322. Delivery "ex-ship".

(1) Unless otherwise agreed a term for delivery of goods "ex-ship" (which means from the carrying vessel) or in equivalent language is not restricted to a particular ship and requires delivery from a ship which has reached a place at the named port of destination where goods of the kind are usually discharged.

(2) Under such a term unless otherwise agreed

(a) the seller must discharge all liens arising out of the carriage and furnish the buyer with a direction which puts the carrier under a duty to deliver the goods; and

(b) the risk of loss does not pass to the buyer until the goods leave the ship's tackle or are otherwise properly unloaded.

§ 28:2-323. Form of bill of lading required in overseas shipment; "overseas".

(1) Where the contract contemplates overseas shipment and contains a term C.I.F. or C. & F. or F.O.B. vessel, the seller unless otherwise agreed must obtain a negotiable bill of lading stating that the goods have been loaded on board or, in the case of a term C.I.F. or C. & F., received for shipment.

(2) Where in a case within subsection (1) a bill of lading has been issued in a set of parts, unless otherwise agreed if the documents are not to be sent from abroad the buyer may demand tender of the full set; otherwise only one part of the bill of lading need be tendered. Even if the agreement expressly requires a full set

(a) due tender of a single part is acceptable within the provisions of this article on cure of improper delivery (subsection (1) of section 28:2-508); and

(b) even though the full set is demanded, if the documents are sent from abroad the person tendering an incomplete set may nevertheless require payment upon furnishing an indemnity which the buyer in good faith deems adequate.

(3) A shipment by water or by air or a contract contemplating such shipment is "overseas" insofar as by usage of trade or agreement it is subject to the commercial, financing or shipping practices characteristic of international deep water commerce. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 651, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-324. "No arrival, no sale" term.

Under a term "no arrival, no sale" or terms of like meaning, unless otherwise agreed,

(a) the seller must properly ship conforming goods and if they arrive by any means he must tender them on arrival but he assumes no obligation that the goods will arrive unless he has caused the non-arrival; and

(b) where without fault of the seller the goods are in part lost or have so deteriorated as no longer to conform to the contract or arrive after the contract time, the buyer may proceed as if there had been casualty to identified goods (section 28:2-613).

§ 28:2-325. "Letter of credit" term; "confirmed credit".

(1) Failure of the buyer seasonably to furnish an agreed letter of credit is a breach of the contract for sale.

(2) The delivery to seller of a proper letter of credit suspends the buyer's obligation to pay. If the letter of credit is dishonored, the seller may on seasonable notification to the buyer require payment directly from him.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed the term "letter of credit" or "banker's credit" in a contract for sale means an irrevocable credit issued by a financing agency of good repute and, where the shipment is overseas, of good international repute. The term "confirmed credit" means that the credit must also carry the direct obligation of such an agency which does business in the seller's financial market. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 652, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-326. Sale on approval and sale or return; consignment sales and rights of creditors.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed, if delivered goods may be returned by the buyer even though they conform to the contract, the transaction is

(a) a "sale on approval" if the goods are delivered primarily for use, and

(b) a "sale or return" if the goods are delivered primarily for resale.

(2) Except as provided in subsection (3), goods held on approval are not subject to the claims of the buyer's creditors until acceptance; goods held on sale or return are subject to such claims while in the buyer's possession.

(3) Where goods are delivered to a person for sale and such person maintains a place of business at which he deals in goods of the kind involved, under a name other than the name of the person making delivery, then with respect to claims of creditors of the person conducting the business the goods are deemed to be on sale or return. The provisions of this subsection are applicable even though an agreement purports to reserve title to the person making delivery until payment or resale or uses such words as "on consignment" or "on memorandum". However, this subsection is not applicable if the person making delivery

(a) complies with an applicable law providing for a consignor's interest or the like to be evidenced by a sign, or

(b) establishes that the person conducting the business is generally known by his creditors to be substantially engaged in selling the goods of others, or

(c) complies with the filing provisions of the article on secured transactions (article 9).

(4) Any "or return" term of a contract for sale is to be treated as a separate contract for sale within the statute of frauds section of this article (section 28:2-201) and as contradicting the sale aspect of the contract within the provisions of this article on parol or extrinsic evidence (section 28:2-202). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 652, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-327. Special incidents of sale on approval and sale or return.

(1) Under a sale on approval unless otherwise agreed

(a) although the goods are identified to the contract the risk of loss and the title do not pass to the buyer until acceptance; and

(b) use of the goods consistent with the purpose of trial is not acceptance but failure seasonably to notify the seller of election to return the goods is acceptance, and if the goods conform to the contract acceptance of any part is acceptance of the whole; and

(c) after due notification of election to return, the return is at the seller's risk and expense but a merchant buyer must follow any reasonable instructions.

(2) Under a sale or return unless otherwise agreed

(a) the option to return extends to the whole or any commercial unit of the goods while in substantially their original condition, but must be exercised seasonably; and

(b) the return is at the buyer's risk and expense. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 652, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-328. Sale by auction.

(1) In a sale by auction if goods are put up in lots each lot is the subject of a separate sale.

(2) A sale by auction is complete when the auctioneer so announces by the fall of the hammer or in other customary manner. Where a bid is made while the hammer is falling in acceptance of a prior bid the auctioneer may in his discretion reopen the bidding or declare the goods sold under the bid on which the hammer was falling.

(3) Such a sale is with reserve unless the goods are in explicit terms put up without reserve. In an auction with reserve the auctioneer may withdraw the goods at any time until he announces completion of the sale. In an auction without reserve, after the auctioneer calls for bids on an article or lot, that article or lot cannot be withdrawn unless no bid is made within a reasonable time. In either case a bidder may retract his bid until the auctioneer's announcement of completion of the sale, but a bidder's retraction does not revive any previous bid.

(4) If the auctioneer knowingly receives a bid on the seller's behalf or the seller makes or procures such a bid, and notice has not been given that liberty for such bidding is reserved, the buyer may at his option avoid the sale or take the goods at the price of the last good faith bid prior to the completion of the sale. This subsection shall not apply to any bid at a forced sale. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 653, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 4.—TITLE, CREDITORS AND GOOD FAITH PURCHASERS

§ 28:2-401. Passing of title; reservation for security; limited application of this section.

Each provision of this article with regard to the rights, obligations and remedies of the seller, the buyer, purchasers or other third parties applies irrespective of title to the goods except where the provision refers to such title. Insofar as situations are not covered by the other provisions of this article and matters concerning title become material the following rules apply:

(1) Title to goods cannot pass under a contract for sale prior to their identification to the contract (section 28:2-501), and unless otherwise explicitly agreed the buyer acquires by their identification a special property as limited by this subtitle. Any retention or reservation by the seller of the title (property) in goods shipped or delivered to the buyer is limited in effect to a reservation of a security interest. Subject to these provisions and to the provisions of the article on secured transactions (article 9), title to goods passes from the seller to the buyer in any manner and on any conditions explicitly agreed on by the parties.

(2) Unless otherwise explicitly agreed title passes to the buyer at the time and place at which the seller completes his performance with reference to the physical delivery of the goods, despite any reservation of a security interest and even though a document of title is to be delivered at a different time or place; and in particular and despite any reservation of a security interest by the bill of lading

(a) if the contract requires or authorizes the seller to send the goods to the buyer but does not require him to deliver them at destination, title passes to the buyer at the time and place of shipment; but

(b) if the contract requires delivery at destination, title passes on tender there.

(3) Unless otherwise explicitly agreed where delivery is to be made without moving the goods,

(a) if the seller is to deliver a document of title, title passes at the time when and the place where he delivers such documents; or

(b) if the goods are at the time of contracting already identified and no documents are to be delivered, title passes at the time and place of contracting.

(4) A rejection or other refusal by the buyer to receive or retain the goods, whether or not justified, or a justified revocation of acceptance revests title to the goods in the seller. Such revesting occurs by operation of law and is not a "sale". (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 653, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-402. Rights of seller's creditors against sold goods.

(1) Except as provided in subsections (2) and (3), rights of unsecured creditors of the seller with respect to goods which have been identified to a contract for sale are subject to the buyer's rights to recover the goods under this article (sections 28:2-502 and 28:2-716).

(2) A creditor of the seller may treat a sale or an identification of goods to a contract for sale as void if as against him a retention of possession by the seller is fraudulent under any rule of law of the state where the goods are situated, except that retention of possession in good faith and current course of trade by a merchant-seller for a commercially reasonable time after a sale or identification is not fraudulent.

(3) Nothing in this article shall be deemed to impair the rights of creditors of the seller

(a) under the provisions of the article on secured transactions (article 9); or

(b) where identification to the contract or delivery is made not in current course of trade but in satisfaction of or as security for a pre-existing claim for money, security or the like and is made under circumstances which under any rule of law of the state where the goods are situated would apart from this article constitute the transaction a fraudulent transfer or voidable preference.

§ 28:2-403. Power to transfer; good faith purchase of goods; "entrusting".

(1) A purchaser of goods acquires all title which his transferor had or had power to transfer except that a purchaser of a limited interest acquires rights only to the extent of the interest purchased. A person with voidable title has power to transfer a good title to a good faith purchaser for value. When goods have been delivered under a transaction of purchase the purchaser has such power even though

(a) the transferor was deceived as to the identity of the purchaser, or

(b) the delivery was in exchange for a check which is later dishonored, or

(c) it was agreed that the transaction was to be a "cash sale", or

(d) the delivery was procured through fraud punishable as larcenous under the criminal law.

(2) Any entrusting of possession of goods to a merchant who deals in goods of that kind gives him power to transfer all rights of the entruster to a buyer in ordinary course of business.

(3) "Entrusting" includes any delivery and any acquiescence in retention of possession regardless of any condition expressed between the parties to the delivery or acquiescence and regardless of whether the procurement of the entrusting or the possessor's disposition of the goods have been such as to be larcenous under the criminal law.

(4) The rights of other purchasers of goods and of lien creditors are governed by the articles on secured transactions (article 9), bulk transfers (article 6) and documents of title (article 7). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 654, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 5.—PERFORMANCE

§ 28:2-501. Insurable interest in goods; manner of identification of goods.

(1) The buyer obtains a special property and an insurable interest in goods by identification of existing goods as goods to which the contract refers even though the goods so identified are non-conforming and he has an option to return or reject them. Such identification can be made at any time and in any manner explicitly agreed to by the parties. In the absence of explicit agreement identification occurs

(a) when the contract is made if it is for the sale of goods already existing and identified;

(b) if the contract is for the sale of future goods other than those described in paragraph (c), when goods are shipped, marked or otherwise designated by the seller as goods to which the contract refers;

(c) when the crops are planted or otherwise become growing crops or the young are conceived if the contract is for the sale of unborn young to be born within twelve months after contracting or for the sale of crops to be harvested within twelve months or the next normal harvest season after contracting whichever is longer.

(2) The seller retains an insurable interest in goods so long as title to or any security interest in the goods remains in him and where the identification is by the seller alone he may until default or insolvency or notification to the buyer that the identification is final substitute other goods for those identified.

(3) Nothing in this section impairs any insurable interest recognized under any other statute or rule of law. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 655, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-502. Buyer's right to goods on seller's insolvency.

(1) Subject to subsection (2) and even though the goods have not been shipped a buyer who has paid a part or all of the price of goods in which he has a special property under the provisions of the immediately preceding section may on making and keeping good a tender of any unpaid portion of their price recover them from the seller if the seller becomes insolvent within ten days after receipt of the first installment on their price.

(2) If the identification creating his special property has been made by the buyer he acquires the right to recover the goods only if they conform to the contract for sale. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 655, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-503. Manner of seller's tender of delivery.

(1) Tender of delivery requires that the seller put and hold conforming goods at the buyer's disposition and give the buyer any notification reasonably necessary to enable him to take delivery. The manner, time and place for tender are determined by the agreement and this article, and in particular

(a) tender must be at a reasonable hour, and if it is of goods they must be kept available for the period reasonably necessary to enable the buyer to take possession; but

(b) unless otherwise agreed the buyer must furnish facilities reasonably suited to the receipt of the goods.

(2) Where the case is within the next section respecting shipment tender requires that the seller comply with its provisions.

(3) Where the seller is required to deliver at a particular destination tender requires that he comply with subsection (1) and also in any appropriate case tender documents as described in subsections (4) and (5) of this section.

(4) Where goods are in the possession of a bailee and are to be delivered without being moved

(a) tender requires that the seller either tender a negotiable document of title covering such goods or procure acknowledgment by the bailee of the buyer's right to possession of the goods; but

(b) tender to the buyer of a non-negotiable document of title or of a written direction to the bailee to deliver is sufficient tender unless the buyer seasonably objects, and receipt by the bailee of notification of the buyer's rights fixes those rights as against the bailee and all third persons; but risk of loss of the goods and of any failure by the bailee to honor the non-negotiable document of title or to obey the direction remains on the seller until the buyer has had a reasonable time to present the document or direction, and a refusal by the bailee to honor the document or to obey the direction defeats the tender.

(5) Where the contract requires the seller to deliver documents

(a) he must tender all such documents in correct form except as provided in this article with respect to bills of lading in a set (subsection (2) of section 28:2-323); and

(b) tender through customary banking channels is sufficient and dishonor of a draft accompanying the documents constitutes non-acceptance or rejection.

§ 28:2-504. Shipment by seller.

Where the seller is required or authorized to send the goods to the buyer and the contract does not require him to deliver them at a particular destination, then unless otherwise agreed he must

(a) put the goods in the possession of such a carrier and make such a contract for their transportation as may be reasonable having regard to the nature of the goods and other circumstances of the case; and

(b) obtain and promptly deliver or tender in due form any document necessary to enable the buyer to obtain possession of the goods or otherwise required by the agreement or by usage of trade; and

(c) promptly notify the buyer of the shipment. Failure to notify the buyer under paragraph (c) or to make a proper contract under paragraph (a) is a ground for rejection only if material delay or loss ensues. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 656, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-505. Seller's shipment under reservation.

(1) Where the seller has identified goods to the contract by or before shipment:

(a) his procurement of a negotiable bill of lading to his own order or otherwise reserves in him a security interest in the goods. His procurement of the bill to the order of a financing agency or of the buyer indicates in addition only the seller's expectation of transferring that interest to the person named.

(b) a non-negotiable bill of lading to himself or his nominee reserves possession of the goods as security but except in a case of conditional delivery (subsection (2) of section 28:2-507) a non-negotiable bill of lading naming the buyer as consignee reserves no security interest even though the seller retains possession of the bill of lading.

(2) When shipment by the seller with reservation of a security interest is in violation of the contract for sale it constitutes an improper contract for transportation within the preceding section but impairs neither the rights given to the buyer by shipment and identification of the goods to the contract nor the seller's powers as a holder of a negotiable document. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 656, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-506. Rights of financing agency.

(1) A financing agency by paying or purchasing for value a draft which relates to a shipment of goods acquires to the extent of the payment or purchase and in addition to its own rights under the draft and any document of title securing it any rights of the shipper in the goods including the right to stop delivery and the shipper's right to have the draft honored by the buyer.

(2) The right to reimbursement of a financing agency which has in good faith honored or purchased the draft under commitment to or authority from the buyer is not impaired by subsequent discovery of defects with reference to any relevant document which was apparently regular on its face. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 657, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-507. Effect of seller's tender; delivery on condition.

(1) Tender of delivery is a condition to the buyer's duty to accept the goods and, unless otherwise agreed, to his duty to pay for them. Tender entitles the seller to acceptance of the goods and to payment according to the contract.

(2) Where payment is due and demanded on the delivery to the buyer of goods or documents of title, his right as against the seller to retain or dispose of them is conditional upon his making the payment due. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 657, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-508. Cure by seller of improper tender or delivery; replacement.

(1) Where any tender or delivery by the seller is rejected because non-conforming and the time for performance has not yet expired, the seller may seasonably notify the buyer of his intention to cure and may then within the contract time make a conforming delivery.

(2) Where the buyer rejects a non-conforming tender which the seller had reasonable grounds to believe would be acceptable with or without money allowance the seller may if he seasonably notifies the buyer have a further reasonable time to substitute a conforming tender. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 657, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-509. Risk of loss in the absence of breach.

(1) Where the contract requires or authorizes the seller to ship the goods by carrier

(a) if it does not require him to deliver them at a particular destination, the risk of loss passes to the buyer when the goods are duly delivered to the carrier even though the shipment is under reservation (section 28:2-505); but

(b) if it does require him to deliver them at a particular destination and the goods are there duly tendered while in the possession of the carrier, the risk of loss passes to the buyer when the goods are there duly so tendered as to enable the buyer to take delivery.

(2) Where the goods are held by a bailee to be delivered without being moved, the risk of loss passes to the buyer

(a) on his receipt of a negotiable document of title covering the goods; or

(b) on acknowledgment by the bailee of the buyer's right to possession of the goods; or

(c) after his receipt of a non-negotiable document of title or other written direction to deliver, as provided in subsection (4)(b) of section 28:2-503.

(3) In any case not within subsection (1) or (2), the risk of loss passes to the buyer on his receipt of the goods if the seller is a merchant; otherwise the risk passes to the buyer on tender of delivery.

(4) The provisions of this section are subject to contrary agreement of the parties and to the provisions of this article on sale on approval (section 28:2-327) and on effect of breach on risk of loss (section 28:2-510). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 657, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-510. Effect of breach on risk of loss.

(1) Where a tender or delivery of goods so fails to conform to the contract as to give a right of rejection the risk of their loss remains on the seller until cure or acceptance.

(2) Where the buyer rightfully revokes acceptance he may to the extent of any deficiency in his effective insurance coverage treat the risk of loss as having rested on the seller from the beginning.

(3) Where the buyer as to conforming goods already identified to the contract for sale repudiates or is otherwise in breach before risk of their loss has passed to him, the seller may to the extent of any deficiency in his effective insurance coverage treat the risk of loss as resting on the buyer for a commercially reasonable time. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 658, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-511. Tender of payment by buyer; payment by check.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed tender of payment is a condition to the seller's duty to tender and complete any delivery.

(2) Tender of payment is sufficient when made by any means or in any manner current in the ordinary course of business unless the seller demands payment in legal tender and gives any extension of time reasonably necessary to procure it.

(3) Subject to the provisions of this subtitle on the effect of an instrument on an obligation (section 28:3-802), payment by check is conditional and is defeated as between the parties by dishonor of the check on due presentment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 658, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-512. Payment by buyer before inspection.

(1) Where the contract requires payment before inspection non-conformity of the goods does not excuse the buyer from so making payment unless

(a) the non-conformity appears without inspection; or

(b) despite tender of the required documents the circumstances would justify injunction against honor under the provisions of this subtitle (section 28:5-114).

(2) Payment pursuant to subsection (1) does not constitute an acceptance of goods or impair the buyer's right to inspect or any of his remedies. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 658, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-513. Buyer's right to inspection of goods.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed and subject to subsection (3), where goods are tendered or delivered or identified to the contract for sale, the buyer has a right before payment or acceptance to inspect them at any reasonable place and time and in any reasonable manner. When the seller is required or authorized to send the goods to the buyer, the inspection may be after their arrival.

(2) Expenses of inspection must be borne by the buyer but may be recovered from the seller if the goods do not conform and are rejected.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed and subject to the provisions of this article on C.I.F. contracts (subsection (3) of section 28:2-321), the buyer is not entitled to inspect the goods before payment of the price when the contract provides.

(a) for delivery "C.O.D." or on other like terms; or

(b) for payment against documents of title, except where such payment is due only after the goods are to become available for inspection.

(4) A place or method of inspection fixed by the parties is presumed to be exclusive but unless otherwise expressly agreed it does not postpone identification or shift the place for delivery or for passing the risk of loss. If compliance becomes impossible, inspection shall be as provided in this section unless the place or method fixed was clearly intended as an indispensable condition failure of which avoids the contract. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 658, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-514. When documents deliverable on acceptance; when on payment.

Unless otherwise agreed documents against which a draft is drawn are to be delivered to the drawee on acceptance of the draft if it is payable more than three days after presentment; otherwise, only on payment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 659, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-515. Preserving evidence of goods in dispute.

In furtherance of the adjustment of any claim or dispute

(a) either party on reasonable notification to the other and for the purpose of ascertaining the facts and preserving evidence has the right to inspect, test and sample the goods including such of them as may be in the possession or control of the other; and

(b) the parties may agree to a third party inspection or survey to determine the conformity or condition of the goods and may agree that the findings shall be binding upon them in any subsequent litigation or adjustment.

PART 6.—BREACH, REPUDIATION AND EXCUSE

§ 28:2-601. Buyer's rights on improper delivery.

Subject to the provisions of this article on breach in installment contracts (section 28:2-612) and unless otherwise agreed under the sections on contractual limitations of remedy (sections 28:2-718 and 28:2-719), if the goods or the tender of delivery fail in any respect to conform to the contract, the buyer may

(a) reject the whole; or

(b) accept the whole; or

(c) accept any commercial unit or units and reject the rest.

§ 28:2-602. Manner and effect of rightful rejection.

(1) Rejection of goods must be within a reasonable time after their delivery or tender. It is ineffective unless the buyer seasonably notifies the seller.

(2) Subject to the provisions of the two following sections on rejected goods (sections 28:2-603 and 28:2-604),

(a) after rejection any exercise of ownership by the buyer with respect to any commercial unit is wrongful as against the seller; and

(b) if the buyer has before rejection taken physical possession of goods in which he does not have a security interest under the provisions of this article (subsection (3) of section 28:2-711), he is under a duty after rejection to hold them with reasonable care at the seller's disposition for a time sufficient to permit the seller to remove them; but

(c) the buyer has no further obligations with regard to goods rightfully rejected.

(3) The seller's rights with respect to goods wrongfully rejected are governed by the provisions of this article on Seller's remedies in general (section 28:2-703). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 659, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Return of goods

If buyer elects to rescind, he must within a reasonable length of time after delivery offer to return the goods. Talley v. Campbell Music Co. (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 852).

§ 28:2-603. Merchant buyer's duties as to rightfully rejected goods.

(1) Subject to any security interest in the buyer (subsection (3) of section 28:2-711), when the seller has no agent or place of business at the market of rejection a merchant buyer is under a duty after rejection of goods in his possession or control to follow any reasonable instructions received from the seller with respect to the goods and in the absence of such instructions to make reasonable efforts to sell them for the seller's account if they are perishable or threaten to decline in value speedily. Instructions are not reasonable if on demand indemnity for expenses is not forthcoming.

(2) When the buyer sells goods under subsection (1), he is entitled to reimbursement from the seller or out of the proceeds for reasonable expenses of caring for and selling them, and if the expenses include no selling commission then to such commission as is usual in the trade or if there is none to a reasonable sum not exceeding ten per cent on the gross proceeds.

(3) In complying with this section the buyer is held only to good faith and good faith conduct hereunder is neither acceptance nor conversion nor the basis of an action for damages. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 660, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-604. Buyer's options as to salvage of rightfully rejected goods.

Subject to the provisions of the immediately preceding section on perishables if the seller gives no instructions within a reasonable time after notification of rejection the buyer may store the rejected goods for the seller's account or reship them to him or resell them for the seller's account with reimbursement as provided in the preceding section.

Such action is not acceptance or conversion. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 660, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-605. Waiver of buyer's objections by failure to particularize.

(1) The buyer's failure to state in connection with rejection a particular defect which is ascertainable by reasonable inspection precludes him from relying on the unstated defect to justify rejection or to establish breach

(a) where the seller could have cured it if stated seasonably; or

(b) between merchants when the seller has after rejection made a request in writing for a full and final written statement of all defects on which the buyer proposes to rely.

(2) Payments against documents made without reservation of rights precludes recovery of the payment for defects apparent on the face of the documents. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 660, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-606. What constitutes acceptance of goods.

(1) Acceptance of goods occurs when the buyer

(a) after a reasonable opportunity to inspect the goods signifies to the seller that the goods are conforming or that he will take or retain them in spite of their nonconformity; or

(b) fails to make an effective rejection (subsection (1) of section 28:2-602), but such acceptance does not occur until the buyer has had a reasonable opportunity to inspect them; or

(c) does any act inconsistent with the seller's ownership; but if such act is wrongful as against the seller it is an acceptance only if ratified by him.

(2) Acceptance of a part of any commercial unit is acceptance of that entire unit. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 660, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-607. Effect of acceptance; notice of breach; burden of establishing breach after acceptance; notice of claim or litigation to person answerable over.

(1) The buyer must pay at the contract rate for any goods accepted.

(2) Acceptance of goods by the buyer precludes rejection of the goods accepted and if made with knowledge of a non-conformity cannot be revoked because of it unless the acceptance was on the reasonable assumption that the non-conformity would be seasonably cured but acceptance does not of itself impair any other remedy provided by this article for non-conformity.

(3) Where a tender has been accepted

(a) the buyer must within a reasonable time after he discovers or should have discovered any breach notify the seller of breach or be barred from any remedy; and

(b) if the claim is one for infringement or the like (subsection (3) of section 28:2-312) and the buyer is sued as a result of such a breach he must so notify the seller within a reasonable time after he receives notice of the litigation or be barred from any remedy over for liability established by the litigation.

(4) The burden is on the buyer to establish any breach with respect to the goods accepted.

(5) Where the buyer is sued for breach of a warranty or other obligation for which his seller is answerable over

(a) he may give his seller written notice of the litigation. If the notice states that the seller may come in and defend and that if the seller does not do so he will be bound in any action against him by his buyer by any determination of fact common to the two litigations, then unless the seller after seasonable receipt of the notice does come in and defend he is so bound.

(b) if the claim is one for infringement or the like (subsection (3) of section 28:2-312) the original seller may demand in writing that his buyer turn over to him control of the litigation including settlement or else be barred from any remedy over and if he also agrees to bear all expense and to satisfy any adverse judgment, then unless the buyer after seasonable receipt of the demand does turn over control the buyer is so barred.

(6) The provisions of subsection (3), (4) and (5) apply to any obligation of a buyer to hold the seller harmless against infringement or the like (subsection (3) of section 28:2-312). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 661, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-608. Revocation of acceptance in whole or in part.

(1) The buyer may revoke his acceptance of a lot or commercial unit whose non-conformity substantially impairs its value to him if he has accepted it

(a) on the reasonable assumption that its non-conformity would be cured and it has not been seasonably cured; or

(b) without discovery of such non-conformity if his acceptance was reasonably induced either by the difficulty of discovery before acceptance or by the seller's assurances.

(2) Revocation of acceptance must occur within a reasonable time after the buyer discovers or should have discovered the ground for it and before any substantial change in condition of the goods which is not caused by their own defects. It is not effective until the buyer notifies the seller of it.

(3) A buyer who so revokes has the same rights and duties with regard to the goods involved as if he had rejected them. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 661, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-609. Right to adequate assurance of performance.

(1) A contract for sale imposes an obligation on each party that the other's expectation of receiving due performance will not be impaired. When reasonable grounds for insecurity arise with respect to the performance of either party the other may in writing demand adequate assurance of due performance and until he receives such assurance may if commercially reasonable suspend any performance for which he has not already received the agreed return.

(2) Between merchants the reasonableness of grounds for insecurity and the adequacy of any assurance offered shall be determined according to commercial standards.

(3) Acceptance of any improper delivery or payment does not prejudice the aggrieved party's right to demand adequate assurance of future performance.

(4) After receipt of a justified demand failure to provide within a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days such assurance of due performance as is adequate under the circumstances of the particular case is a repudiation of the contract. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 662, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-610. Anticipatory repudiation.

When either party repudiates the contract with respect to a performance not yet due the loss of which will substantially impair the value of the contract to the other, the aggrieved party may

(a) for a commercially reasonable time await performance by the repudiating party; or

(b) resort to any remedy for breach (section 28:2-703 or section 28:2-711), even though he has notified the repudiating party that he would await the latter's performance and has urged retraction; and

(c) in either case suspend his own performance or proceed in accordance with the provisions of this article on the seller's right to identify goods to the contract notwithstanding breach or to salvage unfinished goods (section 28:2-704). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 662, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-611. Retraction of anticipatory repudiation.

(1) Until the repudiating party's next performance is due he can retract his repudiation unless the aggrieved party has since the repudiation cancelled or materially changed his position or otherwise indicated that he considers the repudiation final.

(2) Retraction may be by any method which clearly indicates to the aggrieved party that the repudiating party intends to perform, but must include any assurance justifiably demanded under the provisions of this article (section 28:2-609).

(3) Retraction reinstates the repudiating party's rights under the contract with due excuse and allowance to the aggrieved party for any delay occasioned by the repudiation. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 662, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-612. "Installment contract"; breach.

(1) An "installment contract" is one which requires or authorizes the delivery of goods in separate lots to be separately accepted, even though the contract contains a clause "each delivery is a separate contract" or its equivalent.

(2) The buyer may reject any installment which is non-conforming if the non-conformity substantially impairs the value of that installment and cannot be cured or if the non-conformity is a defect in the required documents; but if the non-conformity does not fall within subsection (3) and the seller gives adequate assurance of its cure the buyer must accept that installment.

(3) Whenever non-conformity or default with respect to one or more installments substantially impairs the value of the whole contract there is a breach of the whole. But the aggrieved party reinstates the contract if he accepts a non-conforming installment without seasonably notifying of cancellation or if he bring an action with respect only to past installments or demands performance as to future installments. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 662, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-613. Casualty to identified goods.

Where the contract requires for its performance goods identified when the contract is made, and the goods suffer casualty without fault of either party before the risk of loss passes to the buyer, or in a proper case under a "no arrival, no sale" term (section 28:2-324) then

(a) if the loss is total the contract is avoided; and

(b) if the loss is partial or the goods have so deteriorated as no longer to conform to the contract the buyer may nevertheless demand inspection and at his option either treat the contract as avoided or accept the goods with due allowance from the contract price for the deterioration or the deficiency in quantity but without further right against the seller.

§ 28:2-614. Substituted performance.

(1) Where without fault of either party the agreed berthing, loading, or unloading facilities fail or an agreed type of carrier becomes unavailable or the agreed manner of delivery otherwise becomes commercially impracticable but a commercially reasonable substitute is available, such substitute performance must be tendered and accepted.

(2) If the agreed means or manner of payment fails because of domestic or foreign governmental regulation, the seller may withhold or stop delivery unless the buyer provides a means or manner of payment which is commercially a substantial equivalent. If delivery has already been taken, payment by the means or in the manner provided by the regulation discharges the buyer's obligation unless the regulation is discriminatory, oppressive or predatory. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 663, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Impracticability of performance

The concept of impracticability assumes that performance was physically possible, a rule making nonperformance a condition precedent to recovery would unjustifiably encourage disappointment of expectations, and there is nothing necessarily inconsistent in claiming commercial impracticability for method of performance actually adopted and, accordingly, impossibility issue may be raised in suit to recover cost of alternative method of performance. Transatlantic Financing Corporation v. United States (1966, 363 F. 2d 312, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 183).

In some cases, even an express expectation may not, for purposes of doctrine of impossibility of performance, amount to a condition of performance. Id.

§ 28:2-615. Excuse by failure of presupposed conditions.

Except so far as a seller may have assumed a greater obligation and subject to the preceding section on substituted performance:

(a) Delay in delivery or non-delivery in whole or in part by a seller who complies with paragraphs (b) and (c) is not a breach of his duty under a contract for sale if performance as agreed has been made impracticable by the occurrence of a contingency the non-occurrence of which was a basic assumption on which the contract was made or by compliance in good faith with any applicable foreign or domestic governmental regulation or order whether or not it later proves to be invalid.

(b) Where the causes mentioned in paragraph (a) affect only a part of the seller's capacity to perform, he must allocate production and deliveries among his customers but may at his option include regular customers not then under contract as well as his own requirements for further manufacture. He may so allocate in any manner which is fair and reasonable.

(c) The seller must notify the buyer seasonably that there will be delay or non-delivery and, when allocation is required under paragraph (b), of the estimated quota thus made available for the buyer.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 663, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Impossibility of performance

Alleged engineering difficulties encountered by defendant electronics manufacturer did not relieve it, on ground of practical impossibility, from liability to government, pursuant to terms of contract for sale of computer, for damages for delay in delivery and ultimate nondelivery of computer. United States v. Wegematic Corp. (1966, 360 F. 2d 674, Second Circuit).

Impracticability of performance

It might be an overstatement to say that increased cost and difficulty of performance could never constitute impracticability, but to justify relief under doctrine of impossibility of performance, there would have to be more of a variation between expected cost and cost of performing by available alternative than was present in case in which promisor could legitimately be presumed to have accepted some degree of abnormal risk and added expense above and beyond contract price of $305,842.92 was only $43,972. Transatlantic Financing Corporation v. United States (1966, 363 F. 2d 312, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 183).

The concept of impracticability assumes that performance was physically possible, a rule making nonperformance a condition precedent to recovery would unjustifiably encourage disappointment of expectations, and there is nothing necessarily inconsistent in claiming commercial impracticability for method of performance actually adopted and, accordingly, impossibility issue may be raised in suit to recover cost of alternative method of performance. Id.

In some cases, even an express expectation may not, for purposes of doctrine of impossibility of performance, amount to a condition of performance. Id.

§ 28:2-616. Procedure on notice claiming excuse.

(1) Where the buyer receives notification of a material or indefinite delay or an allocation justified under the preceding section he may by written notification to the seller as to any delivery concerned, and where the prospective deficiency substantially impairs the value of the whole contract under the provisions of this article relating to breach of installment contracts (section 28:2-612), then also as to the whole,

(a) terminate and thereby discharge any unexecuted portion of the contract; or

(b) modify the contract by agreeing to take his available quota in substitution.

(2) If after receipt of such notification from the seller the buyer fails so to modify the contract within a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days the contract lapses with respect to any deliveries affected.

(3) The provisions of this section may not be negated by agreement except in so far as the seller has assumed a greater obligation under the preceding section. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 663, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 7.—REMEDIES

§ 28:2-701. Remedies for breach of collateral contracts not impaired.

Remedies for breach of any obligation or promise collateral or ancillary to a contract for sale are not impaired by the provisions of this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 664, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-702. Seller's remedies on discovery of buyer's insolvency.

(1) Where the seller discovers the buyer to be insolvent he may refuse delivery except for cash including payment for all goods theretofore delivered under the contract, and stop delivery under this article (section 28:2-705).

(2) Where the seller discovers that the buyer has received goods on credit while insolvent he may reclaim the goods upon demand made within ten days after the receipt, but if misrepresentation of solvency has been made to the particular seller in writing within three months before delivery the ten day limitation does not apply. Except as provided in this subsection the seller may not base a right to reclaim goods on the buyer's fraudulent or innocent misrepresentation of solvency or of intent to pay.

(3) The seller's right to reclaim under subsection (2) is subject to the rights of a buyer in ordinary course or other good faith purchaser or lien creditor under this article (section 28:2-403). Successful reclamation of goods excludes all other remedies with respect to them. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 664, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-703. Seller's remedies in general.

Where the buyer wrongfully rejects or revokes acceptance of goods or fails to make a payment due on or before delivery or repudiates with respect to a part or the whole, then with respect to any goods directly affected and, if the breach is of the whole contract (section 28:2-612), then also with respect to the whole undelivered balance, the aggrieved seller may

(a) withhold delivery of such goods;

(b) stop delivery by any bailee as hereafter provided (section 28:2-705);

(c) proceed under the next section respecting goods still unidentified to the contract;

(d) resell and recover damages as hereafter provided (section 28:2-706);

(e) recover damages for non-acceptance (section 28:2-708) or in a proper case the price (section 28:2-709);

(f) cancel.

§ 28:2-704. Seller's right to identify goods to the contract notwithstanding breach or to salvage unfinished goods.

(1) An aggrieved seller under the preceding section may

(a) identify to the contract conforming goods not already identified if at the time he learned of the breach they are in his possession or control;

(b) treat as the subject of resale goods which have demonstrably been intended for the particular contract even though those goods are unfinished.

(2) Where the goods are unfinished an aggrieved seller may in the exercise of reasonable commercial judgment for the purposes of avoiding loss and of effective realization either complete the manufacture and wholly identify the goods to the contract or cease manufacture and resell for scrap or salvage value or proceed in any other reasonable manner. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 665, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-705. Seller's stoppage of delivery in transit or otherwise.

(1) The seller may stop delivery of goods in the possession of a carrier or other bailee when he discovers the buyer to be insolvent (section 28:2-702) and may stop delivery of carload, truckload, plane-load or larger shipments of express or freight when the buyer repudiates or fails to make a payment due before delivery or if for any other reason the seller has a right to withhold or reclaim the goods.

(2) As against such buyer the seller may stop delivery until

(a) receipt of the goods by the buyer; or

(b) acknowledgment to the buyer by any bailee of the goods except a carrier that the bailee holds the goods for the buyer; or

(c) such acknowledgment to the buyer by a carrier by reshipment or as warehouseman; or

(d) negotiation to the buyer of any negotiable document of title covering the goods.

(3)(a) To stop delivery the seller must so notify as to enable the bailee by reasonable diligence to prevent delivery of the goods.

(b) After such notification the bailee must hold and deliver the goods according to the directions of the seller but the seller is liable to the bailee for any ensuing charges or damages.

(c) If a negotiable document of title has been issued for goods the bailee is not obliged to obey a notification to stop until surrender of the document.

(d) A carrier who has issued a non-negotiable bill of lading is not obliged to obey a notification to stop received from a person other than the consignor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 665, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-706. Seller's resale including contract for resale.

(1) Under the conditions stated in section 28:2-703 on seller's remedies, the seller may resell the goods concerned or the undelivered balance thereof. Where the resale is made in good faith and in a commercially reasonable manner the seller may recover the difference between the resale price and the contract price together with any incidental damages allowed under the provisions of this article (section 28:2-710), but less expenses saved in consequence of the buyer's breach.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (3) or unless otherwise agreed resale may be at public or private sale including sale by way of one or more contracts to sell or of identification to an existing contract of the seller. Sale may be as a unit or in parcels and at any time and place and on any terms but every aspect of the sale including the method, manner, time, place and terms must be commercially reasonable. The resale must be reasonably identified as referring to the broken contract, but it is not necessary that the goods be in existence or that any or all of them have been identified to the contract before the breach.

(3) Where the resale is at private sale the seller must give the buyer reasonable notification of his intention to resell.

(4) Where the resale is at public sale

(a) only identified goods can be sold except where there is a recognized market for a public sale of futures in goods of the kind; and

(b) it must be made at a usual place or market for public sale if one is reasonably available and except in the case of goods which are perishable or threaten to decline in value speedily the seller must give the buyer reasonable notice of the time and place of the resale; and

(c) if the goods are not to be within the view of those attending the sale the notification of sale must state the place where the goods are located and provide for their reasonable inspection by prospective bidders; and

(d) the seller may buy.

(5) A purchaser who buys in good faith at a resale takes the goods free of any rights of the original buyer even though the seller fails to comply with one or more of the requirements of this section.

(6) The seller is not accountable to the buyer for any profit made on any resale. A person in the position of a seller (section 28:2-707) or a buyer who has rightfully rejected or justifiably revoked acceptance must account for any excess over the amount of his security interest, as hereinafter defined (subsection (3) of section 28:2-711). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 665, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-707. "Person in the position of a seller".

(1) A "person in the position of a seller" includes as against a principal an agent who has paid or become responsible for the price of goods on behalf of his principal or anyone who otherwise holds a security interest or other right in goods similar to that of a seller.

(2) A person in the position of a seller may as provided in this article withhold or stop delivery (section 28:2-705) and resell (section 28:2-706) and recover incidental damages (section 28:2-710). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 666, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-708. Seller's damages for non-acceptance or repudiation.

(1) Subject to subsection (2) and to the provisions of this article with respect to proof of market price (section 28:2-723), the measure of damages for non-acceptance or repudiation by the buyer is the difference between the market price at the time and place for tender and the unpaid contract price together with any incidental damages provided in this article (section 28:2-710), but less expenses saved in consequence of the buyer's breach.

(2) If the measure of damages provided in subsection (1) is inadequate to put the seller in as good a position as performance would have done then the measure of damages is the profit (including reasonable overhead) which the seller would have made from full performance by the buyer, together with any incidental damages provided in this article (section 28:2-710), due allowance for costs reasonably incurred and due credit for payments or proceeds of resale. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 666, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-709. Action for the price.

(1) When the buyer fails to pay the price as it becomes due the seller may recover, together with any incidental damages under the next section, the price

(a) of goods accepted or of conforming goods lost or damaged within a commercially reasonable time after risk of their loss has passed to the buyer; and

(b) of goods identified to the contract if the seller is unable after reasonable effort to resell them at a reasonable price or the circumstances reasonably indicate that such effort will be unavailing.

(2) Where the seller sues for the price he must hold for the buyer any goods which have been identified to the contract and are still in his control except that if resale becomes possible he may resell them at any time prior to the collection of the judgment. The net proceeds of any such resale must be credited to the buyer and payment of the judgment entitles him to any goods not resold.

(3) After the buyer has wrongfully rejected or revoked acceptance of the goods or has failed to make a payment due or has repudiated (section 28:2-610), a seller who is held not entitled to the price under this section shall nevertheless be awarded damages for non-acceptance under the preceding section. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 666, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-710. Seller's incidental damages.

Incidental damages to an aggrieved seller include any commercially reasonable charges, expenses or commissions incurred in stopping delivery, in the transportation, care and custody of goods after the buyer's breach, in connection with return or resale of the goods or otherwise resulting from the breach (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 667, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-711. Buyer's remedies in general; buyer's security interest in rejected goods.

(1) Where the seller fails to make delivery or repudiates or the buyer rightfully rejects or justifiably revokes acceptance then with respect to any goods involved, and with respect to the whole of the breach goes to the whole contract (section 28:2-612), the buyer may cancel and whether or not he has done so may in addition to recovering so much of the price as has been paid

(a) "cover" and have damages under the next section as to all the goods affected whether or not they have been identified to the contract; or

(b) recover damages for non-delivery as provided in this article (section 28:2-713).

(2) Where the seller fails to deliver or repudiates the buyer may also

(a) if the goods have been identified recover them as provided in this article (section 28:2-502); or

(b) in a proper case obtain specific performance or replevy the goods as provided in this article (section 28:2-716).

(3) On rightful rejection or justifiable revocation of acceptance a buyer has a security interest in goods in his possession or control for any payments made on their price and any expenses reasonably incurred in their inspection, receipt, transportation, care and custody and may hold such goods and resell them in like manner as an aggrieved seller (section 28:2-706). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 667, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Breach of warranty

In case of breach of warranty, buyer need not proceed by way of rescission, but may keep merchandise and seek recoupment by way of diminution of the purchase price under the contract. Talley v. Campbell Music Co. (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 852).

Proof of damages

Where, in suit against seller for breach of express and implied warranty in a contract for sale to buyer of a combination radio-phonograph, buyer presented no evidence upon which to determine difference between value of phonograph as received and its value as warranted, or cost of repair, but instead sought to recover, and produced evidence with reference to, purchase price of instrument, a variance occurred between buyer's theory of recovery and proof of damages, preventing buyer from establishing a prima facie case for jury. Talley v. Campbell Music Co. (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 852).

§ 28:2-712. "Cover"; buyer's procurement of substitute goods.

(1) After a breach within the preceding section the buyer may "cover" by making in good faith and without unreasonable delay any reasonable purchase of or contract to purchase goods in substitution for those due from the seller.

(2) The buyer may recover from the seller as damages the difference between the cost of cover and the contract price together with any incidental or consequential damages as hereinafter defined (section 28:2-715), but less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach.

(3) Failure of the buyer to effect cover within this section does not bar him from any other remedy. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 667, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-713. Buyer's damages for non-delivery or repudiation.

(1) Subject to the provisions of this article with respect to proof of market price (section 28:2-723), the measure of damages for non-delivery or repudiation by the seller is the difference between the market price at the time when the buyer learned of the breach and the contract price together with any incidental and consequential damages provided in this article (section 28:2-715), but less expenses saved in consequence of the seller's breach.

(2) Market price is to be determined as of the place for tender or, in cases of rejection after arrival or revocation of acceptance, as of the place of arrival. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-714. Buyer's damages for breach in regard to accepted goods.

(1) Where the buyer has accepted goods and given notification (subsection (3) of section 28:2-607) he may recover as damages for any non-conformity of tender the loss resulting in the ordinary course of events from the seller's breach as determined in any manner which is reasonable.

(2) The measure of damages for breach of warranty is the difference at the time and place of acceptance between the value of the goods accepted and the value they would have had if they had been as warranted, unless special circumstances show proximate damages of a different amount.

(3) In a proper case any incidental and consequential damages under the next section may also be recovered. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Damages for breach of warranty

If buyer affirms sale, his recovery is limited to difference in value of goods as delivered and value they would have had if they had met the warranty. Talley v. Campbell Music Co. (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 852).

In case of breach of warranty, buyer need not proceed by way of rescission, but may keep merchandise and seek recoupment by way of diminution of the purchase price under the contract. Id.

Proof of damages

Where, in a suit against seller for breach of express and implied warranty in a contract for sale to buyer of a combination radio-phonograph, buyer presented no evidence upon which to determine difference between value of phonograph as received and its value as warranted, or cost of repair, but instead sought to recover, and produced evidence with reference to, purchase price of instrument, a variance occurred between buyer's theory of recovery and proof of damages, preventing buyer from establishing a prima facie case for jury. Talley v. Campbell Music Co. (D.C. App. 1966, 219 A. 2d 852).

§ 28:2-715. Buyer's incidental and consequential damages.

(1) Incidental damages resulting from the seller's breach include expenses reasonably incurred in inspection, receipt, transportation and care and custody of goods rightfully rejected, any commercially reasonable charges, expenses or commissions in connection with effecting cover and any other reasonable expense incident to the delay or other breach.

(2) Consequential damages resulting from the seller's breach include

(a) any loss resulting from general or particular requirements and needs of which the seller at the time of contracting had reason to know and which could not reasonably be prevented by cover or otherwise; and

(b) injury to person or property proximately resulting from any breach of warranty.

§ 28:2-716. Buyer's right to specific performance or replevin.

(1) Specific performance may be decreed where the goods are unique or in other proper circumstances.

(2) The decree for specific performance may include such terms and conditions as to payment of the price, damages, or other relief as the court may deem just.

(3) The buyer has a right of replevin for goods identified to the contract if after reasonable effort he is unable to effect cover for such goods or the circumstances reasonably indicate that such effort will be unavailing or if the goods have been shipped under reservation and satisfaction of the security interest in them has been made or tendered. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-717. Deduction of damages from the price.

The buyer on notifying the seller of his intention to do so may deduct all or any part of the damages resulting from any breach of the contract from any part of the price still due under the same contract. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-718. Liquidation or limitation of damages; deposits.

(1) Damages for breach by either party may be liquidated in the agreement but only at an amount which is reasonable in the light of the anticipated or actual harm caused by the breach, the difficulties of proof of loss, and the inconvenience or non-feasibility of otherwise obtaining an adequate remedy. A term fixing unreasonably large liquidated damages is void as a penalty.

(2) Where the seller justifiably withholds delivery of goods because of the buyer's breach, the buyer is entitled to restitution of any amount by which the sum of his payments exceeds

(a) the amount to which the seller is entitled by virtue of terms liquidating the seller's damages in accordance with subsection (1), or

(b) in the absence of such terms, twenty per cent of the value of the total performance for which the buyer is obligated under the contract or $500, whichever is smaller.

(3) The buyer's right to restitution under subsection (2) is subject to offset to the extent that the seller establishes

(a) a right to recover damages under the provisions of this article other than subsection (1), and

(b) the amount or value of any benefits received by the buyer directly or indirectly by reason of the contract.

(4) Where a seller has received payment in goods their reasonable value or the proceeds of their resale shall be treated as payments for the purposes of subsection (2); but if the seller has notice of the buyer's breach before reselling goods received in part performance, his resale is subject to the conditions laid down in this article on resale by an aggrieved seller (section 28:2-706). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-719. Contractual modification or limitation of remedy.

(1) Subject to the provisions of subsections (2) and (3) of this section and of the preceding section on liquidation and limitation of damages,

(a) the agreement may provide for remedies in addition to or in substitution for those provided in this article and may limit or alter the measure of damages recoverable under this article, as by limiting the buyer's remedies to return of the goods and repayment of the price or to repair and replacement of non-conforming goods or parts; and

(b) resort to a remedy as provided is optional unless the remedy is expressly agreed to be exclusive, in which case it is the sole remedy.

(2) Where circumstances cause an exclusive or limited remedy to fail of its essential purpose, remedy may be had as provided in this subtitle.

(3) Consequential damages may be limited or excluded unless the limitation or exclusion is unconscionable. Limitation of consequential damages for injury to the person in the case of consumer goods is prima facie unconscionable but limitation of damages where the loss is commercial is not. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-720. Effect of "cancellation" or "rescission" on claims for antecedent breach.

Unless the contrary intention clearly appears, expressions of "cancellation" or "rescission" of the contract or the like shall not be construed as a renunciation or discharge of any claim in damages for an antecedent breach. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-721. Remedies for fraud.

Remedies for material misrepresentation or fraud include all remedies available under this article for nonfraudulent breach. Neither rescission or a claim for rescission of the contract for sale nor rejection or return of the goods shall bar or be deemed inconsistent with a claim for damages or other remedy. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-722. Who can sue third parties for injury to goods.

Where a third party so deals with goods which have been identified to a contract for sale as to cause actionable injury to a party to that contract

(a) a right of action against the third party is in either party to the contract for sale who has title to or a security interest or a special property or an insurable interest in the goods; and if the goods have been destroyed or converted a right of action is also in the party who either bore the risk of loss under the contract for sale or has since the injury assumed that risk as against the other;

(b) if at the time of the injury the party plaintiff did not bear the risk of loss as against the other party to the contract for sale and there is no arrangement between them for disposition of the recovery, his suit or settlement is, subject to his own interest, as a fiduciary for the other party to the contract;

(c) either party may with the consent of the other sue for the benefit of whom it may concern. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-723. Proof of market price: time and place.

(1) If an action based on anticipatory repudiation comes to trial before the time for performance with respect to some or all of the goods, any damages based on market price (section 28:2-708 or section 28:2-713) shall be determined according to the price of such goods prevailing at the time when the aggrieved party learned of the repudiation.

(2) If evidence of a price prevailing at the times or places described in this article is not readily available the price prevailing within any reasonable time before or after the time described or at any other place which in commercial judgment or under usage of trade would serve as a reasonable substitute for the one described may be used, making any proper allowance for the cost of transporting the goods to or from such other place.

(3) Evidence of a relevant price prevailing at a time or place other than the one described in this article offered by one party is not admissible unless and until he has given the other party such notice as the court finds sufficient to prevent unfair surprise. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-724. Admissibility of market quotations.

Whenever the prevailing price or value of any goods regularly bought and sold in any established commodity market is in issue, reports in official publications or trade journals or in newspapers or periodicals of general circulation published as the reports of such market shall be admissible in evidence. The circumstances of the preparation of such a report may be shown to affect its weight but not its admissibility. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:2-725. Statute of limitations in contracts for sale.

(1) An action for breach of any contract for sale must be commenced within four years after the cause of action has accrued. By the original agreement the parties may reduce the period of limitation to not less than one year but may not extend it.

(2) A cause of action accrues when the breach occurs, regardless of the aggrieved party's lack of knowledge of the breach. A breach of warranty occurs when tender of delivery is made, except that where a warranty explicitly extends to future performance of the goods and discovery of the breach must await the time of such performance the cause of action accrues when the breach is or should have been discovered.

(3) Where an action commenced within the time limited by subsection (1) is so terminated as to leave available a remedy by another action for the same breach such other action may be commenced after the expiration of the time limited and within six months after the termination of the first action unless the termination resulted from voluntary discontinuance or from dismissal for failure or neglect to prosecute.

(4) This section does not alter the law on tolling of the statute of limitations nor does it apply to causes of action which have accrued before this subtitle becomes effective. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-105. When promise or order unconditional.

(1) A promise or order otherwise unconditional is not made conditional by the fact that the instrument

(a) is subject to implied or constructive conditions; or

(b) states its consideration, whether performed or promised, or the transaction which gave rise to the instrument, or that the promise or order is made or the instrument matures in accordance with or "as per" such transaction; or

(c) refers to or states that it arises out of a separate agreement or refers to a separate agreement for rights as to prepayment or acceleration; or

(d) states that it is drawn under a letter of credit; or

(e) states that it is secured, whether by mortgage, reservation of title or otherwise; or

(f) indicates a particular account to be debited or any other fund or source from which reimbursement is expected; or

(h) is limited to payment out of the entire assets of a partnership, unincorporated association, trust or estate by or on behalf of which the instrument is issued.

(2) A promise or order is not unconditional if the instrument

(a) states that it is subject to or governed by any other agreement; or

(b) states that it is to be paid only out of a particular fund or source except as provided in this section.

§ 28:3-106. Sum certain.

(1) The sum payable is a sum certain even though it is to be paid

(a) with stated interest or by stated installments; or

(b) with stated different rates of interest before and after default or a specified date; or

(c) with a stated discount or addition if paid before or after the date fixed for payment; or

§ 28:3-107. Money.

(1) An instrument is payable in money if the medium of exchange in which it is payable is money at the time the instrument is made. An instrument payable in "currency" or "current funds" is payable in money.

(2) A promise or order to pay a sum stated in a foreign currency is for a sum certain in money and, unless a different medium of payment is specified in the instrument, may be satisfied by payment of that number of dollars which the stated foreign currency will purchase at the buying sight rate for that currency on the day on which the instrument is payable or, if payable on demand, on the day of demand. If such an instrument specifies a foreign currency as the medium of payment the instrument is payable in that currency. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 674, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-108. Payable on demand.

§ 28:3-109. Definite time.

(1) An instrument is payable at a definite time if by its terms it is payable—

(a) on or before a stated date or at a fixed period after a stated date; or

(b) at a fixed period after sight; or

(c) at a definite time subject to any acceleration; or

(d) at a definite time subject to extension at the option of the holder, or to extension to a further definite time at the option of the maker or acceptor or automatically upon or after a specified act or event.

(2) An instrument which by its terms is otherwise payable only upon an act or event uncertain as to time of occurrence is not payable at a definite time even though the act or event has occurred. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-110. Payable to order.

(1) An instrument is payable to order when by its terms it is payable to the order or assigns of any person therein specified with reasonable certainty, or to him or his order, or when it is conspicuously designated on its face as "exchange" or the like and names a payee. It may be payable to the order of

(a) the maker or drawer; or

(b) the drawee; or

(c) a payee who is not maker, drawer, or drawee; or

(d) two or more payees together or in the alternative; or

(e) an estate, trust or fund, in which case it is payable to the order of the representative of such estate, trust or fund or his successors; or

(f) an office, or an officer by his title as such in which case it is payable to the principal but the incumbent of the office or his successors may act as if he or they were the holder; or

(g) a partnership or unincorporated association, in which case it is payable to the partnership or association and may be indorsed or transferred by any person thereto authorized.

(2) An instrument not payable to order is not made so payable by such words as "payable upon return of this instrument properly indorsed".

(3) An instrument made payable both to order and to bearer is payable to order unless the bearer words are handwritten or typewritten. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-111. Payable to bearer.

An instrument is payable to bearer when by its terms it is payable to—

(a) bearer or the order of bearer; or

(b) a specified person or bearer; or

(c) "cash" or the order of "cash", or any other indication which does not purport to designate a specific payee.

§ 28:3-112. Terms and omissions not affecting negotiability.

(1) The negotiability of an instrument is not affected by—

(a) the omission of a statement of any consideration or of the place where the instrument is drawn or payable; or

(b) a statement that collateral has been given to secure obligations either on the instrument or otherwise of an obligor on the instrument or that in the case of default on those obligations the holder may realize on or dispose of the collateral; or

(c) a promise or power to maintain or protect collateral or to give additional collateral; or

(d) a term authorizing a confession of judgment on the instrument if it is not paid when due; or

(e) a term purporting to waive the benefit of any law intended for the advantage or protection of any obligor; or

(f) a term in a draft providing that the payee by indorsing or cashing it acknowledges full satisfaction of an obligation of the drawer; or

(g) a statement in a draft drawn in a set of parts (section 28:3-801) to the effect that the order is effective only if no other part has been honored.

§ 28:3-113. Seal.

An instrument otherwise negotiable is within this article even though it is under a seal. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-114. Date, antedating, postdating.

(1) The negotiability of an instrument is not affected by the fact that it is undated, antedated, or postdated.

(2) Where an instrument is antedated or postdated the time when it is payable is determined by the stated date if the instrument is payable on demand or at a fixed period after date.

(3) Where the instrument or any signature thereon is dated, the date is presumed to be correct. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-115. Incomplete instruments.

(1) When a paper whose contents at the time of signing show that it is intended to become an instrument is signed while still incomplete in any necessary respect it cannot be enforced until completed, but when it is completed in accordance with authority given it is effective as completed.

(2) If the completion is unauthorized the rules as to material alteration apply (section 28:3-407), even though the paper was not delivered by the maker or drawer; but the burden of establishing that any completion is authorized is on the party so asserting. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-116. Instruments payable to two or more persons.

An instrument payable to the order of two or more persons

(a) if in the alternative is payable to any one of them and may be negotiated, discharged or enforced by any of them who has possession of it;

(b) if not in the alternative is payable to all of them and may be negotiated, discharged or enforced only by all of them.

§ 28:3-117. Instruments payable with words of description.

An instrument made payable to a named person with the addition of words describing him

(a) as agent or officer of a specified person is payable to his principal but the agent or officer may act as if he were the holder;

(b) as any other fiduciary for a specified person or purpose is payable to the payee and may be negotiated, discharged or enforced by him;

(c) in any other manner is payable to the payee unconditionally and the additional words are without effect on subsequent parties.

§ 28:3-118. Ambiguous terms and rules of construction.

The following rules apply to every instrument:

(a) Where there is doubt whether the instrument is a draft or a note the holder may treat it as either. A draft drawn on the drawer is effective as a note.

(b) Handwritten terms control typewritten and printed terms, and typewritten control printed.

(c) Words control figures except that if the words are ambiguous figures control.

(d) Unless otherwise specified a provision for interest means interest at the judgment rate at the place of payment from the date of the instrument, or if it is undated from the date of issue.

(e) Unless the instrument otherwise specifies two or more persons who sign as maker, acceptor or drawer or indorser and as a part of the same transaction are jointly and severally liable even though the instrument contains such words as "I promise to pay".

(f) Unless otherwise specified consent to extension authorizes a single extension for not longer than the original period. A consent to extension, expressed in the instrument, is binding on secondary parties and accommodation makers. A holder may not exercise his option to extend an instrument over the objection of a maker or acceptor or other party who in accordance with section 28:3-604 tenders full payment when the instrument is due.

§ 28:3-119. Other writings affecting instrument.

(1) As between the obligor and his immediate obligee or any transferee the terms of an instrument may be modified or affected by any other written agreement executed as a part of the same transaction, except that a holder in due course is not affected by any limitation of his rights arising out of the separate written agreement if he had no notice of the limitation when he took the instrument.

(2) A separate agreement does not affect the negotiability of an instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 677, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-120. Instruments "payable through" bank.

An instrument which states that it is "payable through" a bank or the like designates that bank as a collecting bank to make presentment but does not of itself authorize the bank to pay the instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 677, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-121. Instruments payable at bank.

A note or acceptance which states that it is payable at a bank is the equivalent of a draft drawn on the bank payable when it falls due out of any funds of the maker or acceptor in current account or otherwise available for such payment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 677, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-122. Accrual of cause of action.

(1) A cause of action against a maker or an acceptor accrues

(a) in the case of a time instrument on the day after maturity;

(b) in the case of a demand instrument upon its date or, if no date is stated, on the date of issue.

(2) A cause of action against the obligor of a demand or time certificate of deposit accrues upon demand, but demand on a time certificate may not be made until on or after the date of maturity.

(3) A cause of action against a drawer of a draft or an indorser of any instrument accrues upon demand following dishonor of the instrument. Notice of dishonor is a demand.

(4) Unless an instrument provides otherwise, interest runs at the rate provided by law for a judgment

(a) in the case of a maker, acceptor or other primary obligor of a demand instrument, from the date of demand;

(b) in all other cases from the date of accrual of the cause of action.

PART 2.—TRANSFER AND NEGOTIATION

§ 28:3-201. Transfer: right to indorsement.

(1) Transfer of an instrument vests in the transferee such rights as the transferor has therein, except that a transferee who has himself been a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the instrument or who as a prior holder had notice of a defense or claim against it cannot improve his position by taking from a later holder in due course.

(2) A transfer of a security interest in an instrument vests the foregoing rights in the transferee to the extent of the interest transferred.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed any transfer for value of an instrument not then payable to bearer gives the transferee the specifically enforceable right to have the unqualified indorsement of the transferor. Negotiation takes effect only when the indorsement is made and until that time there is no presumption that the transferee is the owner. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 678, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Stat. 678, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-202. Negotiation.

(1) Negotiation is the transfer of an instrument in such form that the transferee becomes a holder. If the instrument is payable to order it is negotiated by delivery with any necessary indorsement; if payable to bearer it is negotiated by delivery.

(2) An indorsement must be written by or on behalf of the holder and on the instrument or on a paper so firmly affixed thereto as to become a part thereof.

(3) An indorsement is effective for negotiation only when it conveys the entire instrument or any unpaid residue. If it purports to be of less it operates only as a partial assignment.

(4) Words of assignment, condition, waiver, guaranty, limitation or disclaimer of liability and the like accompanying an indorsement do not affect its character as an indorsement. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 678, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-203. Wrong or misspelled name.

Where an instrument is made payable to a person under a misspelled name or one other than his own he may indorse in that name or his own or both; but signature in both names may be required by a person paying or giving value for the instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 678, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-204. Special indorsement; blank indorsement.

(1) A special indorsement specifies the person to whom or to whose order it makes the instrument payable. Any instrument specially indorsed becomes payable to the order of the special indorsee and may be further negotiated only by his indorsement.

(2) An indorsement in blank specifies no particular indorsee and may consist of a mere signature. An instrument payable to order and indorsed in blank becomes payable to bearer and may be negotiated by delivery alone until specially indorsed.

(3) The holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement by writing over the signature of the indorser in blank any contract consistent with the character of the indorsement. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 678, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-205. Restrictive indorsements.

An indorsement is restrictive which either

(a) is conditional; or

(b) purports to prohibit further transfer of the instrument; or

(c) includes the words "for collection", "for deposit", "pay any bank", or like terms signifying a purpose of deposit or collection; or

(d) otherwise states that it is for the benefit or use of the indorser or of another person.

§ 28:3-206. Effect of restrictive indorsement.

(1) No restrictive indorsement prevents further transfer or negotiation of the instrument.

(2) An intermediary bank, or a payor bank which is not the depositary bank, is neither given notice nor otherwise affected by a restrictive indorsement of any person except the bank's immediate transferor or the person present for payment.

(3) Except for an intermediary bank, any transferee under an indorsement which is conditional or includes the words "for collection", "for deposit", "pay any bank", or like terms (subparagraphs (a) and (c) of section 28:3-205) must pay or apply any value given by him for or on the security of the instrument consistently with the indorsement and to the extent that he does so he becomes a holder for value. In addition such transferee is a holder in due course if he otherwise complies with the requirements of section 28:3-302 on what constitutes a holder in due course.

(4) The first taker under an indorsement for the benefit of the indorser or another person (subparagraph (d) of section 28:3-205) must pay or apply any value given by him for or on the security of the instrument consistently with the indorsement and to the extent that he does so he becomes a holder for value. In addition such taker is a holder in due course if he otherwise complies with the requirements of section 28:3-302 on what constitutes a holder in due course. A later holder for value is neither given notice nor otherwise affected by such restrictive indorsement unless he has knowledge that a fiduciary or other person has negotiated the instrument in any transaction for his own benefit or otherwise in breach of duty (subsection (2) of section 28:3-304). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 679, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-207. Negotiation effective although it may be rescinded.

(1) Negotiation is effective to transfer the instrument although the negotiation is

(a) made by an infant, a corporation exceeding its powers, or any other person without capacity; or

(b) obtained by fraud, duress or mistake of any kind; or

(c) part of an illegal transaction; or

(d) made in breach of duty.

(2) Except as against a subsequent holder in due course such negotiation is in an appropriate case subject to rescission, the declaration of a constructive trust or any other remedy permitted by law. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 679, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-208. Reacquisition.

Where an instrument is returned to or reacquired by a prior party he may cancel any indorsement which is not necessary to his title and reissue or further negotiate the instrument, but any intervening party is discharged as against the reacquiring party and subsequent holders not in due course and if his indorsement has been cancelled is discharged as against subsequent holders in due course as well. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 679, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 3.—RIGHTS OF A HOLDER

§ 28:3-301. Rights of a holder.

The holder of an instrument whether or not he is the owner may transfer or negotiate it and, except as otherwise provided in section 28:3-603 on payment or satisfaction, discharge it or enforce payment in his own name. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 680, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-302. Holder in due course.

(1) A holder in due course is a holder who takes the instrument

(a) for value; and

(b) in good faith; and

(c) without notice that it is overdue or has been dishonored or of any defense against or claim to it on the part of any person.

(2) A payee may be a holder in due course.

(3) A holder does not become a holder in due course of an instrument:

(a) by purchase of it at judicial sale or by taking it under legal process; or

(b) by acquiring it in taking over an estate; or

(c) by purchasing it as part of a bulk transaction not in regular course of business of the transferor.

(4) A purchaser of a limited interest can be a holder in due course only to the extent of the interest purchased. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 680, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Alleged fraud

Evidence established that holder of first note, which had been given for allegedly fraudulent painting, obtained note from holder in due course, so that there could be a recovery on note notwithstanding alleged fraud. Blow v. Ammerman (1965, 350 F. 2d 729, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

Summary judgment

It was error to grant summary judgment in favor of holder of second note, which had been given for allegedly fraudulent painting sold to maker by transferor of holder, where issue was sufficient to raise a jury issue as to bad faith on part of holder of note. Blow v. Ammerman (1965, 350 F. 2d 729, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

§ 28:3-303. Taking for value.

A holder takes the instrument for value

(a) to the extent that the agreed consideration has been performed or that he acquires a security interest in or a lien on the instrument otherwise than by legal process; or

(b) when he takes the instrument in payment of or as security for an antecedent claim against any person whether or not the claim is due; or

(c) when he gives a negotiable instrument for it or makes an irrevocable commitment to a third person.

§ 28:3-304. Notice to purchaser.

(1) The purchaser has notice of a claim or defense if

(a) the instrument is so incomplete, bears such visible evidence of forgery or alteration, or is otherwise so irregular as to call into question its validity, terms or ownership or to create an ambiguity as to the party to pay; or

(b) the purchaser has notice that the obligation of any party is voidable in whole or in part, or that all parties have been discharged.

(2) The purchaser has notice of a claim against the instrument when he has knowledge that a fiduciary has negotiated the instrument in payment of or as security for his own debt or in any transaction for his own benefit or otherwise in breach of duty.

(3) The purchaser has notice that an instrument is overdue if he has reason to know

(a) that any part of the principal amount is overdue or that there is an uncured default in payment of another instrument of the same series; or

(b) that acceleration of the instrument has been made; or

(c) that he is taking a demand instrument after demand has been made or more than a reasonable length of time after its issue. A reasonable time for a check drawn and payable within the states and territories of the United States and the District is presumed to be thirty days.

(4) Knowledge of the following facts does not of itself give the purchaser notice of a defense or claim

(a) that the instrument is antedated or postdated;

(b) that it was issued or negotiated in return for an executory promise or accompanied by a separate agreement, unless the purchaser has notice that a defense or claim has arisen from the terms thereof;

(c) that any party has signed for accommodation;

(d) that an incomplete instrument has been completed, unless the purchaser has notice of any improper completion;

(e) that any person negotiating the instrument is or was a fiduciary;

(f) that there has been default in payment of interest on the instrument or in payment of any other instrument, except one of the same series.

(5) The filing or recording of a document does not of itself constitute notice within the provisions of this article to a person who would otherwise be a holder in due course.

(6) To be effective notice must be received at such time and in such manner as to give a reasonable opportunity to act on it. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 680, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-305. Rights of a holder in due course.

To the extent that a holder is a holder in due course he takes the instrument free from

- (1) all claims to it on the part of any person; and
- (2) all defenses of any party to the instrument with whom the holder has not dealt except
  - (a) infancy, to the extent that it is a defense to a simple contract; and
  - (b) such other incapacity, or duress, or illegality of the transaction, as renders the obligation of the party a nullity; and
  - (c) such misrepresentation as has induced the party to sign the instrument with neither knowledge nor reasonable opportunity to obtain knowledge of its character or its essential terms; and
  - (d) discharge in insolvency proceedings; and
  - (e) any other discharge of which the holder has notice when he takes the instrument.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 681, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Alleged fraud

Evidence established that holder of first note, which had been given for allegedly fraudulent painting, obtained note from holder in due course, so that there could be a recovery on note notwithstanding alleged fraud. Blow v. Ammerman (1965, 350 F. 2d 729, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

Summary judgment

It was error to grant summary judgment in favor of holder of second note, which had been given for allegedly fraudulent painting sold to maker by transferor of holder, where issue was sufficient to raise a jury issue as to bad faith on part of holder of note. Blow v. Ammerman (1965, 350 F. 2d 729, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

§ 28:3-306. Rights of one not holder in due course.

Unless he has the rights of a holder in due course any person takes the instrument subject to

- (a) valid claims to it on the part of any person; and
- (b) all defenses of any party which would be available in an action on a simple contract; and
- (c) the defenses of want or failure of consideration, nonperformance of any condition precedent, nondelivery, or delivery for a special purpose (section 28:3-408); and
- (d) the defense that he or a person through whom he holds the instrument acquired it by theft, or that payment or satisfaction to such holder would be inconsistent with the terms of a restrictive indorsement. The claim of any third person to the instrument is not otherwise available as a defense to any party liable thereon unless the third person himself defends the action for such party.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 681, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Alleged fraud

Evidence established that holder of first note, which had been given for allegedly fraudulent painting, obtained note from holder in due course, so that there could be a recovery on note notwithstanding alleged fraud. Blow v. Ammerman (1965, 350 F. 2d 729, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

Summary judgment

It was error to grant summary judgment in favor of holder of second note, which had been given for allegedly fraudulent painting sold to maker by transferor of holder, where issue was sufficient to raise a jury issue as to bad faith on part of holder of note. Blow v. Ammerman (1965, 350 F. 2d 729, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

§ 28:3-307. Burden of establishing signatures, defenses and due course.

(1) Unless specifically denied in the pleadings each signature on an instrument is admitted. When the effectiveness of a signature is put in issue

- (a) the burden of establishing it is on the party claiming under the signature; but
- (b) the signature is presumed to be genuine or authorized except where the action is to enforce the obligation of a purported signer who has died or become incompetent before proof is required.

(2) When signatures are admitted or established, production of the instrument entitles a holder to recover on it unless the defendant establishes a defense.

(3) After it is shown that a defense exists a person claiming the rights of a holder in due course has the burden of establishing that he or some person under whom he claims is in all respects a holder in due course. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 681, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Alleged fraud

Evidence established that holder of first note, which had been given for allegedly fraudulent painting, obtained note from holder in due course, so that there could be a recovery on note notwithstanding alleged fraud. Blow v. Ammerman (1965, 350 F. 2d 729, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

Applicable law

Under Uniform Commercial Code, burden of a holder to prove himself a holder in due course applied to case in which trial occurred after Code's effective date, even though entire transaction occurred prior to such effective date. United Securities Corp v. Bruton (D.C. App. 1965, 213 A. 2d 892).

Bad faith

Knowledge of collateral fraudulent transactions of negotiator of note is circumstance bearing on whether particular note was taken in bad faith. Blow v. Ammerman (1965, 350 F. 2d 729, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

Burden of proof

Under Uniform Commercial Code the burden was on holder of purchase price note, where defense of defective workmanship in article sold was shown, to prove that it was in all respects a holder in due course, and such burden was not sustained where only evidence offered by holder to establish its status as such holder was that it purchased note on date shown on endorsement. United Securities Corp v. Bruton (D.C. App. 1965, 213 A. 2d 892).

Question of fact

Question whether holder of second note, which had been given for allegedly fraudulent painting, was holder in due course, in these circumstances, so as to be entitled to recover on note was issue of fact. Blow v. Ammerman (1965, 350 F. 2d 729, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 351).

It was error to grant summary judgment in favor of holder of second note, which had been given for allegedly fraudulent painting sold to maker by transferor of holder, where issue was sufficient to raise a jury issue as to bad faith on part of holder of note. Id.

PART 4.—LIABILITY OF PARTIES

§ 28:3-401. Signature.

(1) No person is liable on an instrument unless his signature appears thereon.

(2) A signature is made by use of any name, including any trade or assumed name, upon an instrument, or by any word or mark used in lieu of a written signature. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 682, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-402. Signature in ambiguous capacity.

Unless the instrument clearly indicates that a signature is made in some other capacity it is an indorsement. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 682, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-403. Signature by authorized representative.

(1) A signature may be made by an agent or other representative, and his authority to make it may be established as in other cases of representation. No particular form of appointment is necessary to establish such authority.

(2) An authorized representative who signs his own name to an instrument

(a) is personally obligated if the instrument neither names the person represented nor shows that the representative signed in a representative capacity;

(b) except as otherwise established between the immediate parties, is personally obligated if the instrument names the person represented but does not show that the representative signed in a representative capacity, or if the instrument does not name the person represented but does show that the representative signed in a representative capacity.

(3) Except as otherwise established the name of an organization preceded or followed by the name and office of an authorized individual is a signature made in a representative capacity. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 682, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-404. Unauthorized signatures.

(1) Any unauthorized signature is wholly inoperative as that of the person whose name is signed unless he ratifies it or is precluded from denying it; but it operates as the signature of the unauthorized signer in favor of any person who in good faith pays the instrument or takes it for value.

(2) Any unauthorized signature may be ratified for all purposes of this article. Such ratification does not of itself affect any rights of the person ratifying against the actual signer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 682, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-405. Impostors; signature in name of payee.

(1) An indorsement by any person in the name of a named payee is effective if

(a) an imposter by use of the mails or otherwise has induced the maker or drawer to issue the instrument to him or his confederate in the name of the payee; or

(b) a person signing as or on behalf of a maker or drawer intends the payee to have no interest in the instrument; or

(c) an agent or employee of the maker or drawer has supplied him with the name of the payee intending the latter to have no such interest.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the criminal or civil liability of the person so indorsing. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 683, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-406. Negligence contributing to alteration or unauthorized signature.

Any person who by his negligence substantially contributes to a material alteration of the instrument or to the making of an unauthorized signature is precluded from asserting the alteration or lack of authority against a holder in due course or against a drawee or other payor who pays the instrument in good faith and in accordance with the reasonable commercial standards of the drawee's or payor's business. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 683, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-407. Alteration.

(1) Any alteration of an instrument is material which changes the contract of any party thereto in any respect, including any such change in

(a) the number or relations of the parties; or

(b) an incomplete instrument, by completing it otherwise than as authorized; or

(c) the writing as signed, by adding to it or by removing any part of it.

(2) As against any person other than a subsequent holder in due course

(a) alteration by the holder which is both fraudulent and material discharges any party whose contract is thereby changed unless that party assents or is precluded from asserting the defense;

(b) no other alteration discharges any party and the instrument may be enforced according to its original tenor, or as to incomplete instruments according to the authority given.

(3) A subsequent holder in due course may in all cases enforce the instrument according to its original tenor, and when an incomplete instrument has been completed, he may enforce it as completed. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 683, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-408. Consideration.

Want or failure of consideration is a defense as against any person not having the rights of a holder in due course (section 28:3-305), except that no consideration is necessary for an instrument or obligation thereon given in payment of or as security for an antecedent obligation of any kind. Nothing in this section shall be taken to displace any statute outside this subtitle under which a promise is enforceable notwithstanding lack or failure of consideration. Partial failure of consideration is a defense pro tanto whether or not the failure is in an ascertained or liquidated amount. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 683, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-409. Draft not an assignment.

(1) A check or other draft does not of itself operate as an assignment of any funds in the hands of the drawee available for its payment, and the drawee is not liable on the instrument until he accepts it.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect any liability in contract, tort or otherwise arising from any letter of credit or other obligation or representation which is not an acceptance. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 683, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-410. Definition and operation of acceptance.

(1) Acceptance is the drawee's signed engagement to honor the draft as presented. It must be written on the draft, and may consist of his signature alone.

It becomes operative when completed by delivery or notification.

(2) A draft may be accepted although it has not been signed by the drawer or is otherwise incomplete or is overdue or has been dishonored.

(3) Where the draft is payable at a fixed period after sight and the acceptor fails to date his acceptance the holder may complete it by supplying a date in good faith. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-411. Certification of a check.

(1) Certification of a check is acceptance. Where a holder procures certification the drawer and all prior indorsers are discharged.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed a bank has no obligation to certify a check.

(3) A bank may certify a check before returning it for lack of proper indorsement. If it does so the drawer is discharged. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-412. Acceptance varying draft.

(1) Where the drawee's proffered acceptance in any manner varies the draft as presented the holder may refuse the acceptance and treat the draft as dishonored in which case the drawee is entitled to have his acceptance cancelled.

(2) The terms of the draft are not varied by an acceptance to pay at any particular bank or place in the United States, unless the acceptance states that the draft is to be paid only at such bank or place.

(3) Where the holder assents to an acceptance varying the terms of the draft each drawer and indorser who does not affirmatively assent is discharged. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-413. Contract of maker, drawer and acceptor.

(1) The maker or acceptor engages that he will pay the instrument according to its tenor at the time of his engagement or as completed pursuant to section 28:3-115 on incomplete instruments.

(2) The drawer engages that upon dishonor of the draft and any necessary notice of dishonor or protest he will pay the amount of the draft to the holder or to any indorser who takes it up. The drawer may disclaim this liability by drawing without recourse.

(3) By making, drawing or accepting the party admits as against all subsequent parties including the drawee the existence of the payee and his then capacity to indorse. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-414. Contract of indorser; order of liability.

(1) Unless the indorsement otherwise specifies (as by such words as "without recourse") every indorser engages that upon dishonor and any necessary notice of dishonor and protest he will pay the instrument according to its tenor at the time of his indorsement to the holder or to any subsequent indorser who takes it up, even though the indorser who takes it up was not obligated to do so.

(2) Unless they otherwise agree indorsers are liable to one another in the order in which they indorse, which is presumed to be the order in which their signatures appear on the instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-415. Contract of accommodation party.

(1) An accommodation party is one who signs the instrument in any capacity for the purpose of lending his name to another party to it.

(2) When the instrument has been taken for value before it is due the accommodation party is liable in the capacity in which he has signed even though the taker knows of the accommodation.

(3) As against a holder in due course and without notice of the accommodation oral proof of the accommodation is not admissible to give the accommodation party the benefit of discharges dependent on his character as such. In other cases the accommodation character may be shown by oral proof.

(4) An indorsement which shows that it is not in the chain of title is notice of its accommodation character.

(5) An accommodation party is not liable to the party accommodated, and if he pays the instrument has a right of recourse on the instrument against such party. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 684, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-416. Contract of guarantor.

(1) "Payment guaranteed" or equivalent words added to a signature mean that the signer engages that if the instrument is not paid when due he will pay it according to its tenor without resort by the holder to any other party.

(2) "Collection guaranteed" or equivalent words added to a signature mean that the signer engages that if the instrument is not paid when due he will pay it according to its tenor, but only after the holder has reduced his claim against the maker or acceptor to judgment and execution has been returned unsatisfied, or after the maker or acceptor has become insolvent or it is otherwise apparent that it is useless to proceed against him.

(3) Words of guaranty which do not otherwise specify guarantee payment.

(4) No words of guaranty added to the signature of a sole maker or acceptor affect his liability on the instrument. Such words added to the signature of one of two or more makers or acceptors create a presumption that the signature is for the accommodation of the others.

(5) When words of guaranty are used presentment, notice of dishonor and protest are not necessary to charge the user.

(6) Any guaranty written on the instrument is enforceable notwithstanding any statute of frauds. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 685, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-417. Warranties on presentment and transfer.

(1) Any person who obtains payment or acceptance and any prior transferor warrants to a person who in good faith pays or accepts that

(a) he has a good title to the instrument or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title; and

(b) he has no knowledge that the signature of the maker or drawer is unauthorized, except that this warranty is not given by a holder in due course acting in good faith

(i) to a maker with respect to the maker's own signature; or

(ii) to a drawer with respect to the drawer's own signature, whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

(iii) to an acceptor of a draft if the holder in due course took the draft after the acceptance or obtained the acceptance without knowledge that the drawer's signature was unauthorized; and

(c) the instrument has not been materially altered, except that this warranty is not given by a holder in due course acting in good faith

(i) to the maker of a note; or

(ii) to the drawer of a draft whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

(iii) to the acceptor of a draft with respect to an alteration made prior to the acceptance if the holder in due course took the draft after the acceptance, even though the acceptance provided "payable as originally drawn" or equivalent terms; or

(iv) to the acceptor of a draft with respect to an alteration made after the acceptance.

(2) Any person who transfers an instrument and receives consideration warrants to his transferee and if the transfer is by indorsement to any subsequent holder who takes the instrument in good faith that

(a) he has a good title to the instrument or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title and the transfer is otherwise rightful; and

(b) all signatures are genuine or authorized; and

(c) the instrument has not been materially altered; and

(d) no defense of any party is good against him; and

(e) he has no knowledge of any insolvency proceeding instituted with respect to the maker or acceptor or the drawer of an unaccepted instrument.

(3) By transferring "without recourse" the transferor limits the obligation stated in subsection (2)

(d) to a warranty that he has no knowledge of such a defense.

(4) A selling agent or broker who does not disclose the fact that he is acting only as such gives the warranties provided in this section, but if he makes such disclosure warrants only his good faith and authority. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 685, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-418. Finality of payment or acceptance.

Except for recovery of bank payments as provided in the article on bank deposits and collections (article 4) and except for liability for breach of warranty on presentment under the preceding section, payment or acceptance of any instrument is final in favor of a holder in due course, or a person who has in good faith changed his position in reliance on the payment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 686, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-419. Conversion of instrument; innocent representative.

(1) An instrument is converted when

(a) a drawee to whom it is delivered for acceptance refuses to return it on demand; or

(b) any person to whom it is delivered for payment refuses on demand either to pay or to return it; or

(c) it is paid on a forged indorsement.

(2) In an action against a drawee under subsection (1) the measure of the drawee's liability is the face amount of the instrument. In any other action under subsection (1) the measure of liability is presumed to be the face amount of the instrument.

(3) Subject to the provisions of this subtitle concerning restrictive indorsements a representative, including a depository or collecting bank, who has a good faith and in accordance with the reasonable commercial standards applicable to the business of such representative dealt with an instrument or its proceeds on behalf of one who was not the true owner is not liable in conversion or otherwise to the true owner beyond the amount of any proceeds remaining in his hands.

(4) An intermediary bank or payor bank which is not a depository bank is not liable in conversion solely by reason of the fact that proceeds of an item indorsed restrictively (sections 28:3-205 and 28:3-206) are not paid or applied consistently with the restrictive indorsement of an indorser other than its immediate transferor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 686, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 5.—PRESENTMENT, NOTICE OF DISHONOR AND PROTEST

§ 28:3-501. When presentment, notice of dishonor, and protest necessary or permissible.

(1) Unless excused (section 28:3-511) presentment is necessary to charge secondary parties as follows:

(a) presentment for acceptance is necessary to charge the drawer and indorsers of a draft where the draft so provides, or is payable elsewhere than at the residence or place of business of the drawee, or its date of payment depends upon such presentment. The holder may at his option present for acceptance any other draft payable at a stated date;

(b) presentment for payment is necessary to charge any indorser;

(c) in the case of any drawer, the acceptor of a draft payable at a bank or the maker of a note payable at a bank, presentment for payment is necessary, but failure to make presentment discharges such drawer, acceptor or maker only as stated in section 28:3-502(1)(b).

(2) Unless excused (section 28:3-511)

(a) notice of any dishonor is necessary to charge any endorser;

(b) in the case of any drawer, the acceptor of a draft payable at a bank or the maker of a note payable at a bank, notice of any dishonor is necessary, but failure to give such notice discharges such drawer, acceptor or maker only as stated in section 28:3-502(1)(b).

(3) Unless excused (section 28:3-511) protest of any dishonor is necessary to charge the drawer and indorsers of any draft which on its face appears to be drawn or payable outside of the states and territories of the United States and the District. The holder may at his option make protest of any dishonor of any other instrument and in the case of a foreign draft may on insolvency of the acceptor before maturity make protest for better security.

(4) Notwithstanding any provision of this section, neither presentment nor notice of dishonor nor protest is necessary to charge an indorser who has indorsed an instrument after maturity. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 687, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965; Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 679, Pub. L. 88-509, § 5.)

AMENDMENT

1964—Section 5 of act Aug. 30, 1964, effective Jan. 1, 1965, amended the first sentence of clause (1)(a) by changing the word "that" to "than".

§ 28:3-502. Unexcused delay; discharge.

(1) Where without excuse any necessary presentment or notice of dishonor is delayed beyond the time when it is due

(a) any indorser is discharged; and

(b) any drawer or the acceptor of a draft payable at a bank or the maker of a note payable at a bank who because the drawee or payor bank becomes insolvent during the delay is deprived of funds maintained with the drawee or payor bank to cover the instrument may discharge his liability by written assignment to the holder of his rights against the drawee or payor bank in respect of such funds, but such drawer, acceptor or maker is not otherwise discharged.

(2) Where without excuse a necessary protest is delayed beyond the time when it is due any drawer or indorser is discharged. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 687, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-503. Time of presentment.

(1) Unless a different time is expressed in the instrument the time for any presentment is determined as follows:

(a) where an instrument is payable at or a fixed period after a stated date any presentment for acceptance must be made on or before the date it is payable;

(b) where an instrument is payable after sight it must either be presented for acceptance or negotiated within a reasonable time after date or issue whichever is later;

(c) where an instrument shows the date on which it is payable presentment for payment is due on that date;

(d) where an instrument is accelerated presentment for payment is due within a reasonable time after the acceleration;

(e) with respect to the liability of any secondary party presentment for acceptance or payment of any other instrument is due within a reasonable time after such party becomes liable thereon.

(2) A reasonable time for presentment is determined by the nature of the instrument, any usage of banking or trade and the facts of the particular case. In the case of an uncertified check which is drawn and payable within the United States and which is not a draft drawn by a bank the following are presumed to be reasonable periods within which to present for payment or to initiate bank collection:

(a) with respect to the liability of the drawer, thirty days after date or issue whichever is later; and

(b) with respect to the liability of an indorser, seven days after his indorsement.

(3) Where any presentment is due on a day which is not a full business day for either the person making presentment or the party to pay or accept, presentment is due on the next following day which is a full business day for both parties.

(4) Presentment to be sufficient must be made at a reasonable hour, and if at a bank during its banking day. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 687, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-504. How presentment made.

(1) Presentment is a demand for acceptance or payment made upon the maker, acceptor, drawee or other payor by or on behalf of the holder.

(2) Presentment may be made

(a) by mail, in which event the time of presentment is determined by the time of receipt of the mail; or

(b) through a clearing house; or

(c) at the place of acceptance or payment specified in the instrument or if there be none at the place of business or residence of the party to accept or pay. If neither the party to accept or pay nor anyone authorized to act for him is present or accessible at such place presentment is excused.

(3) It may be made

(a) to any one of two or more makers, acceptors, drawees or other payors; or

(b) to any person who has authority to make or refuse the acceptance or payment

(4) A draft accepted or a note made payable at a bank in the United States must be presented at such bank.

(5) In the cases described in section 28:4-210 presentment may be made in the manner and with the result stated in that section. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 688, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-505. Rights of party to whom presentment is made.

(1) The party to whom presentment is made may without dishonor require

(a) exhibition of the instrument; and

(b) reasonable identification of the person making presentment and evidence of his authority to make it if made for another; and

(c) that the instrument be produced for acceptance or payment at a place specified in it, or if there be none at any place reasonable in the circumstances; and

(d) a signed receipt on the instrument for any partial or full payment and its surrender upon full payment.

(2) Failure to comply with any such requirement invalidates the presentment but the person presenting has a reasonable time in which to comply and the time for acceptance or payment runs from the time of compliance. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 688, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-506. Time allowed for acceptance or payment.

(1) Acceptance may be deferred without dishonor until the close of the next business day following presentment. The holder may also in good faith effort to obtain acceptance and without either dishonor of the instrument or discharge of secondary parties allow postponement of acceptance for an additional business day.

(2) Except as a longer time is allowed in the case of documentary drafts drawn under a letter of credit, and unless an earlier time is agreed to by the party to pay, payment of an instrument may be deferred without dishonor pending reasonable examination to determine whether it is properly payable, but payment must be made in any event before the close of business on the day of presentment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 689, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-507. Dishonor; holder's right of recourse; term allowing re-presentment.

(1) An instrument is dishonored when

(a) a necessary or optional presentment is duly made and due acceptance or payment is refused or cannot be obtained within the prescribed time or in case of bank collections the instrument is seasonably returned by the midnight deadline (section 28:4-301); or

(b) presentment is excused and the instrument is not duly accepted or paid.

(2) Subject to any necessary notice of dishonor and protest, the holder has upon dishonor an immediate right of recourse against the drawers and indorsers.

(3) Return of an instrument for lack of proper indorsement is not dishonor.

(4) A term in a draft or an indorsement thereof allowing a stated time for re-presentment in the event of any dishonor of the draft by nonacceptance if a time draft or by nonpayment if a sight draft gives the holder as against any secondary party bound by the term an option to waive the dishonor without affecting the liability of the secondary party and he may present again up to the end of the stated time. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 689, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-508. Notice of dishonor.

(1) Notice of dishonor may be given to any person who may be liable on the instrument by or on behalf of the holder or any party who has himself received notice, or any other party who can be compelled to pay the instrument. In addition an agent or bank in whose hands the instrument is dishonored may give notice to his principal or customer or to another agent or bank from which the instrument was received.

(2) Any necessary notice must be given by a bank before its midnight deadline and by any other person before midnight of the third business day after dishonor or receipt of notice of dishonor.

(3) Notice may be given in any reasonable manner. It may be oral or written and in any terms which identify the instrument and state that it has been dishonored. A misdescription which does not mislead the party notified does not vitiate the notice. Sending the instrument bearing a stamp, ticket or writing stating that acceptance or payment has been refused or sending a notice of debit with respect to the instrument is sufficient.

(4) Written notice is given when sent although it is not received.

(5) Notice to one partner is notice to each although the firm has been dissolved.

(6) When any party is in insolvency proceedings instituted after the issue of the instrument notice may be given either to the party or to the representative of his estate.

(7) When any party is dead or incompetent notice may be sent to his last known address or given to his personal representative.

(8) Notice operates for the benefit of all parties who have rights on the instrument against the party notified. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 689, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-509. Protest; noting for protest.

(1) A protest is a certificate of dishonor made under the hand and seal of a United States consul or vice consul or a notary public or other person authorized to certify dishonor by the law of the place where dishonor occurs. It may be made upon information satisfactory to such person.

(2) The protest must identify the instrument and certify either that due presentment has been made or the reason why it is excused and that the instrument has been dishonored by nonacceptance or nonpayment.

(3) The protest may also certify that notice of dishonor has been given to all parties or to specified parties.

(4) Subject to subsection (5) any necessary protest is due by the time that notice of dishonor is due.

(5) If, before protest is due, an instrument has been noted for protest by the officer to make protest, the protest may be made at any time thereafter as of the date of the noting. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 690, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-510. Evidence of dishonor and notice of dishonor.

The following are admissible as evidence and create a presumption of dishonor and of any notice of dishonor therein shown:

(a) a document regular in form as provided in the preceding section which purports to be a protest;

(b) the purported stamp or writing of the drawee, payor bank or presenting bank on the instrument or accompanying it stating that acceptance or payment has been refused for reasons consistent with dishonor;

(c) any book or record of the drawee, payor bank, or any collecting bank kept in the usual course of business which shows dishonor, even though there is no evidence of who made the entry. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 690, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-511. Waived or excused presentment, protest or notice of dishonor or delay therein.

(1) Delay in presentment, protest or notice of dishonor is excused when the party is without notice that it is due or when the delay is caused by circumstances beyond his control and he exercises reasonable diligence after the cause of the delay ceases to operate.

(2) Presentment or notice or protest as the case may be is entirely excused when

(a) the party to be charged has waived it expressly or by implication either before or after it is due; or

(b) such party has himself dishonored the instrument or has countermanded payment or otherwise has no reason to expect or right to require that the instrument be accepted or paid; or

(c) by reasonable diligence the presentment or protest cannot be made or the notice given.

(3) Presentment is also entirely excused when

(a) the maker, acceptor or drawee of any instrument except a documentary draft is dead or in insolvency proceedings instituted after the issue of the instrument; or

(b) acceptance or payment is refused but not for want of proper presentment.

(4) Where a draft has been dishonored by non-acceptance a later presentment for payment and any notice of dishonor and protest for nonpayment are excused unless in the meantime the instrument has been accepted.

(5) A waiver of protest is also a waiver of presentment and of notice of dishonor even though protest is not required.

(6) Where a waiver of presentment or notice or protest is embodied in the instrument itself it is binding upon all parties; but where it is written above the signature of an indorser it binds him only. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 690, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 6.—DISCHARGE

§ 28:3-601. Discharge of parties.

(1) The extent of the discharge of any party from liability on an instrument is governed by the sections on

(a) payment or satisfaction (section 28:3-603); or

(b) tender of payment (section 28:3-604); or

(c) cancellation or renunciation (section 28:3-605); or

(d) impairment of right of recourse or of collateral (section 28:3-606); or

(e) reacquisition of the instrument by a prior party (section 28:3-208); or

(f) fraudulent and material alteration (section 28:3-407); or

(g) certification of a check (section 28:3-411); or

(h) acceptance varying a draft (section 28:3-412); or

(i) unexcused delay in presentment or notice of dishonor or protest (section 28:3-502).

(2) Any party is also discharged from his liability on an instrument to another party by any other act or agreement with such party which would discharge his simple contract for the payment of money.

(3) The liability of all parties is discharged when any party who has himself no right of action or recourse on the instrument

(a) reacquires the instrument in his own right; or

(b) is discharged under any provision of this article except as otherwise provided with respect to discharge for impairment of recourse or of collateral (section 28:3-606).

§ 28:3-602. Effect of discharge against holder in due course.

No discharge of any party provided by this article is effective against a subsequent holder in due course unless he has notice thereof when he takes the instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 691, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-603. Payment or satisfaction.

(1) The liability of any party is discharged to the extent of his payment or satisfaction to the holder even though it is made with knowledge of a claim of another person to the instrument unless prior to such payment or satisfaction the person making the claim either supplies indemnity deemed adequate by the party seeking the discharge or enjoins payment or satisfaction by order of a court of competent jurisdiction in an action in which the adverse claimant and the holder are parties. This subsection does not, however, result in the discharge of the liability

(a) of a party who in bad faith pays or satisfies a holder who acquired the instrument by theft or who (unless having the rights of a holder in due course) holds through one who so acquired it; or

(b) of a party (other than an intermediary bank or a payor bank which is not a depository bank) who pays or satisfies the holder of an instrument which has been restrictively indorsed in a manner not consistent with the terms of such restrictive indorsement.

(2) Payment or satisfaction may be made with the consent of the holder by any person including a stranger to the instrument. Surrender of the instrument to such a person gives him the rights of a transferee (section 28:3-201). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 691, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-604. Tender of payment.

(1) Any party making tender of full payment to a holder when or after it is due is discharged to the extent of all subsequent liability for interest, costs, and attorney's fees.

(2) The holder's refusal of such tender wholly discharges any party who has a right of recourse against the party making the tender.

(3) Where the maker or acceptor of an instrument payable otherwise than on demand is able and ready to pay at every place of payment specified in the instrument when it is due, it is equivalent to tender. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 682, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-605. Cancellation and renunciation.

(1) The holder of an instrument may even without consideration discharge any party.

(a) in any manner apparent on the face of the instrument or the indorsement, as by intentionally cancelling the instrument or the party's signature by destruction or mutilation, or by striking out the party's signature; or

(b) by renouncing his rights by a writing signed and delivered or by surrender of the instrument to the party to be discharged.

(2) Neither cancellation nor renunciation without surrender of the instrument affects the title thereto. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 692, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-606. Impairment of recourse or of collateral.

(1) The holder discharges any party to the instrument to the extent that without such party's consent the holder

(a) without express reservation of rights releases or agrees not to sue any person against whom the party has to the knowledge of the holder a right of recourse or agrees to suspend the right to enforce against such person the instrument or collateral or otherwise discharges such person, except that failure or delay in effecting any required presentment, protest or notice of dishonor with respect to any such person does not discharge any party as to whom presentment, protest or notice of dishonor is effective or unnecessary; or

(b) unjustifiably impairs any collateral for the instrument given by or on behalf of the party or any person against whom he has a right of recourse.

(2) By express reservation of rights against a party with a right of recourse the holder preserves

(a) all his rights against such party as of the time when the instrument was originally due; and

(b) the right of the party to pay the instrument as of that time; and

(c) all rights of such party to recourse against others.

PART 7.—ADVICE OF INTERNATIONAL SIGHT DRAFT

§ 28:3-701. Letter of advice of international sight draft.

(1) A "letter of advice" is a drawer's communication to the drawee that a described draft has been drawn.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed when a bank receives from another bank a letter of advice of an international sight draft the drawee bank may immediately debit the drawer's account and stop the running of interest pro tanto. Such a debit and any resulting credit to any account covering outstanding drafts leaves in the drawer full power to stop payment or otherwise dispose of the amount and creates no trust or interest in favor of the holder.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed and except where a draft is drawn under a credit issued by the drawee, the drawee of an international sight draft owes the drawer no duty to pay an unadvised draft but if it does so and the draft is genuine, may appropriately debit the drawer's account. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 693, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 8.—MISCELLANEOUS

§ 28:3-801. Drafts in a set.

(1) Where a draft is drawn in a set of parts, each of which is numbered and expressed to be an order only if no other part has been honored, the whole of the parts constitutes one draft but a taker of any part may become a holder in due course of the draft.

(2) Any person who negotiates, indorses or accepts a single part of a draft drawn in a set thereby becomes liable to any holder in due course of that part as if it were the whole set, but as between different holders in due course to whom different parts have been negotiated the holder whose title first accrues has all rights to the draft and its proceeds.

(3) As against the drawee the first presented part of a draft drawn in a set is the part entitled to payment, or if a time draft to acceptance and payment. Acceptance of any subsequently presented part renders the drawee liable thereon under subsection (2). With respect both to a holder and to the drawer payment of a subsequently presented part of a draft payable at sight has the same effect as payment of a check notwithstanding an effective stop order (section 28:4-407).

(4) Except as otherwise provided in this section, where any part of a draft in a set is discharged by payment or otherwise the whole draft is discharged. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 693, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-802. Effect of instrument on obligation for which it is given.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed where an instrument is taken for an underlying obligation.

(a) the obligation is pro tanto discharged if a bank is drawer, maker or acceptor of the instrument and there is no recourse on the instrument against the underlying obligor; and

(b) in any other case the obligation is suspended pro tanto until the instrument is due or if it is payable on demand until its presentment. If the instrument is dishonored action may be maintained on either the instrument or the obligation; discharge of the underlying obligor on the instrument also discharges him on the obligation.

(2) The taking in good faith of a check which is not postdated does not of itself so extend the time on the original obligation as to discharge a surety. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 693, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-803. Notice to third party.

Where a defendant is sued for breach of an obligation for which a third person is answerable over under this article he may give the third person written notice of the litigation, and the person notified may then give similar notice to any other person who is answerable over to him under this article.

If the notice states that the person notified may come in and defend and that if the person notified does not do so he will in any action against him by the person giving the notice be bound by any determination of fact common to the two litigations, then unless after seasonable receipt of the notice the person notified does come in and defend he is so bound. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 694, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-804. Lost, destroyed or stolen instruments.

The owner of an instrument which is lost, whether by destruction, theft or otherwise, may maintain an action in his own name and recover from any party liable thereon upon due proof of his ownership, the facts which prevent his production of the instrument and its terms. The court may require security indemnifying the defendant against loss by reason of further claims on the instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 694, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:3-805. Instruments not payable to order or to bearer.

This article applies to any instrument whose terms do not preclude transfer and which is otherwise negotiable within this article but which is not payable to order or to bearer, except that there can be no holder in due course of such an instrument. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 694, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 1.—GENERAL PROVISIONS AND DEFINITIONS

§ 28:4-101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Bank Deposits and Collections. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 695, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-102. Applicability.

(1) To the extent that items within this article are also within the scope of articles 3 and 8, they are subject to the provisions of those articles. In the event of conflict the provisions of this article govern those of article 3 but the provisions of article 8 govern those of this article.

(2) The liability of a bank for action or non-action with respect to any item handled by it for purposes of presentment, payment or collection is governed by the law of the place where the bank is located. In the case of action or non-action by or at a branch or separate office of a bank, its liability is governed by the law of the place where the branch or separate office is located. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 695, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-103. Variation by agreement; measure of damages; certain action constituting ordinary care.

(1) The effect of the provisions of this article may be varied by agreement except that no agreement can disclaim a bank’s responsibility for its own lack of good faith or failure to exercise ordinary care or can limit the measure of damages for such lack or failure; but the parties may by agreement determine the standards by which such responsibility is to be measured if such standards are not manifestly unreasonable.

(2) Federal Reserve regulations and operating letters, clearing house rules, and the like, have the effect of agreements under subsection (1), whether or not specifically assented to by all parties interested in items handled.

(3) Action or non-action approved by this article or pursuant to Federal Reserve regulations or operating letters constitutes the exercise of ordinary care and, in the absence of special instructions, action or non-action consistent with clearing house rules and the like or with a general banking usage not disapproved by this article, prima facie constitutes the exercise of ordinary care.

(4) The specification or approval of certain procedures by this article does not constitute disapproval of other procedures which may be reasonable under the circumstances.

(5) The measure of damages for failure to exercise ordinary care in handling an item is the amount of the item reduced by an amount which could not have been realized by the use of ordinary care, and where there is bad faith it includes other damages, if any, suffered by the party as a proximate consequence. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 695, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-106. Separate office of a bank.

A branch or separate office of a bank is a separate bank for the purpose of computing the time within which and determining the place at or to which action may be taken or notices or orders shall be given under this article and under article 3. The receipt of any notice or order by or the knowledge of one branch or separate office of a bank is not actual or constructive notice to or knowledge of any other branch or office of the same bank and does not impair the right of another branch or office to be a holder in due course of an item. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 697, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-107. Time of receipt of items.

(1) For the purpose of allowing time to process items, prove balances and make the necessary entries on its books to determine its position for the day, a bank may fix an afternoon hour of two P.M. or later as a cut-off hour for the handling of money and items and the making of entries on its books.

(2) Any item or deposit of money received on any day after a cut-off hour so fixed or after the close of the banking day may be treated as being received at the opening of the next banking day.) (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 697, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-108. Delays.

(1) Unless otherwise instructed, a collecting bank in a good faith effort to secure payment may, in the case of specific items and with or without the approval of any person involved, waive, modify or extend time limits imposed or permitted by this subtitle for a period not in excess of an additional banking day without discharge of secondary parties and without liability to its transferor or any prior party.

(2) Delay by a collecting bank or payor bank beyond time limits prescribed or permitted by this subtitle or by instructions is excused if caused by interruption of communication facilities, suspension of payments by another bank, war, emergency conditions or other circumstances beyond the control of the bank provided it exercises such diligence as the circumstances require. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 697, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-109. Process of posting.

The "process of posting" means the usual procedure followed by a payor bank in determining to pay an item and in recording the payment including one or more of the following or other steps as determined by the bank:

- (a) verification of any signature;
  - (b) ascertaining that sufficient funds are available;
  - (c) affixing a "paid" or other stamp;
  - (d) entering a charge or entry to a customer's account;
  - (e) correcting or reversing an entry or erroneous action with respect to the item.
- (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 698, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 2.—COLLECTION OF ITEMS: DEPOSITARY AND COLLECTING BANKS*§ 28:4-201. Presumption and duration of agency status of collecting banks and provisional status of credits; applicability of article; item indorsed "pay any bank".

(1) Unless a contrary intent clearly appears and prior to the time that a settlement given by a collecting bank for an item is or becomes final (subsection (3) of section 28:4-211 and sections 28:4-212 and 28:4-213) the bank is an agent or sub-agent of the owner of the item and any settlement given for the item is provisional. This provision applies regardless of the form of indorsement or lack of indorsement and even though credit given for the item is subject to immediate withdrawal as of right or is in fact withdrawn; but the continuance of ownership of an item by its owner and any rights of the owner to proceeds of the item are subject to rights of a collecting bank such as those resulting from outstanding advances on the item and valid rights of setoff. When an item is handled by banks for purposes of presentment, payment and collection, the relevant provisions of this article apply even though action of parties clearly establishes that a particular bank has purchased the item and is the owner of it.

(2) After an item has been indorsed with the words "pay any bank" or the like, only a bank may acquire the rights of a holder

(a) until the item has been returned to the customer initiating collection; or

(b) until the item has been specially indorsed by a bank to a person who is not a bank. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 698, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-202. Responsibility for collection; when action seasonable.

(1) A collecting bank must use ordinary care in

(a) presenting an item or sending it for presentment; and

(b) sending notice of dishonor or non-payment or returning an item other than a documentary draft to the bank's transferor or directly to the depositary bank under subsection (2) of section 28:4-212 after learning that the item has not been paid or accepted, as the case may be; and

(c) settling for an item when the bank receives final settlement; and

(d) making or providing for any necessary protest; and

(e) notifying its transferor of any loss or delay in transit within a reasonable time after discovery thereof.

(2) A collecting bank taking proper action before its midnight deadline following receipt of an item, notice or payment acts seasonably; taking proper action within a reasonably longer time may be seasonable but the bank has the burden of so establishing.

(3) Subject to subsection (1)(a), a bank is not liable for the insolvency, neglect, misconduct, mistake or default of another bank or person or for loss or destruction of an item in transit or in the possession of others. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 698, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-203. Effect of instructions.

Subject to the provisions of article 3 concerning conversion of instruments (section 28:3-419) and the provisions of both article 3 and this article concerning restrictive indorsements only a collecting bank's transferor can give instructions which affect the bank or constitute notice to it and a collecting bank is not liable to prior parties for any action taken pursuant to such instructions or in accordance with any agreement with its transferor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-204. Methods of sending and presenting; sending direct to payor bank.

(1) A collecting bank must send items by reasonably prompt method taking into consideration any relevant instructions, the nature of the item, the number of such items on hand, and the cost of collection involved and the method generally used by it or others to present such items.

(2) A collecting bank may send

- (a) any item direct to the payor bank;
- (b) any item to any non-bank payor if authorized by its transferor; and
- (c) any item other than documentary drafts to any non-bank payor, if authorized by Federal Reserve regulation or operating letter, clearing house rule or the like.

(3) Presentment may be made by a presenting bank at a place where the payor bank has requested that presentment be made. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-205. Supplying missing indorsement; no notice from prior indorsement.

(1) A depository bank which has taken an item for collection may supply any indorsement of the customer which is necessary to title unless the item contains the words "payee's indorsement required" or the like. In the absence of such a requirement a statement placed on the item by the depository bank to the effect that the item was deposited by a customer or credited to his account is effective as the customer's indorsement.

(2) An intermediary bank, or payor bank which is not a depository bank, is neither given notice nor otherwise affected by a restrictive indorsement of any person except the bank's immediate transferor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-206. Transfer between banks.

Any agreed method which identifies the transferor bank is sufficient for the item's transfer to another bank. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-207. Warranties of customer and collecting bank on transfer or presentment of items; time for claims.

(1) Each customer or collecting bank who obtains payment or acceptance of an item and each prior customer and collecting bank warrants to the payor bank or other payor who in good faith pays or accepts the item that

- (a) he has a good title to the item or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title; and
- (b) he has no knowledge that the signature of the maker or drawer is unauthorized, except that this warranty is not given by any customer or collecting bank that is a holder in due course and acts in good faith

- (i) to a maker with respect to the maker's own signature; or

- (ii) to a drawer with respect to the drawer's own signature, whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

- (iii) to an acceptor of an item if the holder in due course took the item after the acceptance or obtained the acceptance without knowledge that the drawer's signature was unauthorized; and

(c) the item has not been materially altered, except that this warranty is not given by any customer or collecting bank that is a holder in due course and acts in good faith

- (i) to the maker of a note; or

- (ii) to the drawer of a draft whether or not the drawer is also the drawee; or

- (iii) to the acceptor of an item with respect to an alteration made prior to the acceptance if the holder in due course took the item after the acceptance, even though the acceptance provided "payable as originally drawn" or equivalent terms; or

- (iv) to the acceptor of an item with respect to an alteration made after the acceptance.

(2) Each customer and collecting bank who transfers an item and receives a settlement or other consideration for it warrants to his transferee and to any subsequent collecting bank who takes the item in good faith that

- (a) he has a good title to the item or is authorized to obtain payment or acceptance on behalf of one who has a good title and the transfer is otherwise rightful; and

- (b) all signatures are genuine or authorized; and

- (c) the item has not been materially altered; and

- (d) no defense of any party is good against him; and

- (e) he has no knowledge of any insolvency proceeding instituted with respect to the maker or acceptor or the drawer of an unaccepted item.

In addition each customer and collecting bank so transferring an item and receiving a settlement or other consideration engages that upon dishonor and any necessary notice of dishonor and protest he will take up the item.

(3) The warranties and the engagement to honor set forth in the two preceding subsections arise notwithstanding the absence of indorsement of words of guaranty or warranty in the transfer or presentment and a collecting bank remains liable for their breach despite remittance to its transferor. Damages for breach of such warranties or engagement to honor shall not exceed the consideration received by the customer or collecting bank responsible plus finance charges and expenses related to the item, if any.

(4) Unless a claim for breach of warranty under this section is made within a reasonable time after the person claiming learns of the breach, the person liable is discharged to the extent of any loss caused by the delay in making claim. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 699, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-208. Security interest of collecting bank in items, accompanying documents and proceeds.

(1) A bank has a security interest in an item and any accompanying documents or the proceeds of either

- (a) in case of an item deposited in an account to the extent to which credit given for the item has been withdrawn or applied;

- (b) in case of an item for which it has given credit available for withdrawal as of right, to the extent of the credit given whether or not the credit is drawn upon and whether or not there is a right of charge-back; or

(c) if it makes an advance on or against the item.

(2) When credit which has been given for several items received at one time or pursuant to a single agreement is withdrawn or applied in part the security interest remains upon all the items, any accompanying documents or the proceeds of either. For the purpose of this section, credits first given are first withdrawn.

(3) Receipt by a collecting bank of a final settlement for an item is a realization on its security interest in the item, accompanying documents and proceeds. To the extent and so long as the bank does not receive final settlement for the item or give up possession of the item or accompanying documents for purposes other than collection, the security interest continues and is subject to the provisions of article 9 except that

(a) no security agreement is necessary to make the security interest enforceable (subsection (1)

(b) of section 28:9-203); and

(b) no filing is required to perfect the security interest; and

(c) the security interest has priority over conflicting perfected security interests in the item, accompanying documents or proceeds.

§ 28:4-209. When bank gives value for purposes of holder in due course.

For purposes of determining its status as a holder in due course, the bank has given value to the extent that it has a security interest in an item provided that the bank otherwise complies with the requirements of section 28:3-302 on what constitutes a holder in due course. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 701, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-210. Presentment by notice of item not payable by, through or at a bank; liability of secondary parties.

(1) Unless otherwise instructed, a collecting bank may present an item not payable by, through or at a bank by sending to the party to accept or pay a written notice that the bank holds the item for acceptance or payment. The notice must be sent in time to be received on or before the day when presentment is due and the bank must meet, any requirement of the party to accept or pay under section 28:3-505 by the close of the bank's next banking day after it knows of the requirement.

(2) Where presentment is made by notice and neither honor nor request for compliance with a requirement under section 28:3-505 is received by the close of business on the day after maturity or in the case of demand items by the close of business on the third banking day after notice was sent, the presenting bank may treat the item as dishonored and charge any secondary party by sending him notice of the facts. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 701, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-211. Media of remittance; provisional and final settlement in remittance cases.

(1) A collecting bank may take in settlement of an item

(a) a check of the remitting bank or of another bank on any bank except the remitting bank; or

(b) a cashier's check or similar primary obligation of a remitting bank which is a member of or clears through a member of the same clearing house or group as the collecting bank; or

(c) appropriate authority to charge an account of the remitting bank or of another bank with the collecting bank; or

(d) if the item is drawn upon or payable by a person other than a bank, a cashier's check, certified check or other bank check or obligation.

(2) If before its midnight deadline the collecting bank properly dishonors a remittance check or authorization to charge on itself or presents or forwards for collection a remittance instrument of or on another bank which is of a kind approved by subsection (1) or has not been authorized by it, the collecting bank is not liable to prior parties in the event of the dishonor of such check, instrument or authorization.

(3) A settlement for an item by means of a remittance instrument or authorization to charge is or becomes a final settlement as to both the person making and the person receiving the settlement

(a) if the remittance instrument or authorization to charge is of a kind approved by subsection (1) or has not been authorized by the person receiving the settlement and in either case the person receiving the settlement acts seasonably before its midnight deadline in presenting, forwarding for collection or paying the instrument or authorization,—at the time the remittance instrument or authorization is finally paid by the payor by which it is payable;

(b) if the person receiving the settlement has authorized remittance by a non-bank check or obligation or by a cashier's check or similar primary obligation of or a check upon the payor or other remitting bank which is not of a kind approved by subsection (1) (b),—at the time of the receipt of such remittance check or obligation; or

(c) if in a case not covered by sub-paragraphs (a) or (b) the person receiving the settlement fails to seasonably present, forward for collection, pay or return a remittance instrument or authorization to it to charge before its midnight deadline,—at such midnight deadline.

§ 28:4-212. Right of charge-back or refund.

(1) If a collecting bank has made provisional settlement with its customer for an item and itself fails by reason of dishonor, suspension of payments by a bank or otherwise to receive a settlement for the item which is or becomes final, the bank may revoke the settlement given by it, charge back the amount of any credit given for the item to its customer's account or obtain refund from its customer whether or not it is able to return the items if by its midnight deadline or within a longer reasonable time after it learns the facts it returns the item or sends notification of the facts. These rights to revoke, charge-back and obtain refund terminate if and when a settlement for the item received by the bank is or becomes final (subsection (3) of section 28:4-211 and subsections (2) and (3) of section 28:4-213).

(2) (Omitted.)

(3) A depositary bank which is also the payor may charge-back the amount of an item to its customer's account or obtain refund in accordance with the section governing return of an item received by a payor bank for credit on its books (section 28:4-301).

(4) The right to charge-back is not affected by

(a) prior use of the credit given for the item; or

(b) failure by any bank to exercise ordinary care with respect to the item but any bank so failing remains liable.

(5) A failure to charge-back or claim refund does not affect other rights of the bank against the customer or any other party.

(6) If credit is given in dollars as the equivalent of the value of an item payable in a foreign currency the dollar amount of any charge-back or refund shall be calculated on the basis of the buying sight rate for the foreign currency prevailing on the day when the person entitled to the charge-back or refund learns that it will not receive payment in ordinary course. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 702, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-213. Final payment of item by payor bank; when provisional debits and credits become final; when certain credits become available for withdrawal.

(1) An item is finally paid by a payor bank when the bank has done any of the following, whichever happens first:

(a) paid the item in cash; or

(b) settled for the item without reserving a right to revoke the settlement and without having such right under statute, clearing house rule or agreement; or

(c) completed the process of posting the item to the indicated account of the drawer, maker or other person to be charged therewith; or

(d) made a provisional settlement for the item and failed to revoke the settlement in the time rule or agreement.

and manner permitted by statute, clearing house Upon a final payment under subparagraphs (b), (c) or (d) the payor bank shall be accountable for the amount of the item.

(2) If provisional settlement for an item between the presenting and payor banks is made through a clearing house or by debits or credits in an account between them, then to the extent that provisional debits or credits for the item are entered in accounts between the presenting and payor banks or between the presenting and successive prior collecting banks seriatim, they become final upon final payment of the item by the payor bank.

(3) If a collecting bank receives a settlement for an item which is or becomes final (subsection (3) of section 28:4-211, subsection (2) of section 28:4-213) the bank is accountable to its customer for the amount of the item and any provisional credit given for the item in an account with its customer becomes final.

(4) Subject to any right of the bank to apply the credit to an obligation of the customer, credit given by a bank for an item in an account with its customer becomes available for withdrawal as of right

(a) in any case where the bank has received a provisional settlement for the item,—when such settlement becomes final and the bank has had a reasonable time to learn that the settlement is final;

(b) in any case where the bank is both a depositary bank and a payor bank and the item is finally paid,—at the opening of the bank's second banking day following receipt of the item.

(5) A deposit of money in a bank is final when made but, subject to any right of the bank to apply the deposit to an obligation of the customer, the deposit becomes available for withdrawal as of right at the opening of the bank's next banking day following receipt of the deposit. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 703, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-214. Insolvency and preference.

(1) Any item in or coming into the possession of a payor or collecting bank which suspends payment and which item is not finally paid shall be returned by the receiver, trustee or agent in charge of the closed bank to the presenting bank or the closed bank's customer.

(2) If a payor bank finally pays an item and suspends payments without making a settlement for the item with its customer or the presenting bank which settlement is or becomes final, the owner of the item has a preferred claim against the payor bank.

(3) If a payor bank gives or a collecting bank gives or receives a provisional settlement for an item and thereafter suspends payments, the suspension does not prevent or interfere with the settlement becoming final if such finality occurs automatically upon the lapse of certain time or the happening of certain events (subsection (3) of section 28:4-211, subsections (1) (d), (2) and (3) of section 28:4-213).

(4) If a collecting bank receives from subsequent parties settlement for an item which settlement is or becomes final and suspends payments without making a settlement for the item with its customer which is or becomes final, the owner of the item has a preferred claim against such collecting bank. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 703, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 3.—COLLECTION OF ITEMS: PAYOR BANKS

§ 28:4-301. Deferred posting; recovery of payment by return of items; time of dishonor.

(1) Where an authorized settlement for a demand item (other than a documentary draft) received by a payor bank otherwise than for immediate payment over the counter has been made before midnight of the banking day of receipt the payor bank may revoke the settlement and recover any payment if before it has made final payment (subsection (1) of section 28:4-213) and before its midnight deadline it

(a) returns the item; or

(b) sends written notice of dishonor or non-payment if the item is held for protest or is otherwise unavailable for return.

(2) If a demand item is received by a payor bank for credit on its books it may return such item or send notice of dishonor and may revoke any credit given or recover the amount thereof withdrawn by its customer, if it acts within the time limit and in the manner specified in the preceding subsection.

(3) Unless previous notice of dishonor has been sent an item is dishonored at the time when for purposes of dishonor it is returned or notice sent in accordance with this section.

(4) An item is returned:

(a) as to an item received through a clearing house, when it is delivered to the presenting or last collecting bank or to the clearing house or is sent or delivered in accordance with its rules; or

(b) in all other cases, when it is sent or delivered to the bank's customer or transferor or pursuant to his instructions.

§ 28:4-302. Payor bank's responsibility for late return of item.

In the absence of a valid defense such as breach of a presentment warranty (subsection (1) of section 28:4-207), settlement effected or the like, if an item is presented on and received by a payor bank the bank is accountable for the amount of

(a) a demand item other than a documentary draft whether properly payable or not if the bank, in any case where it is not also the depository bank, retains the item beyond midnight of the banking day of receipt without settling for it or, regardless of whether it is also the depository bank, does not pay or return the item or send notice of dishonor until after its midnight deadline; or

(b) any other properly payable item unless within the time allowed for acceptance or payment of that item the bank either accepts or pays the item or returns it and accompanying documents.

§ 28:4-303. When items subject to notice, stop-order, legal process or setoff; order in which items may be charged or certified.

(1) Any knowledge, notice or stop-order received by, legal process served upon or setoff exercised by a payor bank, whether or not effective under other rules of law to terminate, suspend or modify the bank's right or duty to pay an item or to charge its customer's account for the item, comes too late to so terminate, suspend or modify such right or duty if the knowledge, notice, stop-order or legal process is received or served and a reasonable time for the bank to act thereon expires or the setoff is exercised after the bank has done any of the following:

(a) accepted or certified the item;

(b) paid the item in cash;

(c) settled for the item without reserving a right to revoke the settlement and without having such right under statute, clearing house rule or agreement;

(d) completed the process of posting the item to the indicated account of the drawer, maker or other person to be charged therewith or otherwise has evidenced by examination of such indicated account and by action its decision to pay the item; or

(e) become accountable for the amount of the item under subsection (1)(d) of section 28:4-213 and section 28:4-302 dealing with the payor bank's responsibility for late return items.

(2) Subject to the provisions of subsection (1) items may be accepted, paid, certified or charged to the indicated account of its customer in any order convenient to the bank. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 705, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 4.—RELATIONSHIP BETWEEN PAYOR BANK AND ITS CUSTOMER

§ 28:4-401. When bank may charge customer's account.

(1) As against its customer, a bank may charge against his account any item which is otherwise properly payable from that account even though the charge creates an overdraft.

(2) A bank which in good faith makes payment to a holder may charge the indicated account of its customer according to

(a) the original tenor of his altered item; or

(b) the tenor of his completed item, even though the bank knows the item has been completed unless the bank has notice that the completion was improper.

§ 28:4-402. Bank's liability to customer for wrongful dishonor.

A payor bank is liable to its customer for damages proximately caused by the wrongful dishonor of an item. When the dishonor occurs through mistake liability is limited to actual damages proved. If so proximately caused and proved damages may include damages for an arrest or prosecution of the customer or other consequential damages. Whether any consequential damages are proximately caused by the wrongful dishonor is a question of fact to be determined in each case. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 705, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-403. Customer's right to stop payment; burden of proof of loss.

(1) A customer may by order to his bank stop payment of any item payable for his account but the order must be received at such time and in such manner as to afford the bank a reasonable opportunity to act on it prior to any action by the bank with respect to the item described in section 28:4-303. No such order shall be valid, however, unless it shall be in writing specifically describing the item to which it relates by stating the amount, date and payee thereof.

(2) Anything in this section 28:4-403 to the contrary notwithstanding, any stop payment order transmitted by telephone by a customer to an officer of a bank, while such officer is on the premises thereof, shall be accepted by such bank, upon such identification that will ensure the order has been transmitted by such customer, as an effective order for a period of twenty-four hours, after which time it shall no longer be valid unless followed by a written order as provided in this section 28:4-403. A written order is effective for only six months unless renewed in writing. The bank may, at its option and without liability, stop payment of an item after the expiration of a stop payment order or any renewal thereof relating to such item.

(3) The burden of establishing the fact and amount of loss resulting from the payment of an item contrary to a binding stop payment order is on the customer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 705, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-404. Bank not obligated to pay check more than six months old.

A bank is under no obligation to a customer having a checking account to pay a check, other than a certified check, which is presented more than six months after its date, but it may charge its customer's account for a payment made thereafter in the absence of an effective stop payment order in accordance with section 28:4-403. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 706, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-405. Death or incompetence of customer.

(1) A payor or collecting bank's authority to accept, pay or collect an item or to account for proceeds of its collection if otherwise effective is not rendered ineffective by incompetence of a customer of either bank existing at the time the item is issued or its collection is undertaken if the bank does not know of an adjudication of incompetence. Neither death nor incompetence of a customer revokes such authority to accept, pay, collect or account until the bank knows of the fact of death or of an adjudication of incompetence and has reasonable opportunity to act on it.

(2) Even with knowledge a bank may for ten days after the date of death pay or certify checks drawn on or prior to that date unless ordered to stop payment by a person claiming an interest in the account. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 706, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-406. Customer's duty to discover and report unauthorized signature or alteration.

(1) When a bank sends to its customer a statement of account accompanied by items paid in good faith in support of the debit entries or holds the statement and items pursuant to a request or instructions of its customer or otherwise in a reasonable manner makes the statement and items available to the customer, the customer must exercise reasonable care and promptness to examine the statement and items to discover his unauthorized signature or any alteration on an item and must notify the bank promptly after discovery thereof.

(2) If the bank establishes that the customer failed with respect to an item to comply with the duties imposed on the customer by subsection (1) the customer is precluded from asserting against the bank

(a) his unauthorized signature or any alteration on the item if the bank also establishes that it suffered a loss by reason of such failure; and

(b) an unauthorized signature or alteration by the same wrongdoer on any other item paid in good faith by the bank after the first item and statement was available to the customer for a reasonable period not exceeding fourteen calendar days and before the bank receives notification from the customer of any such unauthorized signature or alteration.

(3) The preclusion under subsection (2) does not apply if the customer establishes lack of ordinary care on the part of the bank in paying the item(s).

(4) Without regard to care or lack of care of either the customer or the bank a customer who does not within one year from the time the statement and items are made available to the customer (subsection (1)) discover and report his unauthorized signature or any alteration on the face or back of the item or does not within three years from that time discover and report any unauthorized indorsement is precluded from asserting against the bank such unauthorized signature or indorsement or such alteration.

(5) If under this section a payor bank has a valid defense against a claim of a customer upon or resulting from payment of an item and waives or fails upon request to assert the defense the bank may not assert against any collecting bank or other prior party presenting or transferring the item a claim based upon the unauthorized signature or alteration giving rise to the customer's claim. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 706, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-407. Payor bank's right to subrogation on improper payment.

If a payor bank has paid an item over the stop payment order of the drawer or maker or otherwise under circumstances giving a basis for objection by the drawer or maker, to prevent unjust enrichment and only to the extent necessary to prevent loss to the bank by reason of its payment of the item, the payor bank shall be subrogated to the rights

(a) of any holder in due course on the item against the drawer or maker; and

(b) of the payee or any other holder of the item against the drawer or maker either on the item or under the transaction out of which the item arose; and

(c) of the drawer or maker against the payee or any other holder of the item with respect to the transaction out of which the item arose.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 707, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 5.—COLLECTION OF DOCUMENTARY DRAFTS

§ 28:4-501. Handling of documentary drafts; duty to send for presentment and to notify customer of dishonor.

A bank which takes a documentary draft for collection must present or send the draft and accompanying documents for presentment and upon learning that the draft has not been paid or accepted in due course must seasonably notify its customer of such fact even though it may have discounted or bought the draft or extended credit available for withdrawal as of right. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 707, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-502. Presentment of “on arrival” drafts.

When a draft or the relevant instructions require presentment “on arrival”, “when goods arrive” or the like, the collecting bank need not present until in its judgment a reasonable time for arrival of the goods has expired. Refusal to pay or accept because the goods have not arrived is not dishonor; the bank must notify its transferor of such refusal but need not present the draft again until it is instructed to do so or learns of the arrival of the goods. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 707, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-503. Responsibility of presenting bank for documents and goods; report of reasons for dishonor; referee in case of need.

Unless otherwise instructed and except as provided in article 5 a bank presenting a documentary draft

(a) must deliver the documents to the drawee on acceptance of the draft if it is payable more than three days after presentment; otherwise, only on payment; and

(b) upon dishonor, either in the case of presentment for acceptance or presentment for payment, may seek and follow instructions from any referee in case of need designated in the draft or if the presenting bank does not choose to utilize his services it must use diligence and good faith to ascertain the reason for dishonor, must notify its transferor of the dishonor and of the results of its effort to ascertain the reasons therefor and must request instructions.

But the presenting bank is under no obligation with respect to goods represented by the documents except to follow any reasonable instructions seasonably received; it has a right to reimbursement for any expense incurred in following instructions and to prepayment of or indemnity for such expenses. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 707, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:4-504. Privilege of presenting bank to deal with goods; security interest for expenses.

(1) A presenting bank which, following the dishonor of a documentary draft, has seasonably requested instructions but does not receive them within a reasonable time may store, sell, or otherwise deal with the goods in any reasonable manner.

(2) For its reasonable expenses incurred by action under subsection (1) the presenting bank has a lien upon the goods or their proceeds, which may be foreclosed in the same manner as an unpaid seller’s lien. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 708, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

A modification of the terms of a credit or confirmation must be signed by the issuer or confirming bank.

(2) A telegram may be a sufficient signed writing if it identifies its sender by an authorized authentication. The authentication may be in code and the authorized naming of the issuer in an advice of credit is a sufficient signing. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 709, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5-105. Consideration.

No consideration is necessary to establish a credit or to enlarge or otherwise modify its terms. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 710, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5-106. Time and effect of establishment of credit.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed a credit is established

(a) as regards the customer as soon as a letter of credit is sent to him or the letter of credit or an authorized written advice of its issuance is sent to the beneficiary; and

(b) as regards the beneficiary when he receives a letter of credit or an authorized written advice of its issuance.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed once an irrevocable credit is established as regards the customer it can be modified or revoked only with the consent of the customer and once it is established as regards the beneficiary it can be modified or revoked only with his consent.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed after a revocable credit is established it may be modified or revoked by the issuer without notice to or consent from the customer or beneficiary.

(4) Notwithstanding any modification or revocation of a revocable credit any person authorized to honor or negotiate under the terms of the original credit is entitled to reimbursement for or honor of any draft or demand for payment duly honored or negotiated before receipt of notice of the modification or revocation and the issuer in turn is entitled to reimbursement from its customer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 710, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5-107. Advice of credit; confirmation; error in statement of terms.

(1) Unless otherwise specified an advising bank by advising a credit issued by another bank does not assume any obligation to honor drafts drawn or demands for payment made under the credit but it does assume obligation for the accuracy of its own statement.

(2) A confirming bank by confirming a credit becomes directly obligated on the credit to the extent of its confirmation as though it were its issuer and acquires the rights of an issuer.

(3) Even though an advising bank incorrectly advises the terms of a credit it has been authorized to advise the credit is established as against the issuer to the extent of its original terms.

(4) Unless otherwise specified the customer bears as against the issuer all risks of transmission and reasonable translation or interpretation of any message relating to a credit. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 710, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5-108. "Notation credit"; exhaustion of credit.

(1) A credit which specifies that any person purchasing or paying drafts drawn or demands for payment made under it must note the amount of the draft or demand on the letter or advice of credit is a "notation credit".

(2) Under a notation credit

(a) a person paying the beneficiary or purchasing a draft or demand for payment from him acquires a right to honor only if the appropriate notation is made and by transferring or forwarding for honor the documents under the credit such a person warrants to the issuer that the notation has been made; and

(b) unless the credit or a signed statement that an appropriate notation has been made accompanies the draft or demand for payment the issuer may delay honor until evidence of notation has been procured which is satisfactory to it but its obligation and that of its customer continue for a reasonable time not exceeding thirty days to obtain such evidence.

(3) If the credit is not a notation credit

(a) the issuer may honor complying drafts or demands for payment presented to it in the order in which they are presented and is discharged pro tanto by honor of any such draft or demand;

(b) as between competing good faith purchasers of complying drafts or demands the person first purchasing has priority over a subsequent purchaser even though the later purchased draft or demand has been first honored.

§ 28:5-109. Issuer's obligation to its customer.

(1) An issuer's obligation to its customer includes good faith and observance of any general banking usage but unless otherwise agreed does not include liability or responsibility

(a) for performance of the underlying contract for sale or other transaction between the customer and the beneficiary; or

(b) for any act or omission of any person other than itself or its own branch or for loss or destruction of a draft, demand or document in transit or in the possession of others; or

(c) based on knowledge or lack of knowledge of any usage of any particular trade.

(2) An issuer must examine documents with care so as to ascertain that on their face they appear to comply with the terms of the credit but unless otherwise agreed assumes no liability or responsibility for the genuineness, falsification or effect of any document which appears on such examination to be regular on its face.

(3) A non-bank issuer is not bound by any banking usage of which it has no knowledge. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 711, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5-110. Availability of credit in portions; presenter's reservation of lien or claim.

(1) Unless otherwise specified a credit may be used in portions in the discretion of the beneficiary.

(2) Unless otherwise specified a person by presenting a documentary draft or demand for payment under a credit relinquishes upon its honor all claims to the documents and a person by transferring such draft or demand or causing such presentment authorizes such relinquishment. An explicit reservation of claim makes the draft or demand non-complying. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 711, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5-111. Warranties on transfer and presentment.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed the beneficiary by transferring or presenting a documentary draft or demand for payment warrants to all interested parties that the necessary conditions of the credit have been complied with. This is in addition to any warranties arising under articles 3, 4, 7 and 8.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed a negotiating, advising, confirming, collecting or issuing bank presenting or transferring a draft or demand for payment under a credit warrants only the matters warranted by a collecting bank under article 4 and any such bank transferring a document warrants only the matters warranted by an intermediary under articles 7 and 8. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 711, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5-112. Time allowed for honor or rejection; withholding honor or rejection by consent; "presenter".

(1) A bank to which a documentary draft or demand for payment is presented under a credit may without dishonor of the draft, demand, or credit

(a) defer honor until the close of the third banking day following receipt of the documents; and

(b) further defer honor if the presenter has expressly or impliedly consented thereto.

Failure to honor within the time here specified constitutes dishonor of the draft or demand and of the credit.

(2) Upon dishonor the bank may unless otherwise instructed fulfill its duty to return the draft or demand and the documents by holding them at the disposal of the presenter and sending him an advice to that effect.

(3) "Presenter" means any person presenting a draft or demand for payment for honor under a credit even though that person is a confirming bank or other correspondent which is acting under an issuer's authorization. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 711, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5-113. Indemnities.

(1) A bank seeking to obtain (whether for itself or another) honor, negotiation or reimbursement under a credit may give an indemnity to induce such honor, negotiation or reimbursement.

(2) An indemnity agreement inducing honor, negotiation or reimbursement

(a) unless otherwise explicitly agreed applies to defects in the documents but not in the goods; and

(b) unless a longer time is explicitly agreed expires at the end of ten business days following receipt of the documents by the ultimate customer unless notice of objection is sent before such expiration date. The ultimate customer may send notice of objection to the person from whom he received the documents and any bank receiving such notice is under a duty to send notice to its transferor before its midnight deadline.

§ 28:5-114. Issuer's duty and privilege to honor; right to reimbursement.

(1) An issuer must honor a draft or demand for payment which complies with the terms of the relevant credit regardless of whether the goods or documents conform to the underlying contract for sale or other contract between the customer and the beneficiary. The issuer is not excused from honor of such a draft or demand by reason of an additional general term that all documents must be satisfactory to the issuer, but an issuer may require that specified documents must be satisfactory to it.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed when documents appear on their face to comply with the terms of a credit but a required document does not in fact conform to the warranties made on negotiation or transfer of a document of title (section 28:7-507) or of a security (section 28:8-306) or is forged or fraudulent or there is fraud in the transaction

(a) the issuer must honor the draft or demand for payment if honor is demanded by a negotiating bank or other holder of the draft or demand which has taken the draft or demand under the credit and under circumstances which would make it a holder in due course (section 28:3-302) and in an appropriate case would make it a person to whom a document of title has been duly negotiated (section 28:7-502) or a bona fide purchaser of a security (section 28:8-302); and

(b) in all other cases as against its customer, an issuer acting in good faith may honor the draft or demand for payment despite notification from the customer of fraud, forgery or other defect not apparent on the face of the documents but a court of appropriate jurisdiction may enjoin such honor.

(3) Unless otherwise agreed an issuer which has duly honored a draft or demand for payment is entitled to immediate reimbursement of any payment made under the credit and to be put in effectively available funds not later than the day before maturity of any acceptance made under the credit.

(4) (5) (Omitted.) (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 712, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5-115. Remedy for improper dishonor or anticipatory repudiation.

(1) When an issuer wrongfully dishonors a draft or demand for payment presented under a credit the person entitled to honor has with respect to any documents the rights of a person in the position of a seller (section 28:2-707) and may recover from the issuer the face amount of the draft or demand together with incidental damages under section 28:2-710 on seller's incidental damages and interest but less any amount realized by resale or other use or disposition of the subject matter of the transaction. In the event no resale or other utilization is made the documents, goods or other subject matter involved in the transaction must be turned over to the issuer on payment of judgment.

(2) When an issuer wrongfully cancels or otherwise repudiates a credit before presentment of a draft or demand for payment drawn under it the beneficiary has the rights of a seller after anticipatory repudiation by the buyer under section 28:2-610 if he learns of the repudiation in time reasonably to avoid procurement of the required documents. Otherwise the beneficiary has an immediate right of action for wrongful dishonor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 713, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5-116. Transfer and assignment.

(1) The right to draw under a credit can be transferred or assigned only when the credit is expressly designated as transferable or assignable.

(2) Even though the credit specifically states that it is nontransferable or nonassignable the beneficiary may before performance of the conditions of the credit assign his right to proceeds. Such an assignment is an assignment of a contract right under article 9 on secured transactions and is governed by that article except that

(a) the assignment is ineffective until the letter of credit or advice of credit is delivered to the assignee which delivery constitutes perfection of the security interest under article 9; and

(b) the issuer may honor drafts or demands for payment drawn under the credit until it receives a notification of the assignment signed by the beneficiary which reasonably identifies the credit involved in the assignment and contains a request to pay the assignee; and

(c) after what reasonably appears to be such a notification has been received the issuer may without dishonor refuse to accept or pay even to a person otherwise entitled to honor until the letter of credit or advice of credit is exhibited to the issuer.

(3) Except where the beneficiary has effectively assigned his right to draw or his right to proceeds, nothing in this section limits his right to transfer or negotiate drafts or demands drawn under the credit. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 713, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:5-117. Insolvency of bank holding funds for documentary credit.

(1) Where an issuer or an advising or confirming bank or a bank which has for a customer procured issuance of a credit by another bank becomes insolvent before final payment under the credit and the credit is one to which this article is made applicable by paragraphs (a) or (b) of section 28:5-102(1) on scope, the receipt or allocation of funds or collateral to secure or meet obligations under the credit shall have the following results:

(a) to the extent of any funds or collateral turned over after or before the insolvency as indemnity against or specifically for the purpose of payment of drafts or demands for payment drawn under the designated credit, the drafts or demands are entitled to payment in preference over depositors or other general creditors of the issuer or bank; and

(b) on expiration of the credit or surrender of the beneficiary's rights under it unused any person who has given such funds or collateral is similarly entitled to return thereof; and

(c) a charge to a general or current account with a bank if specifically consented to for the purpose of indemnity against or payment of drafts or demands for payment drawn under the designated credit falls under the same rules as if the funds had been drawn out in cash and then turned over with specific instructions.

(2) After honor or reimbursement under this section the customer or other person for whose account the insolvent bank has acted is entitled to receive the documents involved. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 713, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6-101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Bulk Transfers. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 714, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6-102. "Bulk transfer"; transfers of equipment; enterprises subject to this article; bulk transfers subject to this article.

(1) A "bulk transfer" is any transfer in bulk and not in the ordinary course of the transferor's business of a major part of the materials, supplies, merchandise or other inventory (section 28:9-109) of an enterprise subject to this article.

(2) A transfer of a substantial part of the equipment (section 28:9-109) of such an enterprise is a bulk transfer if it is made in connection with a bulk transfer of inventory, but not otherwise.

(3) The enterprises subject to this article are all those whose principal business is the sale of merchandise from stock, including those who manufacture what they sell.

(4) Except as limited by the following section all bulk transfers of goods located within the District are subject to this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 714, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6-103. Transfers excepted from this article.

The following transfers are not subject to this article:

(1) Those made to give security for the performance of an obligation;

(2) General assignments for the benefit of all the creditors of the transferor, and subsequent transfers by the assignee thereunder;

(3) Transfers in settlement or realization of a lien or other security interest;

(4) Sales by executors, administrators, receivers, trustees in bankruptcy, or any public officer under judicial process;

(5) Sales made in the course of judicial or administrative proceedings for the dissolution or reorganization of a corporation and of which notice is sent to the creditors of the corporation pursuant to order of the court or administrative agency;

(6) Transfers to a person maintaining a known place of business in the District who becomes bound to pay the debts of the transferor in full and gives public notice of that fact, and who is solvent after becoming so bound;

(7) A transfer to a new business enterprise organized to take over and continue the business, if public notice of the transaction is given and the new enterprise assumes the debts of the transferor and he receives nothing from the transaction except an interest in the new enterprise junior to the claims of creditors;

(8) Transfers of property which is exempt from execution.

Public notice under subsection (6) or subsection (7) may be given by publishing once a week for two consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation where the transferor had its principal place of business in the District an advertisement including the names and addresses of the transferor and transferee and the effective date of the transfer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 714, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6-104. Schedule of property, list of creditors.

(1) Except as provided with respect to auction sales (section 28:6-108), a bulk transfer subject to this article is ineffective against any creditor of the transferor unless:

(a) The transferee requires the transferor to furnish a list of his existing creditors prepared as stated in this section; and

(b) The parties prepare a schedule of the property transferred sufficient to identify it; and

(c) The transferee preserves the list and schedule for six months next following the transfer and permits inspection of either or both and copying therefrom at all reasonable hours by any creditor of the transferor, or files the list and schedule in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of the District.

(2) The list of creditors must be signed and sworn to or affirmed by the transferor or his agent. It must contain the names and business addresses of all creditors of the transferor, with the amounts when known, and also the names of all persons who are known to the transferor to assert claims against him even though such claims are disputed. If the transferor is the obligor of an outstanding issue of bonds, debentures or the like as to which there is an indenture trustee, the list of creditors need include only the name and address of the indenture trustee and the aggregate outstanding principal amount of the issue.

(3) Responsibility for the completeness and accuracy of the list of creditors rests on the transferor, and the transfer is not rendered ineffective by errors or omissions therein unless the transferee is shown to have had knowledge. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 715, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6-105. Notice to creditors.

In addition to the requirements of the preceding section, any bulk transfer subject to this article except one made by auction sale (section 28:6-108) is ineffective against any creditor of the transferor unless at least ten days before he takes possession of the goods or pays for them, whichever happens first, the transferee gives notice of the transfer in the manner and to the persons hereafter provided (section 28:6-107). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 715, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6-106. Omitted.

§ 28:6-107. The notice.

(1) The notice to creditors (section 28:6-105) shall state:

(a) that a bulk transfer is about to be made; and

(b) the names and business addresses of the transferor and transferee, and all other business names and addresses used by the transferor within three years last past so far as known to the transferee; and

(c) whether or not all the debts of the transferor are to be paid in full as they fall due as a result of the transaction, and if so, the address to which creditors should send their bills.

(2) If the debts of the transferor are not to be paid in full as they fall due or if the transferee is in doubt on that point then the notice shall state further:

(a) the location and general description of the property to be transferred and the estimated total of the transferor's debts;

(b) the address where the schedule of property and list of creditors (section 28:6-104) may be inspected;

(c) whether the transfer is to pay existing debts and if so the amount of such debts and to whom owing;

(d) whether the transfer is for new consideration and if so the amount of such consideration and the time and place of payment.

(3) The notice in any case shall be delivered personally or sent by registered or certified mail to all the persons shown on the list of creditors furnished by the transferor (section 28:6-104) and to all other persons who are known to the transferee to hold or assert claims against the transferor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 716, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6-108. Auction sales; "auctioneer".

(1) A bulk transfer is subject to this article even though it is by sale at auction, but only in the manner and with the results stated in this section.

(2) The transferor shall furnish a list of his creditors and assist in the preparation of a schedule of the property to be sold, both prepared as before stated (section 28:6-104).

(3) The person or persons other than the transferor who direct, control or are responsible for the auction are collectively called the "auctioneer". The auctioneer shall:

(a) receive and retain the list of creditors and prepare and retain the schedule of property for the period stated in this article (section 28:6-104);

(b) give notice of the auction personally or by registered or certified mail at least ten days before it occurs to all persons shown on the list of creditors and to all other persons who are known to him to hold or assert claims against the transferor.

(4) Failure of the auctioneer to perform any of these duties does not affect the validity of the sale or the title of the purchasers, but if the auctioneer knows that the auction constitutes a bulk transfer such failure renders the auctioneer liable to the creditors of the transferor as a class for the sums owing to them from the transferor up to but not exceeding the net proceeds of the auction. If the auctioneer consists of several persons their liability is joint and several. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 716, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6-109. What creditors protected.

(1) The creditors of the transferor mentioned in this article are those holding claims based on transactions or events occurring before the bulk transfer, but creditors who become such after notice to creditors is given (sections 28:6-105 and 28:6-107) are not entitled to notice.

(2) (Omitted.) (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 716, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:6-110. Subsequent transfers.

When the title of a transferee to property is subject to a defect by reason of his non-compliance with the requirements of this article, then:

(1) a purchaser of any of such property from such transferee who pays no value or who takes with notice of such non-compliance takes subject to such defect, but

(2) a purchaser for value in good faith and without such notice takes free of such defect.

§ 28:6-111. Limitation of actions and levies.

No action under this article shall be brought nor levy made more than six months after the date on which the transferee took possession of the goods unless the transfer has been concealed. If the transfer has been concealed, actions may be brought or levies made within six months after its discovery. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 717, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-102. Definitions and index of definitions.

(1) In this article, unless the context otherwise requires:

- (a) "Bailee" means the person who by a warehouse receipt, bill of lading or other document of title acknowledges possession of goods and contracts to deliver them.
(b) "Consignee" means the person named in a bill to whom or to whose order the bill promises delivery.
(c) "Consignor" means the person named in a bill as the person from whom the goods have been received for shipment.

(4) In addition article 1 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 718, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-103. Relation of article to treaty, statute, tariff, classification or regulation.

To the extent that any treaty or statute of the United States, regulatory statute of the District or tariff, classification or regulation filed or issued pursuant thereto is applicable, the provisions of this article are subject thereto. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-104. Negotiable and non-negotiable warehouse receipt, bill of lading or other document of title.

- (1) A warehouse receipt, bill of lading or other document of title is negotiable
(a) if by its terms the goods are to be delivered to bearer or to the order of a named person; or
(b) where recognized in overseas trade, if it runs to a named person or assigns.
(2) Any other document is non-negotiable. A bill of lading in which it is stated that the goods are consigned to a named person is not made negotiable by a provision that the goods are to be delivered only against a written order signed by the same or another named person. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-105. Construction against negative implication.

The omission from either part 2 or part 3 of this article of a provision corresponding to a provision made in the other part does not imply that a corresponding rule of law is not applicable. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 2.—WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS: SPECIAL PROVISIONS

§ 28:7-201. Who may issue a warehouse receipt; storage under government bond.

- (1) A warehouse receipt may be issued by any warehouseman.
(2) Where goods including distilled spirits and agricultural commodities are stored under a statute requiring a bond against withdrawal or a license for the issuance of receipts in the nature of warehouse receipts, a receipt issued for the goods has like effect as a warehouse receipt even though issued by a person who is the owner of the goods and is not a warehouseman. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-202. Form of warehouse receipt; essential terms; optional terms.

(1) A warehouse receipt need not be in any particular form.

(2) Unless a warehouse receipt embodies within its written or printed terms each of the following, the warehouseman is liable for damages caused by the omission to a person injured thereby:

(a) the location of the warehouse where the goods are stored;

(b) the date of issue of the receipt;

(c) the consecutive number of the receipt;

(d) a statement whether the goods received will be delivered to the bearer, to a specified person, or to a specified person or his order;

(e) the rate of storage and handling charges, except that where goods are stored under a field warehousing arrangement a statement of that fact is sufficient on a non-negotiable receipt;

(f) a description of the goods or of the packages containing them;

(g) the signature of the warehouseman, which may be made by his authorized agent;

(h) if the receipt is issued for goods of which the warehouseman is owner, either solely or jointly or in common with others, the fact of such ownership; and

(i) a statement of the amount of advances made and of liabilities incurred for which the warehouseman claims a lien or security interest (section 28:7-209). If the precise amount of such advances made or of such liabilities incurred is, at the time of the issue of the receipt, unknown to the warehouseman or to his agent who issues it, a statement of the fact that advances have been made or liabilities incurred and the purpose thereof is sufficient.

(3) A warehouseman may insert in his receipt any other terms which are not contrary to the provisions of this subtitle and do not impair his obligation of delivery (section 28:7-403) or his duty of care (section 28:7-204). Any contrary provisions shall be ineffective. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 719, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-203. Liability for non-receipt or misdescription.

A party to or purchaser for value in good faith of a document of title other than a bill of lading relying in either case upon the description therein of the goods may recover from the issuer damages caused by the non-receipt or misdescription of the goods, except to the extent that the document conspicuously indicates that the issuer does not know whether any part or all of the goods in fact were received or conform to the description, as where the description is in terms of marks or labels or kind, quantity or condition, or the receipt or description is qualified by "contents, condition and quality unknown", "said to contain" or the like, if such indication be true, or the party or purchaser otherwise has notice. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 720, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-204. Duty of care; contractual limitation of warehouseman's liability.

(1) A warehouseman is liable for damages for loss of or injury to the goods caused by his failure to exercise such care in regard to them as a reasonably careful man would exercise under like circumstances but unless otherwise agreed he is not liable for damages which could not have been avoided by the exercise of such care.

(2) Damages may be limited by a term in the warehouse receipt or storage agreement limiting the amount of liability in case of loss or damage, and setting forth a specific liability per article or item, or value per unit of weight, beyond which the warehouseman shall not be liable: Provided, however, That such liability may on written request of the bailor at the time of signing such storage agreement or within a reasonable time after receipt of the warehouse receipt be increased on part or all of the goods thereunder, in which event increased rates may be charged based on such increased valuation, but that no such increase shall be permitted contrary to a lawful limitation of liability contained in the warehouseman's tariff, if any. No such limitation is effective with respect to the warehouseman's liability for conversion to his own use.

(3) Reasonable provisions as to the time and manner of presenting claims and instituting actions based on the bailment may be included in the warehouse receipt or tariff.

(4) (Omitted.) (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 720, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-205. Title under warehouse receipt defeated in certain cases.

A buyer in the ordinary course of business of fungible goods sold and delivered by a warehouseman who is also in the business of buying and selling such goods takes free of any claim under a warehouse receipt even though it has been duly negotiated. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 721, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-206. Termination of storage at warehouseman's option.

(1) A warehouseman may on notifying the person on whose account the goods are held and any other person known to claim an interest in the goods require payment of any charges and removal of the goods from the warehouse at the termination of the period of storage fixed by the document, or, if no period is fixed, within a stated period not less than thirty days after the notification. If the goods are not removed before the date specified in the notification, the warehouseman may sell them in accordance with the provisions of the section on enforcement of a warehouseman's lien (section 28:7-210).

(2) If a warehouseman in good faith believes that the goods are about to deteriorate or decline in value to less than the amount of his lien within the time prescribed in subsection (1) for notification, advertisement and sale, the warehouseman may specify in the notification any reasonable shorter time for removal of the goods and in case the goods are not removed, may sell them at public sale held not less than one week after a single advertisement or posting.

(3) If as a result of a quality or condition of the goods of which the warehouseman had no notice at the time of deposit the goods are a hazard to other property or to the warehouse or to persons, the warehouseman may sell the goods at public or private sale without advertisement on reasonable notification to all persons known to claim an interest in the goods. If the warehouseman after a reasonable effort is unable to sell the goods he may dispose of them in any lawful manner and shall incur no liability by reason of such disposition.

(4) The warehouseman must deliver the goods to any person entitled to them under this article upon due demand made at any time prior to sale or other disposition under this section.

(5) The warehouseman may satisfy his lien from the proceeds of any sale or disposition under this section but must hold the balance for delivery on the demand of any person to whom he would have been bound to deliver the goods. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 721, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-207. Goods must be kept separate; fungible goods.

(1) Unless the warehouse receipt otherwise provides, a warehouseman must keep separate the goods covered by each receipt so as to permit at all times identification and delivery of those goods except that different lots of fungible goods may be commingled.

(2) Fungible goods so commingled are owned in common by the persons entitled thereto and the warehouseman is severally liable to each owner for that owner's share. Where because of overissue a mass of fungible goods is insufficient to meet all the receipts which the warehouseman has issued against it, the persons entitled include all holders to whom overissued receipts have been duly negotiated. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 721, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-208. Altered warehouse receipts.

Where a blank in a negotiable warehouse receipt has been filled in without authority, a purchaser for value and without notice of the want of authority, may treat the insertion as authorized. Any other unauthorized alteration leaves any receipt enforceable against the issuer according to its original tenor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 721, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-209. Lien of warehouseman.

(1) A warehouseman has a lien against the bailor on the goods covered by a warehouse receipt or on the proceeds thereof in his possession for charges for storage or transportation (including demurrage and terminal charges), insurance, labor, or charges present or future in relation to the goods, and for expenses necessary for preservation of the goods or reasonably incurred in their sale pursuant to law. If the person on whose account the goods are held is liable for like charges or expenses in relation to other goods whenever deposited and it is stated in the receipt that a lien is claimed for charges and expenses in relation to other goods, the warehouseman also has a lien against him for such charges and expenses whether or not the other goods have been delivered by the warehouseman. But against a person to whom a negotiable warehouse receipt is duly negotiated a warehouseman's lien is limited to charges in an amount or at a rate specified on the receipt or if no charges are so specified then to a reasonable charge for storage of the goods covered by the receipt subsequent to the date of the receipt.

(2) The warehouseman may also reserve a security interest against the bailor for a maximum amount specified on the receipt for charges other than those specified in subsection (1), such as for money advanced and interest. Such a security interest is governed by the article on secured transactions (article 9).

(3) A warehouseman's lien for charges and expenses under subsection (1) or a security interest under subsection (2) is also effective against any person who so entrusted the bailor with possession of the goods that a pledge of them by him to a good faith purchaser for value would have been valid but is not effective against a person as to whom the document confers no right in the goods covered by it under section 28:7-503.

(4) A warehouseman loses his lien on any goods which he voluntarily delivers or which he unjustifiably refuses to deliver. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 722, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-210. Enforcement of warehouseman's lien.

(1) Except as provided in subsection (2), a warehouseman's lien may be enforced by public or private sale of the goods in bloc or in parcels, at any time or place and on any terms which are commercially reasonable, after notifying all persons known to claim an interest in the goods. Such notification must include a statement of the amount due, the nature of the proposed sale and the time and place of any public sale. The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the warehouseman is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the warehouseman either sells the goods in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor, or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale, or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with commercially reasonable practices among dealers in the type of goods sold, he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. A sale of more goods than apparently necessary to be offered to insure satisfaction of the obligation is not commercially reasonable except in cases covered by the preceding sentence.

(2) A warehouseman's lien on goods other than goods stored by a merchant in the course of his business may be enforced only as follows:

(a) All persons known to claim an interest in the goods must be notified.

(b) The notification must be delivered in person or sent by registered or certified letter to the last known address of any person to be notified.

(c) The notification must include an itemized statement of the claim, a description of the goods subject to the lien, a demand for payment within a specified time not less than ten days after receipt of the notification, and a conspicuous statement that unless the claim is paid within that time the goods will be advertised for sale and sold by auction at a specified time and place.

(d) The sale must conform to the terms of the notification.

(e) The sale must be held at the nearest suitable place to that where the goods are held or stored.

(f) After the expiration of the time given in the notification, an advertisement of the sale must be published once a week for two weeks consecutively in a newspaper of general circulation where the sale is to be held. The advertisement must include a description of the goods, the name of the person on whose account they are being held, and the time and place of the sale. The sale must take place at least fifteen days after the first publication. If there is no newspaper of general circulation where the sale is to be held, the advertisement must be posted at least ten days before the sale in not less than six conspicuous places in the neighborhood of the proposed sale.

(3) Before any sale pursuant to this section any person claiming a right in the goods may pay the amount necessary to satisfy the lien and the reasonable expenses incurred under this section. In that event the goods must not be sold, but must be retained by the warehouseman subject to the terms of the receipt and this article.

(4) The warehouseman may buy at any public sale pursuant to this section.

(5) A purchaser in good faith of goods sold to enforce a warehouseman's lien takes the goods free of any rights of persons against whom the lien was valid, despite noncompliance by the warehouseman with the requirements of this section.

(6) The warehouseman may satisfy his lien from the proceeds of any sale pursuant to this section but must hold the balance, if any, for delivery on demand to any person to whom he would have been bound to deliver the goods.

(7) The rights provided by this section shall be in addition to all other rights allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor.

(8) Where a lien is on goods stored by a merchant in the course of his business the lien may be enforced in accordance with either subsection (1) or (2).

(9) The warehouseman is liable for damages caused by failure to comply with the requirements for sale under this section and in case of willful violation is liable for conversion. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 722, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 3.—BILLS OF LADING: SPECIAL PROVISIONS

§ 28:7-301. Liability for non-receipt or misdescription; "said to contain"; "shipper's load and count"; improper handling.

(1) A consignee of a non-negotiable bill who has given value in good faith or a holder to whom a negotiable bill has been duly negotiated relying in either case upon the description therein of the goods, or upon the date therein shown, may recover from the issuer damages caused by the misdating of the bill or the non-receipt or misdescription of the goods, except to the extent that the document indicates that the issuer does not know whether any part or all of the goods in fact were received or conform to the description, as where the description is in terms of marks or labels or kind, quantity, or condition or the receipt or description is qualified by "contents or condition of contents of packages unknown", "said to contain", "shipper's weight, load and count" or the like, if such indication be true.

(2) When goods are loaded by an issuer who is a common carrier, the issuer must count the packages of goods if package freight and ascertain the kind and quantity if bulk freight. In such cases "shipper's weight, load and count" or other words indicating that the description was made by the shipper are ineffective except as to freight concealed by packages.

(3) When bulk freight is loaded by a shipper who makes available to the issuer adequate facilities for weighing such freight, an issuer who is a common carrier must ascertain the kind and quantity within a reasonable time after receiving the written request of the shipper to do so. In such cases "shipper's weight" or other words of like purport are ineffective.

(4) The issuer may be inserting in the bill the words "shipper's weight, load and count" or other words of like purport indicate that the goods were loaded by the shipper; and if such statement be true the issuer shall not be liable for damages caused by the improper loading. But their omission does not imply liability for such damages.

(5) The shipper shall be deemed to have guaranteed to the issuer the accuracy at the time of shipment of the description, marks, labels, number, kind, quantity, condition and weight, as furnished by him; and the shipper shall indemnify the issuer against damage caused by inaccuracies in such particulars. The right of the issuer to such indemnity shall in no way limit his responsibility and liability under the contract of carriage to any person other than the shipper. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 723, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-302. Through bills of lading and similar documents.

(1) The issuer of a through bill of lading or other document embodying an undertaking to be performed in part by persons acting as its agents or by connecting carriers is liable to anyone entitled to recover on the document for any breach by such other persons or by a connecting carrier of its obligation under the document but to the extent that the bill covers an undertaking to be performed overseas or in territory not contiguous to the continental United States or an undertaking including matters other than transportation this liability may be varied by agreement of the parties.

(2) Where goods covered by a through bill of lading or other document embodying an undertaking to be performed in part by persons other than the issuer are received by any such person, he is subject with respect to his own performance while the goods are in his possession to the obligation of the issuer. His obligation is discharged by delivery of the goods to another such person pursuant to the document, and does not include liability for breach by any other such persons or by the issuer.

(3) The issuer of such through bill of lading or other document shall be entitled to recover from the connecting carrier or such other person in possession of the goods when the breach of the obligation under the document occurred, the amount it may be required to pay to anyone entitled to recover on the document therefor, as may be evidenced by any receipt, judgment, or transcript thereof, and the amount of any expense reasonably incurred by it in defending any action brought by anyone entitled to recover on the document therefor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 724, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-303. Diversion; reconsignment; change of instructions.

(1) Unless the bill of lading otherwise provides, the carrier may deliver the goods to a person or destination other than that stated in the bill or may otherwise dispose of the goods on instructions from

(a) the holder of a negotiable bill; or

(b) the consignor on a non-negotiable bill notwithstanding contrary instructions from the consignee; or

(c) the consignee on a non-negotiable bill in the absence of contrary instructions from the consignor, if the goods have arrived at the billed destination or if the consignee is in possession of the bill; or

(d) the consignee on a non-negotiable bill if he is entitled as against the consignor to dispose of them.

(2) Unless such instructions are noted on a negotiable bill of lading, a person to whom the bill is duly negotiated can hold the bailee according to the original terms. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 724, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

28:7-304. Bills of lading in a set.

(1) Except where customary in overseas transportation, a bill of lading must not be issued in a set of parts. The issuer is liable for damages caused by violation of this subsection.

(2) Where a bill of lading is lawfully drawn in a set of parts, each of which is numbered and expressed to be valid only if the goods have not been delivered against any other part, the whole of the parts constitute one bill.

(3) Where a bill of lading is lawfully issued in a set of parts and different parts are negotiated to different persons, the title of the holder to whom the first due negotiation is made prevails as to both the document and the goods even though any later holder may have received the goods from the carrier in good faith and discharged the carrier's obligation by surrender of his part.

(4) Any person who negotiates or transfers a single part of a bill of lading drawn in a set is liable to holders of that part as if it were the whole set.

(5) The bailee is obliged to deliver in accordance with part 4 of this article against the first presented part of a bill of lading lawfully drawn in a set.

Such delivery discharges the bailee's obligation on the whole bill. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-305. Destination bills.

(1) Instead of issuing a bill of lading to the consignor at the place of shipment a carrier may at the request of the consignor procure the bill to be issued at destination or at any other place designated in the request.

(2) Upon request of anyone entitled as against the carrier to control the goods while in transit and on surrender of any outstanding bill of lading or other receipt covering such goods, the issuer may procure a substitute bill to be issued at any place designated in the request. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-306. Altered bills of lading.

An unauthorized alteration or filling in of a blank in a bill of lading leaves the bill enforceable according to its original tenor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-307. Lien of carrier.

(1) A carrier has a lien on the goods covered by a bill of lading for charges subsequent to the date of its receipt of the goods for storage or transportation (including demurrage and terminal charges) and for expenses necessary for preservation of the goods incident to their transportation or reasonably incurred in their sale pursuant to law. But against a purchaser for value of a negotiable bill of lading a carrier's lien is limited to charges stated in the bill or the applicable tariffs, or if no charges are stated then to a reasonable charge.

(2) A lien for charges and expenses under subsection (1) on goods which the carrier was required by law to receive for transportation is effective against the consignor or any person entitled to the goods unless the carrier had notice that the consignor lacked authority to subject the goods to such charges and expenses. Any other lien under subsection (1) is effective against the consignor and any person who permitted the bailor to have control or possession of the goods unless the carrier had notice that the bailor lacked such authority.

(3) A carrier loses his lien on any goods which he voluntarily delivers or which he unjustifiably refuses to deliver. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 725, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-308. Enforcement of carrier's lien.

(1) A carrier's lien may be enforced by public or private sale of the goods, in bloc or in parcels, at any time or place and on any terms which are commercially reasonable, after notifying all persons known to claim an interest in the goods. Such notification must include a statement of the amount due, the nature of the proposed sale and the time and place of any public sale. The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the carrier is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the carrier either sells the goods in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with commercially reasonable practices among dealers in the type of goods sold he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. A sale of more goods than apparently necessary to be offered to ensure satisfaction of the obligation is not commercially reasonable except in cases covered by the preceding sentence.

(2) Before any sale pursuant to this section any person claiming a right in the goods may pay the amount necessary to satisfy the lien and the reasonable expenses incurred under this section. In that event the goods must not be sold, but must be retained by the carrier subject to the terms of the bill and this article.

(3) The carrier may buy at any public sale pursuant to this section.

(4) A purchaser in good faith of goods sold to enforce a carrier's lien takes the goods free of any rights of persons against whom the lien was valid, despite noncompliance by the carrier with the requirements of this section.

(5) The carrier may satisfy his lien from the proceeds of any sale pursuant to this section but must hold the balance, if any, for delivery on demand to any person to whom he would have been bound to deliver the goods.

(6) The rights provided by this section shall be in addition to all other rights allowed by law to a creditor against his debtor.

(7) A carrier's lien may be enforced in accordance with either subsection (1) or the procedure set forth in subsection (2) of section 28:7-210.

(8) The carrier is liable for damages caused by failure to comply with the requirements for sale under this section and in case of willful violation is liable for conversion. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 726, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-309. Duty of care; contractual limitation of carrier's liability.

(1) A carrier who issues a bill of lading whether negotiable or non-negotiable must exercise the degree of care in relation to the goods which a reasonably careful man would exercise under like circumstances. This subsection does not repeal or change any law or rule of law which imposes liability upon a common carrier for damages not caused by its negligence.

(2) Damages may be limited by a provision that the carrier's liability shall not exceed a value stated in the document if the carrier's rates are dependent upon value and the consignor by the carrier's tariff is afforded an opportunity to declare a higher value or a value as lawfully provided in the tariff, or where no tariff is filed he is otherwise advised of such opportunity; but no such limitation is effective with respect to the carrier's liability for conversion to its own use.

(3) Reasonable provisions as to the time and manner of presenting claims and instituting actions based on the shipment may be included in a bill of lading or tariff. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 726, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 4.—WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS AND BILLS OF LADING: GENERAL OBLIGATIONS

§ 28:7-401. Irregularities in issue of receipt or bill or conduct of issuer.

The obligations imposed by this article on an issuer apply to a document of title regardless of the fact that

(a) the document may not comply with the requirements of this article or of any other law or regulation regarding its issue, form or content; or

(b) the issuer may have violated laws regulating the conduct of his business; or

(c) the goods covered by the document were owned by the bailee at the time the document was issued; or

(d) the person issuing the document does not come within the definition of warehouseman if it purports to be a warehouse receipt.

§ 28:7-402. Duplicate receipt or bill; overissue.

Neither a duplicate nor any other document of title purporting to cover goods already represented by an outstanding document of the same issuer confers any right in the goods, except as provided in the case of bills in a set, overissue of documents for fungible goods and substitutes for lost, stolen or destroyed documents. But the issuer is liable for damages caused by his overissue or failure to identify a duplicate document as such by conspicuous notation on its face. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 727, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-403. Obligation of warehouseman or carrier to deliver; excuse.

(1) The bailee must deliver the goods to a person entitled under the document who complies with subsections (2) and (3), unless and to the extent that the bailee establishes any of the following:

(a) delivery of the goods to a person whose receipt was rightful as against the claimant;

(b) damage to or delay, loss or destruction of the goods for which the bailee is not liable;

(c) previous sale or other disposition of the goods in lawful enforcement of a lien or on warehouseman's lawful termination of storage;

(d) the exercise by a seller of his right to stop delivery pursuant to the provisions of the article on sales (section 28:2-705);

(e) a diversion, reconsignment or other disposition pursuant to the provisions of this article (section 28:7-303) or tariff regulating such right;

(f) release, satisfaction or any other fact affording a personal defense against the claimant;

(g) any other lawful excuse.

(2) A person claiming goods covered by a document of title must satisfy the bailee's lien where the bailee so requests or where the bailee is prohibited by law from delivering the goods until the charges are paid.

(3) Unless the person claiming is one against whom the document confers no right under section 28:7-503(1), he must surrender for cancellation or notation of partial deliveries any outstanding negotiable document covering the goods, and the bailee must cancel the document or conspicuously note the partial delivery thereon or be liable to any person to whom the document is duly negotiated.

(4) "Person entitled under the document" means holder in the case of a negotiable document, or the person to whom delivery is to be made by the terms of or pursuant to written instructions under a non-negotiable document. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 727, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-404. No liability for good faith delivery pursuant to receipt or bill.

A bailee who in good faith including observance of reasonable commercial standards has received goods and delivered or otherwise disposed of them according to the terms of the document of title or pursuant to this article is not liable therefor. This rule applies even though the person from whom he received the goods had no authority to procure the document or to dispose of the goods and even though the person to whom he delivered the goods had no authority to receive them. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 728, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 5.—WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS AND BILLS OF LADING: NEGOTIATION AND TRANSFER

§ 28:7-501. Form of negotiation and requirements of "due negotiation".

(1) A negotiable document of title running to the order of a named person is negotiated by his indorsement and delivery. After his indorsement in blank or to bearer any person can negotiate it by delivery alone.

(2) (a) A negotiable document of title is also negotiated by delivery alone when by its original terms it runs to bearer.

(b) When a document running to the order of a named person is delivered to him the effect is the same as if the document had been negotiated.

(3) Negotiation of a negotiable document of title after it has been indorsed to a specified person requires indorsement by the special indorsee as well as delivery.

(4) A negotiable document of title is "duly negotiated" when it is negotiated in the manner stated in this section to a holder who purchases it in good faith without notice of any defense against or claim to it on the part of any person and for value, unless it is established that the negotiation is not in the regular course of business or financing or involves receiving the document in settlement or payment of a money obligation.

(5) Indorsement of a non-negotiable document neither makes it negotiable nor adds to the transferee's rights.

(6) The naming in a negotiable bill of a person to be notified of the arrival of the goods does not limit the negotiability of the bill nor constitute notice to a purchaser thereof of any interest of such person in the goods. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 728, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-502. Rights acquired by due negotiation.

(1) Subject to the following section and to the provisions of section 28:7-205 on fungible goods, a holder to whom a negotiable document of title has been duly negotiated acquires thereby:

(a) title to the document;

(b) title to the goods;

(c) all rights accruing under the law of agency or estoppel, including rights to goods delivered to the bailee after the document was issued; and

(d) the direct obligation of the issuer to hold or deliver the goods according to the terms of the document free of any defense or claim by him except those arising under the terms of the document or under this article. In the case of a delivery order the bailee's obligation accrues only upon acceptance and the obligation acquired by the holder is that the issuer and any indorser will procure the acceptance of the bailee.

(2) Subject to the following section, title and rights so acquired are not defeated by any stoppage of the goods represented by the document or by surrender of such goods by the bailee, and are not impaired even though the negotiation or any prior negotiation constituted a breach of duty or even though any person has been deprived of possession of the document by misrepresentation, fraud, accident, mistake, duress, loss, theft or conversion, or even though a previous sale or other transfer of the goods or document has been made to a third person. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 728, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-503. Document of title to goods defeated in certain cases.

(1) A document of title confers no right in goods against a person who before issuance of the document had a legal interest or a perfected security interest in them and who neither

(a) delivered or entrusted them or any document of title covering them to the bailor or his nominee with actual or apparent authority to ship, store or sell or with power to obtain delivery under this article (section 28:7-403) or with power of disposition under this subtitle (sections 28:2-403 and 28:9-307) or other statute or rule of law; nor

(b) acquiesced in the procurement by the bailor or his nominee of any document of title.

(2) Title to goods based upon an unaccepted delivery order is subject to the rights of anyone to whom a negotiable warehouse receipt or bill of lading covering the goods has been duly negotiated. Such a title may be defeated under the next section to the same extent as the rights of the issuer or a transferee from the issuer.

(3) Title to goods based upon a bill of lading issued to a freight forwarder is subject to the rights of anyone to whom a bill issued by the freight forwarder is duly negotiated; but delivery by the carrier in accordance with part 4 of this article, pursuant to its own bill of lading discharges the carrier's obligation to deliver. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 729, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-504. Rights acquired in the absence of due negotiation; effect of diversion; seller's stoppage of delivery.

(1) A transferee of a document, whether negotiable or non-negotiable, to whom the document has been delivered but not duly negotiated, acquires the title and rights which his transferor had or had actual authority to convey.

(2) In the case of a non-negotiable document, until but not after the bailee receives notification of the transfer, the rights of the transferee may be defeated

(a) by those creditors of the transferor who could treat the sale as void under section 28:2-402; or

(b) by a buyer from the transferor in ordinary course of business if the bailee has delivered the goods to the buyer or received notification of his rights; or

(c) as against the bailee by good faith dealings of the bailee with the transferor.

(3) A diversion or other change of shipping instructions by the consignor in a non-negotiable bill of lading which causes the bailee not to deliver to the consignee defeats the consignee's title to the goods if they have been delivered to a buyer in ordinary course of business and in any event defeats the consignee's rights against the bailee.

(4) Delivery pursuant to a non-negotiable document may be stopped by a seller under section 28:2-705, and subject to the requirement of due notification there provided. A bailee honoring the seller's instructions is entitled to be indemnified by the seller against any resulting loss or expense. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 729, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-505. Indorser not a guarantor for other parties.

The indorsement of a document of title issued by a bailee does not make the indorser liable for any default by the bailee or by previous indorsers. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-506. Delivery without indorsement: right to compel indorsement.

The transferee of a negotiable document of title has a specifically enforceable right to have his transferor supply any necessary indorsement but the transfer becomes a negotiation only as of the time the indorsement is supplied. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-507. Warranties on negotiation or transfer of receipt or bill.

Where a person negotiates or transfers a document of title for value otherwise than as a mere intermediary under the next following section, then unless otherwise agreed he warrants to his immediate purchaser only in addition to any warranty made in selling the goods

(a) that the document is genuine; and

(b) that he has no knowledge of any fact which would impair its validity or worth; and

(c) that his negotiation or transfer is rightful and fully effective with respect to the title to the document and the goods it represents.

§ 28:7-508. Warranties of collecting bank as to documents.

A collecting bank or other intermediary known to be entrusted with documents on behalf of another or with collection of a draft or other claim against delivery of documents warrants by such delivery of the documents only its own good faith and authority. This rule applies even though the intermediary has purchased or made advances against the claim or draft to be collected. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-509. Receipt or bill: when adequate compliance with commercial contract.

The question whether a document is adequate to fulfill the obligations of a contract for sale or the conditions of a credit is governed by the articles on sales (article 2) and on letters of credit (article 5). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 6.—WAREHOUSE RECEIPTS AND BILLS OF LADING: MISCELLANEOUS PROVISIONS

§ 28:7-601. Lost and missing documents.

(1) If a document has been lost, stolen, or destroyed, a court may order delivery of the goods or issuance of a substitute document and the bailee may without liability to any person comply with such order. If the document was negotiable the claimant must post security approved by the court to indemnify any person who may suffer loss as a result of non-surrender of the document. If the document was not negotiable, such security may be required at the discretion of the court. The court may also in its discretion order payment of the bailee's reasonable costs and counsel fees.

(2) A bailee who without court order delivers goods to a person claiming under a missing negotiable document is liable to any person injured thereby, and if the delivery is not in good faith becomes liable for conversion. Delivery in good faith is not conversion if made in accordance with a filed classification or tariff or, where no classification or tariff is filed, if the claimant posts security with the bailee in an amount at least double the value of the goods at the time of posting to indemnify any person injured by the delivery who files a notice of claim within one year after the delivery. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 730, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-602. Attachment of goods covered by a negotiable document.

Except where the document was originally issued upon delivery of the goods by a person who had no power to dispose of them, no lien attaches by virtue of any judicial process to goods in the possession of a bailee for which a negotiable document of title is outstanding unless the document be first surrendered to the bailee or its negotiation enjoined, and the bailee shall not be compelled to deliver the goods pursuant to process until the document is surrendered to him or impounded by the court. One who purchases the document for value without notice of the process or injunction takes free of the lien imposed by judicial process. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 731, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:7-603. Conflicting claims; interpleader.

If more than one person claims title or possession of the goods, the bailee is excused from delivery until he has had a reasonable time to ascertain the validity of the adverse claims or to bring an action to compel all claimants to interplead and may compel such interpleader, either in defending an action for non-delivery of the goods, or by original action, which ever is appropriate. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 731, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Investment Securities. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 732, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-102. Definitions and index of definitions.

(1) In this article unless the context otherwise requires

- (a) A "security" is an instrument which
(i) is issued in bearer or registered form; and
(ii) is of a type commonly dealt in upon securities exchanges or markets or commonly recognized in any area in which it is issued or dealt in as a medium for investment; and
(iii) is either one of a class or series or by its terms is divisible into a class or series of instruments; and
(iv) evidences a share, participation or other interest in property or in an enterprise or evidences an obligation of the issuer.

(b) A writing which is a security is governed by this article and not by Uniform Commercial Code—Commercial Paper even though it also meets the requirements of that article. This article does not apply to money.

(c) A security is in "registered form" when it specifies a person entitled to the security or to the rights it evidences and when its transfer may be registered upon books maintained for that purpose by or on behalf of an issuer or the security so states.

(d) A security is in "bearer form" when it runs to bearer according to its terms and not by reason of any indorsement.

(2) A "subsequent purchaser" is a person who takes other than by original issue.

(3) A "clearing corporation" is a corporation all of the capital stock of which is held by or for a national securities exchange or association registered under a statute of the United States such as the Securities Exchange Act of 1934.

"Guarantee of the signature". Section 28:8-402.
"Intermediary bank". Section 28:4-105.
"Issuer". Section 28:8-201.
"Overissue". Section 28:8-104.

(6) In addition article 1 contains general definitions and principles of construction and interpretation applicable throughout this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 732, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-103. Issuer's lien.

A lien upon a security in favor of an issuer thereof is valid against a purchaser only if the right of the issuer to such lien is noted conspicuously on the security. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 733, Pub. L. 88-243, §1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-104. Effect of overissue; "overissue".

(1) The provisions of this article which validate a security or compel its issue or reissue do not apply to the extent that validation, issue or reissue would result in overissue; but

(a) if an identical security which does not constitute an overissue is reasonably available for purchase, the person entitled to issue or validation may compel the issuer to purchase and deliver such a security to him against surrender of the security, if any, which he holds; or

(b) if a security is not so available for purchase, the person entitled to issue or validation may recover from the issuer the price he or the last purchaser for value paid for it with interest from the date of his demand.

(2) "Overissue" means the issue of securities in excess of the amount which the issuer has corporate power to issue. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 733, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-105. Securities negotiable; presumptions.

(1) Securities governed by this article are negotiable instruments.

(2) In any action on a security

(a) unless specifically denied in the pleadings, each signature on the security or in a necessary indorsement is admitted;

(b) when the effectiveness of a signature is put in issue the burden of establishing it is on the party claiming under the signature but the signature is presumed to be genuine or authorized;

(c) when signatures are admitted or established production of the instrument entitles a holder to recover on it unless the defendant establishes a defense or a defect going to the validity of the security; and

(d) after it is shown that a defense or defect exists the plaintiff has the burden of establishing that he or some person under whom he claims is a person against whom the defense or defect is ineffective (section 28: 8-202).

§ 28:8-106. Applicability.

The validity of a security and the rights and duties of the issuer with respect to registration of transfer are governed by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction of organization of the issuer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 733, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-107. Securities deliverable; action for price.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed and subject to any applicable law or regulation respecting short sales, a person obligated to deliver securities may deliver any security of the specified issue in bearer form or registered in the name of the transferee or indorsed to him or in blank.

(2) When the buyer fails to pay the price as it comes due under a contract of sales the seller may recover the price

(a) of securities accepted by the buyer; and

(b) of other securities if efforts at their resale would be unduly burdensome or if there is no readily available market for their resale.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 733, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 2.—ISSUE—ISSUER

§ 28:8-201. "Issuer".

(1) With respect to obligations on or defenses to a security "issuer" includes a person who

(a) places or authorizes the placing of his name on a security (otherwise than as authenticating trustee, registrar, transfer agent or the like) to evidence that it represents a share, participation or other interest in his property or in an enterprise or to evidence his duty to perform an obligation evidenced by the security; or

(b) directly or indirectly creates fractional interests in his rights or property which fractional interests are evidenced by securities; or

(c) becomes responsible for or in place of any person described as an issuer in this section.

(2) With respect to obligations on or defenses to a security a guarantor is an issuer to the extent of his guaranty whether or not his obligation is noted on the security.

(3) With respect to registration of transfer (part 4 of this article) "issuer" means a person on whose behalf transfer books are maintained. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 734, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-202. Issuer's responsibility and defenses; notice of defect or defense.

(1) Even against a purchaser for value and without notice, the terms of a security include those stated on the security and those made part of the security by reference to another instrument, indenture or document or to a constitution, statute, ordinance, rule, regulation, order or the like to the extent that the terms so referred to do not conflict with the stated terms. Such a reference does not of itself charge a purchaser for value with notice of a defect going to the validity of the security even though the security expressly states that a person accepting it admits such notice.

(2) (a) A security other than one issued by a government or governmental agency or unit even though issued with a defect going to its validity is valid in the hands of a purchaser for value and without notice of the particular defect unless the defect involves a violation of constitutional provisions in which case the security is valid in the hands of a subsequent purchaser for value and without notice of the defect.

(b) The rule of subparagraph (a) applies to an issuer which is a government or governmental agency or unit only if either there has been substantial compliance with the legal requirements governing the issue or the issuer has received a substantial consideration for the issue as a whole or for the particular security and a stated purpose of the issue is one for which the issuer has power to borrow money or issue the security.

(3) Except as otherwise provided in the case of certain unauthorized signatures on issue (section 28:8-205), lack of genuineness of a security is a complete defense even against a purchaser for value and without notice.

(4) All other defenses of the issuer including nondelivery and conditional delivery of the security are ineffective against a purchaser for value who has taken without notice of the particular defense.

(5) Nothing in this section shall be construed to affect the right of a party to a "when, as and if issued" or a "when distributed" contract to cancel the contract in the event of a material change in the character of the security which is the subject of the contract or in the plan or arrangement pursuant to which such security is to be issued or distributed. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 734, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-203. Staleness as notice of defects or defenses.

(1) After an act or event which creates a right to immediate performance of the principal obligation evidenced by the security or which sets a date on or after which the security is to be presented or surrendered for redemption or exchange, a purchaser is charged with notice of any defect in its issue or defense of the issuer

(a) if the act or event is one requiring the payment of money or the delivery of securities or both on presentation or surrender of the security and such funds or securities are available on the date set for payment or exchange and he takes the security more than one year after that date; and

(b) if the act or event is not covered by paragraph (a) and he takes the security more than two years after the date set for surrender or presentation or the date on which such performance became due.

(2) A call which has been revoked is not within subsection (1). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 735, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-204. Effect of issuer's restrictions on transfer.

Unless noted conspicuously on the security a restriction on transfer imposed by the issuer even though otherwise lawful is ineffective except against a person with actual knowledge of it. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 735, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-205. Effect of unauthorized signature on issue.

An unauthorized signature placed on a security prior to or in the course of issue is ineffective that the signature is effective in favor of a purchaser for value and without notice of the lack of authority if the signing has been done by

(a) an authenticating trustee, registrar, transfer agent or other person entrusted by the issuer with the signing of the security or of similar securities or their immediate preparation for signing; or

(b) an employee of the issuer or of any of the foregoing entrusted with responsible handling of the security.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 735, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-206. Completion or alteration of instrument.

(1) Where a security contains the signatures necessary to its issue or transfer but is incomplete in any other respect

(a) any person may complete it by filling in the blanks as authorized; and

(b) even though the blanks are incorrectly filled in, the security as completed is enforceable by a purchaser who took it for value and without notice of such incorrectness.

(2) A complete security which has been improperly altered even though fraudulently remains enforceable but only according to its original terms. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 735, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-207. Rights of issuer with respect to registered owners.

(1) Prior to due presentment for registration of transfer of a security in registered form the issuer or indenture trustee may treat the registered owner as the person exclusively entitled to vote, to receive notifications and otherwise to exercise all the rights and powers of an owner.

(2) Nothing in this article shall be construed to affect the liability of the registered owner of a security for calls, assessments or the like. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 735, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-208. Effect of signature of authenticating trustee, registrar or transfer agent.

(1) A person placing his signature upon a security as authenticating trustee, registrar, transfer agent or the like warrants to a purchaser for value without notice of the particular defect that

(a) the security is genuine; and

(b) his own participation in the issue of the security is within his capacity and within the scope of the authorization received by him from the issuer; and

(c) he has reasonable grounds to believe that the security is in the form and within the amount the issuer is authorized to issue.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed, a person by so placing his signature does not assume responsibility for the validity of the security in other respects. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 736, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 3.—PURCHASE

§ 28:8-301. Rights acquired by purchaser; "adverse claim"; title acquired by bona fide purchaser.

(1) Upon delivery of a security the purchaser acquires the rights in the security which his transferor had or had actual authority to convey except that a purchaser who has himself been a party to any fraud or illegality affecting the security or who as a prior holder had notice of an adverse claim cannot improve his position by taking from a later bona fide purchaser. "Adverse claim" includes a claim that a transfer was or would be wrongful or that a particular adverse person is the owner of or has an interest in the security.

(2) A bona fide purchaser in addition to acquiring the rights of a purchaser also acquires the security free of any adverse claim.

(3) A purchaser of a limited interest acquires rights only to the extent of the interest purchased. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 736, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-302. "Bona fide purchaser".

A "bona fide purchaser" is a purchaser for value in good faith and without notice of any adverse claim who takes delivery of a security in bearer form or of one in registered form issued to him or indorsed to him or in blank. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 736, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-303. "Broker".

"Broker" means a person engaged for all or part of his time in the business of buying and selling securities, who in the transaction concerned acts for, or buys a security from or sells a security to a customer. Nothing in this article determines the capacity in which a person acts for purposes of any other statute or rule to which such person is subject. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 736, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-304. Notice to purchaser of adverse claims.

(1) A purchaser (including a broker for the seller or buyer but excluding an intermediary bank) of a security is charged with notice of adverse claims if

(a) the security whether in bearer or registered form has been indorsed "for collection" or "for surrender" or for some other purpose not involving transfer; or

(b) the security is in bearer form and has on it an unambiguous statement that it is the property of a person other than the transferor. The mere writing of a name on a security is not such a statement.

(2) The fact that the purchaser (including a broker for the seller or buyer) has notice that the security is held for a third person or is registered in the name of or indorsed by a fiduciary does not create a duty of inquiry into the rightfulness of the transfer or constitute notice of adverse claims. If, however, the purchaser (excluding an intermediary bank) has knowledge that the proceeds are being used or that the transaction is for the individual benefit of the fiduciary or otherwise in breach of duty, the purchaser is charged with notice of adverse claims. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 736, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-305. Staleness as notice of adverse claims.

An act or event which creates a right to immediate performance of the principal obligation evidenced by the security or which sets a date on or after which the security is to be presented or surrendered for redemption or exchange does not of itself constitute any notice of adverse claims except in the case of a purchase

(a) after one year from any date set for such presentment or surrender for redemption or exchange; or

(b) after six months from any date set for payment of money against presentation or surrender of the security if funds are available for payment on that date.

§ 28:8-306. Warranties on presentment and transfer.

(1) A person who presents a security for registration of transfer or for payment or exchange warrants to the issuer that he is entitled to the registration, payment or exchange. But a purchaser for value without notice of adverse claims who receives a new, reissued or re-registered security on registration of transfer warrants only that he has no knowledge of any unauthorized signature (section 28:8-311) in a necessary indorsement.

(2) A person by transferring a security to a purchaser for value warrants only that

(a) his transfer is effective and rightful; and

(b) the security is genuine and has not been materially altered; and

(c) he knows no fact which might impair the validity of the security.

(3) Where a security is delivered by an intermediary known to be entrusted with delivery of the security on behalf of another or with collection of a draft or other claim against such delivery, the intermediary by such delivery warrants only his own good faith and authority even though he has purchased or made advances against the claim to be collected against the delivery.

(4) A pledge or other holder for security who re-delivers the security received, or after payment and on order of the debtor delivers that security to a third person makes only the warranties of an intermediary under subsection (3).

(5) A broker gives to his customer and to the issuer and a purchaser the warranties provided in this section and has the rights and privileges of a purchaser under this section. The warranties of and in favor of the broker acting as an agent are in addition to applicable warranties given by and in favor of his customer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 737, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-307. Effect of delivery without indorsement; right to compel indorsement.

Where a security in registered form has been delivered to a purchaser without a necessary indorsement he may become a bona fide purchaser only as of the time the indorsement is supplied, but against the transferor the transfer is complete upon delivery and the purchaser has a specifically enforceable right to have any necessary indorsement supplied. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 737, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-308. Indorsement, how made; special indorsement; indorser not a guarantor; partial assignment.

(1) An indorsement of a security in registered form is made when an appropriate person signs on it or on a separate document an assignment or transfer of the security or a power to assign or transfer it or when the signature of such person is written without more upon the back of the security.

(2) An indorsement may be in blank or special. An indorsement in blank includes an indorsement to bearer. A special indorsement specifies the person to whom the security is to be transferred, or who has power to transfer it. A holder may convert a blank indorsement into a special indorsement.

(3) "An appropriate person" in subsection (1) means

(a) the person specified by the security or by special indorsement to be entitled to the security; or

(b) where the person so specified as described as a fiduciary but is no longer serving in the described capacity,—either that person or his successor; or

(c) where the security or indorsement so specifies more than one person as fiduciaries and one or more are no longer serving in the described capacity,—the remaining fiduciary or fiduciaries, whether or not a successor has been appointed or qualified; or

(d) where the person so specified is an individual and is without capacity to act by virtue of death, incompetence, infancy or otherwise,—his executor, administrator, guardian or like fiduciary; or

(e) where the security or indorsement so specifies more than one person as tenants by the entirety or with right of survivorship and by reason of death all cannot sign,—the survivor or survivors; or

(f) a person having power to sign under applicable law or controlling instrument; or

(g) to the extent that any of the foregoing persons may act through an agent,—his authorized agent.

(4) Unless otherwise agreed the indorser by his indorsement assumes no obligation that the security will be honored by the issuer.

(5) An indorsement purporting to be only of part of a security representing units intended by the issuer to be separately transferable is effective to the extent of the indorsement.

(6) Whether the person signing is appropriate is determined as of the date of signing and an indorsement by such a person does not become unauthorized for the purposes of this article by virtue of any subsequent change of circumstances.

(7) Failure of a fiduciary to comply with a controlling instrument or with the law of the state having jurisdiction of the fiduciary relationship, including any law requiring the fiduciary to obtain court approval of the transfer, does not render his indorsement unauthorized for the purposes of this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-309. Effect of indorsement without delivery.

An indorsement of a security whether special or in blank does not constitute a transfer until delivery of the security on which it appears or if the indorsement is on a separate document until delivery of both the document and the security. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-310. Indorsement of security in bearer form.

An indorsement of a security in bearer form may give notice of adverse claims (section 28:8-304) but does not otherwise affect any right to registration the holder may possess. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 738, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-311. Effect of unauthorized indorsement.

Unless the owner has ratified an unauthorized indorsement or is otherwise precluded from asserting its ineffectiveness

(a) he may assert its ineffectiveness against the issuer or any purchaser other than a purchaser for value and without notice of adverse claims who has in good faith received a new, re-issued or re-registered security on registration of transfer; and

(b) an issuer who registers the transfer of a security upon the unauthorized indorsement is subject to liability for improper registration (section 28:8-404).

§ 28:8-312. Effect of guaranteeing signature or indorsement.

(1) Any person guaranteeing a signature of an indorser of a security warrants that at the time of signing

(a) the signature was genuine; and

(b) the signer was an appropriate person to indorse (section 28:8-308); and

(c) the signer had legal capacity to sign.

But the guarantor does not otherwise warrant the rightfulness of the particular transfer.

(2) Any person may guarantee an indorsement of a security and by so doing warrants not only the signature (subsection 1) but also the rightfulness of the particular transfer in all respects. But no issuer may require a guarantee of indorsement as a condition to registration of transfer.

(3) The foregoing warranties are made to any person taking or dealing with the security in reliance on the guarantee and the guarantor is liable to such person for any loss resulting from breach of the warranties. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 739, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-313. When delivery to the purchaser occurs; purchaser's broker as holder.

(1) Delivery to a purchaser occurs when

(a) he or a person designated by him acquires possession of a security; or

(b) his broker acquires possession of a security specially indorsed to or issued in the name of the purchaser; or

(c) his broker sends him confirmation of the purchase and also by book entry or otherwise identifies a specific security in the broker's possession as belonging to the purchaser; or

(d) with respect to an identified security to be delivered while still in the possession of a third person when that person acknowledges that he holds for the purchaser; or

(e) appropriate entries on the books of a clearing corporation are made under section 28:8-320.

(2) The purchaser is the owner of a security held for him by his broker, but is not the holder except as specified in subparagraphs (b), (c) and (e) of subsection (1). Where a security is part of a fungible bulk the purchaser is the owner of a proportionate property interest in the fungible bulk.

(3) Notice of an adverse claim received by the broker or by the purchaser after the broker takes delivery as a holder for value is not effective either as to the broker or as to the purchaser. However, as between the broker and the purchaser the purchaser may demand delivery of an equivalent security as to which no notice of an adverse claim has been received. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 739, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-314. Duty to deliver, when completed.

(1) Unless otherwise agreed where a sale of a security is made on an exchange or otherwise through brokers

(a) the selling customer fulfills his duty to deliver when he places such a security in the possession of the selling broker or of a person designated by the broker or if requested causes an acknowledgement to be made to the selling broker that it is held for him; and

(b) the selling broker including a correspondent broker acting for a selling customer fulfills his duty to deliver by placing the security or a like security in the possession of the buying broker or a person designated by him or by effecting clearance of the sale in accordance with the rules of the exchange on which the transaction took place.

(2) Except as otherwise provided in this section and unless otherwise agreed, a transferor's duty to deliver a security under a contract of purchase is not fulfilled until he places the security in form to be negotiated by the purchaser in the possession of the purchaser or of a person designated by him or at the purchaser's request causes an acknowledgment to be made to the purchaser that it is held for him. Unless made on an exchange a sale to a broker purchasing for his own account is within this subsection and not within subsection (1). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-315. Action against purchaser based upon wrongful transfer.

(1) Any person against whom the transfer of a security is wrongful for any reason, including his incapacity, may against anyone except a bona fide purchaser reclaim possession of the security or obtain possession of any new security evidencing all or part of the same rights or have damages.

(2) If the transfer is wrongful because of an unauthorized indorsement, the owner may also reclaim or obtain possession of the security or new security even from a bona fide purchaser if the ineffectiveness of the purported indorsement can be asserted against him under the provisions of this article on unauthorized indorsements (section 28:8-311).

(3) The right to obtain or reclaim possession of a security may be specifically enforced and its transfer enjoined and the security impounded pending the litigation. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-316. Purchaser's right to requisites for registration of transfer on books.

Unless otherwise agreed the transferor must on due demand supply his purchaser with any proof of his authority to transfer or with any other requisite which may be necessary to obtain registration of the transfer of the security but if the transfer is not for value a transferor need not do so unless the purchaser furnishes the necessary expenses. Failure to comply with a demand made within a reasonable time gives the purchaser the right to reject or rescind the transfer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-317. Attachment or levy upon security.

(1) No attachment or levy upon a security or any share or other interest evidenced thereby which is outstanding shall be valid until the security is actually seized by the officer making the attachment or levy but a security which has been surrendered to the issuer may be attached or levied upon at the source.

(2) A creditor whose debtor is the owner of a security shall be entitled to such aid from courts of appropriate jurisdiction, by injunction or otherwise, in reaching such security or in satisfying the claim by means thereof as is allowed at law or in equity in regard to property which cannot readily be attached or levied upon by ordinary legal process. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 740, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-318. No conversion by good faith delivery.

An agent or bailee who in good faith (including observance of reasonable commercial standards if he is in the business of buying, selling or otherwise dealing with securities) has received securities and sold, pledged or delivered them according to the instructions of the principal is not liable for conversion or for participation in breach of fiduciary duty although the principal had no right to dispose of them. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 741, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-319. Statute of frauds.

A contract for the sale of securities is not enforceable by way of action or defense unless

(a) there is some writing signed by the party against whom enforcement is sought or by his authorized agent or broker sufficient to indicate that a contract has been made for sale of a stated quantity of described securities at a defined or stated price; or

(b) delivery of the security has been accepted or payment has been made but the contract is enforceable under this provision only to the extent of such delivery or payment; or

(c) within a reasonable time a writing in confirmation of the sale or purchase and sufficient against the sender under paragraph (a) has been received by the party against whom enforcement is sought and he has failed to send written objection to its contents within ten days after its receipt; or

(d) the party against whom enforcement is sought admits in his pleading, testimony or otherwise in court that a contract was made for sale of a stated quantity of described securities at a defined or stated price.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 741, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-320. Transfer or pledge within a central depository system.

(1) If a security

(a) is in the custody of a clearing corporation or of a custodian bank or a nominee of either subject to the instructions of the clearing corporation; and

(b) is in bearer form or indorsed in blank by an appropriate person or registered in the name of the clearing corporation or custodian bank or a nominee of either; and then, in addition to other methods, a transfer or pledge of the security or any interest therein may be effected by the making of appropriate entries on the books of the clearing corporation reducing the account of the transferor or pledgor and increasing the account of the transferee or pledgee by the amount of the obligation or the number of shares or rights transferred or pledged.

(c) is shown on the account of a transferor or pledgor on the books of the clearing corporation;

(2) Under this section entries may be with respect to like securities or interests therein as a part of a fungible bulk and may refer merely to a quantity of a particular security without reference to the name of the registered owner, certificate or bond number or the like and, in appropriate cases, may be on a net basis taking into account other transfers or pledges of the same security.

(3) A transfer or pledge under this section has the effect of a delivery of a security in bearer form or duly indorsed in blank (section 28:8-301) representing the amount of the obligation or the number of shares or rights transferred or pledged. If a pledge or the creation of a security interest is intended, the making of entries has the effect of a taking of delivery by the pledgee or a secured party (sections 28:9-304 and 28:9-305). A transferee or pledgee under this section is a holder.

(4) A transfer or pledge under this section does not constitute a registration of transfer under part 4 of this article.

(5) That entries made on the books of the clearing corporation as provided in subsection (1) are not appropriate does not affect the validity or effect of the entries nor the liabilities or obligations of the clearing corporation to any person adversely affected thereby. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 741, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 4.—REGISTRATION

§ 28:8-401. Duty of issuer to register transfer.

(1) Where a security in registered form is presented to the issuer with a request to register transfer, the issuer is under a duty to register the transfer as requested if

(a) the security is indorsed by the appropriate person or persons (section 28:8-308); and

(b) reasonable assurance is given that those indorsements are genuine and effective (section 28:8-402); and

(c) the issuer has no duty to inquire into adverse claims or has discharged any such duty (section 28:8-403); and

(d) any applicable law relating to the collection of taxes has been complied with; and

(e) the transfer is in fact rightful or is to a bona fide purchaser.

(2) Where an issuer is under a duty to register a transfer of a security the issuer is also liable to the person presenting it for registration or his principal for loss resulting from any unreasonable delay in registration or from failure or refusal to register the transfer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 742, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-402. Assurance that indorsements are effective.

(1) The issuer may require the following assurance that each necessary indorsement (section 28:8-308) is genuine and effective

(a) in all cases, a guarantee of the signature (subsection (1) of section 28:8-312) of the person indorsing; and

(b) where the indorsement is by an agent, appropriate assurance of authority to sign;

(c) where the indorsement is by a fiduciary, appropriate evidence of appointment or incumbency;

(d) where there is more than one fiduciary, reasonable assurance that all who are required to sign have done so;

(e) where the indorsement is by a person not covered by any of the foregoing, assurance appropriate to the case corresponding as nearly as may be to the foregoing.

(2) A "guarantee of the signature" in subsection (1) means a guarantee signed by or on behalf of a person reasonably believed by the issuer to be responsible. The issuer may adopt standards with respect to responsibility provided such standards are not manifestly unreasonable.

(3) "Appropriate evidence of appointment or incumbency" in subsection (1) means

(a) in the case of a fiduciary appointed or qualified by a court, a certificate issued by or under the direction or supervision of that court or an officer thereof and dated within sixty days before the date of presentation for transfer; or

(b) in any other case, a copy of a document showing the appointment or a certificate issued by or on behalf of a person reasonably believed by the issuer to be responsible or, in the absence of such a document or certificate, other evidence reasonably deemed by the issuer to be appropriate. The issuer may adopt standards with respect to such evidence provided such standards are not manifestly unreasonable. The issuer is not charged with notice of the contents of any document obtained pursuant to this paragraph (b) except to the extent that the contents relate directly to the appointment or incumbency.

(4) The issuer may elect to require reasonable assurance beyond that specified in this section but if it does so and for a purpose other than that specified in subsection 3(b) both requires and obtains a copy of a will, trust, indenture, articles of co-partnership, by-laws or other controlling instrument it is charged with notice of all matters contained therein affecting the transfer. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 742, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-403. Limited duty of inquiry.

(1) An issuer to whom a security is presented for registration is under a duty to inquire into adverse claims if

(a) a written notification of an adverse claim is received at a time and in a manner which affords the issuer a reasonable opportunity to act on it prior to the issuance of a new, reissued or re-registered security and the notification identifies the claimant, the registered owner and the issue of which the security is a part and provides an address for communications directed to the claimant; or

(b) the issuer is charged with notice of an adverse claim from a controlling instrument which it has elected to require under subsection (4) of section 28:8-402.

(2) The issuer may discharge any duty of inquiry by any reasonable means, including notifying an adverse claimant by registered or certified mail at the address furnished by him or if there be no such address at his residence or regular place of business that the security has been presented for registration of transfer by a named person, and that the transfer will be registered unless within thirty days from the date of mailing the notification, either

(a) an appropriate restraining order, injunction or other process issues from a court of competent jurisdiction; or

(b) an indemnity bond sufficient in the issuer's judgment to protect the issuer and any transfer agent, registrar or other agent of the issuer involved, from any loss which it or they may suffer by complying with the adverse claim is filed with the issuer.

(3) Unless an issuer is charged with notice of an adverse claim from a controlling instrument which it has elected to require under subsection (4) of section 28:8-402 or receives notification of an adverse claim under subsection (1) of this section, where a security presented for registration is indorsed by the appropriate person or persons the issuer is under no duty to inquire into adverse claims. In particular

(a) an issuer registering a security in the name of a person who is a fiduciary or who is described as a fiduciary is not bound to inquire into the existence, extent, or correct description of the fiduciary relationship and thereafter the issuer may assume without inquiry that the newly registered owner continues to be the fiduciary until the issuer receives written notice that the fiduciary is no longer acting as such with respect to the particular security;

(b) an issuer registering transfer on an indorsement by a fiduciary is not bound to inquire whether the transfer is made in compliance with a controlling instrument or with the law of the state having jurisdiction of the fiduciary relationship, including any law requiring the fiduciary to obtain court approval of the transfer; and

(c) the issuer is not charged with notice of the contents of any court record or file or other recorded or unrecorded document even though the document is in its possession and even though the transfer is made on the indorsement of a fiduciary to the fiduciary himself or to his nominee.

§ 28:8-404. Liability and non-liability for registration.

(1) Except as otherwise provided in any law relating to the collection of taxes, the issuer is not liable to the owner or any other person suffering loss as a result of the registration of a transfer of a security if

(a) there were on or with the security the necessary indorsements (section 28:8-308); and

(b) the issuer had no duty to inquire into adverse claims or has discharged any such duty (section 28:8-403).

(2) Where an issuer has registered a transfer of a security to a person not entitled to it the issuer on demand must deliver a like security to the true owner unless

(a) the registration was pursuant to subsection (1); or

(b) the owner is precluded from asserting any claim for registering the transfer under subsection (1) of the following section; or

(c) such delivery would result in overissue, in which case the issuer's liability is governed by section 28:8-104.

§ 28:8-405. Lost, destroyed and stolen securities.

(1) Where a security has been lost, apparently destroyed or wrongfully taken and the owner fails to notify the issuer of that fact within a reasonable time after he has notice of it and the issuer registers a transfer of the security before receiving such a notification, the owner is precluded from asserting against the issuer any claim for registering the transfer under the preceding section or any claim to a new security under this section.

(2) Where the owner of a security claims that the security has been lost, destroyed or wrongfully taken, the issuer must issue a new security in place of the original security if the owner

(a) so requests before the issuer has notice that the security has been acquired by a bona fide purchaser; and

(b) files with the issuer a sufficient indemnity bond; and

(c) satisfies any other reasonable requirements imposed by the issuer.

(3) If, after the issue of the new security, a bona fide purchaser of the original security presents it for registration of transfer, the issuer must register the transfer unless registration would result in over-issue, in which event the issuer's liability is governed by section 28:8-104. In addition to any rights on the indemnity bond, the issuer may recover the new security from the person to whom it was issued or any person taking under him except a bona fide purchaser. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 744, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-406. Duty of authenticating trustee, transfer agent or registrar.

(1) Where a person acts as authenticating trustee, transfer agent, registrar, or other agent for an issuer in the registration of transfers of its securities or in the issue of new securities or in the cancellation of surrendered securities

(a) he is under a duty to the issuer to exercise good faith and due diligence in performing his functions; and

(b) he has with regard to the particular functions he performs the same obligation to the holder or owner of the security and has the same rights and privileges as the issuer has in regard to those functions.

(2) Notice to an authenticating trustee, transfer agent, registrar or other such agent is notice to the issuer with respect to the functions performed by the agent. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 744, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:8-407. Limitation of actions.

(1) In the event of registration, either before or after this subtitle becomes effective, of a transfer or purported transfer of a security to a person not entitled to it, no action of any kind, legal or equitable, to compel the issue, reissue or delivery of a like security or to obtain damages or any other relief as a result of or in connection with such registration may be brought, subject to subsection (2), by the true owner or any other person against an issuer, authenticating trustee, transfer agent, registrar, or other agent for an issuer in the registration of transfers of its securities, more than eight years after the date on which such registration to a person not entitled has taken place.

(2) The time limitations in subsections (1) and (3) of this section may not be tolled or suspended for any reason. This section is additional to, and does not prevent or affect the application of, any other statute of limitations as a defense to any action. This section applies to claims or causes of action which have accrued before this subtitle becomes effective as well as to those which accrue after this subtitle becomes effective. This section does not apply to any action against an issuer which at the time of such registration has fewer than fifty persons registered upon books maintained for that purpose as holders of the class and series, if any, of the security so registered to the person not entitled to it.

(3) If the eight year period specified in this section expires prior to one year after the effective date of this subtitle, such period is extended to one year after such effective date. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 745, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 1.—SHORT TITLE, APPLICABILITY AND DEFINITIONS

§ 28:9-101. Short title.

This article shall be known and may be cited as Uniform Commercial Code—Secured Transactions. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 746, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-102. Policy and scope of article.

(1) Except as otherwise provided in section 28:9-103 on multiple state transactions and in section 28:9-104 on excluded transactions, this article applies so far as concerns any personal property and fixtures within the jurisdiction of the District

(a) to any transaction (regardless of its form) which is intended to create a security interest in personal property or fixtures including goods, documents, instruments, general intangibles, chattel paper, accounts or contract rights; and also

(b) to any sale of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper.

(2) This article applies to security interests created by contract including pledge, assignment, chattel mortgage, chattel trust, trust deed, factor's lien equipment trust, conditional sale, trust receipt, other lien or title retention contract and lease or consignment intended as security. This article does not apply to statutory liens except as provided in section 28:9-310.

(3) The application of this article to a security interest in a secured obligation is not affected by the fact that the obligation is itself secured by a transaction or interest to which this article does not apply. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 746, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-103. Accounts, contract rights, general intangibles and equipment relating to another jurisdiction; and incoming goods already subject to a security interest.

(1) If the office where the assignor of accounts or contract rights keep his records concerning them is in the District, the validity and perfection of a security interest therein and the possibility and effect of proper filing is governed by this article; otherwise by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction where such office is located.

(2) If the chief place of business of a debtor is in the District, this article governs the validity and perfection of a security interest and the possibility and effect of proper filing with regard to general intangibles or with regard to goods of a type which are normally used in more than one jurisdiction (such as automotive equipment, rolling stock, airplanes, road building equipment, commercial harvesting equipment, construction machinery and the like) if such goods are classified as equipment or classified as inventory by reason of their being leased by the debtor to others. Otherwise, the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction where such chief place of business is located shall govern. If the chief place of business is located in a jurisdiction which does not provide for perfection of the security interest by filing or recording in that jurisdiction, then the security interest may be perfected by filing in the District. For the purpose of determining the validity and perfection of a security interest in an airplane, the chief place of business of a debtor who is a foreign air carrier under the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended, is the designated office of the agent upon whom service of process may be made on behalf of the debtor.

(3) If personal property other than that governed by subsections (1) and (2) is already subject to a security interest when it is brought into the District, the validity of the security interest in the District is to be determined by the law (including the conflict of laws rules) of the jurisdiction where the property was when the security interest attached. However, if the parties to the transaction understood at the time that the security interest attached that the property would be kept in the District and it was brought into the District within 30 days after the security interest attached for purposes other than transportation through the District, then the validity of the security interest in the District is to be determined by the law of the District. If the security interest was already perfected under the law of the jurisdiction where the property was when the security interest attached and before being brought into the District, the security interest continues perfected in the District for four months and also thereafter if within the four month period it is perfected in the District. The security interest may also be perfected in the District after the expiration of the four month period; in such case perfection dates from the time of perfection in the District. If the security interest was not perfected under the law of the jurisdiction where the property was when the security interest attached and before being brought into the District, it may be perfected in the District; in such case perfection dates from the time of perfection in the District.

(4) Notwithstanding subsections (2) and (3), if personal property is covered by a certificate of title issued under a statute of the District or any other jurisdiction which requires indication on a certificate of title of any security interest in the property as a condition of perfection, then the perfection is governed by the law of the jurisdiction which issued the certificate.

(5) Notwithstanding subsection (1) and section 28:9-302, if the office where the assignor of accounts or contracts rights keeps his records concerning them is not located in a jurisdiction which is a part of the United States, its territories or possessions, and the accounts or contract rights are within the jurisdiction of the District or the transaction which creates the security interest otherwise bears an appropriate relation to the District, this article governs the validity and perfection of the security interest and the security interest may only be perfected by notification to the account debtor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 747, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-104. Transactions excluded from article.

This article does not apply

(a) to a security interest subject to any statute of the United States such as the Ship Mortgage Act, 1920, to the extent that such statute governs the rights of parties to and third parties affected by transactions in particular types of property; or

(b) to a landlord's lien; or

(c) to a lien given by statute or other rule of law for services or materials except as provided in section 28:9-310 on priority of such liens; or

(d) to a transfer of a claim for wages, salary or other compensation of an employee; or

(e) to an equipment trust covering railway rolling stock; or

(f) to a sale of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper as part of a sale of the business out of which they arose, or an assignment of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper which is for the purpose of collection only, or a transfer of a contract right to an assignee who is also to do the performance under the contract; or

(g) to a transfer of an interest or claim in or under any policy of insurance; or

(h) to a right represented by a judgment; or

(i) to any right of set-off; or

(j) except to the extent that provision is made for fixtures in section 28:9-313, to the creation or transfer of an interest in or lien on real estate, including a lease or rents thereunder; or

(k) to a transfer in whole or in part of any of the following: any claim arising out of tort; any deposit, savings, passbook or like account maintained with a bank, savings and loan association, credit union or like organization.

§ 28:9-105. Definitions and index of definitions.

(1) In this article unless the context otherwise requires:

(a) "Account debtor" means the person who is obligated on an account, chattel paper, contract right or general intangible;

(b) "Chattel paper" means a writing or writings which evidence both a monetary obligation and a security interest in or a lease of specific goods. When a transaction is evidenced both by such a security agreement or a lease and by an instrument or a series of instruments, the group of writings taken together constitutes chattel paper;

(c) "Collateral" means the property subject to a security interest, and includes accounts, contract rights and chattel paper which have been sold;

(d) "Debtor" means the person who owes payment or other performance of the obligation secured, whether or not he owns or has rights in the collateral, and includes the seller of accounts, contract rights or chattel paper. Where the debtor and the owner of the collateral are not the same person, the term "debtor" means the owner of the collateral in any provision of the article dealing with the collateral, the obligor in any provision dealing with the obligation, and may include both where the context so requires;

(e) "Document" means document of title as defined in the general definitions of article 1 (section 28:1-201);

(f) "Goods" includes all things which are movable at the time the security interest attaches or which are fixtures (section 28:9-313), but does not include money, documents, instruments, accounts, chattel paper, general intangibles, contract rights and other things in action. "Goods" also include the unborn young of animals and growing crops;

(g) "Instrument" means a negotiable instrument (defined in section 28:3-104), or a security (defined in section 28:8-102) or any other writing which evidences a right to the payment of money and is not itself a security agreement or lease and is of a type which is in ordinary course of business transferred by delivery with any necessary indorsement or assignment;

(h) "Security agreement" means an agreement which creates or provides for a security interest;

(i) "Secured party" means a lender, seller or other person in whose favor there is a security interest, including a person to whom accounts, contract rights or chattel paper have been sold. When the holders of obligations issued under an indenture of trust, equipment trust agreement or the like are represented by a trustee or other person, the representative is the secured party.

§ 28:9-106. Definitions: "account"; "contract right"; "general intangibles".

"Account" means any right to payment for goods sold or leased or for services rendered which is not evidenced by an instrument or chattel paper. "Contract right" means any right to payment under a contract not yet earned by performance and not evidenced by an instrument or chattel paper. "General intangibles" means any personal property (including things in action) other than goods, accounts, contract rights, chattel paper, documents and instruments. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 750, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-107. Definitions: "purchase money security interest".

A security interest is a "purchase money security interest" to the extent that it is

(a) taken or retained by the seller of the collateral to secure all or part of its price; or

(b) taken by a person who by making advances or incurring an obligation gives value to enable the debtor to acquire rights in or the use of collateral if such value is in fact so used.

§ 28:9-108. When after-acquired collateral not security for antecedent debt.

Where a secured party makes an advance, incurs an obligation, releases a perfected security interest, or otherwise gives new value which is to be secured in whole or in part by after-acquired property his security interest in the after-acquired collateral shall be deemed to be taken for new value and not as security for an antecedent debt if the debtor acquires his rights in such collateral either in the ordinary course of his business or under a contract of purchase made pursuant to the security agreement within a reasonable time after new value is given. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 750, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-109. Classification of goods; "consumer goods"; "equipment"; "farm products"; "inventory".

Goods are

(1) "consumer goods" if they are used or bought for use primarily for personal, family or household purposes;

(2) "equipment" if they are used or bought for use primarily in business (including farming or a profession) or by a debtor who is a non-profit organization or a governmental subdivision or agency or if the goods are not included in the definitions of inventory, farm products or consumer goods;

(3) "farm products" if they are crops or live-stock or supplies used or produced in farming operations or if they are products of crops or livestock in their unmanufactured states (such as ginned cotton, woolclip, maple syrup, milk and eggs), and if they are in the possession of a debtor engaged in raising, fattening, grazing or other farming operations. If goods are farm products they are neither equipment nor inventory;

(4) "inventory" if they are held by a person who holds them for sale or lease or to be furnished under contracts of service or if he has so furnished them, or if they are raw materials, work in process or materials used or consumed in a business. Inventory of a person is not to be classified as his equipment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 750, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-110. Sufficiency of description.

For the purposes of this article any description of personal property or real estate is sufficient whether or not it is specific if it reasonably identifies what is described. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 750, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-111. Applicability of bulk transfer laws.

The creation of a security interest is not a bulk transfer under article 6 (see section 28:6-103). (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 750, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-112. Where collateral is not owned by debtor.

Unless otherwise agreed, when a secured party knows that collateral is owned by a person who is not the debtor, the owner of the collateral is entitled to receive from the secured party any surplus under section 28:9-502(2) or under section 28:9-504(1), and is not liable for the debt or for any deficiency after resale, and he has the same right as the debtor.

(a) to receive statements under section 28:9-208;

(b) to receive notice of and to object to a secured party's proposal to retain the collateral in satisfaction of the indebtedness under section 28:9-505;

(c) to redeem the collateral under section 28:9-506;

(d) to obtain injunctive or other relief under section 28:9-507(1); and

(e) to recover losses caused to him under section 28:9-208(2).

§ 28:9-113. Security interests arising under article on sales.

A security interest arising solely under the article on sales (article 2) is subject to the provisions of this article except that to the extent that and so long as the debtor does not have or does not lawfully obtain possession of the goods

(a) no security agreement is necessary to make the security interest enforceable; and

(b) no filing is required to perfect the security interest; and

(c) the rights of the secured party on default by the debtor are governed by the article on sales (article 2).
(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 751, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 2.—VALIDITY OF SECURITY AGREEMENT AND RIGHTS OF PARTIES THERETO

§ 28:9-201. General validity of security agreement.

Except as otherwise provided by this title a security agreement is effective according to its terms between the parties, against purchasers of the collateral and against creditors. Nothing in this article validates any charge or practice illegal under any statute or regulation thereunder governing usury, small loans, retail installment sales, or the like, or extends the application of any such statute or regulation to any transaction not otherwise subject thereto. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 751, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-202. Title to collateral immaterial.

Each provision of this article with regard to rights, obligations and remedies applies whether title to collateral is in the secured party or in the debtor. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 751, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-203. Enforceability of security interest; proceeds, formal requisites.

(1) Subject to the provisions of section 28:4-208 on the security interest of a collecting bank and section 28:9-113 on a security interest arising under the article on sales, a security interest is not enforceable against the debtor or third parties unless

(a) the collateral is in the possession of the secured party; or

(b) the debtor has signed a security agreement which contains a description of the collateral and in addition, when the security interest covers crops or oil, gas or minerals to be extracted or timber to be cut, a description of the land concerned. In describing collateral, the word "proceeds" is sufficient without further description to cover proceeds of any character.

(2) A transaction, although subject to this article, is also subject to chapter 20 of Title 2, relating to pawnbrokers, chapter 6 of Title 26, relating to money lenders, chapter 7 of Title 40, relating to liens on motor vehicles, and chapter 9 of Title 40, relating to installment sales of motor vehicles, and in the case of conflict between the provisions of this article and any such statute, the provisions of such statute control. Failure to comply with any applicable statute has only the effect which is specified therein. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 751, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-204. When security interest attaches; after-acquired property; future advances.

(1) A security interest cannot attach until there is agreement (subsection (3) of section 28:1-201) that it attach and value is given and the debtor has rights in the collateral. It attaches as soon as all of the events in the preceding sentence have taken place unless explicit agreement postpones the time of attaching.

(2) For the purposes of this section the debtor has no rights

(a) in crops until they are planted or otherwise become growing crops, in the young of livestock until they are conceived;

(b) in fish until caught, in oil, gas or minerals until they are extracted, in timber until it is cut;

(c) in a contract right until the contract has been made;

(d) in an account until it comes into existence.

(3) Except as provided in subsection (4) a security agreement may provide that collateral, whenever acquired, shall secure all obligations covered by the security agreement.

(4) No security interest attaches under an after-acquired property clause

(a) to crops which become such more than one year after the security agreement is executed except that a security interest in crops which is given in conjunction with a lease or a land purchase or improvement transaction evidenced by a contract, mortgage or deed of trust may if so agreed attach to crops to be grown on the land concerned during the period of such real estate transaction;

(b) to consumer goods other than accessions (section 28:9-314) when given as additional security unless the debtor acquires rights in them within ten days after the secured party gives value.

(5) Obligations covered by a security agreement may include future advances or other value whether or not the advances or value are given pursuant to commitment. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 752, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-205. Use or disposition of collateral without accounting permissible.

A security interest is not invalid or fraudulent against creditors by reason of liberty in the debtor to use, commingle or dispose of all or part of the collateral (including returned or repossessed goods) or to collect or compromise accounts, contract rights or chattel paper, or to accept the return of goods or make repossessions, or to use, commingle or dispose of proceeds, or by reason of the failure of the secured party to require the debtor to account for proceeds or replace collateral. This section does not relax the requirements of possession where perfection of a security interest depends upon possession of the collateral by the secured party or by a bailee. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 752, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-206. Agreement not to assert defenses against assignee; modification of sales warranties where security agreement exists.

(1) Subject to any statute or decision which establishes a different rule for buyers or lessees of consumer goods, an agreement by a buyer or lessee that he will not assert against an assignee any claim or defense which he may have against the seller or lessor is enforceable by an assignee who takes his assignment for value, in good faith and without notice of a claim or defense, except as to defenses of a type which may be asserted against a holder in due course of a negotiable instrument under the article on commercial paper (article 3). A buyer who as part of one transaction signs both a negotiable instrument and a security agreement makes such an agreement.

(2) When a seller retains a purchase money security interest in goods the article on sales (article 2) governs the sale and any disclaimer, limitation or modification of the seller's warranties. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 752, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-207. Rights and duties when collateral is in secured party's possession.

(1) A secured party must use reasonable care in the custody and preservation of collateral in his possession. In the case of an instrument or chattel paper reasonable care includes taking necessary steps to preserve rights against prior parties unless otherwise agreed.

(2) Unless otherwise agreed, when collateral is in the secured party's possession

(a) reasonable expenses (including the cost of any insurance and payment of taxes or other charges) incurred in the custody, preservation, use or operation of the collateral are chargeable to the debtor and are secured by the collateral;

(b) the risk of accidental loss or damage is on the debtor to the extent of any deficiency in any effective insurance coverage;

(c) the secured party may hold as additional security any increase or profits (except money) received from the collateral, but money so received, unless remitted to the debtor, shall be applied in reduction of the secured obligation;

(d) the secured party must keep the collateral identifiable but fungible collateral may be commingled;

(e) the secured party may repledge the collateral upon terms which do not impair the debtor's right to redeem it.

(3) A secured party is liable for any loss caused by his failure to meet any obligation imposed by the preceding subsections but does not lose his security interest.

(4) A secured party may use or operate the collateral for the purpose of preserving the collateral or its value or pursuant to the order of a court of appropriate jurisdiction or, except in the case of consumer goods, in the manner and to the extent provided in the security agreement. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 753, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-208. Request for statement of account or list of collateral.

(1) A debtor may sign a statement indicating what he believes to be the aggregate amount of unpaid indebtedness as of a specified date and may send it to the secured party with a request that the statement be approved or corrected and returned to the debtor. When the security agreement or any other record kept by the secured party identifies the collateral a debtor may similarly request the secured party to approve or correct a list of the collateral.

(2) The secured party must comply with such a request within two weeks after receipt by sending a written correction or approval. If the secured party claims a security interest in all of a particular type of collateral owned by the debtor he may indicate that fact in his reply and need not approve or correct an itemized list of such collateral. If the secured party without reasonable excuse fails to comply he is liable for any loss caused to the debtor thereby; and if the debtor has properly included in his request a good faith statement of the obligation or a list of the collateral or both the secured party may claim a security interest only as shown in the statement against persons misled by his failure to comply. If he no longer has an interest in the obligation or collateral at the time the request is received he must A successor in interest is not subject to this section until a request is received by him.

(3) A debtor is entitled to such a statement once every six months without charge. The secured party disclose the name and address of any successor in interest known to him and he is liable for any loss caused to the debtor as a result of failure to disclose. may require payment of a charge not exceeding $10 for each additional statement furnished. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 753, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 3.—RIGHTS OF THIRD PARTIES; PERFECTED AND UNPERFECTED SECURITY INTERESTS; RULES OF PRIORITY

§ 28:9-301. Persons who take priority over unperfected security interests; "lien creditor".

(1) Except as otherwise provided in subsection (2), an unperfected security interest is subordinate to the rights of

(a) persons entitled to priority under section 28:9-312;

(b) a person who becomes a lien creditor without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected;

(c) in the case of goods, instruments, documents, and chattel paper, a person who is not a secured party and who is a transferee in bulk or other buyer not in ordinary course of business to the extent that he gives value and receives delivery of the collateral without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected;

(d) in the case of accounts, contract rights, and general intangibles, a person who is not a secured party and who is a transferee to the extent that he gives value without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected.

(2) If the secured party files with respect to a purchase money security interest before or within ten days after the collateral comes into possession of the debtor, he takes priority over the rights of a transferee in bulk or of a lien creditor which arise between the time the security interest attaches and the time of filing.

(3) A "lien creditor" means a creditor who has acquired a lien on the property involved by attachment, levy or the like and includes an assignee for benefit of creditors from the time of assignment, and a trustee in bankruptcy from the date of the filing of the petition or a receiver in equity from the time of appointment. Unless all the creditors represented had knowledge of the security interest such a representative of creditors is a lien creditor without knowledge even though he personally has knowledge of the security interest. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 754, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-302. When filing is required to perfect security interest; security interests to which filing provisions of this article do not apply.

(1) A financing statement must be filed to perfect all security interests except the following:

(a) a security interest in collateral in possession of the secured party under section 28:9-305;

(b) a security interest temporarily perfected in instruments or documents without delivery under section 28:9-304 or in proceeds for a 10 day period under section 28:9-306;

(c) a purchase money security interest in farm equipment having a purchase price not in excess of $2,500; but filing is required for a fixture under section 28:9-313 or for a motor vehicle required to be licensed;

(d) a purchase money security interest in consumer goods; but filing is required for a fixture under section 28:9-313 or for a motor vehicle required to be licensed;

(e) an assignment of accounts or contract rights which does not alone or in conjunction with other assignments to the same assignee transfer a significant part of the outstanding accounts or contract rights of the assignor;

(f) a security interest of a collecting bank (section 28:4-208) or arising under the article on sales (see section 28:9-113) or covered in subsection (3) of this section.

(2) If a secured party assigns a perfected security interest, no filing under this article is required in order to continue the perfected status of the security interest against creditors of and transferees from the original debtor.

(3) The filing provisions of this article do not apply to a security interest properly subject to a statute

(a) of the United States which provides for a national registration or filing of all security interests in such property; or

(b) of the United States pertaining to the District which provides for central filing of security interests in a motor vehicle or trailer which is not inventory held for sale for which a certificate of title is required to be issued under the provisions of chapter 7 of Title 40.

(4) A security interest in property covered by a statute described in subsection (3) can be perfected only by registration or filing under that statute or by indication of the security interest on a certificate of title or a duplicate thereof by a public official. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 754, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-303. When security interest is perfected; continuity of perfection.

(1) A security interest is perfected when it has attached and when all of the applicable steps required for perfection have been taken. Such steps are specified in sections 28:9-302, 28:9-304, 28:9-305, and 28:9-306. If such steps are taken before the security interest attaches, it is perfected at the time when it attaches.

(2) If a security interest is originally perfected in any way permitted under this article and is subsequently perfected in some other way under this article, without an intermediate period when it was unperfected, the security interest shall be deemed to be perfected continuously for the purposes of this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 755, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-304. Perfection of security interest in instruments, documents, and goods covered by documents; perfection by permissive filing; temporary perfection without filing or transfer of possession.

(1) A security interest in chattel paper or negotiable documents may be perfected by filing. A security interest in instruments (other than instruments which constitute part of chattel paper) can be perfected only by the secured party's taking possession, except as provided in subsections (4) and (5).

(2) During the period that goods are in the possession of the issuer of a negotiable document therefor, a security interest in the goods is perfected by perfecting a security interest in the document, and any security interest in the goods otherwise perfected during such period is subject thereto.

(3) A security interest in goods in the possession of a bailee other than one who has issued a negotiable document therefor is perfected by issuance of a document in the name of the secured party or by the bailee's receipt of notification of the secured party's interest or by filing as to the goods.

(4) A security interest in instruments or negotiable documents is perfected without filing or the taking of possession for a period of 21 days from the time it attaches to the extent that it arises for new value given under a written security agreement.

(5) A security interest remains perfected for a period of 21 days without filing where a secured party having a perfected security interest in an instrument, a negotiable document or goods in possession of a bailee other than one who has issued a negotiable document therefor

(a) makes available to the debtor the goods or documents representing the goods for the purpose of ultimate sale or exchange or for the purpose of loading, unloading, storing, shipping, transshipping, manufacturing, processing or otherwise dealing with them in a manner preliminary to their sale or exchange; or

(b) delivers the instrument to the debtor for the purpose of ultimate sale or exchange or of presentation, collection, renewal or registration of transfer.

(6) After the 21 day period in subsections (4) and (5) perfection depends upon compliance with applicable provisions of this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 755, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-305. When possession by secured party perfects security interest without filing.

A security interest in letters of credit and advices of credit (subsection (2)(a) of section 28:5-116), goods, instruments, negotiable documents or chattel paper may be perfected by the secured party's taking possession of the collateral. If such collateral other than goods covered by a negotiable document is held by a bailee, the secured party is deemed to have possession from the time the bailee receives notification of the secured party's interest. A security interest is perfected by possession from the time possession is taken without relation back and continues only so long as possession is retained, unless otherwise specified in this article. The security interest may be otherwise perfected as provided in this article before or after the period of possession by the secured party. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 756, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-306. "Proceeds"; secured party's rights on disposition of collateral.

(1) "Proceeds" includes whatever is received when collateral or proceeds is sold, exchanged, collected or otherwise disposed of. The term also includes the account arising when the right to payment is earned under a contract right. Money, checks and the like are "cash proceeds". All other proceeds are "non-cash proceeds".

(2) Except where this article otherwise provides, a security interest continues in collateral notwithstanding sale, exchange or other disposition thereof by the debtor unless his action was authorized by the secured party in the security agreement or otherwise, and also continues in any identifiable proceeds including collections received by the debtor.

(3) The security interest in proceeds is a continuously perfected security interest if the interest in the original collateral was perfected but it ceases to be a perfected security interest and becomes unperfected ten days after receipt of the proceeds by the debtor unless

(a) a filed financing statement covering the original collateral also covers proceeds; or

(b) the security interest in the proceeds is perfected before the expiration of the ten day period.

(4) In the event of insolvency proceedings instituted by or against a debtor, a secured party with a perfected security interest in proceeds has a perfected security interest.

(a) in identifiable non-cash proceeds;

(b) in identifiable cash proceeds in the form of money which is not commingled with other money or deposited in a bank account prior to the insolvency proceedings;

(c) in identifiable cash proceeds in the form of checks and the like which are not deposited in a bank account prior to the insolvency proceedings; and

(d) in all cash and bank accounts of the debtor, if other cash proceeds have been commingled or deposited in a bank account, but the perfected security interest under this paragraph (d) is

(i) subject to any right of set-off; and

(ii) limited to an amount not greater than the amount of any cash proceeds received by the debtor within ten days before the institution of the insolvency proceedings and commingled or deposited in a bank account prior to the insolvency proceedings less the amount of cash proceeds received by the debtor and paid over to the secured party during the ten day period.

(5) If a sale of goods results in an account or chattel paper which is transferred by the seller to a secured party, and if the goods are returned to or are repossessed by the seller or the secured party, the following rules determine priorities:

(a) If the goods were collateral at the time of sale for an indebtedness of the seller which is still unpaid, the original security interest attaches again to the goods and continues as a perfected security interest if it was perfected at the time when the goods were sold. If the security interest was originally perfected by a filing which is still effective, nothing further is required to continue the perfected status; in any other case, the secured party must take possession of the returned or repossessed goods or must file.

(b) An unpaid transferee of the chattel paper has a security interest in the goods against the transferor. Such security interest is prior to a security interest asserted under paragraph (a) to the extent that the transferee of the chattel paper was entitled to priority under section 28:9-308.

(c) An unpaid transferee of the account has a security interest in the goods against the transferor. Such security interest is subordinate to a security interest asserted under paragraph (a).

(d) A security interest of an unpaid transferee asserted under paragraph (b) or (c) must be perfected for protection against creditors of the transferor and purchasers of the returned or repossessed goods.

(Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 756, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-307. Protection of buyers of goods.

(1) A buyer in ordinary course of business (subsection (9) of section 28:1-201) other than a person buying farm products from a person engaged in farming operations takes free of a security interest created by his seller even though the security interest is perfected and even though the buyer knows of its existence.

(2) In the case of consumer goods and in the case of farm equipment having an original purchase price not in excess of $2,500 (other than fixtures, see section 28:9-313), a buyer takes free of a security interest even though perfected if he buys without knowledge of the security interest, for value and for his own personal, family or household purposes or his own farming operations unless prior to the purchase the secured party has filed a financing statement covering such goods. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 757, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-308. Purchase of chattel paper and non-negotiable instruments.

A purchaser of chattel paper or a non-negotiable instrument who gives new value and takes possession of it in the ordinary course of his business and without knowledge that the specific paper or instrument is subject to a security interest has priority over a security interest which is perfected under section 28:9-304 (permissive filing and temporary perfection). A purchaser of chattel paper who gives new value and takes possession of it in the ordinary course of his business has priority over a security interest in chattel paper which is claimed merely as proceeds of inventory subject to a security interest (section 28:9-306), even though he knows that the specific paper is subject to the security interest. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-309. Protection of purchasers of instruments and documents.

Nothing in this article limits the rights of a holder in due course of a negotiable instrument (section 28:3-302) or a holder to whom a negotiable document of title has been duly negotiated (section 28:7-501) or a bona fide purchaser of a security (section 28:8-301) and such holders or purchasers take priority over an earlier security interest even though perfected. Filing under this article does not constitute notice of the security interest to such holders or purchasers. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-310. Priority of certain liens arising by operation of law.

When a person in the ordinary course of his business furnishes services or materials with respect to goods subject to a security interest, a lien upon goods in the possession of such person given by statute or rule of law for such materials or services takes priority over a perfected security interest unless the lien is statutory and the statute expressly provides otherwise. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-311. Alienability of debtor's rights: judicial process.

The debtor's rights in collateral may be voluntarily or involuntarily transferred (by way of sale, creation of a security interest, attachment, levy, garnishment or other judicial process) notwithstanding a provision in the security agreement prohibiting any transfer or making the transfer constitute a default. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-312. Priorities among conflicting security interests in the same collateral.

(1) The rules of priority stated in the following sections shall govern where applicable: section 28:4-208 with respect to the security interest of collecting banks in items being collected, accompanying documents and proceeds; section 28:9-301 on certain priorities; section 28:9-304 on goods covered by documents; section 28:9-306 on proceeds and repossessions; section 28:9-307 on buyers of goods; section 28:9-308 on possessory against non-possessory interests in chattel paper or non-negotiable instruments; section 28:9-309 on security interests in negotiable instruments, documents or securities; section 28:9-310 on priorities between perfected security interests and liens by operation of law; section 28:9-313 on security interests in fixtures as against interests in real estate; section 28:9-314 on security interests in accessions as against interest in goods; section 28:9-315 on conflicting security interests where goods lose their identity or become part of a product; and section 28:9-316 on contractual subordination.

(2) A perfected security interest in crops for new value given to enable the debtor to produce the crops during the production season and given not more than three months before the crops become growing crops by planting or otherwise takes priority over an earlier perfected security interest to the extent that such earlier interest secures obligations due more than six months before the crops become growing crops by planting or otherwise, even though the person giving new value had knowledge of the earlier security interest.

(3) A purchase money security interest in inventory collateral has priority over a conflicting security interest in the same collateral if

(a) the purchase money security interest is perfected at the time the debtor receives possession of the collateral; and

(b) any secured party whose security interest is known to the holder of the purchase money security interest or who, prior to the date of the filing made by the holder of the purchase money security interest, had filed a financing statement covering the same items or type of inventory, has received notification of the purchase money security interest before the debtor receives possession of the collateral covered by the purchase money security interest; and

(c) such notification states that the person giving the notice has or expects to acquire a purchase money security interest in inventory of the debtor, describing such inventory by item or type.

(4) A purchase money security interest in collateral other than inventory has priority over a conflicting security interest in the same collateral if the purchase money security interest is perfected at the time the debtor receives possession of the collateral or within ten days thereafter.

(5) In all cases not governed by other rules stated in this section (including cases of purchase money security interests which do not qualify for the special priorities set forth in subsections (3) and (4) of this section), priority between conflicting security interests in the same collateral shall be determined as follows:

(a) in the order of filing if both are perfected by filing, regardless of which security interest attached first under section 28:9-204(1) and whether it attached before or after filing;

(b) in the order of perfection unless both are perfected by filing, regardless of which security interest attached first under section 28:9-204(1) and, in the case of a filed security interest, whether it attached before or after filing; and

(c) in the order of attachment under section 28:9-204(1) so long as neither is perfected.

(6) For the purpose of the priority rules of the immediately preceding subsection, a continuously perfected security interest shall be treated at all times as if perfected by filing if it was originally so perfected and it shall be treated at all times as if perfected otherwise than by filing if it was originally perfected otherwise than by filing. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 758, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-313. Priority of security interests in fixtures.

(1) The rules of this section do not apply to goods incorporated into a structure in the manner of lumber, bricks, tile, cement, glass, metal work and the like and no security interest in them exists under this article unless the structure remains personal property under applicable law. The law of the District other than this subtitle determines whether and when other goods becomes fixtures. This subtitle does not prevent creation of an encumbrance upon fixtures or real estate pursuant to the law applicable to real estate.

(2) A security interest which attaches to goods before they become fixtures takes priority as to the goods over the claims of all persons who have an interest in the real estate except as stated in subsection (4).

(3) A security interest which attaches to goods after they become fixtures is valid against all persons subsequently acquiring interests in the real estate except as stated in subsection (4) but is invalid against any person with an interest in the real estate at the time the security interest attaches to the goods who has not in writing consented to the security interests or disclaimed an interest in the goods as fixtures.

(4) The security interests described in subsections (2) and (3) do not take priority over

(a) a subsequent purchaser for value of any interest in the real estate; or

(b) a creditor with a lien on the real estate subsequently obtained by judicial proceedings; or

(c) a creditor with a prior encumbrance of record on the real estate to the extent that he makes subsequent advances if the subsequent purchase is made, the lien by judicial proceedings is obtained, or the subsequent advance under the prior encumbrance is made or contracted for without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected. A purchaser of the real estate at a foreclosure sale other than an encumbrancer purchasing at his own foreclosure sale is a subsequent purchaser within this section.

(5) When under subsections (2) or (3) and (4) a secured party has priority over the claims of all persons who have interests in the real estate, he may, on default, subject to the provisions of part 5, remove his collateral from the real estate but he must reimburse any encumbrancer or owner of the real estate who is not the debtor and who has not otherwise agreed for the cost of repair of any physical injury, but not for any diminution in value of the real estate caused by the absence of the goods removed or by any necessity for replacing them. A person entitled to reimbursement may refuse permission to remove until the secured party gives adequate security for the performance of this obligation. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 759, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-314. Accessions.

(1) A security interest in goods which attaches before they are installed in or affixed to other goods takes priority as to the goods installed or affixed (called in this section "accessions") over the claims of all persons to the whole except as stated in subsection (3) and subject to section 28:9-315(1).

(2) A security interest which attaches to goods after they become part of a whole is valid against all persons subsequently acquiring interests in the whole except as stated in subsection (3) but is invalid against any person with an interest in the whole at the time the security interest attaches to the goods who has not in writing consented to the security interest or disclaimed an interest in the goods as part of the whole.

(3) The security interests described in subsections (1) and (2) do not take priority over

(a) a subsequent purchaser for value of any interest in the whole; or

(b) a creditor with a lien on the whole subsequently obtained by judicial proceedings; or

(c) a creditor with a prior perfected security interest in the whole to the extent that he makes subsequent advances if the subsequent purchase is made, the lien by judicial proceedings obtained or the subsequent advance under the prior perfected security interest is made or contracted for without knowledge of the security interest and before it is perfected. A purchaser of the whole at a foreclosure sale other than the holder of a perfected security interest purchasing at his own foreclosure sale is a subsequent purchaser within this section.

(4) When under subsections (1) or (2) and (3) a secured party has an interest in accessions which has priority over the claims of all persons who have interests in the whole, he may on default subject to the provisions of part 5 remove his collateral from the whole but he must reimburse any encumbrancer or owner of the whole who is not the debtor and who has not otherwise agreed for the cost of repair of any physical injury but not for any diminution in value of the whole caused by the absence of the goods removed or by any necessity for replacing them. A person entitled to reimbursement may refuse permission to remove until the secured party gives adequate security for the performance of this obligation. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 760, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-315. Priority when goods are commingled or processed.

(1) If a security interest in goods was perfected and subsequently the goods or a part thereof have become part of a product or mass, the security interest continues in the product or mass if

(a) the goods are so manufactured, processed, assembled, or commingled that their identity is lost in the product or mass; or

(b) a financing statement covering the original goods also covers the product into which the goods have been manufactured, processed or assembled. In a case to which paragraph (b) applies, no separate security interest in that part of the original goods which has been manufactured, processed or assembled into the product may be claimed under section 28:9-314.

(2) When under subsection (1) more than one security interest attaches to the product or mass, they rank equally according to the ratio that the cost of the goods to which each interest originally attached bears to the cost of the total product or mass. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-316. Priority subject to subordination.

Nothing in this article prevents subordination by agreement by any person entitled to priority. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-317. Secured party not obligated on contract of debtor.

The mere existence of a security interest or authority given to the debtor to dispose of or use collateral does not impose contract or tort liability upon the secured party for the debtor's acts or omissions. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-318. Defenses against assignee; modification of contract after notification of assignment; term prohibiting assignment ineffective; identification and proof of assignment.

(1) Unless an account debtor has made an enforceable agreement not to assert defenses or claims arising out of a sale as provided in section 28:9-206 the rights of an assignee are subject to

(a) all the terms of the contract between the account debtor and assignor and any defense or claim arising therefrom; and

(b) any other defense or claim of the account debtor against the assignor which accrues before the account debtor receives notification of the assignment.

(2) So far as the right to payment under an assigned contract right has not already become an account, and notwithstanding notification of the assignment, any modification of or substitution for the contract made in good faith and in accordance with reasonable commercial standards is effective against an assignee unless the account debtor has otherwise agreed but the assignee acquires corresponding rights under the modified or substituted contract. The assignment may provide that such modification or substitution is a breach by the assignor.

(3) The account debtor is authorized to pay the assignor until the account debtor receives notification that the account has been assigned and that payment is to be made to the assignee. A notification which does not reasonably identify the rights assigned is ineffective. If requested by the account debtor, the assignee must seasonably furnish reasonable proof that the assignment has been made and unless he does so the account debtor may pay the assignor.

(4) A term in any contract between an account debtor and an assignor which prohibits assignment of an account or contract right to which they are parties is ineffective. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 761, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Defenses against assignee

Assignee of chose in action takes it subject to all defenses, including setoffs, existing at time of assignment.

PART 4.—FILING

§ 28:9-401. Place of filing; erroneous filing; removal of collateral.

(1) The proper place to file in order to perfect a security interest is, in all cases, in the office of the Recorder of Deeds of the District. In this article, "filing officer" means said Recorder.

(2) A filing which is made in good faith in an improper place is nevertheless effective with regard to any collateral as to which the filing complied with the requirements of this article and is also effective with regard to collateral covered by the financing statement against any person who has knowledge of the contents of such financing statement.

(3) A filing which is made in the proper place continues effective even though the debtor's residence or place of business or the location of the collateral or its use, whichever controlled the original filing, is thereafter changed.

(4) If collateral is brought into the District from another jurisdiction, the rules stated in section 28:9-103 determine whether filing is necessary in the District. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 762, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-402. Formal requisites of financing statement; amendments.

(1) A financing statement is sufficient if it is signed by the debtor and the secured party, gives an address of the secured party from which information concerning the security interest may be obtained, gives a mailing address of the debtor and contains a statement indicating the types, or describing the items, of collateral. A financing statement may be filed before a security agreement is made or a security interest otherwise attaches. When the financing statement covers crops growing or to be grown or goods which are or are to become fixtures, the statement must also contain a description of the real estate concerned. A copy of the security agreement is sufficient as a financing statement if it contains the above information and is signed by both parties.

(2) A financing statement which otherwise complies with subsection (1) is sufficient although it is signed only by the secured party when it is filed to perfect a security interest in

(a) collateral already subject to a security interest in another jurisdiction when it is brought into the District. Such a financing statement must state that the collateral was brought into the District under such circumstances.

(b) proceeds under section 28:9-306 if the security interest in the original collateral was perfected. Such a financing statement must describe the original collateral.

(3) A form substantially as follows is sufficient to comply with subsection (1):

Name of debtor (or assignor) _____
 Address _____
 Name of secured party (or assignee) _____
 Address _____

1. This financing statement covers the following (or items) of property:

(Describe) _____

2. (If collateral is crops) The above described crops are growing or are to be grown on:

(Describe Real Estate) _____

3. (If collateral is goods which are or are to become fixtures) The above described goods are affixed or to be affixed to:

(Describe Real Estate) _____

4. (If proceeds or products of collateral are claimed) Proceeds—Products of the collateral are also covered.

Signature of Debtor (or Assignor) _____

Signature of Secured Party (or Assignee) _____

(4) The term "financing statement" as used in this article means the original financing statement and any amendments but if any amendment adds collateral, it is effective as to the added collateral only from the filing date of the amendment.

(5) A financing statement substantially complying with the requirements of this section is effective even though it contains minor errors which are not seriously misleading. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 762, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-403. What constitutes filing; duration of filing; effect of lapsed filing; duties of filing officer.

(1) Presentation for filing of a financing statement and tender of the filing fee or acceptance of the statement by the filing officer constitutes filing under this article.

(2) A filed financing statement which states a maturity date of the obligation secured of five years or less is effective until such maturity date and thereafter for a period of sixty days. Any other filed financing statement is effective for a period of five years from the date of filing. The effectiveness of a filed financing statement lapses on the expiration of such sixty day period after a stated maturity date or on the expiration of such five year period, as the case may be, unless a continuation statement is filed prior to the lapse. Upon such lapse the security interest becomes unperfected. A filed financing statement which states that the obligation secured is payable on demand is effective for five years from the date of filing.

(3) A continuation statement may be filed by the secured party (i) within six months before and sixty days after a stated maturity date of five years or less, and (ii) otherwise within six months prior to the expiration of the five year period specified in subsection (2). Any such continuation statement must be signed by the secured party, identify the original statement by file number and state that the original statement is still effective. Upon timely filing of the continuation statement, the effectiveness of the original statement is continued for five years after the last date to which the filing was effective whereupon it lapses in the same manner as provided in subsection (2) unless another continuation statement is filed prior to such lapse. Succeeding continuation statements may be filed in the same manner to continue the effectiveness of the original statement. Unless a statute on disposition of public records provides otherwise, the filing officer may remove a lapsed statement from the files and destroy it.

(4) A filing officer shall mark each statement with a consecutive file number and with the date and hour of filing and shall hold the statement for public inspection. In addition the filing officer shall index the statements according to the name of the debtor and shall note in the index the file number and the address of the debtor given in the statement.

(5) The uniform fee for filing, indexing and furnishing filing data for an original or a continuation statement shall be $2.00. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 763, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-404. Termination statement.

(1) Whenever there is no outstanding secured obligation and no commitment to make advances, incur obligations or otherwise give value, the secured party must on written demand by the debtor send the debtor a statement that he no longer claims a security interest under the financing statement, which shall be identified by file number. A termination statement signed by a person other than the secured party of record must include or be accompanied by the assignment or a statement by the secured party of record that he has assigned the security interest to the signer of the termination statement. The uniform fee for filing and indexing such an assignment or statement thereof shall be $2.00. If the affected secured party fails to send such a termination statement within ten days after proper demand therefor he shall be liable to the debtor for one hundred dollars, and in addition for any loss caused to the debtor by such failure.

(2) On presentation to the filing officer of such a termination statement he must note it in the index. The filing officer shall remove from the files, mark "terminated" and send or deliver to the secured party the financing statement and any continuation statement, statement of assignment or statement of release pertaining thereto.

(3) The uniform fee for filing and indexing a termination statement including sending or delivering the financing statement shall be $2.00. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 764, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-405. Assignment of security interest; duties of filing officer; fees.

(1) A financing statement may disclose an assignment of a security interest in the collateral described in the statement by indication in the statement of the name and address of the assignee or by an assignment itself or a copy thereof on the face or back of the statement. Either the original secured party or the assignee may sign this statement as the secured party. On presentation to the filing officer of such a financing statement the filing officer shall mark the same as provided in section 28:9-403(4). The uniform fee for filing, indexing and furnishing filing data for a financing statement so indicating an assignment shall be $2.00.

(2) A secured party may assign of record all or a part of his rights under a financing statement by the filing of a separate written statement of assignment signed by the secured party of record and setting forth the name of the secured party of record and the debtor, the file number and the date of filing of the financing statement and the name and address of the assignee and containing a description of the collateral assigned. A copy of the assignment is sufficient as a separate statement if it complies with the preceding sentence. On presentation to the filing officer of such a separate statement, the filing officer shall mark such separate statement with the date and hour of the filing. He shall note the assignment on the index of the financing statement. The uniform fee for filing, indexing and furnishing filing data about such a separate statement of assignment shall be $2.00.

(3) After the disclosure of filing of an assignment under this section, the assignee is the secured party of record. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 764, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-406. Release of collateral; duties of filing officer; fees.

A secured party of record may by his signed statement release all or a part of any collateral described in a filed financing statement. The statement of release is sufficient if it contains a description of the collateral being released, the name and address of the debtor, the name and address of the secured party, and the file number of the financing statement. Upon presentation of such a statement to the filing officer he shall attach the statement of release to the instrument to which it relates and shall enter on the released instrument and on the index record thereof the word "released", the date of filing of the statement of release, and a facsimile of his signature. The uniform fee for filing and noting such a statement of release shall be $2.00. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 765, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-407. Information from filing officer.

(1) If the person filing any financing statement, termination statement, statement of assignment, or statement of release, furnishes the filing officer a copy thereof, the filing officer shall upon request note upon the copy the file number and date and hour of the filing of the original and deliver or send the copy to such person.

(2) Upon request of any person, the filing officer shall issue his certificate showing whether there is on file on the date and hour stated therein, any presently effective financing statement naming a particular debtor and any statement of assignment thereof and if there is, giving the date and hour of filing of each such statement and the names and addresses of each secured party therein. The uniform fee for such a certificate shall be $1.00 plus $0.50 for each financing statement and for each statement of assignment reported therein. Upon request the filing officer shall furnish a copy of any filed financing, continuation or termination statement or statement of assignment or release for a uniform fee of $3.00 for the first two pages or less, and $1.00 for each additional page, plus $0.50 for certification. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 765, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

PART 5.—DEFAULT

§ 28:9-501. Default; procedure when security agreement covers both real and personal property.

(1) When a debtor is in default under a security agreement, a secured party has the rights and remedies provided in this part and except as limited by subsection (3) those provided in the security agreement. He may reduce his claim to judgment, foreclose or otherwise enforce the security interest by any available judicial procedure. If the collateral is documents the secured party may proceed either as to the documents or as to the goods covered thereby. A secured party in possession has the rights, remedies and duties provided in section 28:9-207. The rights and remedies referred to in this subsection are cumulative.

(2) After default, the debtor has the rights and remedies provided in this part, those provided in the security agreement and those provided in section 28:9-207.

(3) To the extent that they give rights to the debtor and impose duties on the secured party, the rules stated in the subsections referred to below may not be waived or varied except as provided with respect to compulsory disposition of collateral (subsection (1) of section 28:9-505) and with respect to redemption of collateral (section 28:9-506) but the parties may by agreement determine the standards by which the fulfillment of these rights and duties is to be measured if such standards are not manifestly unreasonable:

(a) subsection (2) of section 28:9-502 and subsection (2) of section 28:9-504 insofar as they require accounting for surplus proceeds of collateral;

(b) subsection (3) of section 28:9-504 and subsection (1) of section 28:9-505 which deal with disposition of collateral;

(c) subsection (2) of section 28:9-505 which deals with acceptance of collateral as discharge of obligation;

(d) section 28:9-506 which deals with redemption of collateral; and

(e) subsection (1) of section 28:9-507 which deals with the secured party's liability for failure to comply with this part.

(4) If the security agreement covers both real and personal property, the secured party may proceed under this part as to the personal property or he may proceed as to both the real and the personal property in accordance with his rights and remedies in respect of the real property in which case the provisions of this part do not apply.

(5) When a secured party has reduced his claim to judgment the lien of any levy which may be made upon his collateral by virtue of any execution based upon the judgment shall relate back to the date of the perfection of the security interest in such collateral. A judicial sale, pursuant to such execution, is a foreclosure of the security interest by judicial procedure within the meaning of this section, and the secured party may purchase at the sale and thereafter hold the collateral free of any other requirements of this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 765, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-502. Collection rights of secured party.

(1) When so agreed and in any event on default the secured party is entitled to notify an account debtor or the obligor on an instrument to make payment to him whether or not the assignor was theretofore making collections on the collateral, and also to take control of any proceeds to which he is entitled under section 28:9-306.

(2) A secured party who by agreement is entitled to charge back uncollected collateral or otherwise to full or limited recourse against the debtor and who undertakes to collect from the account debtors or obligors must proceed in a commercially reasonable manner and may deduct his reasonable expenses of realization from the collections. If the security agreement secures an indebtedness, the secured party must account to the debtor for any surplus, and unless otherwise agreed, the debtor is liable for any deficiency. But, if the underlying transaction was a sale of accounts, contract rights, or chattel paper, the debtor is entitled to any surplus or is liable for any deficiency only if the security agreement so provides. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 766, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-503. Secured party's right to take possession after default.

Unless otherwise agreed a secured party has on default the right to take possession of the collateral. In taking possession a secured party may proceed without judicial process if this can be done without breach of the peace or may proceed by action. If the security agreement so provides the secured party may require the debtor to assemble the collateral and make it available to the secured party at a place to be designated by the secured party which is reasonably convenient to both parties. Without removal a secured party may render equipment unusable and may dispose of collateral on the debtor's premises under section 28:9-504. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 766, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-504. Secured party's right to dispose of collateral after default; effect of disposition.

(1) A secured party after default may sell, lease or otherwise dispose of any or all of the collateral in its then condition or following any commercially reasonable preparation or processing. Any sale of goods is subject to the article on sales (article 2). The proceeds of disposition shall be applied in the order following to

(a) the reasonable expenses of retaking, holding, preparing for sale, selling and the like and, to the extent provided for in the agreement and not prohibited by law, the reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses incurred by the secured party;

(b) the satisfaction of indebtedness secured by the security interest under which the disposition is made;

(c) the satisfaction of indebtedness secured by any subordinate security interest in the collateral if written notification of demand therefor is received before distribution of the proceeds is completed. If requested by the secured party, the holder of a subordinate security interest must seasonably furnish reasonable proof of his interest, and unless he does so, the secured party need not comply with his demand.

(2) If the security interest secures an indebtedness, the secured party must account to the debtor for any surplus, and, unless otherwise agreed, the debtor is liable for any deficiency. But if the underlying transaction was a sale of accounts, contract rights, or chattel paper, the debtor is entitled to any surplus or is liable for any deficiency only if the security agreement so provides.

(3) Disposition of the collateral may be by public or private proceedings and may be made by way of one or more contracts. Sale or other disposition may be as a unit or in parcels and at any time and place and on any terms but every aspect of the disposition including the method, manner, time, place and terms must be commercially reasonable. Unless collateral is perishable or threatens to decline speedily in value or is of a type customarily sold on a recognized market, reasonable notification of the time and place of any public sale or reasonable notification of the time after which any private sale or other intended disposition is to be made shall be sent by the secured party to the debtor, and except in the case of consumer goods to any other person who has a security interest in the collateral and who has duly filed a financing statement indexed in the name of the debtor in the District or who is known by the secured party to have a security interest in the collateral. The secured party may buy at any public sale and if the collateral is of a type customarily sold in a recognized market or is of a type which is the subject of widely distributed standard price quotations he may buy at private sale.

(4) When collateral is disposed of by a secured party after default, the disposition transfers to a purchaser for value all of the debtor's rights therein, discharges the security interest under which it is made and any security interest or lien subordinate thereto. The purchaser takes free of all such rights and interests even though the secured party fails to comply with the requirements of this Part or of any judicial proceedings

(a) in the case of a public sale, if the purchaser has no knowledge of any defects in the sale and if he does not buy in collusion with the secured party, other bidders or the person conducting the sale; or

(b) in any other case, if the purchaser acts in good faith.

(5) A person who is liable to a secured party under a guaranty, indorsement, repurchase agreement or the like and who receives a transfer of collateral from the secured party or is subrogated to his rights has thereafter the rights and duties of the secured party. Such a transfer of collateral is not a sale or disposition of the collateral under this article. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 766, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-505. Compulsory disposition of collateral; acceptance of the collateral as discharge of obligation.

(1) If the debtor has paid sixty per cent of the cash price in the case of a purchase money security interest in consumer goods or sixty per cent of the loan in the case of another security interest in consumer goods, and has not signed after default a statement renouncing or modifying his rights under this part a secured party who has taken possession of collateral must dispose of it under section 28:9-504 and if he fails to do so within ninety days after he takes possession the debtor at his option may recover in conversion or under section 28:9-507(1) on secured party's liability.

(2) In any other case involving consumer goods or any other collateral a secured party in possession may, after default, propose to retain the collateral in satisfaction of the obligation. Written notice of such proposal shall be sent to the debtor and except in the case of consumer goods to any other secured party who has a security interest in the collateral and who has duly filed a financing statement indexed in the name of the debtor in the District or is known by the secured party in possession to have a security interest in it. If the debtor or other person entitled to receive notification objects in writing within thirty days from the receipt of the notification or if any other secured party objects in writing within thirty days after the secured party obtains possession the secured party must dispose of the collateral under section 28:9-504. In the absence of such written objection the secured party may retain the collateral in satisfaction of the debtor's obligation. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 768, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-506. Debtor's right to redeem collateral.

At any time before the secured party has disposed of collateral or entered into a contract for its disposition under section 28:9-504 or before the obligation has been discharged under section 28:9-505(2) the debtor or any other secured party may unless otherwise agreed in writing after default redeem the collateral by tendering fulfillment of all obligations secured by the collateral as well as the expenses reasonably incurred by the secured party in retaking, holding and preparing the collateral for disposition, in arranging for the sale, and to the extent provided in the agreement and not prohibited by law, his reasonable attorneys' fees and legal expenses. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 768, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:9-507. Secured party's liability for failure to comply with this part.

(1) If it is established that the secured party is not proceeding in accordance with the provisions of this Part disposition may be ordered or restrained on appropriate terms and conditions. If the disposition has occurred the debtor or any person entitled to notification or whose security interest has been made known to the secured party prior to the disposition has a right to recover from the secured party any loss caused by a failure to comply with the provisions of this Part. If the collateral is consumer goods, the debtor has a right to recover in any event an amount not less than the credit service charge plus ten per cent of the principal amount of the debt or the time price differential plus ten per cent of the cash price.

(2) The fact that a better price could have been obtained by a sale at a different time or in a different method from that selected by the secured party is not of itself sufficient to establish that the sale was not made in a commercially reasonable manner. If the secured party either sells the collateral in the usual manner in any recognized market therefor or if he sells at the price current in such market at the time of his sale or if he has otherwise sold in conformity with reasonable commercial practices among dealers in the type of property sold he has sold in a commercially reasonable manner. The principles stated in the two preceding sentences with respect to sales also apply as may be appropriate to other types of disposition. A disposition which has been approved in any judicial proceeding or by any bona fide creditors' committee or representative of creditors shall conclusively be deemed to be commercially reasonable, but this sentence does not indicate that any such approval must be obtained in any case nor does it indicate that any disposition not so approved is not commercially reasonable. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 768, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:10-101. Omitted.

§ 28:10-102. Omitted.

§ 28:10-103. Inconsistent laws; what law governs.

Except as provided by section 28:10-104, if any provision of law is inconsistent with this subtitle, this subtitle shall govern, unless this subtitle or the inconsistent provision of the other law specifically provides otherwise. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 769, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28:10-104. Laws not repealed.

(1) The article on documents of title (article 7) does not repeal or modify any laws prescribing the form or contents of documents of title or the services or facilities to be afforded by bailees, or otherwise regulating bailees' businesses in respects not specifically dealt with herein; but the fact that such laws are violated does not affect the status of a document of title which otherwise complies with the definition of a document of title (section 28:1-201).

(2) This subtitle does not supersede or modify the District of Columbia Uniform Act for Simplification of Fiduciary Security Transfers, approved July 5, 1960 (74 Stat. 322), being all of subchapter II of chapter 23 of Title 28 of the District of Columbia Code, 1961 edition, and if in any respect there is any inconsistency between that Act and article 8 of this subtitle relating to investment securities, the provisions of that Act, rather than article 8, control. (Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 769, Pub. L. 88-243, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Decisions under prior law

All parts of a deed of assignment for the benefit of creditors will be considered in arriving at the general intention of the instrument, and if consistent with the language two constructions can be given, that is to be adopted which will render it legal and operative rather than illegal and void. Cissell v. Johnston (1894, 4 App. D.C. 335).

An attempt to limit the benefit of the trust to such creditors only as shall release their demands if not paid in full is a preference within the meaning of act Feb. 24, 1893, 27 Stat. 474, and void, and all liabilities within the provisions of the assignment shall be paid pro rata from the assets thereof. Id.

Assignment by debtor to a creditor of a fund due him under a contract with District of Columbia for erection of school buildings, with directions to the assignee after paying his own claim, to distribute the residue among certain other creditors, passes the legal title to the fund and creates a trust for creditors named although at the time some of them had no knowledge of the transaction and did not assent to it. Smith v. Herrell (1898, 11 App. D.C. 425).

Confession of judgment by an insolvent debtor in favor of a bona fide creditor is not such a preference as is prohibited by act Feb. 24, 1893, 27 Stat. 474, § 2, declaring void preferences of one creditor over another. Strasburger v. Dodge (1898, 12 App. D.C. 37).

Under laws of Maryland the general words of an assignment for benefit of creditors are restricted by particular description of a schedule which is made part of it; and where such assignment executed in Washington, D.C., purports to convey a life estate of the assignor in lands in Maryland as expressed in schedule, the assignee will take only such life estate, although assignment purports to convey all of assignor's property. Keane v. Chamberlain (1899, 14 App. D.C. 84).

§ 28-2102. Extent of assignment—Assets exempt.

An assignment vests in the assignee the title to all property, except what is legally exempt, belonging to the debtor at the time of making the assignment and comprehended within its general terms. The inventory annexed to an assignment is not conclusive as to the amount of the debtor's estate.

An assignment for the benefit of creditors does not include or cover property exempt from levy or sale on execution unless the exemption is expressly waived. The court may direct the manner in which exempt property may be ascertained and set aside before a sale by a trustee. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 667, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., §§ 28-2601, 28-2610 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, 1258, ch. 854, §§ 435, 444).
Section is based on last clause of section 28-2601 and all of section 28-2610. The first clause of section 28-2601 is set out as section 28-2101 of this revision.
Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28-2103. Assignee.

Only a resident of the District of Columbia may be an assignee in an assignment for the benefit of creditors. His asset shall appear in writing in, or at the end of, or indorsed on, the assignment. An assignment is invalid unless acknowledged and recorded within five days after its execution in the land records of the District. A trust created by an assignment shall be executed under the supervision and control of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2602 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1257, ch. 854, § 436; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127).
Minor changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Jurisdiction of municipal court

Where dispute between judgment creditor and garnishee involved much less than $3,000 jurisdiction of Municipal Court for District of Columbia, Civil Division, such court had jurisdiction to decide that there were funds in garnishee's hands which should be subjected to payment of judgment, and in so deciding such court was not administering or supervising a trust which should have been under supervision and control of United States District Court and which was in an amount far in excess of such $3,000 jurisdictional amount, notwithstanding that garnishee, in acquiring assets and funds of judgment debtor, may have acted as trustee for benefit of creditors in transactions totalling some $35,000. Pinkston v. Carter (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 150 A. 2d 629).

Right to maintain action

Assignment is admissible in evidence in a suit by the assignee to show his right to maintain the action. Mazza v. Russell (1917, 47 App. D.C. 87).

Validity of deed of trust

Where deed of trust conveying assets of company was not recorded within five days from date of execution as required by this section, company had its principal place of business in District of Columbia but trustee was not resident of district as required, deed reserved surplus for benefit of company's stockholders, no creditors were named therein, deed authorized trustee to operate business as far as seemed practicable to trustee and person who executed deed as secretary for company had not held that office or any other office for some eight months, deed was invalid and did not create a lien or right superior to that of attaching judgment creditor, and claim of trustee to commission must yield to claim of judgment creditor. Pinkston v. Carter (D.C. Mun. App. 1959, 150 A. 2d 629).

§ 28-2104. Bond of assignee.

Immediately upon the filing for record of an assignment for the benefit of creditors, the assignee shall execute and file in the clerk's office of the United States District Court for the District of Columbia his bond to the United States, in an amount and with security to be approved by a judge thereof, conditioned for the faithful performance of his duties according to law, and the court may from time to time require the assignee, or a trustee appointed in his place, to give additional security when required by the interests of the creditors. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2603 (Mar 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1257, ch. 854, § 437; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127).
The reference to "the justice holding the equity court" is changed to read "a judge thereof" inasmuch as the distinction between law and equity has been abolished.
Minor changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28-2105. Non-performance by assignee—Trustee.

If an assignee named in an assignment for the benefit of creditors fails or refuses to comply with any of the requirements of sections 21-2103 and 21-2104, a judge of the District Court may, on the application of the assignor or a creditor interested in the assignment, remove the assignee and appoint a trustee in his place to execute the trusts created by the assignment, who shall give bond as the court may require. And the court may accept the resignation of an assignee or trustee, and in case of his resignation, death, or removal from the District, appoint a trustee in his place. The court, for cause shown, on the application of an interested person, may remove an assignee or trustee and appoint a trustee in his place, and make and enforce all orders necessary to put the newly appointed trustee in possession of all property covered by the assignment. Upon the death of an assignee or trustee the court may require his executor or administrator to settle his account and to deliver over to his successor all property belonging to the trust, in default of which the successor may bring suit upon the bond of the deceased assignee or trustee or upon the bond of the executor or administrator, accordingly as the assignee or trustee, executor or administrator is the party in default. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2604 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1257, ch. 854, § 438; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 530, ch. 1329).
The reference to "the justice holding the equity court" has been changed to read "a judge of the District Court" inasmuch as the distinction between law and equity has been abolished. The words "moneys, books, papers and other effects" following "property" are deleted as redundant and surplusage.
Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28-2106. Duties of assignee.

An assignee or trustee, after giving bond, shall collect and take into his possession all the property covered by the assignment, and to that end he may bring suit in his own name to recover debts due or property belonging to the assignor and embraced in the assignment. The court may require the assignor to be examined under oath touching his property, and may make all orders necessary to prevent any fraudulent transfer of or change in the property of the assignor. The assignee or trustee shall return inventories of the assets coming to his hands and, upon the direction of the court, sell and dispose of them; and his conveyance of any property of the assignor, real or personal, transfers the entire title of the assignor therein to the purchaser. When the assets have been converted into money the assignee or trustee shall settle his accounts and make distribution among the creditors, under the direction of the court, according to the usual course of proceeding in creditor's suits. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 668, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code 1961 ed., § 28-2605 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1257, ch. 854, § 439).

The reference to proceedings "in equity" is deleted in the last sentence inasmuch as the distinction between law and equity has been abolished.

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28-2107. Preferences prohibited.

A provision in a voluntary assignment made for the payment of one debt or liability in preference to another is void, and all debts and liabilities within the provisions of the assignment shall be paid pro rata from the assets. This section does not affect the priority of liens and incumbrances created bona fide and existing before the execution of the assignment. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88-509 § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Changes are made in phraseology.

§ 28-2108. Proceedings for benefit of all creditors.

A proceeding instituted under this chapter by one or more creditors is deemed to be for the equal benefit of all creditors, but the court may make such allowance to the creditor or creditors instituting the same, out of the fund to be distributed, or expenses, including counsel fees, as may be just and equitable. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28-2109. Assignment to hinder or defraud creditors.

This chapter does not prevent a creditor otherwise entitled from attacking an assignment as made to hinder or defraud the creditors of the assignor. When the court finds an assignment to have been made with that intent, it may enjoin any proceeding thereunder, and upon finally decreeing the assignment to be void may appoint a trustee with power to take possession of all the property of the debtor, and may make and enforce all orders necessary to put him in possession of the property. The trustee shall qualify in the same manner and perform the same duties as the trustees provided for by this chapter. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

§ 28-2110. Notice to creditors.

The court shall require a trustee, whether named in the assignment or appointed by the court, in pursuance of this chapter, to give notice as the court may think proper to all the creditors of the assignor to produce and prove their respective claims against the assignor before the auditor of the court, to the end that they may be fairly adjudicated and the creditors may share equally the assets of the insolvent assignor, subject, however, to any legal priorities created by valid incumbrances antedating the assignment. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Attorneys' equitable lien

The interest in client's judgment of attorneys created by contingent fee contract was not equivalent to an assignment of a cause of action and resulting judgment, but rather attorneys' interest was like an equitable lien, and, hence, attorneys, in seeking to enforce collection of the judgment for benefit of client and themselves upon refusal of client to do so, was not required to observe provisions of statute relating to assignment of judgments. Falcone and Millstein v. Hall et al. (1256, 235 F. 2d 860, 98 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

Decree for alimony

"A decree ordering the payment of a periodical allowance of alimony in the future is not assignable," although accrued alimony (under an order which it was beyond the power of the court in its discretion to modify or vacate) may be assigned. Lynham v. Hufty (1915, 44 App. D.C. 589).

Judgment improperly entered

Where the rules require that judgment shall not be entered for four days after verdict, a judgment improperly entered by the clerk within that time is not absolutely void, and may be assigned. Hutchinson v. Brown (1896, 8 App. D.C. 157).

§ 28-2302. Assignment of bond or obligation.

An obligee named in a bond or obligation under seal for the payment of money may assign it in writing and the assignee may maintain an action thereon in his own name (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2502 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 432).

A minor change is made in phraseology.

§ 28-2303. Assignment of nonnegotiable contract.

An owner of a nonnegotiable written agreement for the payment of money, including a nonnegotiable bill of exchange and a promissory note, or for the delivery of personal property, an open account, debt, and demand of a liquidated character, except a claim against the United States or the salary of a public officer, may assign it in writing, and the assignee may maintain an action thereon in his own name. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 669, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Action by assignor after assignment

Evidence tending to prove that action was brought, not in the name of the assignee, or in the name of the assignor to the use of the assignee, but by the assignor after his assignment, was properly excluded where such defense had not been pleaded. Pierce v. Gillet & Co. (1935, 75 F. 2d 675, 64 App. D.C. 156).

Where corporation had sold its claim against defendant prior to commencement of its action against defendant, corporation had no right to enforce such claim. York Blouse Corp. v. Kaplowitz Bros. (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 465).

In action by corporation, which had sold its claim against defendant prior to bringing of action, for purchase price of certain merchandise, allegedly sold and delivered, request of corporation for leave to add as additional parties plaintiff the stockholders of corporation was properly denied. Id.

Where assignors assigned claims for the purpose of permitting assignee to manager the litigation and there was no evidence of fraud or any other circumstances which raised any questions as to assignee's legal title to the claims he was asserting, assignee had the right to maintain an action on the claims assigned in his own name. Compton v. Atwell (D.C. Mun. App. 1952, 86 A. 2d 623).

Indispensable party

When the rights of an assignee will be affected by an action, the assignee is an indispensable party. York Blouse Corp. v. Kaplowitz Bros. (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 465).

Possessory action

Owners' agent for management of realty, who was made assignee of leases from agent for former owners, had a right to bring a possessory action against tenant in his own name under the right of an assignee of a nonnegotiable instrument to sue in his own name. Koehne v. Harvey (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 45 A. 2d 780).

Purpose

Obvious purpose of this section was to vest in the assignee the right to sue in his own name. Since the procedural right had not been previously available to him, as the real party in interest, he is able to sue in the name of his assignor. District of Columbia v. Hamilton National Bank (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 76 A. 2d 60).

Real party in interest

Where defendant owed four small accounts and three of his creditors made written assignment, purporting to be absolute, of their accounts to the fourth creditor, but the creditors had orally agreed that assignments were only for purpose of enabling one creditor to sue, action brought by assignee was within exception provided by Municipal Court Rules allowing a party to sue in his own name without joining party for whose benefit action was brought. Compton v. Atwell (1953, 207 F. 2d 139, 93 U.S. App. D.C. 99).

Where corporation had sold its claim against defendant prior to commencement of its action against defendant, assignee was the real party in interest and indispensable party. York Blouse Corp. v. Kaplowitz Bros. (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 97 A. 2d 465).

When substantive law gives an assignee the right to sue in his own name and rule of court requires suit by the real party in interest, action on assigned claim must be brought by the assignee in his own name. Id.

Rights of Assignee

Assignee of conditional sales contract was merely assignee of nonnegotiable chose in action and took no greater rights than assignor had. Ledman v. G.A.C. Finance Corp. of Baltimore (D.C. App. 1965, 213 A. 2d 246).

Single cause of action

Creditor has no right to split up a single cause of action, either by the institution in his own name of separate suits upon separate fractions thereof, or by the assignment of such several parts to several persons without knowledge and consent of the debtor, so as to require the latter to respond to different actions and to incur accumulation. Sincell v. Davis (1904, 24 App. D.C. 218).

A single cause of action may be assigned, and the assignee may sue upon it in his own name, usually subject to all the equities existing between the assignor and the debtor; but this does not authorize the distribution of a single cause of action into fractional parts, and their assignment to several persons without the consent of the debtor. Id.

Stock certificates

It is well settled that certificates of stock are not negotiable instruments. At the same time, they are so constantly used as collateral and passed from hand to hand, when the blank transfer and power of attorney on their backs has been formally executed by the party to whom they were issued, that the general custom in the city of Washington is to regard the holder as the owner for the purpose of selling or pledging them. National Safe Deposit Sav. & Trust Co. v. Hibbs (1909, 32 App. D.C. 459, affirmed 33 S. Ct. 818, 229 U.S. 391, 57 L. Ed. 1241).

While indorsed certificates of stock do not become negotiable instruments in a strictly legal sense, they nevertheless so approximate them that the ordinary rules of agency and estoppel which apply in the case of chattels are applied to them with great liberality in the behalf of an innocent purchaser. Id.

Subscriptions to capital stock of corporation

Subscriptions to the capital stock of a corporation may be assigned by the corporation, so as to give the assignee a right to sue in his own name. Crook v. International Trust Co. (1909, 32 App. D.C. 490).

§ 28-2304. General assignments including choses in action.

In a general assignment which includes choses in action, it is not necessary to execute a separate assignment of each chose in action, but the assignee, by virtue of the general assignment, may sue in his own name on the several choses in action included therein. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2504 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1256, ch. 854, § 434).

The reference to the "Municipal Court" is changed to "Criminal Division of the Court of General Sessions" in view of the change in name by Public Law 88-241.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Action by assignor after assignment

As defenses must be pleaded the court did not err in excluding evidence even though it might have proved that the action was not in the name of the assignee, or in the name of the assignor to the use of the assignee, as the practice was at common law, but an action by an assignor after his assignment. Pierce v. Gillet & Co. (1935, 75 F. 2d 675, 64 App. D.C. 156).

§ 28-2305. Contract to assign future salary or wages.

(a) A contract attempting or purporting to transfer or assign salary or wages to be earned by the debtor, if made in the District of Columbia, is invalid and contrary to public policy and unenforceable, and if made outside the District of Columbia, is unenforceable in any court within the District of Columbia.

(b) Whoever, in the District of Columbia demands or receives from a debtor an assignment of salary or wages to be thereafter earned by the debtor, or notifies an employer that he holds an assignment of such salary or wages, upon conviction shall be fined not more than $200 or imprisoned not more than sixty days. Prosecutions under this subsection shall be upon information filed in the Criminal Division of the District of Columbia Court of General Sessions by the Corporation Counsel of the District of Columbia or one of his assistants. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2505 (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 434-A, as added Dec. 20, 1944, 58 Stat. 819, ch. 610, § 3).

The phrase "after the date of such contract" is deleted as redundant in view of the provision relating to salary or wages "to be earned", indicating it relates to future salary and wages.

Changes are made in phraseology.

Sec.

- 28-2501. Definitions.

- 28-2503. Action on bond to United States—Interest by private person.
- 28-2504. Fiduciary's bond—Discharge only after accounting.

§ 28-2501. Definitions.

A bond, when required by or referred to in this Code, means an obligation in a certain sum or penalty, subject to a condition, on breach of which it is to become absolute and enforceable by action.

An undertaking means an agreement entered into by a party to a suit or proceeding, with or without sureties, upon which a judgment or decree may be rendered in the same suit or proceeding against the party and his sureties, if any, the party and sureties submitting themselves to the jurisdiction of the court for that purpose. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

I. UNDER PRIOR LAW

Automobile negligence action against nonresident

The undertaking in favor of a nonresident defendant which is required of a plaintiff who institutes automobile negligence action in District of Columbia against such nonresident by service of process on Director of Vehicles and Traffic, is such an "undertaking" as is defined as an agreement by a party to a suit upon which a judgment or decree may be rendered in same suit or proceeding in which it has been filed. Dew v. Simon (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 95 A. 2d 482).

Bonds and undertakings distinguished

Unlike the ordinary appeal bond, which is an obligation under seal, with a fixed penalty, and a definite condition, limited to become effective or otherwise by the determination of the appeal, an undertaking is without seal, or fixed penalty, and without condition; and is simply a promise or an assumption of liability, to perform a judgment, or to pay damages and costs. Tenney v. Taylor (1893, 1 App. D.C. 223).

Purpose and effect

While an undertaking differs in form from the bond, its essential purpose and effect are the same as those of the bond, to give the guaranty of an additional person as security for the costs that might be incurred and the damages that might result to an appellee by the prosecution of an appeal that prevents him from realizing his claim as speedily and as effectively as he might otherwise have done. Tenney v. Taylor (1893, 1 App. D.C. 223).

II. UNDER PRESENT LAW

Judgment on bond in the same suit

A defendant in whose favor a judgment had been rendered, as an alternative to an independent action, could file a motion in the case demanding judgment against plaintiff and his surety for damages alleged to have been sustained by attachment of defendant's funds, but assertion to claim in such manner did not disable plaintiff from utilizing defensive rights available to him were an independent action filed. G. P. Schmidt v. L. T. Smith (1965, 344 F. 2d 168, 120 U.S. App. D.C. 74).

District Court may adopt reasonable rules and practices governing assertion of a claim by defendant for damages arising from wrongful attachment, and time within which it may be so asserted may be limited by rules so as to avoid holding original case open unduly long. Id.

While rule 73(f) was not available as a means of serving surety on attachment bond on defendant's motion for judgment against plaintiff and surety for damages sustained by the attachment, the ability of defendant to make service upon surety was not thereby necessarily foreclosed. Id.

§ 28-2502. Action on bonds in a penal sum containing an avoidance condition.

A bond in a penal sum, containing a condition that it shall be void on the payment of a certain sum of money, or the performance of an act or of certain duties, has the same effect for the purpose of maintaining an action upon it as if it contained a covenant to pay the money or perform the act or the duties specified in the condition. But the damages to be recovered for a breach, or successive breaches, of the condition, as against the sureties therein, may not exceed the penalty of the bond. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2405 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1265, ch. 854, § 480).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Construction

In suit against sureties bond is to be strictly construed. United States v. Maloney (1894, 4 App. D.C. 505).

Recitals in bond, and all material traversable matter set forth in breaches assigned and which have not been traversed are to be taken as admitted and withdrawn from the province of the jury. Id.

Forgery

Surety can not plead forgery of principal's name to bond when surety executes it after its purported execution by the principal. United States v. Boyd (1896, 8 App. D.C. 440).

Sureties

By the execution of a bond and its return to the principal or his agent for delivery to the obligee the surety becomes estopped to set up any condition not known to that obligee, upon which his signature has been obtained. United States v. Boyd (1896, 8 App. D.C. 440).

Discontinuance of a suit as to the principal will not, in the absence of explanation, be sufficient to release the sureties on his bond who were named as codefendants. Starr v. United States (1896, 8 App. D.C. 552, reversed on other grounds 17 S. Ct. 223, 164 U.S. 627, 41 L. Ed. 557).

§ 28-2503. Action on bond to United States—Interest by private person.

When a bond is executed to the United States by a fiduciary or public officer, conditioned for the performance of certain duties, in the performance of which private persons are interested, a person aggrieved by a breach of the condition may maintain an action thereon in his own name against the obligor and his sureties to recover damages for the injury suffered by him in consequence of the breach. The custodian of the bond shall furnish a certified copy thereof to the party for that purpose on payment of the legal fees therefor. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 670, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2406 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1265, ch. 854, § 481; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 530, ch. 1329).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Action on official bond

Action on an official bond running to the District of Columbia cannot be maintained by one not a party thereto, in the absence of the consent of the District or an express statute authorizing such action. District of Columbia to Use of Langellotti v. Fidelity & Deposit Co. (1921, 271 F. 383, 50 App. D.C. 309).

Disbursing officer

Although bond required of a disbursing officer of the Government when first filed was not properly executed and it was returned to the principal who properly executed it, there is no presumption against its genuineness, in a suit by the Government against the surety, and in such transaction the relation between the Government and the disbursing officer is not that of principal and agent. Howgate v. United States (1894, 3 App. D.C. 277, affirmed 17 S. Ct. 682, 166 U.S. 571, 41 L. Ed. 1119).

In action by United States on the bond of an alleged delinquent disbursing officer, a duly authenticated transcript from the Treasury Department of the accounts of the disbursing officer offered in evidence by the United States is not admissible, for it does not include all transactions with the United States during term of service, but only those transactions connected with the appropriations for which such official is alleged to be in default need be shown by such transcript. Goff v. United States (1903, 22 App. D.C. 512).

Plumbing inspector

Those injured by neglect of the inspector of plumbing in the performance of his official duties may maintain an action in the name of the District of Columbia to his use on the bond given by the inspector, under a plumbing regulation requiring the inspector to give a bond of $5,000, "conditioned for the faithful performance of the duties of his office." District of Columbia v. Ball (1903, 22 App. D.C. 543).

Plumbing regulations of District of Columbia requiring inspector of plumbing to give bond with sureties for benefit of persons aggrieved by his acts of neglect, is valid, although the act of Congress of April 23, 1892 (27 Stat. 21, ch. 53) authorizing appointment of inspector of plumbing does not require bond. Id.

One who purchases house in which plumbing is defective without knowledge of such facts existing, may maintain action on official bond of inspector of plumbing for failure to inspect plumbing when the house was in the course of construction. Id.

Questions on appeal

Where person claiming to have posted collateral under agreement for surety bond for release of certain alien did not, in suit for recovery for alleged breach of such agreement, mention this section providing cause of action for those aggrieved by breach of bond given to United States to secure performance of a duty, this section could not be relied upon on appeal. Chong Moe Dan v. Maryland Casualty Co. of Baltimore (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 286).

§ 28-2504. Fiduciary's bond—Discharge only after accounting.

A person appointed by order or decree of the court to a fiduciary office may not discharge his bond for the due performance of his duties, by receipts, releases, or acquittances from himself, as attorney for parties interested, to himself as fiduciary; but the funds or estate for the application whereof he is responsible shall be considered as remaining in his hands, and the bond shall continue in force as against both principal and sureties until the funds or estate are fully accounted for and paid over or delivered to the parties interested therein, or their attorney, other than himself. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 671, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2407 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1265, ch. 854, § 482).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Sale trustee

Bond of a trustee appointed by court in an equity cause to sell real estate which runs to the United States, can be put in suit by person injuriously affected and in such suit the United States is the nominal plaintiff only. Morse v. United States ex rel. Hine (1907, 29 App. D.C. 433).

When decree for sale of infant's real estate is void for want of jurisdiction, the bond of trustee appointed to make the sale is void also, and the surety may show such invalidity in a suit against him on the bond by the United States. Id.

This section does not apply where payment was by the sale trustee to himself as testamentary trustee. United States Fidelity & Guar. Co. v. Klein (1932, 54 F. 2d 828, 60 App. D.C. 354, certiorari denied 52 S. Ct. 394, 285 U.S. 544, 76 L. Ed. 936).

When a day set apart as a legal holiday falls on Sunday the next succeeding day is a holiday. In such cases, and when a Sunday and a holiday fall on successive days, all commercial paper falling due on any of those days shall, for all purposes of presenting for payment or acceptance, be deemed to mature and be presentable for payment or acceptance on the next secular business day succeeding. Every Saturday is a holiday in the District for (1) every bank or banking institution having an office or banking house located within the District, (2) every Federal savings and loan association whose main office is in the District, and (3) every building association, building and loan association, or savings and loan association, incorporated or unincorporated, organized and operating under the laws of and having an office located within the District. An act which would otherwise be required, authorized, or permitted to be performed on Saturday in the District at the office or banking house of, or by, any such bank or bank institution, Federal savings and loan association, building association, building and loan association, or savings and loan association, if Saturday were not a holiday, shall or may be so performed on the next succeeding business day, and liability or loss of rights of any kind may not result from such delay. A corporation or transfer agent registering a security in the name of a person who is a fiduciary or who is described as a fiduciary is not bound to inquire into the existence, extent, or correct description of the fiduciary relationship, and thereafter the corporation and its transfer agent may assume without inquiry that the newly registered owner continues to be the fiduciary until the corporation or transfer agent receives written notice that the fiduciary is no longer acting as such with respect to the particular security. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 672, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

(2) may assume without inquiry that the fiduciary has complied with any controlling instrument and with the law of the jurisdiction governing the fiduciary relationship, including any law requiring the fiduciary to obtain court approval of the transfer; and

(3) is not charged with notice of and is not bound to obtain or examine any court record or recorded or unrecorded document relating to the fiduciary relationship or the assignment, even though the record or document is in its possession.

§ 28-2904. Evidence of appointment of incumbency.

A corporation or transfer agent making a transfer pursuant to an assignment by a fiduciary who is not the registered owner shall require the following evidence of appointment or incumbency:

(1) in the case of a fiduciary appointed or qualified by a court, a certificate issued by or under the direction or supervision of the court or an officer thereof, and dated within sixty days before the transfer; or

(2) in any other case, a copy of a document showing the appointment or a certificate issued by or on behalf of a person reasonably believed by the corporation or transfer agent to be responsible or, in the absence of such a document or certificate, other evidence reasonably deemed by the corporation or transfer agent to be appropriate. Corporations and transfer agents may adopt reasonable standards with respect to evidence of appointment or incumbency under this subsection. Neither the corporation nor transfer agent is charged with notice of the contents of any document obtained pursuant to this subsection except to the extent that the contents relate directly to the appointment or incumbency.

(Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 673, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

§ 28-2905. Adverse claims.

(a) A person asserting a claim of beneficial interest adverse to the transfer of a security pursuant to an assignment by a fiduciary may notify in writing the corporation or transfer agent of the claim. The corporation or transfer agent is not put on notice unless the written notice (1) identifies the claimant, the registered owner, and the issue of which the security is a part, (2) provides an address for communications directed to the claimant, and (3) is received before the transfer. This chapter does not relieve the corporation or transfer agent of any liability for making or refusing to make the transfer after it is so put on notice, unless it proceeds in the manner authorized by subsection (b).

(b) As soon as practicable after the presentation of a security for transfer pursuant to an assignment by a fiduciary, a corporation or transfer agent which has received notice of a claim of beneficial interest adverse to the transfer may send notice of the presentation by registered or certified mail to the claimant at the address given by him. If the corporation or transfer agent so mails such a notice it shall withhold the transfer for thirty days after the mailing and shall then make the transfer unless restrained by a court order. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 673, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

(a) A person who participates in the acquisition, disposition, assignment or transfer of a security by or to a fiduciary including a person who guarantees the signature of the fiduciary is not liable for participation in any breach of fiduciary duty by reason of failure to inquire whether the transaction involves such a breach unless it is shown that he acted with actual knowledge that the proceeds of the transaction were being or were to be used wrongfully for the individual benefit of the fiduciary or that the transaction was otherwise in breach of duty.

(b) When a corporation or transfer agent makes a transfer pursuant to an assignment by a fiduciary, a person who guaranteed the signature of the fiduciary is not liable on the guarantee to any person to whom the corporation or transfer agent by reason of this chapter incurs no liability.

(b) This chapter applies to the rights and duties of a person other than the corporation and its transfer agents with regard to acts and omissions in the District of Columbia in connection with the acquisition, disposition, assignment or transfer of a security by or to a fiduciary and of a person who guarantees in the District of Columbia the signature of a fiduciary in connection with such a transaction. laws of the District of Columbia. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 674, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

Chapter 31.—FRAUDULENT CONVEYANCES

Sec.

28-3101. Intent to defraud creditors.

28-3102. Intent to defraud purchasers.

28-3103. Fiduciaries' suit to vacate fraudulent transaction.<sup>1</sup>

§ 28-3101. Intent to defraud creditors.

A conveyance or assignment, in writing or otherwise, of an estate or interest in land or its rents and profits, or in goods or things in action, and a charge upon the same, and a bond or other evidence of debt given, or judgment or decree suffered, with the intent to hinder or defraud persons having just claims or demands, of their lawful suits, damages, or demands, is void as against the persons so hindered or defrauded.

This section does not affect the title of a purchaser for value, unless it appears that he had previous notice of the fraudulent intent of his immediate grantor, or of the fraud rendering void the title of the grantor. The question of fraudulent intent is a question of fact and not of law. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 674, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-3101 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1368, ch. 854, § 1120).

The word "delay" in the phrase "hinder, delay, or defraud" is deleted as redundant.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

In general

By the terms of the statute a final judgment at common law is made a lien, not only upon the legal, but as well upon the equitable, interests in real estate of the judgment debtor from the date when the same is rendered, and this section likewise makes every conveyance of lands with intent to defraud creditors not merely voidable, but void. Reilly v. Sabin (1936, 81 F. 2d 259, 65 App. D.C. 125).

Where it did not appear that anyone but plaintiff was hindered, delayed, or defrauded by transfer of property sought to be set aside as fraudulent, judgment to the extent that it avoided transfer as against other persons should be modified. Brady v. Games (1942, 128 F. 2d 754, 76 U.S. App. D.C. 47).

A court should not enrich a fraudulent grantee at expense of parties not responsible for original grantor's attempt to avoid creditors. Hurwitz v. Hurwitz (1943, 136 F. 2d 796, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 66, 148 A.L.R. 226).

Every case involving question whether debtor made fraudulent conveyances depends on its own circumstances. Beaton Co. v. Berberich (1943, 135 F. 2d 831, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

Even if a conveyance is, on its face, presumptively fraudulent, it is susceptible of explanation. Snider v. Kelly (1943, 135 F. 2d 817, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 363, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 62, 320 U.S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 456).

Consideration

Where there was substantial evidence to support findings that note and deed of trust recorded on date prior to date when the United States filed notice of tax lien were without consideration and in fraud of creditors, such findings were not clearly erroneous and hence judgment based on such findings would be affirmed. H. Mill- off and S. Milloff v. United States and A. Goldkind (1962, 306 F. 2d 783, 113 U.S. App. D.C. 176).

In action for judgment declaring plaintiff to be common-law wife of a defendant, and as such entitled to an inchoate right of dower in certain realty allegedly conveyed by him to his daughter before establishment of marriage, evidence, including undisputed testimony that defendant paid $4,000 for property in question and conveyed it to his daughter, for $10 which was the entire consideration, established that codefendant was not a purchaser for valuable consideration within meaning of this section. Leonardo v. Leonardo et ano. (1958, 251 F. 2d 22, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 119).

Words "valuable consideration" as used in portion of this section providing that such section shall not be construed to impair title of a purchaser for a "valuable consideration" means fair equivalent of the property conveyed. Id.

The sum of $10, constituting the entire consideration allegedly paid for realty worth $4,000, did not constitute "valuable consideration" within meaning of that term as used in this section providing that certain conveyances of realty made with intent of defrauding creditors shall be void except as against a purchaser for a valuable consideration, without notice. Id.

Construction

This section providing that conveyances made with intent of defrauding certain persons shall be void is entitled to liberal construction. Leonardo v. Leonardo et ano. (1958, 251 F. 2d 22, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 119).

Duty of court

Where issue regarding whether conveyance is fraudulent is presented to trial court, its duty is to determine from circumstances surrounding transaction of parties whether the intent proscribed by this section was present and in doing so, it should apply the rule that the parties intend the natural and probable consequences of their acts, and if the inevitable consequences of a conveyance are to hinder, delay or defraud creditors, the court must so hold notwithstanding denial of such intent by the parties. Snider v. Kelly (1943, 135 F. 2d 817, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 363, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 62, 320 U.S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 456).

Evidence

Fraud must be shown by clear and convincing evidence and by evidence which is not equivocal that is, equally consistent with either honesty or deceit, but circumstantial evidence is sufficient to prove fraud. Wynne et al. v. Boone et al. (1951, 191 F. 2d 220, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

Evidence sustained trial court's judgment setting aside, as in fraud of creditors, conveyances of realty. Id.

Fraudulent conveyance

Where company extended credit to its customers and received promissory notes which were endorsed in blank without recourse to bank as security for credit extended to the company ranging from 60 to 65 percent of the face value of pledged notes and company acted as bank's agent for collection and remitted payments to a special account at the bank which was used to reduce debt owed by company to bank, and company submitted quarterly reports to bank indicating status of collections from consumer-debtors and company's book accounts indicated that consumer notes were pledged to the bank, the transfer of security from the company to the bank was not a fraudulent conveyance under District of Columbia law providing that transfers which are intended to hinder, delay or defraud creditors or transferor are voidable. M. Stevan, Trustee etc. v. Union Trust Company etc., et al. (1963, 316 F. 2d 687, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 36).

Good faith

In determining whether debtor's conveyances are fraudulent, the vital question is the good faith of the transactions. Beaton Co. v. Berberich (1943, 135 F. 2d 831, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

Intent of parties

In suit to set aside, as fraud on creditors, conveyances of realty, where grantee was found to be in same position as grantor, so far as knowledge and intent were concerned, and conveyance was found to have been fraudulent, neither grantor nor grantee could claim to have been injured by creditor's pursuit of one remedy rather than another. Wynne et al. v. Boone et al. (1951, 191 F. 2d 220, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

In creditor's suit to declare void certain transfers of title and of interests by debtor to others, record sustained determination that the transactions were consistent with an honest purpose and were free from fraud and wrongdoing. Beaton Co. v. Berberich (1943, 135 F. 2d 831, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

Where it appears from all surrounding circumstances that acts of parties are consistent with an honest purpose, it is not an inevitable consequence that conveyance will hinder, delay or defraud creditors, and the court should find accordingly. Snider v. Kelly (1943, 135 F. 2d 817, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 363, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 62, 320 U.S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 456).

Mortgages

A mortgage made with intent to hinder, delay, or defraud the bankrupt's creditors may be declared void Universal Dealers Co. v. Cromelin (1940, 109 F. 2d 828, 71 App. D.C. 234, certiorari denied 60 S. Ct. 1088, 310 U.S. 641, 84 L. Ed. 1409).

The giving of the mortgage followed by withholding it from record pursuant to an agreement or understanding, operated to hinder, delay, and defraud the bankrupt's creditors as the parties are presumed to intend the natural and probable consequences of their own acts and whatever may have been the intention of the petitioner is immaterial. In re Nolan Motor Co., Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1938, 25 F. Supp. 186, affirmed 109 F. 2d 282, 711 App. D.C. 234, certiorari denied 60 S. Ct. 1088, 310 U.S. 641, 84 L. Ed. 1409).

Other persons

Under this section providing that every conveyance of realty made with intent to defraud creditors or "other persons" having just claims shall be void as against persons so defrauded, a wife, in regard to her property rights arising from marriage, is one of the "other persons" protected. Leonardo v. Leonardo et ano. (1958, 251 F. 2d 22, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 119).

Pleading, sufficiency of Judgment creditor's complaint alleging fraudulent conveyances of real estate was sufficient to allege fraudulent intent on part of debtor in making conveyance. F. S. Bowen Electric Co., Inc. v. J. D. Hedin Construction Co., Inc. (1963, 316 F. 2d 362, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 361).

Presumptions

In determining whether debtor made fraudulent transfer, certain rebuttable presumptions go into balance, in creditor's favor, but if it appears from circumstances that challenged acts of parties to transfer are consistent with an honest purpose, the presumptions are overcome. Beaton Co. v. Berberich (1943, 135 F. 2d 831, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 377).

Question of fact

In District of Columbia, fraud is matter of fact, and therefore, where creditors established that conveyance had been made and recorded with intent to defraud, it would not be necessary to success of their suit to set aside conveyance that they proved that grantor was insolvent. Wynne et al. v. Boone et al. (1951, 191 F. 2d 220, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

Under this section, the question of fraudulent intent is a "question of fact" and not a "question of law". Snider v. Kelly (1943, 135 F. 2d 817, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 363, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 62, 320 U.S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 456).

Quitclaim deeds

Where circumstances indicated that debtor was not owner of property or any part of it but at best had a claim which, in hands of creditor, might have had some nuisance value as a cloud on title, that real owner was debtor's brother and that deed from debtor to brother was in nature of a quitclaim to clear brother's title, evidence sustained findings and conclusion that conveyance did not violate this section regarding fraudulent conveyances. Snider v. Kelly (1943, 135 F. 2d 817, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 363, certiorari denied 64 S. Ct. 62, 320 U.S. 764, 88 L. Ed. 456).

Review

Finding that payment by insolvent corporation of its debt to its sole stockholder and managing director was made with intent to hinder or delay a creditor was not clearly erroneous and supported conclusion that transfer was void as against creditor. Ferro Inc., and Powell Jr. v. John Thompson Beacon Windows, Ltd. (1960, 278 F. 2d 280, 107 U.S. App. D.C. 400).

On appeal from judgment setting aside conveyance as fraud on creditors, sole function of Court of Appeals is to decide whether or not trial judge was clearly in error in being convinced by evidence presented, and it is not function of Court of Appeals to weigh evidence and it is not necessary that Court of Appeals itself find evidence on issue of fraud to be clear and convincing. Wynne et al. v. Boone et al. (1951, 191 F. 2d 220, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 363).

Summary judgment

Evidence in hearing on motion for summary judgment in action to set aside fraudulent conveyances showed existence of genuine issue of fact as to debtor's alleged fraudulent intent precluding summary judgment. F. S. Bowen Electric Co., Inc. v. J. D. Hedin Construction Co., Inc. (1963, 316 F. 2d 362, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 361).

Transfer to wife of bankrupt

Where there was a fraudulent transfer of bankrupt's property to wife, conveyance was set aside in equity. Harding v. Aaronson (1934, 69 F. 2d 845, 63 App. D.C. 107).

§ 28-3102. Intent to defraud purchasers.

A conveyance of an estate or interest in land, or its rents and profits, and a charge upon the same, made or created with the intent to defraud prior or subsequent purchasers for a valuable consideration of the same lands, rents, or profits, are void, as against the purchasers. Such a conveyance or charge is not deemed fraudulent in favor of a subsequent purchaser who has actual or legal notice thereof at the time of his purchase, unless it appears that the grantee in the conveyance, or the person to be benefited by the charge, was privy to the fraud intended. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-3102 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1368, ch. 854, § 1121).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Question of fact

In action for breach of contract for conveyance of realty, questions of good faith and collusive intent are questions of fact requiring submission to the jury. Buchanan v. Farmer (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 367).

§ 28-3103. Fiduciary's suit to vacate fraudulent transaction.

An executor, administrator, receiver, assignee, or trustee of an estate, or of the property and effects of an insolvent estate, corporation, association, partnership, or individual, may, for the benefit of creditors and others interested in the estate or property so held in trust, disaffirm, treat as void, and resist all acts done, transfers, and agreements made in fraud of the rights of a creditor, including themselves and others interested in an estate or property held by or of right belonging to him or the estate. Whoever, in fraud of the rights of creditors and others receives, takes, or in any manner interferes with the estate, property, or effects of a deceased person or insolvent corporation, association, partnership, or individual is liable, in the proper action, to the executors, administrators, receivers, or trustees of the estate or property for the same, or the value of any property or effects so received or taken, and for all damages caused by such acts to the trust estate. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-3103 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1368, ch. 854, § 1122).

This section is rewritten in the present tense, to conform to the style of the revision.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Action to avoid deed

Section authorizes executors to file suit setting aside or canceling a deed executed by testator and to collect the expenses incident thereto. Ramsey v. Curtis (1950, 182 F. 2d 687, 86 U.S. App. D.C. 386).

Increase of rights

This section is "procedural", and the person for whose benefit transfer is sought to be set aside can get no increased substantive rights because administrator is bringing the suit. Hurwitz v. Hurwitz (1943, 136 F. 2d 796, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 66, 148 A.L.R. 226).

Where administratrix of deceased grantor sought to set aside transfers that allegedly had illegal purpose of defeating creditors and administratrix did not seek to benefit creditors, but to set aside the transfers for benefit of grantor's heirs, the heirs obtained no additional rights because their interests were represented by administratrix. Id.

Trust, enforcement of

Administratrix of deceased grantor could enforce "resulting trust" and recover proceeds of realty on behalf of heirs of grantor, notwithstanding evidence that transfers which administratrix sought to set aside had illegal purpose of defeating grantor's creditors. Hurwitz v. Hurwitz (1943, 136 F. 2d 796, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 66, 148 A.L.R. 226).

NOTES TO DECISIONS

I. UNDER PRIOR LAW

Additional loan as usury

Usury sustained based on additional loan payable to intermediary. Quinn v. National Mtg. & Inv. Co. (1932, 57 F. 2d 410, 61 App. D.C. 44).

Bonus as usury

A commission or bonus paid to same person who is entitled to interest is to be considered as additional “interest” for purpose of usury law. Industrial Bank Washington, Inc., et al. v. Page (1957, 249 2d 938, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

Where bank was offering to make loan at six percent with one person commission and consent to such contract was obtained when borrower signed note and in writing approved settlement sheet containing item of the one percent commission, the contract was within the eight percent provision of the usury statute, precluding borrower from recovering the amount of interest. Id.

“Bonus” being a sum paid to the creditor for the continued use of the money, clearly counts as interest for the purpose of the usury law; and a bonus, which, when added to the nominal interest on a 2-year extension exceeded 8 percent, was usurious. Bowen v. Mount Vernon Sav. Bank (1939, 105 F. 2d 796, 70 App. D.C. 273).

Incomplete transaction

Where transaction contemplated, with usurious rates, never took place, claim of usury could not be sustained Rossllyn Steel & Cement Co. v. Etchison (1932, 57 F. 2d 409, 61 App. D.C. 43).

Usury

Filing of certificate of withdrawal by foreign corporation did not change status previously acquired by corporation’s contracts so that under statute allowing corporations to seek financing without regard to lawful interest rates its complaint for recovery of usurious interest under prior contracts was barred. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Ten Individual Defendants (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

II. UNDER PRESENT LAW

Overcharge of interest as usury

Receipt by deed of trust note holder of more than six but less than eight per cent interest violated note provision for six per cent interest but did not constitute “usury” within statute providing that parties to written instrument may contract for any rate not exceeding eight per cent. J. J. Urciolo and P. M. Urciolo v. R. S. Nash (D.C. App. 1965, 211 A. 2d 769).

§ 28-3302. Rate of interest not expressed and on judgments.

The rate of interest in the District upon the loan or forbearance of money, goods, or things in action, and the rate to be allowed in judgments and decrees, in the absence of express contract, is 6 percent per annum. Interest, when authorized by law, on judgments against the District of Columbia, is at the rate of not exceeding 4 percent per annum. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2701 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1377, ch. 854, § 1178; July 1, 1902, 32 Stat. 610, ch. 1352).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Judgments

While act April 22, 1870, 16 Stat. 91, ch. 59, fixed the rate of interest on judgments it did not cause such judgments or decrees to bear interest which would not have borne interest previously thereto. Washington & G. R.

Co. v. Tobriner (1893, 13 S. Ct. 557, 147 U.S. 571, 37 L. Ed. 284).

If a judgment regularly rendered in the Supreme (District) Court of the District in a common-law action of tort cannot bear interest a fortiori it should not be permitted to run upon the judgment of the court of claims. Gray v. District of Columbia (1893, 1 App. D.C. 20).

Legal rates

When debtor defaults, compensation equal to value of the money, which is legal interest upon it, will be permitted during time the party is in default, provided a claim is made in declaration for the interest. District of Columbia v. Metropolitan R. Co. (1896, 8 App. D.C. 322, affirmed 25 S. Ct. 28, 195 U.S. 322, 49 L. Ed. 219).

All that plaintiff was entitled to recover was the principal sum, with interest at the legal rate after the termination of the contract rate, less the credits which she admitted. Richards v. Bippus (1901, 18 App. D.C. 293).

Occasional loans on real estate

A nonresident who makes occasional loans on real estate is not engaged “in the business” of loaning money. Zirkle v. Daly (1932, 54 F. 2d 455, 60 App. D.C. 344).

Usury

Filing of certificate of withdrawal by foreign corporation did not change status previously acquired by corporation’s contracts so that under statute allowing corporations to seek financing without regard to lawful interest rates its complaint for recovery of usurious interest under prior contracts was barred. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Ten Individual Defendants (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

“When the promise to pay a sum above the legal interest depends upon a contingency, and not upon any happening of a certain event, the loan is not usurious.” Whelpley v. Ross (1905, 25 App. D.C. 207).

Illegality of the transaction does not affect the obligation to pay a tax, and though the accruals represented legally uncollectible usury, there was at all times a reasonable expectation that they would be paid, and this fact is enough to constitute them income to the same extent as if the several amounts were actually paid. Barker v. Magruder (1938, 95 F. 2d 122, 68 App. D.C. 211).

Usury law protects the maker in spite of knowledge. The same financial pressure which forced him to submit to usury in the first place may force him to renew. To permit a mere renewal or extension of the contract to purge the usury would defeat the purpose of the statute. Bowen v. Mount Vernon Sav. Bank (1939, 105 F. 2d 796, 70 App. D.C. 273).

§ 28-3303. Usury defined.

If a person or corporation contracts in the District.

(1) verbally, to pay a greater rate of interest than 6 percent per annum, or

(2) in writing, to pay a greater rate than 8 percent per annum, the creditor shall forfeit the whole of the interest so contracted to be received.

This section does not affect sections 26-601 to 26-611. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 675, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2703 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1377, ch. 854, § 1180; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 542, ch. 1329; Apr. 19, 1920, 41 Stat. 568, ch. 153, § 1).

The last sentence is substituted for the proviso.

The use of provisos is discontinued because most “provisos” are not true provisos and simply reflect the use of legalistic terminology which is being corrected in the codification bills generally.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

In general

Money exacted by the lender from the borrower for the use of money in excess of the legal rate allowed by this section is usury under whatever name or pretense the exaction, extension, or forbearance may be designated. Von Rosen v. Dean (1930, 41 F. 2d 982, 59 App. D.C. 359).

It is the agreement and not necessarily its performance which renders debit usurious. Holcombe v. O'Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 96).

Bonus as usury

Where face amount of promissory note was $2,133 payable three years after date with interest at six per cent per annum, but only $1,933 was advanced to maker of note, with $200 constituting a bonus, such note was usurious under usury statute. Holcombe v. O'Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 96).

Note or obligation is affected with usury if principal makes the loan, knowing that his agent has exacted a bonus or commission, though for his own sole benefit, which, with the interest payable to the principal, would amount to more than the rate permitted by law. Richards v. Bippus (1901, 18 App. D.C. 293).

Burden of proof

Under usury statute burden is upon borrower to show that contract was usurious. Industrial Bank of Washington, Inc., et al. v. Page (1957, 249 F. 2d 938, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

In action on promissory note defendant had burden of proving alleged usury but defendant was not required to prove usury where usury was established by plaintiff's evidence. Holcombe v. O'Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 96).

Burden of proof is upon the borrower to show that the lender knew or was chargeable with the knowledge that his agent exacted a commission in obtaining loan for borrower in excess of the legal rate of interest. Such knowledge may be implied as well as actual. Searl v. Earll (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 374).

Commissions

A commission or bonus paid to same person who is entitled to interest is to be considered as additional "interest" for purpose of usury law. Industrial Bank of Washington, Inc., et al. v. Page (1957, 249 F. 2d 938, 102 U.S. App. D.C. 33).

Where bank was offering to make loan at six percent with one percent commission and consent to such contract was obtained when borrower signed note and in writing approved settlement sheet containing item of the one percent commission, the contract was within the eight percent provision of the usury statute, precluding borrower from recovering the amount of interest, Id.

The usury statute may be violated by deducting a commission in advance as well as by any other means by which money in excess of legal rate is exacted. Holcombe v. O'Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 96).

Where a lender's agent with the lenders' knowledge and approval, takes the borrower's separate promissory note payable to himself for his compensation for obtaining the loan for the borrower, the agent cannot recover on the note when the interest on the principal loan plus the agent's commission exceeds the legal rate. Searl v. Earll (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 374).

This section may be violated by deducting a commission in advance as well as by any other means by which money in excess of the legal rate is exacted. Hartman v. Lubar (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 553).

Construction

The Loan Shark Law, § 26-601 et seq., the usury law, this section and § 28-2704 et seq., and the statute regarding financial institutions, § 47-1701 et seq. are to be read together and when so read constitute a comprehensive code for business of lending money in the District of Columbia. Hartman v. Lubar (1943, 133 F. 2d 44, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 95, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1329, 319 U.S. 767, 87 L. Ed. 1716, rehearing denied 64 S. Ct. 30, 320 U.S. 808, 88 L. Ed. 488).

Corporate financing—interest rates

Filing of certificate of withdrawal by foreign corporation did not change status previously acquired by corporation's contracts so that under statute allowing corporations to seek financing without regard to lawful interest rates its complaint for recovery of usurious interest under prior contracts was barred. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Ten Individual Defendants (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Defense

Usury can be invoked as a defense but not as an affirmative cause of action; that is, usury may be used as a shield but not as a sword. Royall v. Yudelevit et al. (D.C.D.C. 1953, 161 F. Supp. 217, reversed on other grounds 268 F. 2d 577).

Where there is a single consideration for one or more promises and any part of the transaction is illegal, the promises are wholly unenforceable. Searl v. Earll (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 374).

Forfeiture

Under this section providing as to a usurious contract that creditor shall forfeit the whole of the interest, forfeiture applies not only to the usurious excess, but also to the lawful interest included in the contract rate, and this section forfeits all of the interest contracted for, if unpaid, or permits recovery, if paid by action within one year after payment. Searl et al. v. Earll (1955, 221 F. 2d 24, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 151).

Holder in due course

In suit between makers of promissory notes aggregating $10,200, secured by deeds of trust on realty, and endorsee of such notes, involving issue as to whether the loan transaction was usurious, evidence sustained finding that the endorsee was not, as he claimed, a holder in due course for value without notice, but that he had actually and knowingly lent money to makers and had used payee as an intermediary to avoid the usury statute. Meredith et al. v. Cabell et al. (1954, 211 F. 2d 810, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 73).

Judgment

In suit between makers of promissory notes aggregating $10,200, secured by deeds of trust on realty, and endorsee of such notes who was in fact the actual lender, involving issue as to whether the loan transaction was usurious, evidence sustained finding that the endorsee had advanced to the makers, in return for the notes, only the sum of $7,510, of which $5,476.10 had been repaid, and warranted judgment that, unless unpaid balance be paid within 30 days, trustees designated in deeds of trust might sell property to satisfy amount found to be due. Meredith et al. v. Cabell et al. (1954, 211 F. 2d 810, 94 U.S. App. D.C. 73).

Knowledge of holder

One who acquires promissory notes with knowledge of usury in their inception is not a bona fide holder for value. Mollohan v. Masters (D.C.D.C. 45 App. D.C. 414, certiorari denied 37 S. Ct. 245, 242 U.S. 652, 61 L. Ed. 546).

Laws applicable to contract

In absence of evidence to contrary it would be presumed that a promissory note which was dated at Washington, D.C., the place of payment being blank, was made in District of Columbia and was payable at place of making and was therefore subject to District of Columbia usury law. Holcombe v. O'Sullivan (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 93 A. 2d 96).

Usurious contract examined and held to be subject to laws of District of Columbia, although expressly declared to be made pursuant to laws of Virginia. Washington Nat. Bldg. & Loans Assn. v. Pifer (1908, 31 App. D.C. 434, 14 Ann. Cas. 734). See also, Croissant v. Empire State Realty Co. (1907, 29 App. D.C. 538).

Where agreement made in Maryland between defendant and certain individuals provided that the individuals should organize a corporation to acquire land in District of Columbia, the corporation to erect buildings thereon and execute to individuals a $19,000 mortgage thereon payable in one year, to be assigned to defendant upon payment of $15,000 to the corporation, and mortgage note was delivered in District of Columbia, where defendant paid the $15,000 and corporation paid the note in full one year later, as between the corporation and defendant the contract was made in District of Columbia, the laws of which permitted corporation to recover money usuriously exacted. Plitt v. Seven Corners Realty (1945, 149 F. 2d 832, 80 U.S. App. D.C. 134).

Liability of agent

An agent was personally liable for unlawful interest which he turned over to his principal with knowledge that the principal was not entitled thereto. Searl et ano. v. Earll (1955, 221 F. 2d 24, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 151).

In suit to recover the unpaid balance on a note given by defendants to plaintiff as commission for securing a loan from plaintiff's wife with counterclaim for usury, plaintiff was subject to separate liability and to a suit individually without joinder of his wife as principal. Id.

Limitations

In suit to recover the unpaid balance of a note with defense of usury, where concealment by plaintiff from defendants of the fact that the lender was his wife constituted fraud, bar of limitations against assertion of the defense of usury did not begin to run against the defendants until the fraud was discovered. Searl et ano. v. Earll (1955, 221 F. 2d 24, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 151).

Occasional loans on real estate

A nonresident who makes occasional loans on real estate is not engaged "in the business" of loaning money within the meaning of the Loan Shark Law. Zirkle v. Daly, (1932, 54 F. 2d 455, 60 App. D.C. 344).

Prepayment charge

Even if premium charged by lender for privilege of permitting borrower to prepay entire amount of outstanding balance on note secured by deed of trust on realty could be considered as interest, transaction was not usurious where total amount of interest paid plus the premium was less than lawful maximum interest computed to date the loan was paid. Atlantic Life Ins. Co. of Richmond, Va. v. Wolf (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 A. 2d 641).

Where neither note nor deed of trust on realty securing the note contained any provision permitting repayment by borrower before specified date of maturity, or vested any right or option of acceleration in borrower, the charge of premium to permit borrower to prepay entire amount of outstanding balance on note could not be considered as "interest", as regards usury. Id.

Purchase at discount

It is not usurious to purchase a note at a discount. Elliott v. Schlein (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 418).

Where discounted notes were taken by creditor in payment of debt and not as security therefor, there was no mortgage so as to render the transaction usurious though the parties agreed that if proceeds realized exceeded amount of debt, debtors should be reimbursed accordingly and that in case of deficiency they would make it up. Krevait v. Turover (D.C. Mun. App. 1944, 39 A. 2d 207).

Where defendants owed plaintiffs money which they could not pay, it was not usury for defendant to give and plaintiff to receive in payment of the debt notes at a discount of 3 percent of their face value multiplied by the number of years required for the maturity of the notes. Id.

It is not usurious to purchase a note at a discount or to accept in payment of a debt a note at less than its face value. Id.

A purchase of negotiable paper in market overt "at a heavy discount below the face value" does not show usury. Metropolitan Loan & Trust Co. v. Schafer (1916, 44 App. D.C. 356).

Licensing statute

"Loan shark law" making it illegal to engage in business of loaning money without procuring a license is a licensing statute, unrelated to and unaffected by usury statutes. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Ten Individual Defendants (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Set-off

Usurious interest cannot be set off against the principal debt. Presbrey v. Thomas (1893, 1 App. D.C. 171).

When usurious interest has been paid or taken, the sole and exclusive remedy for the borrower is by a suit within 12 months to recover the amount of the usury; and the usurious interest could not be made the subject of set-off or counterclaim, when, after the lapse of 12 months suit is instituted for the recovery of the principal claim. Lawrence v. Middle States Loan Bldg. & Constr. Co. (1895, 7 App. D.C. 161).

"A defense of usury good against one obligation will not constitute a valid offset against a distinct and independent obligation, though between the same parties." Metropolitan Loan & Trust Co. v. Schafer (1916, 44 App. D.C. 356).

"If suit is brought on the principal debt after payment of usurious interest, such usury may be made a valid set-off against the principal debt. Usury upon obligations paid and canceled can not be used as a set-off against a subsequent obligation even between the same parties either in law or in equity." Id.

Sufficiency of pleading

In suit to recover the unpaid balance on a note, counterclaim was a sufficient pleading of the defense of usury as a vindication of the defendant's legal right or the remedying of a legal wrong. Searl et ano. v. Earll (1955, 221 F. 2d 24, 95 U.S. App. D.C. 151).

Summary judgment

Assuming original contracts and engagements were illegal and void because of violation of usury statutes and "loan shark law", claims of complaint that parties entered into agreements purporting to settle and compromise original contracts and engagements and that settlement agreements did not eliminate illegality presented complex issues of fact and law and mixed questions of law and fact not susceptible of disposition by summary judgment. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Lichtman (1962, 311 F. 2d 776, 114 U.S. App. D.C. 90).

§ 28-3304. Action to recover usury paid.

If a person or corporation in the District directly or indirectly takes or receives a greater amount of interest than is declared by this chapter to be lawful, whether in advance or not, the person or corporation paying the same may within one year after the date of payment sue for and recover the amount of the unlawful interest so paid. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2704 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1377, ch. 854, § 1181).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW*Admissibility of evidence

Where there was evidence that indorsee finance company for which trustee brought replevin suit to recover chattels named in chattel trust deed securing a note was in the business of lending money rather than solely that of discounting notes in the sense of buying from a creditor an existing obligation at less than face value, proffered evidence consisting of court trials of five municipal court cases in which finance company sued to recover on notes assigned to it was material to defendant's defense that finance company was in business of lending money at rate of interest greater than 6 percent, without required license and should have been admitted. Hartman v. Lubar (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 553).

Cancellation

A suit for cancellation of note and deed of trust on ground of usury, regarded as suit for declaratory judgment that complete defense existed to the obligation on the note, was not barred by this section or three-year general statute, § 12-201. Hill v. Hawes (1944, 144 F. 2d 511, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

This section applies to recovery of any payments made on usurious obligation in excess of amount necessary to extinguish the note, though cancellation of usurious obligation was not barred. Id.

Commissions

Commissions deducted in advance by the lender constitute usury. Von Rosen v. Dean (1930, 41 F. 2d 982, 59 App. D.C. 359).

Construction

The time limitation in this section permitting recovery of all interest paid on a usurious transaction provided suit is begun within one year from date of such payment, is not a general statute of limitations but is a limitation imposed by statute which created right and is limitation of right itself. Earll v. Searl (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 101 A. 2d 248).

Corporate financing—interest rates

Filing of certificate of withdrawal by foreign corporation did not change status previously acquired by corporation's contracts so that under statute allowing corporations to seek financing without regard to lawful interest rates its complaint for recovery of usurious interest under prior contracts was barred. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Ten Individual Defendants (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Defenses

There are no limitations on claim of usury as a defense in a suit based on usurious obligations. Hill v. Hawes (1944, 144 F. 2d 511, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

Although plaintiff's action to recover unpaid balance on note given by defendants to plaintiff as commission for obtaining a loan was brought more than one year after last payment, usury would defeat recovery pro tanto on the note, but affirmative relief by way of recovery of payments made was barred by this section. Earll v. Searl (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 101 A. 2d 248).

Inferences

Where defendant had subpoenas duces tecum served upon officers of indorsee finance company for which trustee was maintaining replevin suit to compel them to produce at trial all records regarding the company for purpose of showing that company was in business of lending money at rate of interest greater than 6 percent without required license, and officers failed to produce the records, jury could infer from failure to produce subpoenaed records that contents thereof would have been unfavorable to trustee's case. Hartman v. Lubar (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 R. 2d 553).

Interest forfeited

Whole of the interest contracted to be paid by the terms of the trust is forfeited as usury when the trust deed for amount in addition to the loan was payable to an intermediary who professed to sell the same to the actual lender. Quinn v. National Mtg. & Inv. Co. (1932, 57 F. 2d 410, 61 App. D.C. 44).

This section authorizing recovery of all "unlawful interest" paid on a loan, does not limit recovery to the amount above the lawful rate of interest, but authorizes recovery of the whole of the interest paid. Cockrell v. First Federal Savings & Loan Ass'n (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 621).

Joint action

Action for recovery of usury brought by joint makers of note within one year after last payment on debt by one of the makers was not barred, even as to maker who had made no payment on debt for more than one year. Knott v. Jackson (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 662).

Where makers related by marriage or blood executed a joint and several note secured by joint deed of trust on two properties, and proceeds of note were used by them under an apparent joint agreement, the three joint makers could maintain joint action and obtain joint judgment for usury admittedly paid, even though they could not show exactly what amount each had individually paid. Id.

Laches

An action to cancel usurious obligation was not barred by laches, in view of this section allowing recovery of usurious payments made within one year before suit, regardless of date of the note, since refusal of cancellation would merely result in circuity of action. Hill v. Hawes (1944, 144 F. 2d 511, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

Pleading

Where borrowers sought to recover usurious interest more than one year after last payment, lender's agent did not waive defense of one year time limitation by failing to plead it in view of fact that time limitation was imposed by this section which created the right and unlike statute of limitations it did not have to be pleaded in defense. Earll v. Searl (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 101 A. 2d 248).

Where both the original and amended complaints were based on a claim for usury paid on account of a loan to plaintiff and it was apparent that defendants were not misled by an amendment setting up different dates and amounts, the amendment did not set up a "new cause of action" barred by limitations. Cockrell v. First Federal Savings & Loan Ass'n (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 621).

Purchase at discount

Evidence did not sustain finding that lender was purchaser of note secured by trust deed and was not in fact the lender of the amount loaned thereon but established that the pretense of buying the note from the vendor was nothing more than an attempt to cover up the usurious loan, and hence the borrower was entitled to recover usurious interest paid. Elliott v. Schlein (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 418).

Questions for jury

In action by joint makers of note for recovery of usury, question whether $50 payment made by lender to his attorney on account of expenses and fees in connection with the loan was proper charge against the borrowers was properly submitted to jury. Knott v. Jackson (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 662).

Where joint makers of note instituted joint action for recovery of usury but lender contended that one maker, upon making payment more than one year before institution of action, was released from all obligation under note and that as a consequence her claim was barred by one-year limitation of this section, question whether such maker was released from further personal liability at time she made the payment was properly submitted to jury. Id.

Repayment of loan

One-year limitation runs, not from the time that usurious interest may have been deducted, but from the time the last payment was made. "Until that time the full amount of the deduction had not been paid by her. There could be no usurious interest collected until the appellee had paid the full amount she received, together with legal interest." Brown v. Slocum (1908, 30 App. D.C. 576).

Section 28-2703 et seq. relating to usury do not destroy the obligation to repay the principal on account of the usury, but requires a forfeiture of all interest contracted for, if unpaid, or permits its recovery, if paid, by action begun within one year after payment. Cockrell v. First Federal Savings & Loan Ass'n (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 33 A. 2d 621).

An action to recover usurious interest paid can only be maintained after last payment on debt has been made. Knott v. Jackson (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 31 A. 2d 662).

A loan transaction which would be free from usury if loan were paid at agreed maturity date is not rendered usurious by borrower's voluntary repayment of loan before maturity, even though, by reason of such repayment, amount of interest received by lender exceeds lawful interest computed to day the loan is paid, provided that total interest received by lender does not exceed lawful interest computed to maturity date stipulated in loan contract. Atlantic Life Ins. Co. of Richmond, Va. v. Wolf (D.C. Mun. App. 1947, 54 A. 2d 641).

Running of period

In action to recover unpaid balance on note given by defendants to plaintiff as commision for obtaining a loan which was made by plaintiff's wife to defendants through straw party, one year time limitation would not be extended in absence of evidence of fraud on part of plaintiff in concealing name of actual lender. Earll v. Searl (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 101 A. 2d 248).

Sufficiency of evidence

In replevin by trustee of indorsee finance company to recover chattels named in trust deed securing a note, evidence that loan was usurious, in that an amount in excess of legal rate was deducted in advance and that plaintiff knew the amount deducted in advance, was sufficient to make defense of illegality available to defendant. Hartman v. Lubar (D.C. Mun. App. 1946, 49 A. 2d 553).

§ 28-3305. Unlawful interest credited on principal debt.

In an action upon a contract for the payment of money with interest at a rate forbidden by law, any payment of interest that may have been made on account of the contract is deemed to be payment made on account of the principal debt; and judgment shall be rendered for no more than the balance found due after deducting and properly crediting the interest so paid. A bona fide indorsee of negotiable paper purchased before due is not affected by any usury exacted by a former holder of the paper unless he had notice of the usury before his purchase. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2705 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1378, ch. 854, § 1182; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 542, ch. 1329).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Innocent holders for value

No relief to borrowers of money at usurious rates against innocent holders for value. Whipp v. Glueck (1932, 58 F. 2d 523, 61 App. D. C. 118).

Maker of new notes

Quaere, whether maker of new notes to take the place of former usurious notes to which he was a party can take advantage of this section and plead usury as a defense to all except the principal sum due. King v. Curtin (1908, 31 App. D.C. 23).

Recovery of interest

Finance company, which was not a holder in due course of promissory note calling for usurious rate of interest, was not entitled to recover any interest on note. J. W. Beatty v. Franklin Investment Co. Inc. (1963, 319 F. 2d 712, 115 U.S. App. D.C. 311).

§ 28-3306. Parties compelled to testify.

When in an action to recover a debt the defendant claims that payment of unlawful interest on the debt has been made to the plaintiff or those under whom he claims, which the defendant is entitled to have credited on the principal of the debt, the plaintiff or the party who received the unlawful interest may be examined as a witness to prove the payment, and may not be excused from testifying in relation thereto. A creditor who is made defendant in a proceeding for discovery as to payments of unlawful interest made to him may not be excused from answering. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-2706 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1378, ch. 854, § 1183).

Chapter 35.—STATUTE OF FRAUDS

- Sec.
- 28-3501. Estate created otherwise than by deed.
  - 28-3502. Special promise to answer for debt or default of another.
  - 28-3503. Declaration, grant, and assignment of trust.
  - 28-3504. New promise or acknowledgment of contract—Action against joint contractors.
  - 28-3505. New promise or acknowledgment of debt incurred during infancy.

§ 28-3501. Estate created otherwise than by deed.

An estate, attempted to be created for a greater term than one year in real estate, other than by deed, is an estate by sufferance. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-3001 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1367, ch. 854, § 1116).

The term “real estate” is substituted for “lands, tenements, or hereditaments” to conform with the style of revisions generally.

Changes are made in phraseology.

CROSS REFERENCE

Other provisions requiring estates in lands to be created by written instrument, see §§ 45-106, 45-820.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Assignment of lease

An assignment of a lease conveys an interest in realty and comes within the statute of frauds if for a greater term than one year, however, it is well established that an oral agreement creating an interest in land which has been carried into effect is valid and enforceable and where the lessee turns the premises over to the assignee and the assignee enters into possession with the consent of the lessor and pays rent, the assignment is complete and the rights and liabilities of the parties are not affected by the statute. Diatz v. Washington Technical School (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 73 A. 2d 227, rehearing denied 73 A. 2d 718).

Executed oral assignment

An oral agreement creating an interest in land which has been carried into effect is valid. Mars v. Spanos (1944, 139 F. 2d 369, 78 U.S. App. D.C. 230).

Where retiring partner received back his contributions to partnership and orally assigned to copartner rights in five-year lease of store, lease became property of general partnership under oral agreement between assignee and third person, and general partnership immediately took possession of leased premises with implied consent of landlord and discharged obligations under lease until dissolved by order of court, as respects rights of assignors and assignees, both assignments were completely executed and hence not avoidable for violation of this section. Id.

Extension agreement

A written six months' extension agreement which was entered into by lessor and lessees before expiration of five-year lease, and which did not create or purport to create a new estate, and which made no change in original lease except to fix new expiration date, was valid although not under seal, and lessees would not be entitled to thirty-day notice to quit as tenants at sufferance. Binder v. Jaffe (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 101 A. 2d 260).

Lease by agent-lessor

Where by terms of lease the agent-lessor formally let and demised property to lessee for a term and in the acknowledgment the instrument was referred to as deed of lease, deed, and “act and deed” of the parties and instrument was signed and sealed by agent-lessor, such instrument was a conveyance which satisfied statute requiring that a lease shall be evidenced by deed signed and sealed by the lessor and consequently lessee was not a tenant by sufferance. Paul v. Holloway (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 122 A. 2d 774).

Ouster of tenants

Plaintiff-grantee could not ignore the legal procedure provided for ousting tenants, and compromise with them for a sum which it might elect to pay, and then recover that sum from defendant-grantors upon any basis of breach of warranty. Standard Sav. Bank v. Stone (1922, 280 F. 1016, 52 App. D.C. 42).

Parol agreement

In suit for specific performance of deceased's alleged parol agreement to leave house and premises to plaintiff in consideration for his caring for deceased, where plaintiff and wife moved into house after it was purchased by deceased, plaintiff paid no rent during lifetime of deceased who occupied room of house and occasionally ate meals with plaintiff, evidence supported judgment dismissing action on ground that performance was not sufficient to take case out of operation of statute of frauds. Slaughter v. Madison (1943, 135 F. 2d 650, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 226, certiorari denied 63 S. Ct. 1331, 319 U.S. 768, 87 L. Ed. 1717).

Termination of oral tenancy

Where, at most, claim of tenant was that landlord orally promised that tenant could remain in possession of lot used as a parking lot at such rental as landlord might from time to time fix and to which tenant might agree, landlord's notice to tenant to quit terminated the tenancy, though landlord had allegedly agreed that lease was to run until landlord desired to erect a building on the lot. Snitman v. Goodman et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 118 A. 2d 394).

§ 28-3502. Special promise to answer for debt or default of another.

An action may not be brought to charge an executor or administrator upon a special promise to answer damages out of his own estate, or to charge the defendant upon a special promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of another person, or to charge a person upon an agreement made upon consideration of marriage, or upon a contract or sale of real estate, of any interest in or concerning it, or upon an agreement that is not to be performed within one year from the making thereof, unless the agreement upon which the action is brought, or a memorandum or note thereof, is in writing, which need not state the consideration and signed by the party to be charged therewith or a person authorized by him. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-3002 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1367, ch. 854, § 1117).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Acknowledgment

Where defendant, with whom plaintiff had made a gratuitous bailment of money, wrote plaintiff, in response to letters requesting payment of the money, that he was in no position "at present" to send plaintiff any money, the letter was sufficient acknowledgment of the debt to stop running of statute of limitations. Irvine v. Grado-ville (1955, 221 F. 2d 544, 95 U.S. D.C. 263).

Ambiguities

Necessary elements of a writing required by statute of frauds may not be supplied by parol, but ambiguities in the terms may be resolved by other evidence. Sweeney v. Jacobsen (D.C.D.C. 1952, 103 F. Supp. 399, affirmed 202 F. 2d 461, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 93).

Application generally

This section applies to an agreement which appears from its terms to be incapable of performance within a year. Street v. Maddux (1928, 24 F. 2d 617, 58 App. D.C. 42).

In action brought by real estate broker for damages resulting from alleged breach by defendant of agreement whereunder defendant allegedly promised to pay to broker and defendant's son an amount equal to retail price of realty over specified amount, if broker and defendant's son would assist defendant in obtaining title to realty for specified price, wherein broker claimed no interest in realty, statute of frauds was not applicable and afforded no defense. Kyle v. Wiley (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 78 A. 2d 769).

Approval

The fact that printed form used in making agreement for purchase of realty provided that the deposit was subject to the owner's approval did not render agreement signed by purchasers and broker but not by owner unenforceable under this section where such approval had previously been given in exchange of telegrams between owner and broker. Ochs v. Weil (1944, 142 F. 2d 758, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 84).

Contract signed by purchaser only

Where purchaser brought action against vendor for breach of contract to convey land and only produced carbon copy of contract bearing only the signature of the purchaser, such document was no more than an offer to buy and was within statute of frauds and was unenforceable against vendor. Greenfield v. Murray, Executor (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 117 A. 2d 227).

Description of property

If contract contains in itself no description of the property to be sold, standing alone, no court of equity could specifically enforce it, but, if the description is found in other writings, forming part and parcel of the transaction, the omission is not fatal. Shell Eastern Petroleum Products v. White (1934, 68 F. 2d 379, 62 App. D.C. 332).

Estoppel

One who induces another by a parol agreement to change his position so materially that unless inducing agreement is enforced a fraud results is estopped to set up statute of frauds to bar such enforcement. Brewood v. Cook et al. (1953, 207 F. 2d 439, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 386).

That employee, upon obtaining employment, came from Harrisburg to Washington, did not estop employer asserting that alleged oral contract for two years' employment was barred by statute of frauds. Easter v. Kass-Berger, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 121 A. 2d 868).

Evidence

In action against vendor by purchaser to have contract for sale of realty canceled and to recover payments made under the contract, on ground that purchaser was induced to sign a contract by fraudulent misrepresentations of vendor, evidence of settlement agreed to by the parties after suit had been begun, was properly admitted over objection that offers to compromise are not admissible in support of a contested claim or defense, though agreement was oral and payments were not to be completed within one year, so that no suit could have been brought on the agreement itself. Hiltpold v. Stern (D.C. Mun. App. 1951, 82 A. 2d 123).

Fraud

Doctrine of fraud may be invoked to prevent statute of frauds from becoming an instrument of fraud. Easter v. Kass-Berger, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 121 A. 2d 868).

In absence of other and stronger circumstances, a mere refusal to perform an oral agreement is not such fraud as to prevent application of statute of frauds, despite hardship to a plaintiff. Id.

Improvements

One who has been induced to alter his position and make improvements on property based on a parol contract may enforce such contract in the courts notwithstanding this section. De Grazia v. Anderson (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 62 A. 2d 194).

Memorandum

One party's memorandum, evidencing oral agreement for sale of land, not signed by other parties or any one on their behalf was insufficient. Bell v. Morgan (1952, 199 F. 2d 168, 91 U.S. App. D.C. 65).

Where there was a full and definite agreement as to all essentials which parties intended to be binding, and the parties signed a memorandum which was sufficient to satisfy the statute of frauds, execution of a formal contract as contemplated by the memorandum was not necessary to effect a valid contract between the parties. Sweeney v. Jacobsen (D.C.D.C. 1952, 103 F. Supp. 393, affirmed 202 F. 2d 461, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 93).

Written memorandum, signed by two parties, which stated that a $500 deposit had been received from one of the parties, and that such deposit represented partial payment on agreed price of $7,500 cash and assumption of existing note in purchase of business and machinery of named business, the location of which was stated, plus agreement of lease, and which stated that formal contract was to be drawn later, with full settlement within 30 days of such memorandum, was sufficiently definite and certain to satisfy statute of frauds, since it left no doubt as to who was purchaser, who was seller, what property was involved, and what the terms were. Id.

A written memorandum, to remove an oral agreement for two years' employment of statute of frauds, must state all promises of parties with sufficient clarity and definiteness to render essential terms of agreement clear without resort to parol testimony. Easter v. Kass-Berger, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 121 A. 2d 868).

Letter wherein defendant offered employment and stated that defendant was likely to be busy for at least the succeeding two years was not a sufficient memorandum of an alleged oral contract for two years' employment to remove contract from statute of frauds. Id.

— Disclosure or vendor

A contract for the sale of land, where the memorandum fails to disclose the name of the vendor, can not be enforced. Storrow v. Concord Club (1934, 70 F. 2d 852, 63 App. D.C. 190).

Where owner employed broker to sell realty and in response to broker's telegram regarding cash offer and query "Advise immediately if accepted," owner telegraphed broker to accept offer and asked for $1,000 deposit and thereafter broker and purchasers signed agreement which identified purchasers and property and fully set out purchase price and manner of payment, the contract was binding under this section, notwithstanding the owner's name did not appear in the agreement and it was never signed by him. Ochs v. Weil (1944, 142 F. 2d 758, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 84).

Where owner employed broker to sell realty and in response to broker's telegram regarding cash offer and query "Advise immediately if accepted", owner telegraphed broker to accept offer, the fact that agreement, which was signed by broker and purchasers, did not name owner and was sent to owner who refused to sign it did not establish that broker did not have authority to make agreement binding on owner under this section. Id.

Where contract for sale of real estate described the seller as the "seller" and there was no description of the premises allegedly involved except that the contract stated that the premises were "owner occupied", there was no reasonably sufficient description of the premises involved and parol testimony was inadmissible to supply the description. Fitzgan v. Burke (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 721).

Option within year

While plaintiff's contract with defendant was in parol, the option might have been exercised within a year, and the statute therefore did not apply. Campbell v. Rawlings (1922, 280 F. 1011, 52 App. D.C. 37, 23 A.L.R. 854).

Oral promise

Where debt of open advertising account had been incurred by corporation, and after corporation had become insolvent, one of the officers made several payments on debt with his personal funds and stated that he wanted advertiser to get his money, it was doubtful that oral statement constituted a promise to pay corporate debt and even assuming it did, any claim based on it was barred by statute of frauds. Alvin Epstein Advertising Corp. v. Helfer and Spector (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 138 A. 2d 925).

— Stockholder's oral promise

In action by creditor of corporation against its sole stockholder on alleged oral promise to pay corporation's debts, evidence, verbal or documentary, failed to establish consideration which would support an original promise to pay debt, independent of simultaneous responsibility of corporation. Smith v. Lo Castro (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 486).

— Extension by oral agreement

Under District of Columbia law, provision for time of performance in contract for sale of business and leasehold of premises upon which business was conducted, which contract was required to be in writing and signed by party to be charged, could validly be extended by oral agreement, where time was not of essence of contract. Jacobsen v. Sweeney (1953, 202 F. 2d 461, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 93).

Where lessor and lessees entered into written six months' extension agreement before expiration of five-year lease, lessees were not entitled to remain in possession past the extension period on basis of alleged parol option for additional six months' extension beyond first extension in view of fact that alleged option did not comply with Statute of Frauds and was not supported by any consideration. Binder v. Jaffe (D.C. Mun. App. 1953, 101 A. 2d 260).

Parol evidence

Where time is not of the essence of a written contract within the statute of frauds, strict compliance with covenant as to time of performance may be waived, prior to breach, by oral agreement of the parties without affecting other provisions of the written contract, and the mutual promises of the parties are sufficient consideration for such oral agreement. Sweeney v. Jacobsen (D.C.D.C. 1952, 103 F. Supp. 393, affirmed 202 F. 2d 461, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 93).

The existence of a separate oral agreement as to any matter on which a written contract is silent, and which is not inconsistent with its terms, may be proved by parol, if under the circumstances it may be properly inferred that the party did not intend the writing to be a complete and final statement of the whole transaction. Jay's Restaurant v. Jack Stone Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1949, 62 A. 2d 799).

Performance—Defeasance distinguished

An oral contract wherein plaintiff was to assume duties of resident manager of an apartment development for which services he was to receive $75 per week in addition to a rent-free apartment for the duration of the contract which was to continue until plaintiff completed his law studies as a student duly matriculated at a law school or unless plaintiff were obliged to discontinue his law studies because of deficient scholarship or for some similar reason, was void under the statute of frauds as an agreement not to be performed within the space of one year from the making thereof, in view of fact that at the time of contract plaintiff had approximately three years of law studies to complete, and in view of fact that provision for termination of the contract which might have occurred within one year was not performance necessary to take the agreement out of the operation of the statute. Coan, Jr. v. Orsinger and Tyler Gardens Corp. (1959, 265 F. 2d 575, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 201).

Fact that a contract may be terminated, or further performance rendered impossible, within the period of one year, does not take it out of the statute of frauds where the obligation is one which cannot be performed within the year, since discharge from liability under a contract is not performance thereof within the statute. Id.

— Partial performance

Remaining in employ of one orally agreeing to devise real estate when husband wished to move to another city did not amount to such a change in the course of service in life of promisee as would justify invocation of exceptional rule of equity permitting specific performance. Faunce v. Woods (1925, 5 F. 2d 753, 55 App. D.C. 330, 40 A.L.R. 208).

That employee worked for six weeks under alleged oral contract for two years' employment was not sufficient part performance to take contract from statute of frauds. Easter v. Kass-Berger, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 121 A. 2d 868).

Generally, nothing short of full performance will take a contract not to be performed within one year from within statute of frauds. Id.

— Susceptible of performance within one year

An alleged co-broker's agreement was not within the statute of frauds where it would have been fully performed as soon as the purchaser purchased the building site which could have occurred within one year, it being immaterial that the sale for which commissions were sought took place more than a year after the alleged co-broker's agreement. Snyder etc. v. Hillegeist et al. (1957, 246 F. 2d 649, 100 U.S. App. D.C. 368).

An agreement which is capable, possible or susceptible of performance within one year is not within the statute of frauds. Id.

— Time of performance

Although time of performance was specifically provided in written memorandum, in view of mutual agreement between parties on or before date of performance to waive strict compliance and to extend time for the performance, time was not of the essence of the contract, and therefore the contract as orally extended was not void under statute of frauds. Sweeney v. Jacobsen (D.C.D.C. 1952, 103 F. Supp. 393, affirmed 202 F. 2d 461, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 93).

Personal obligation

Where principal contract did not cover additional work which owner, through general contractor requested plumbing subcontractor to perform for owner, subcontractor's claim against owner was based on owner's personal promise to pay owner's own debt and not debt of another, and § 38-121 authorizing subcontractor to recover amount owed by original contractor from owner who specially promises in writing for consideration to be answerable for such amount was inapplicable to subcontractor's claim against owner, and such claim was not within this section requiring special promise to answer for debt of another person to be in writing. Jones v. Guice (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 57 A. 2d 190).

Pleading

Complaint, alleging in effect that owner employed broker to sell realty, that in response to broker's telegram regarding cash offer and query "Advise immediately if accepted," owner telegraphed broker to accept offer and that broker and purchasers signed agreement which carried out authority granted to broker and which identified purchasers and property and set out purchase price and manner of payment, stated a claim on which relief could be granted, although agreement did not name, and was not signed by owner. Ochs v. Weil (1944, 142 F. 2d 758, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 84).

Question for court

Where evidence is clear and unconflicting, legal sufficiency of memorandum to remove case from statute of frauds is question for court. Easter v. Kass-Berger, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 121 A. 2d 868).

Renewal notice under lease

Where extended term of a lease is fixed by and is a part of the original written lease, and comes into existence merely by lessee's exercising his option and giving required notice, no question as to application of statute of frauds arises. Worthing, T/A etc. v. Serkes (D.C. Mun. App. 1955, 111 A. 2d 877).

Renewal notice of tenant unsigned, but bearing stamped trade name, enclosed in the same envelope containing his rental check which bore tenant's signature and trade name was sufficient compliance with requirements of lease. Id.

Review

In action by creditor of corporation against its sole stockholder on alleged oral promise to pay corporation's debt, in view of general findings in favor of stockholder, municipal court of appeals must assume that issues of consideration, and whether promise, if made, was an original and independent or merely a collateral promise to answer for the debt, default, or miscarriage of the corporation, had been resolved in favor of stockholder. Smith v. Lo Castro (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 134 A. 2d 486).

Sale—Leasehold

Under District of Columbia law, agreement for sale of business and leasehold of premises upon which business was conducted, covered an interest in land and was required to be in writing and signed by party to be charged. Jacobsen v. Sweeney (1953, 202 F. 2d 461, 92 U.S. App. D.C. 93).

— Realty

Under statute of frauds, a contract for sale of realty is valid and enforceable only when it is in writing and there is sufficient description of property to be sold, price to be paid and the names of parties to transaction. P. T. Apostolides, etc. v. G. Colecchia, et al. (D.C. App. 1966, 221 A. 2d 437).

Under this section, an agreement for sale of real estate is enforceable only when it is in writing and there is a sufficient description of the thing sold, the price to be paid, and the names of the party selling and the party buying, and none of such elements can be supplied by parol testimony. Ochs v. Weil (1944, 142 F. 2d 758, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 84). See, also, Fitzaan v. Burke (D.C. Mun. App. 1948, 61 A. 2d 721).

Settlements

The statute of frauds requiring written evidence of an agreement to answer for the death, default or miscarriage of another is not applicable where the settlement agreement in compromise rested on the theory of direct liability by reason of ownership of the striking car. Saunders System Washington Co. v. Kuffner (D.C. Mun. App. 1950, 75 A. 2d 136).

Trusts

Where complaint charged facts indicating that defendant held all but her own share of land in question charged with a constructive trust for plaintiff and certain other designated persons, plaintiff was not foreclosed from recovery of her share by this section. Major v. Shaver (1946, 6 F.R.D. 207).

Unjust enrichment

Where plaintiff's alleged oral option to purchase land was invalid under statute of frauds, and plaintiff's alleged action in interesting third party to purchase land was not for benefit of landowners but solely to enable plaintiff to make profit, unintended benefit conferred on landowners when they sold to such third party at higher price was not necessarily unjust and plaintiff could not recover value of the benefit under theory of unjust enrichment. Rosenkoff v. Finkelstein (1952, 195 F. 2d 203, 90 U.S. App. D.C. 263).

Waiver

In discharged employee's action to recover salary after discharge, wherein employer at outset denied alleged contract of employment and made it clear that employer was relying on statute of frauds, employee's testimony as to conversation concerning employment was admissible on issue as to whether there had been an oral agreement for employment, and employer's failure to object to such testimony did not constitute a waiver of the defense based on statute of frauds. Easter v. Kass-Berger, Inc. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 121 A. 2d 868).

Writings

Generally, a check may be deemed to be a writing sufficient to satisfy requirements of statute of frauds if it bears notations or contains references to papers which embody the essential terms of the contract. Alvin Epstein Advertising Corp. v. Helfer and Spector (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 138 A. 2d 925).

Even if oral statements constituted a promise to pay debt of corporation, issuance of three personal checks by alleged promisor in part payment of debt where checks were not in evidence could not constitute a writing sufficient to satisfy requirements of statute of frauds. Id.

— Related writings

A complete contract regarding realty binding under this section may be gathered from letters, writings and telegrams between the parties relating to the subject matter of the contract when so connected with each other that they may be fairly said to constitute one paper relating to the contract. Ochs v. Weil (1944, 142 F. 2d 758, 79 U.S. App. D.C. 84).

§ 28-3503. Declaration, grant, and assignment of trust.

A declaration or creation of trust or confidence of real estate which is not in writing, signed by the party who is by law enabled to declare the trust or by his last will in writing, is void.

A grant or assignment of a trust or confidence which is not in writing, signed by the party granting or assigning it, or by his last will, is void.

Where a conveyance is made of real estate by which a trust or confidence is or may arise or result by the implication or construction of law, or is transferred or extinguished by an act or operation of law, the trust or confidence is of the same effect as it would have been if this section had not been enacted. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 676, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-3003 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1367, ch. 854, § 1118).

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Fraudulent verbal promise

Facts presented bring case within the second provision of the Statute of Frauds and a trust would result by implication or construction of law. Bennett v. Bennett (D.C.D.C. 1949, 83 F. Supp. 19).

Generally

This section requires, not only that writing be sufficient to establish trust, but that it show precisely what the trust covers. Moore v. Guy (1943, 135 F. 2d 476, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 379).

The requisite of certainty in instrument creating trust in realty includes subject matter embraced within trust, beneficiaries, the nature and quantity of interests which they are to have and manner in which trust is to be performed. Moore v. Guy (1943, 135 F. 2d 476, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 379). See also, Loehler Constr. Co. v. Auth (1931, 51 F. 2d 435, 60 App. D.C. 273).

Implied trusts

Implied or resulting trusts are recognized by the law in force in the District of Columbia. Haliday v. Haliday (1926, 11 F. 2d 565, 56 App. D.C. 179).

The statute relating to declarations and grants of trust and to implied trusts did not preclude court from recognizing as a trust fund money on deposit with building association in name of testatrix as trustee for her grandson who was a polio victim. In re Scott's Estate (D.C.D.C. 1951, 96 F. Supp. 290).

Informal writing sufficient

The writing required to prove the trust may be informal provided it establishes the fact and the terms of the trust. Tschiffely v. Tschiffely (1940, 107 F. 2d 191, 70 App. D.C. 386).

Oral agreements

Where landlord brought suit against tenant for unpaid rent and caused writ of attachment before judgment to be sued out, and under writ, money, which had been received by auctioneer from sale of tenant's mortgaged furniture and furnishings, was seized, and tenant moved to quash writ, and agent of chattel mortgagee intervened, claiming that the money was not subject to attachment because of alleged oral agreement with tenant that sum realized from sale of furniture and furnishings should be paid to mortgagee in full settlement of mortgaged debt, alleged oral agreement was without force or effect under statute of frauds to defeat rights of landlord. Thurm v. Wall (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 835).

Parol trust unenforceable

Parol trust agreement is unenforceable under status of frauds. Baldi v. Ambrogi (1937, 89 F. 2d 845, 67 App. D.C. 101). See, also, Chiswell v. Johnston (1924, 299 F. 681, 55 App. D.C. 3); Dahlgren v. Dahlgren (1924, 1 F. 2d 755, 55 App. D.C. 52, certiorari denied 45 S. Ct. 125, 266 U.S. 626, 69 L. Ed. 475).

Taxation

Where taxpayer and his housekeeper had entered into agreement whereby he bought and paid for house but title was taken in her name, and, pursuant to agreement that house should belong to survivor upon death of other, housekeeper had willed house to taxpayer, transfer of house to taxpayer at death of his housekeeper was subject to tax under District of Columbia Code section taxing all property transferred from any person who may die, seized or possessed thereof, either by will, or by law, or by right of survivorship. Slyder v. District of Columbia (1951, 187 F. 2d 217, 88 U.S. App. D.C. 170).

Third parties

Verbal trusts are without force or effect under statute of frauds to defeat rights of third parties. Thurm v. Wall (D.C. Mun. App. 1954, 104 A. 2d 835).

Writing, sufficiency of Where wife first executed deed conveying to husband one-third interest in property and then, having kept possession of deed, destroyed it, simultaneously making will devising property to her brother and sister, and still later wife wrote explanatory letter to husband stating that her brother and sister would deal fairly with him and "Do the best you can, and sell, and enjoy the little I have been able to accumulate and which I now gladly and lovingly pass on to the three of you", the letter was not a "declaration of trust" in favor of husband. Moore v. Guy (1943, 135 F. 2d 476, 77 U.S. App. D.C. 379).

In an action upon a simple contract, an acknowledgement or promise by words only is not sufficient evidence of a new or continuing contract whereby to take the case out of the operation of the statute of limitations or to deprive a party of the benefit thereof unless the acknowledgement or promise is in writing, signed by the party chargeable thereby. This section does not alter or take away, or lessen the effect of a payment of principal or interest made by any person. In actions against two or more joint contractors, or executors, or administrators, if it appears at the trial, or otherwise, that the plaintiff, though barred by the statute of limitations as to one or more of the defendants, is nevertheless entitled to recover against any other defendant by virtue of a new acknowledgement or promise or otherwise, judgment may be given for the plaintiff as to that defendant. An indorsement or memorandum of a payment written or made upon a promissory note, bill of exchange, or other writing, by or on behalf of the party to whom the payment is to be made, is sufficient proof of the payment so as to take the case out of the operation of the statute of limitations. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 677, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1. eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

Based on D.C. Code, 1961 ed., § 28-3005 (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1390, ch. 854, § 1271).

The term "real estate" is substituted for "lands, tenements, or hereditaments" to conform with the style of revisions generally.

Changes are made in phraseology.

NOTES TO DECISIONS UNDER PRIOR LAW

Prior decisions

Mann v. Cooper (1894, 2 App. D.C. 226); Flannery v. Maine Red Granite Co. (1894, 3 App. D.C. 395); Pumphrey v. Boggan (1896, 8 App. D.C. 449); Cropley v. Eyster (1896, 9 App. D.C. 373); Reed v. Tierney (1898, 12 App. D.C. 165).

Acknowledgment

Defendant can not be permitted, after he has made an acknowledgment, the effect of which may be to remove the bar, or to prevent the running of the statute, as to a particular account, upon a different occasion, by his declaration or claim, to overcome, qualify, or defeat the effect of his previous acknowledgment. Bean v. Wheatley (1898, 13 App. D.C. 473).

A promise to pay to the creditor an indebtedness at such time as creditor should need it is not a conditional promise to pay but an acknowledgment and new promise, and sufficient to avoid bar of statute of limitations Cooper v. Olcott (1893, 1 App. D.C. 123).

Acknowledgment of partner

When debt is legally subsisting and not affected by the statute of limitations, an acknowledgment or promise of one partner will avoid the operation of the statute as to the rest. Flannery v. Maine Red Granite Co. (1894, 3 App. D.C. 395).

Estoppel

Oral statements of maker which at most represented bare verbal promises to pay the debt at a vague future time with an implied request for forbearance by the payee until maker could secure more funds did not estop maker from claiming the three year statute of limitations. Grass v. Eiker, trading as T. E. Eiker & Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 135 A. 2d 153).

Evidence

Testimony of oral acknowledgment and promise to pay debt within statute of limitations is admissible in action against one upon the debt when there is other and written evidence consisting of letters relating to the debt, as § 1271 does not make testimony of oral acknowledgment wholly inadmissible, but provides only that it shall not be sufficient evidence. Shelley v. Westcott (1904, 23 App. D.C. 135).

Parol evidence, if competent, is admissible as to indorsement of payment on note. Madison v. White (1932, 54 F. 2d 440, 60 App. D.C. 329).

Evidence of a new promise may be given under the general issue joined on the plea of limitations. Pumphrey v. Boggan (1896, 8 App. D.C. 449).

Extension of time

Agreement for the extension of time for payment was good and binding upon the parties thereto; and consequently the right of action upon the note, by reason of such extension of time for payment, did not accrue until the 16th of March 1894; and as this action was commenced on the 19th of February 1897, therefore the statute of limitations formed no bar to the right of recovery. Reed v. Tierney (1898, 12 App. D.C. 165).

Judgment for execution

Judgment for execution is a new judgment and statute of limitations begins to run from the new date. Mann v. Cooper (1894, 2 App. D.C. 226).

New contracts

Where payee surrendered note to maker in January, 1949, at which time the note was not barred by three-year statute of limitations, and the maker in turn gave the payee a second note which was a direct promise to pay, the second note was within statute under which a new or continuing contract takes a case out of the operation of statute of limitations, and hence suit instituted on second note on October 31, 1949, was not barred by three-year statute of limitations, notwithstanding that more than three years had then elapsed since the signing of the first note. Garfinkle v. Needle (1953, 201 F. 2d 202, 91 U.S. App. D.C. 342).

This section respecting form of acknowledgement in actions of debt, or upon the case, grounded upon any simple contract, in order to take case out of operation of statute of limitations, has reference only to a unilateral act or statement, and does not render ineffective a new promise supported by contemporaneous consideration. Cafritz v. Koslow (1948, 167 F. 2d 749, 83 U.S. App. D.C. 212).

Where plaintiff, in sister's action to recover money allegedly loaned to brother, was seeking to recover on basis of new relationship founded upon oral contract whereby old indebtedness barred by limitations was incorporated as an element of consideration, old indebtedness, if it ever existed and remained unsatisfied, would afford consideration for new oral contract, since statute of limitations operated merely to extinguish the remedy and not the right. Id.

Notes secured by mortgage

On petition by holder of one of two notes secured by mortgage for leave to participate in sale of mortgaged property in foreclosure proceedings by the holder of the other note, in this proceeding the bar of limitation, or lapse of time, does not apply, as in case of an action on the note, but to the remedy for the enforcement of an equitable right in land under the mortgage; hence the same period that would bar an ejectment is required. Cropley v. Eyster (1896, 9 App. D.C. 373).

Sufficiency of acknowledgment

An acknowledgment or promise must be made either to the creditor or to someone acting for him, or to some third person with intent that it be known by and influence the action of the creditor, in order to take a case out of the statute of limitations. Grass v. Eiker, Trading as T. E. Eiker & Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 123 A. 2d 613).

The mere listing of debts in a report to the Securities and Exchange Commission is not an acknowledgment sufficient to stop the running of the statute of limitations against such debts. Id.

"To effect a confirmation of a contract entered into during infancy, the act must have been done with knowledge that the contract was voidable." Manning v. Gannon (1915, 44 App. D.C. 98). See, also, Gannon v. Manning (1914, 42 App. D.C. 206).

"A distinct and unequivocal acknowledgment by the debtor of the debt as a still subsisting personal obligation constitutes an implied promise to pay it, and this, 'according to all the authorities, is all that is required to remove the statute in the case of a simple contract'" (referring to such a promise in writing). Green v. Reeves (1917, 47 App. D.C. 83). See, also, Hornblower v. George Washington University (1908, 31 App. D.C. 64, 14 Ann. Cas. 696); Strong v. Andros (1910, 34 App. D.C. 278, 19 Ann. Cas. 101).

Correspondence between parties, to be sufficient acknowledgment of indebtedness to toll the statute, must recognize subsisting personal obligation. Hayden v. International Banking Corp. (1930, 41 F. 2d 107, 59 App. D.C. 313).

The acknowledgment must not be accompanied by circumstances which negative any intention or promise to pay. Moore v. Snider (1940, 109 F. 2d 840, 71 App. D.C. 293, certiorari denied 60 S. Ct. 808, 309 U.S. 685, 84 L. Ed. 1029).

Letter by Maryland corporation, whose charter has been forfeited for nonpayment of taxes, to debtor extending, at the debtor's request, the time for action for deficiency judgment, was not sufficient to toll the statute of limitations, and the debtor was not estopped to plead such statute. Glennan v. Lincoln Inv. Corp. (1940, 110 F. 2d 130, 71 App. D.C. 365).

Summary judgment

Where it appeared possible that payees might be able to show that a delay of over three years in enforcing their claims on two notes was induced by representations or promises of maker accompanying certain oral acknowledgments and admissions, and such a showing might have effect of estopping maker from pleading statute of limitations in bar of payees' claims, maker was not entitled to summary judgment in his favor. Grass v. Eiker, Trading as T. E. Eiker & Co. (D.C. Mun. App. 1956, 123 A. 2d 613).

§ 28-3505. New Promise or acknowledgement<sup>1</sup> of debt incurred during infancy.

An action may not be maintained to charge a person upon an acknowledgment of, or promise to pay, a debt contracted during infancy, made after full age, except for necessities, unless the acknowledgement or promise is in writing signed by the party to be charged therewith. This section does not affect ratification by conduct. (Aug. 30, 1964, 78 Stat. 677, Pub. L. 88-509, § 1, eff. Jan. 1, 1965.)

REVISION NOTES

§ 29-101. Reorganization of corporations existing or doing business prior to January 1, 1902—Procedure.

Any corporation existing or doing business in the District of Columbia prior to January 1, 1902, may come under and avail itself of the provisions of this chapter by giving to its stockholders, members, or associates notice as prescribed in section 29-231 and pursuing the same procedure and complying with the same requirements as are prescribed in sections 26-302, 29-103, 29-201 to 29-240, and 44-101 to 44-103 in respect to increase or diminution of capital stock; and upon filing its certificate of reorganization in such case, such company shall be entitled to the privileges and provisions and be subject to the liabilities of the class of corporations to which it belongs, as provided in and by this chapter. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1316, ch. 854, § 766.)

§ 29-102. Notice of application for, alteration to, or extension of charter or special privileges.

Whoever, not being a Senator or Representative in Congress, intends to present to Congress a bill for an act of incorporation, or for an alteration or extension of the charter of a corporation in the District of Columbia, or of any special privileges in said District, shall give notice of such intention by publishing a copy of the bill at least once a week for four successive weeks, in a newspaper published in the District of Columbia, the last of said publications to be made at least fourteen days prior to the presentation of such bill. Such newspaper shall be designated by the person proposing the bill and approved by the commissioners of the District of Columbia. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1316, ch. 854, § 767.)

§ 29-103. Change of name—Procedure—Effect—Notice—Recording.

Any corporation organized under the laws of the District of Columbia may change its name in the manner following:

The board of directors shall pass a resolution declaring that such change is advisable and calling a meeting of the stockholders to take action thereon. Such a meeting shall be called upon such notice as the by-laws provide, and in the absence of such provision upon ten days' notice given personally to each stockholder as his address is contained in the records of such corporation, a notice deposited in the United States mail, postage prepaid, at least ten days prior to such meeting to be considered sufficient notice under this section. If two-thirds in interest of each class of stockholders having voting powers and of other persons having like powers shall vote in favor of such a change, a certificate thereof shall be signed by the president and secretary, under the corporate seal, and acknowledged as in the case of deeds of real estate, and such certificate shall be filed in the office of the recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia, and upon the filing of the same the certificate of incorporation shall be deemed to be amended and the name changed accordingly; and the filing of said certificate in conformity with this section shall have the same force and effect as to all future proceedings as if said certificate of incorporation or organization had been originally drafted in conformity with the amendment so made.

A certified copy of such certificate shall be taken and accepted as evidence in all courts and places of all matters legally stated therein; and the recorder of deeds shall keep an index in his office showing the new name and the change from the old name, and the old name showing the change to the new name; and no fees shall be required by the recorder of deeds for filing and recording any such certificate, except that ordinarily required for deeds of real estate of like length.

A corporation under its new name shall have the same rights, powers, and privileges, and shall be subject to the same duties, obligations, and liabilities as before, and may sue and be sued by its new name, but no action brought against it or by it under its former name shall be abated on that account, and on motion of either party the new name may be substituted therefor in the action.

Upon the filing of said certificate for record a copy thereof shall be inserted, by the corporation whose name has been changed as hereinabove provided, once each week for four consecutive weeks, in two daily papers published in the District of Columbia. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 639a, as added Mar. 1, 1921, 41 Stat. 1194, ch. 94.)

The recorder of deeds shall not file or record any certificate of organization of any incorporation until it has been proved to his satisfaction that all the capital stock of said company has been subscribed for in good faith, and not less than ten per cent. of the par value of the stock has been actually paid in cash, and the money derived therefrom is then in the possession of the persons named as the first board of trustees. Any such company, association, or institution failing to publish statements as required by this section shall forfeit its right to do business in said District, and thereupon it shall be the duty of said Commissioners to revoke its license or permit to do business in said District: Provided, That fraternal beneficiary associations or societies doing business on the lodge plan and paying death benefits be exempted from the provisions of this section. DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA BUSINESS CORPORATION ACT

Formation of corporations under the provisions of the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act 180 days after June 8, 1954, and prohibition against incorporation, after such date, under any other act or statute then in force, see Effective Date note set out under § 29-901.

§ 29-201. Formation—Certificate—Exception—Dealing in real estate.

Any three or more persons who desire to form a company for the purpose of carrying on any enterprise or business which may be lawfully conducted by an individual, excepting banks of circulation or discount, railroads, and such other enterprise or business as may be otherwise specially provided for in this code, may make, sign, and acknowledge, before some officer competent to take the acknowledgment of deeds, and file in the office of the recorder of deeds, a certificate in writing: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be held to authorize the organization of corporations to buy, sell, or deal in real estate, except corporations to transact the business ordinarily carried on by real-estate agents or brokers. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1284, ch. 854, § 605; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 533, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

1902—Act June 30, 1902, struck out the words "corporations to buy, sell, or deal with real property" following the words "banks of circulation or discount," and added the proviso.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Insofar as the general incorporation statutes passed by Congress for the District are concerned, these provide for the incorporation of both business corporations and benevolent corporations. White v. Central Dispensary & Emergency Hosp. (1938, 99 F. 2d 355, 69 App. D.C. 122, 119 A. L. R. 1002).

Capacity to sue and be sued

Defendant corporation is in general capable of suing and being sued, regardless of whether part or all of its stock is owned by the United States. Ingram Day Lbr. Co. v. United States Shipping Bd. Emergency Fleet Corp. (D.C. Miss. 1920, 267 F. 283).

Emergency fleet corporation

In form the Emergency Fleet Corporation is a private corporation, but its services are of a public nature and it has never done any business, or conducted any operation, except on behalf of the United States. United States Shipping Bd. Emergency Fleet Corp. v. Western Union Tel. Co. (1928, 48 S. Ct. 198, 275 U.S. 415, 72 L. Ed. 345).

Fleet Corporation was entitled to the Government rate, not because it was an instrumentality of the Government, but because it was a department of the United States within the meaning of the Post Roads Act and, in respect to messages sent, on the Government's business, no distinction could properly be made between those of the Shipping Board and those of the Fleet Corporation. Id.

When shipbuilding company sued the United States Shipping Board Emergency Fleet Corporation upon an alleged contract for the building of ships, which, it was alleged, it was not allowed to build, it was a suit arising under the Constitution and laws of the United States and motion to remand should be denied. Union Timber Products Co. v. United States Shipping Bd. Emergency Fleet Corp. (D.C. Wash. 1918, 252 F. 320).

"The board (Shipping Board), if in its judgment such action is necessary to carry out the purposes of this act, may form under the laws of the District one or more corporations for the purchase, construction, equipment, lease, charter, maintenance, and operation of merchant vessels in the commerce of the United States." Southern Bridge

Co. v. United States Shipping Bd. Emergency Fleet Corp. (D.C. Ala. 1920, 266 F. 747).

Business of the Fleet Corporation was not peculiarly governmental in its nature, but was commercial and industrial, and its powers not essentially different from those possessed by private corporations and no provision can be found either in acts of Congress or in charter of the company giving to the corporation or its stockholders any rights, privileges, or obligations different from those possessed by any other corporation under laws of the District with respect to its business. In re Eastern Shore Shipbuilding Corp. (C.C.A. 2, 1921, 274 F. 893).

Object and purpose of the corporation was to purchase, construct, equip, lease, maintain, and operate vessels in the commerce of the United States and for other lawful purposes. Buffalo Union Furnace Co. v. United States Shipping Bd. Emergency Fleet Corp. (D.C. N.Y. 1922, 283 F. 673).

Fleet Corporation acted in two capacities; notwithstanding the ownership of its stock by the United States, it was a private corporation; as such it was a distinct entity; it might make contracts and transact the business for which it was organized; it might sue and be sued, and then it was subject to the statute of limitations. Harwood v. United States Shipping Bd. Emergency Fleet Corp. (D.C. Conn. 1928, 26 F. 2d 116).

Extension of business

The 1901 code. §§ 633 and 635 (§§ 29-229, 29-231), providing for the extension of the business of the corporation, cannot be so construed as to permit a combination of two radically different classes of business. Dancy v. Clark (1905, 24 App. D.C. 487).

Nature of business

This section does not authorize or allow the combination of all classes of industrial business by one corporation. "On the contrary, the tenor of the enactment is decidedly adverse to any such theory." Dancy v. Clark (1905, 24 App. D.C. 487).

The statute allows formation of corporation for only "one business, one enterprise, and not a combination of all the classes of business provided for in the statute." Id.

"No domestic corporation is authorized to hold real estate except as an incident to its business. It clearly is not authorized to hold it for the purpose of selling or dealing in it." Groo v. Norman (1914, 42 App. D.C. 387).

A foreign corporation will not be accorded greater rights than are enjoyed by domestic corporations. Nevertheless "want of capacity in a domestic or foreign corporation to own and dispose of real estate can only be asserted by the State," and until so questioned good title may be conveyed. Hight v. Richmond Park Imp. Co. (1918, 47 App. D.C. 518). See, also, Groo v. Norman (1914, 42 App. D.C. 387).

The proviso "neither declares contracts made in violation of its terms void as against public policy nor does it expressly apply this restriction to foreign corporations doing business in this District." Hight v. Richmond Park Imp. Co. (1918, 47 App. D.C. 518).

Principal place of business

The proviso of the statute that no corporation may be organized thereunder unless place where it conducts its principal business is located within the District of Columbia speaks prospectively, and where corporation owning a baseball club, although reincorporated under the 1954 act, was organized under the act of 1901, imposing no restrictions upon the place where the corporation might conduct its principal business, such corporation was not required to conduct its principal business at a place within the District and was not prohibited from moving its American League franchise to any other city outside the District. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc., et al. (1959, 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

§ 29-202. Contents of certificate.

In such certificate shall be stated—

First. The corporate name of the company and the object for which it is formed.

Second. The term of its existence, which may be perpetual.

Third. The amount of the capital stock of the company and the number of shares of which said stock shall consist.

Fourth. The number of trustees who shall manage the concerns of the company for the first year and their names.

Fifth. The name of the place in the District in which the operations of the company are to be carried on. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1285, ch. 854, § 606.)

CROSS REFERENCE

§ 29-203. Formation—Signers of certificate incorporated—Name—Powers—Mortgages or liens on property to be approved by stockholders.

When the certificate shall have been filed, in accordance with the provisions of section 29-202, the persons who shall have signed and acknowledged the same and their successors shall be a body politic and corporate in fact and in name, by the names stated in such certificate, and by that name have succession and be capable of suing and being sued in any court of law or equity in the District; and they and their successors may have a common seal and make and alter the same at pleasure, and they shall by their corporate name be capable in law of purchasing, holding, and conveying any real or personal estate whatever which may be necessary to enable the company to carry on its operations named in such certificates, but shall not mortgage such estate or give any lien thereon, except in pursuance of a vote of the stockholders of the company. #### NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

This section does not put District corporations upon a different footing from those formed under the laws of the States. Sloan Shipyards Corp. v. United States Shipping Board (1922, 42 S. Ct. 386, 258 U.S. 549, 66 L. Ed. 762).

Emergency Fleet Corporation

The Emergency Fleet Corporation was in general capable of suing and being sued, regardless of whether part or all of its stock was owned by the United States. Ingram Day Lbr. Co. v. United States Shipping Bd. Emergency Fleet Corp. (D.C. Miss. 1920, 267 F. 283).

Business of the Emergency Fleet Corporation was not peculiarly governmental in its nature, but was commercial and industrial, and its powers were not essentially different from those possessed by private corporations. In re Eastern Shore Shipbuilding Corp. (C.C.A. 2, 1921, 274 F. 893).

§ 29-204. Trustees—Qualifications—Election.

The stock, property, and concerns of such company shall be managed by not less than three trustees, who shall be stockholders, and shall, except for the first year, be annually elected by the stockholders, at such time and place as shall be determined by the by-laws of the company. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1285, ch. 854, § 608; July 13, 1959, 73 Stat. 181, Pub. L. 86-83; Apr. 22, 1960, 74 Stat. 78, Pub. L. 86-436.)

AMENDMENTS

1960—Act Apr. 22, 1960, substituted “who shall be stockholders, and shall” for “who shall, respectively, be stockholders, and a majority citizens of the District, and shall.”

1959—Act July 13, 1959, struck out the words “nor more than fifteen” following “three.”

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Corporate acts

A corporation can only act through its agents, directors, or trustees and its intention can only be learned by the language of its recorded acts and the plain terms of a resolution of the board of directors cannot be altered by an affidavit purporting to show its intention. Fox v. Johnson (D.C.D.C. 1940, 31 F. Supp. 64, affirmed 127 F. 2d 729, 75 U.S. App. D.C. 211).

Emergency Fleet Corporation

Although most of the stock was owned by the United States, the business of the fleet corporation was not peculiarly governmental in its nature, but was commercial and industrial, and its powers were not essentially different from those possessed by private corporations. In re Eastern Shore Shipbuilding Corp. (C.C. A. 2, 1921, 274 F. 893).

Exchange of stock

When insurance company sold a building to realty company, for whose stock the insurance company's stockholders were allowed to exchange their stock, and as terms would not cause substantial loss to the stockholders, their stock was not illegal or void under this section which gives trustees power to manage the affairs of the corporation. Tryson v. Southern Realty Corp. (1921, 274 F. 135, 61 App. D.C. 55).

Liability for debts

Under the act of Congress (16 Stat. 98, ch. 80), under which certain corporations were organized in the District of Columbia, providing for personal liability of trustees for debts in excess of capital stock, an action at law could not be sustained by one creditor among many for the liability thus created, or for any part of it, but the remedy is in equity and this excess constitutes a fund for the benefit of all the creditors, so far as the condition of the company renders a resort to it necessary for the payment of their debts. Hornor v. Henning (1876, 93 U.S. 228, 93 Otto 228, 23 L. Ed. 879).

Under the act of May 5, 1870 (16 Stat. 98), providing for the organization of associations and the liability of trustees for indebtedness exceeding the capital stock, and the act of June 17, 1870 (16 Stat. 153), authorizing the establishment of savings banks under the former act, the excess of debts for which the trustees were liable constituted a trust fund for the benefit of all creditors, and an action at law could not be maintained by one creditor for any part of it, but the remedy was in equity. Id.

Stockholders

"Plainly the requirement of this section is that the trustees shall at all times be stockholders, as well for the first year as for all subsequent years." Dancy v. Clark (1905, 24 App. D.C. 487).

§ 29-205. Election of trustees—Notice—Procedure.

Public notice of the time and place of holding such election shall be published not less than thirty days previous thereto in some newspaper printed and published in the District, and the election shall be made by such of the stockholders as shall attend for that purpose, either in person or by proxy. All the elections shall be by ballot, and each stockholder shall be entitled to as many votes as he owns shares of stock in the company, and the persons receiving the greatest number of votes shall be trustees; and when any vacancy shall happen among the trustees it shall be filled for the remainder of the year in such manner as may be provided by the by-laws of the company. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1285, ch. 854, § 609.)

§ 29-206. Corporation not dissolved by failure to hold election of trustees at time designated in by-laws.

In case it shall happen at any time that an election of trustees shall not be made on the day designated by the by-laws of said company when it ought to have been made, the company shall not for that reason be dissolved, but it shall be lawful on any other day to hold an election for trustees, in such manner as shall be provided by the by-laws, and all acts of trustees shall be valid and binding as against said company until their successors shall be elected. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1285, ch. 854, § 610.)

§ 29-207. Officers—Bond.

There shall be a president of the company, who shall be designated from the trustees; and also such subordinate officers as may be elected or appointed, and who may be required to give security for the faithful performance of the duties of their office, as the company by its by-laws may require. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1285, ch. 854, § 611.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Quo warranto proceedings questioning right to corporate office, see § 16-3501 et seq.

§ 29-208. By-laws.

The trustees shall have power to make such prudential by-laws as they deem proper for the management and disposal of the stock and business affairs of such company, not inconsistent with the laws of the District and the Constitution of the United States, and prescribing the duties of officers, artificers, and servants that may be employed, for the appointment of all officers, and for carrying on all kinds of business within the objects and purposes of such company. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1285, ch. 854, § 612.)

§ 29-209. Authority to do business—Calls—Forfeiture—Notice.

No company incorporated under this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103 shall be authorized to transact any business until ten per centum of the capital stock shall have been actually paid in, either in money or in property at its actual value; and it shall be lawful for the trustees to call in and demand from the stockholders the residue of their subscriptions in money or property at such times and in such instalments as the trustees shall deem proper, under the penalty of forfeiting the shares of stock subscribed for and all previous payments made thereon, if payment shall not be made by the stockholder within sixty days after a personal demand or a notice requiring such payment shall have been published for six successive weeks in a newspaper in the District. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1286, ch. 854, § 613.)

§ 29-210. Stock to be personal property—Manner of transfer to be prescribed by by-laws—No transfer until previous call is paid.

The stock of such company shall be deemed personal estate and shall be transferable in such manner as shall be prescribed by the by-laws of the company; but no shares shall be transferable until all previous calls thereon shall have been fully paid in or the shares shall have been declared forfeited for nonpayment. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1286, ch. 854, § 614.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Suit for subscription

Subscribers to stock must be sued severally to recover unpaid subscriptions. Peoples Nat. Bank v. Saville (1905, 25 App. D.C. 139, appeal dismissed 26 S. Ct. 760, 201 U.S. 641, 50 L. Ed. 901).

§ 29-211. Liability of stockholders.

All the stockholders of every company incorporated under this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103 shall be severally individually liable to the creditors of the company in which they are stockholders for the unpaid amount due upon the shares of stock held by them, respectively, for all debts and contracts made by such company, until the whole amount of capital stock fixed and limited by such company shall have been paid in, and a certificate thereof shall have been made and recorded, as prescribed in section 29-212. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1286, ch. 854, § 615.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS*In general

Under this section, the stockholders are individually liable to the creditors for the unpaid amount due upon the shares of stock held by them respectively for the debts and contracts of the company until the amount of capital stock fixed by such company shall have been paid in. Capitol Dress Mfg. Co. v. Moran (1936, 84 F. 2d 253, 65 App. D.C. 400).

Contract of subscription

A contract of subscription may be shown without a formal subscription in writing. National Exp. Co. v. Morris (1899, 15 App. D.C. 262).

To recover on a subscription to the capital stock, the corporation plaintiff must establish, by legal and competent proof, the existence of a contract of subscription to the stock. Id.

Sale of stock rescinded

Person who purchased stock from corporation under an option to rescind the agreement at the expiration of a year is not precluded from doing so because no power has been given to the corporation to purchase its own stock. Royal Glue Co. v. Lange (1913, 40 App. D.C. 9).

Statute of limitations

Statute of limitations begins to run from the time that call is made for payment of unpaid subscription. Glenn v. Sothoron (1894, 4 App. D.C. 125).

Suit for subscription

Subscribers to stock must be sued severally to recover unpaid subscriptions. Peoples Nat. Bank v. Saville (1905, 25 App. D.C. 139, appeal dismissed 26 S. Ct. 760, 201 U.S. 641, 50 L. Ed. 901).

Transfer of stock

The mere transfer of the stock into the name of the defendant is not sufficient to impose the liability of a stockholder, unless he consents thereto, or subsequently exercises the rights of a stockholder. National Exp. Co. v. Morris (1899, 15 App. D.C. 262).

Trust fund

Capital stock of a corporation is a trust fund for the benefit of the creditors, and which cannot be withdrawn without their consent, but the corporation may when solvent hold the property as an individual, free from the touch of a creditor who has acquired no lien, and may dispose of stock to bona fide purchasers for a valuable consideration. Gilbert v. Washington Ben. Endowment Assn. (1897, 10 App. D.C. 316, appeal dismissed 19 S. Ct. 877, 173 U.S. 701, 43 L. Ed. 1185).

§ 29-212. Certificate of capital stock paid in—Recording.

The president and a majority of the trustees, within thirty days after the payment of the last instalment of the capital stock so fixed and limited, shall make a certificate stating the amount of the capital so fixed and paid in, which certificate shall be signed and sworn to by the president and a majority of the trustees; and they shall within the said thirty days record the same in the office of the recorder of deeds of the District. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1286, ch. 854, § 616.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Limitation on recorder to record certificate, see § 29-104.

§ 29-213. Annual report of stock and debts—Verification—Publication.

Every such company shall annually, except insurance companies, within twenty days from the first of January, make a report, which shall be published in a newspaper in the District, which shall state the amount of capital and of the proportion actually paid and the amount of existing debts, which report shall be signed by the president and a majority of the trustees, and shall be verified by the oath of the president or secretary of the company, and filed in the office of the recorder of deeds of the District. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1286, ch. 854, § 617.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Construction

Laws similar to this requiring insurance companies to publish annually a report of their assets and liabilities and making trustees liable for existing corporate debts for failure to fulfill requirements were construed as being penal in their nature and were to be strictly construed. Jackson v. Clifford (1895, 5 App. D.C. 312).

§ 29-214. Failure to publish annual report—Mandamus by creditor—Expenses of action.

If any company fails to comply with the provisions of section 29-213, any creditor of the corporation or other person interested may by petition for mandamus against the corporation and its proper officers compel such publication to be made, and in such case the court shall require the corporation or the officers at fault to pay all the expenses of the proceeding, including counsel fees. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1286, ch. 854, § 618; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 533, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

1902—Act June 30, 1902, amended section generally. Prior to such amendment, section read as follows: "If any company fails to comply with the provisions of the preceding section, all the trustees of such company shall be jointly and severally liable for the debts of the company then existing and for all that shall be contracted before such report shall be made."

§ 29-215. Liability of officers for false report.

If any certificate or report made or public notice given by the officers of any company in pursuance of the provisions of this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103 shall be false in any material representation, all the officers who shall have signed the same, knowing it to be false, shall be jointly and severally liable for all debts of the company contracted while they are stockholders or officers thereof. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1286, ch. 854, § 619.)

§ 29-216. Purchase of stock of other corporations unlawful.

It shall not be lawful for any corporation, except a charitable, educational, or religious corporation incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia or under any Act of Congress, to use its funds to purchase stock in any other corporation. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1286, ch. 854, § 620; Mar. 14, 1952, 66 Stat. 24, ch. 103, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

1952—Act Mar. 14, 1952, substituted "corporation" for "company" following "lawful for any" and added the exception.

CROSS REFERENCE

Amendment of charter, additional classes of stock, and transfer of assets as an entirety, see §§ 29-238 to 29-240.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Bank stock illegally held

This being statement of general policy applicable to all District corporations, claim against insolvent trust company for assessment on shares purchased from another bank was rejected. Dunn v. O'Connor (1937, 89 F. 2d 830, 67 App. D.C. 76).

Transfer in liquidation

As appellant had no corporate power to purchase stocks and bonds of the Charles Town Company, a contract to purchase, unless permissible under the Utilities Act, would have been unenforceable because ultra vires. Washington Gas Light Co. v. Dann (1934, 70 F. 2d 746, 63 App. D.C. 142).

A bank receiving assets of another bank in liquidation is liable for taxes as a transferee notwithstanding this section. Gould v. Com. Int. Rev. (21 B. T. A. 824).

§ 29-217. Loans to stockholders—Liability of officers.

No loan of money shall be made by any company upon the security, in whole or in part, of its own stock; and if any such loan shall be made, the trustee or officer authorizing the same shall be responsible to the corporation therefor: Provided, That nothing herein contained shall be held to release the borrower in such a case from liability to the corporation. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1286, ch. 854, § 621; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 533, ch. 1329.)

AMENDMENT

1902—Act June 30, 1902, amended section generally. Prior to such amendment, section read as follows: "No loan of money shall be made by any company upon the security, in whole or in part, of its own stock; and if any such loan shall be made to a stockholder, the officers who shall make it or who shall assent thereto shall be jointly and severally liable, to the extent of such loan and interest, for all debts of the company contracted while they are stockholders or officers thereof."

§ 29-218. Dividends not to be declared if corporation is thereby rendered insolvent or capital decreased—Trustees personally liable for debts.

If the trustees of any company shall declare and pay any dividend the payment of which would render it insolvent, or which would diminish the amount of its capital stock, they shall be jointly and severally liable for all the debts of the company then existing and for all that shall be thereafter contracted while they shall respectively remain in office. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1287, ch. 854, § 622.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Evidence

In order for a corporate creditor to impose personal liability on three trustees of corporation on any theory of transfer of funds in an attempt to hinder or defraud creditors, distribution of corporate assets to themselves in violation of statute, or breach of fiduciary obligation to account to creditors, it was necessary for contractor to prove assets in question ultimately were received by such trustees, or disposed of by them in contravention of contractor's rights as a creditor. Askew v. Randolph Carney Co., Inc., et al. (D.C. Mun. App. 1957, 128 A. 2d 788).

§ 29-219. Trustees objecting to such dividends and filing certificate exempt from personal liability.

If any of the trustees shall object to declaring such dividend or the payment of the same, and shall, at any time before the time fixed for the payment thereof, file a certificate of their objection in writing with the secretary of the company and with the recorder of deeds of the District, they shall be exempt from the liability prescribed in section 29-218. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1287, ch. 854, § 623.)

§ 29-220. Executors, administrators, guardians, and trustees not personally liable.

No person holding stock in such company as executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee shall be personally subject to any liability as stockholder of such company, but the estate and funds in the hands of such executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee shall be liable in like manner and to the same extent as the testator or intestate or the ward or person interested in such trust fund would have been if he had been living and competent to act and hold the stock in his own name. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1287, ch. 854, § 624.)

§ 29-221. Executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee shall represent and vote.

Every such executor, administrator, guardian, or trustee shall represent the stock in his hands at all meetings of the company, and may vote accordingly as a stockholder. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1287, ch. 854, § 625.)

§ 29-222. Pledges of stock—Pledgee not liable as stockholder—Right to vote.

No person holding stock in such company as collateral security shall be personally subject to any liability as stockholder of such company, but the person pledging such stock shall be considered as holding the same, and shall be liable as a stockholder accordingly; and every person who shall pledge his stock as collateral security may, nevertheless, represent the same at all meetings and vote as a stockholder. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1287, ch. 854, § 626.)

§ 29-223. Stock book to be kept by treasurer or secretary.

It shall be the duty of the trustees of every corporation formed under this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103 to cause a book to be kept by the treasurer or secretary thereof, containing the names of all persons alphabetically arranged, who are or shall within six years have been stockholders of such company, and showing their place of residence, the number of shares of stock held by them respectively, the time when they became owners of such shares, and the amount of stock actually paid in. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1287, ch. 854, § 627.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

This section does not apply to corporations not formed under this chapter. Morgan v. Howard (1924, 293 F. 650, 54 App. D.C. 3).

§ 29-224. Stock books open for inspection.

Such book shall, during the usual business hours of the day, on every business day, be open for inspection of stockholders and creditors of the company and their personal representatives, at the office or principal place of business of such company in the District where its business operations shall be located, and any stockholder, creditor, or representative shall have a right to make extracts from such books. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1287, ch. 854, § 628.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Purpose of inspection

Under common law, stockholder can inspect books only when his interests are directly involved, and "it is apparent that in equity and good faith he should be permitted to inform himself as to how the affairs of the corporation are being conducted. * * * Where that right has not been enlarged by statute, it may be exercised only in good faith, and for some just, useful, or reasonable purpose." Morgan v. Howard (1924, 293 F. 650, 54 App. D.C. 3).

§ 29-225. Effect of stock book record—Company—Creditors—Subsequent purchasers.

A person in whose name shares of stock stand on the books of a company shall be deemed the owner thereof as regards the company, but if any such person shall in good faith sell, pledge, or otherwise dispose of any of his shares of stock to another and deliver to him the certificate for such shares, with written authority for the transfer of the same on the books, the title of the former shall vest in the latter so far as may be necessary to effect the purpose of the sale, pledge, or other disposition, not only as between the parties themselves, but also as against the creditors of and subsequent purchasers from the former, subject to the provisions of section 29-210. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1287, ch. 854, § 629.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

The requirement of transfer on the corporate books is intended for the convenience and security of the corporation alone. National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Hibbs (1909, 32 App. D.C. 459, affirmed 33 S. Ct. 818, 229 U.S. 391, 57 L. Ed. 1241).

Certificate indorsed in blank

Stock broker, holding certificate, indorsed in blank, for a limited purpose, may convey good title to innocent purchaser. National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Hibbs (1909, 32 App. D.C. 459, affirmed 33 S. Ct. 818, 229 U.S. 391, 57 L. Ed. 1241).

While certificates of stock indorsed in blank "do not become negotiable instruments in a strictly legal sense, they nevertheless so approximate them as that the ordinary rules of agency and estoppel which apply in the case of chattels are applied to them with great liberality in the behalf of an innocent purchaser." Id.

Pledged certificate

When stock certificate with written transfer and power of attorney in blank is signed by the person to whom certificate was issued, and is pledged by one in possession to secure preexisting debts, the pledgee is not chargeable with notice of equities which exist between original owner and pledgor. National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Gray (1898, 12 App. D.C. 276).

Title of assignee

Although corporation may require that transfer of stock be registered on the corporate books, the assignee upon delivery with transfer and power of attorney to transfer on the books, duly executed, takes the entire equitable, if not the legal title thereto. National Safe Deposit, Sav. & Trust Co. v. Hibbs (1909, 32 App. D.C. 459, affirmed 33 S. Ct. 818, 229 U.S. 391, 57 L. Ed. 1241).

§ 29-226. Stock books presumptive evidence of facts stated therein.

Such books shall be presumptive evidence of the fact therein stated in favor of the plaintiff in any suit or proceeding against such company or against any one or more stockholders. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1287, ch. 854, § 630.)

§ 29-227. Failure to make entries in or to allow inspection of books—Misdemeanor—Penalty.

Every officer or agent of any company who shall neglect to make any proper entry in such book, or shall refuse or neglect to exhibit the same, or allow the same to be inspected and extracts to be taken therefrom, as herein provided, shall be deemed guilty of a misdemeanor, and the company shall pay to the party injured a penalty of fifty dollars for any such neglect or refusal, and all damages resulting therefrom. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1288, ch. 854, § 631.)

§ 29-228. Liability to United States for neglect to keep books open.

Every company that shall neglect to keep such book open for inspection, as provided in section 29-224, shall forfeit to the United States the sum of fifty dollars for every day it shall so neglect, to be sued for and recovered in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1288, ch. 854, § 632; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127.)

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1936, substituted "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia" for "Supreme Court of the District of Columbia."

Act June 25, 1948, eff. Sept. 1, 1948, as amended by act May 24, 1949, substituted "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" for "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia."

§ 29-229. Increase or diminution of stock—Extending of business.

Any company which may be formed under this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103 may increase or diminish its capital stock, by complying with the provisions of this chapter, and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103, to any amount which may be deemed sufficient and proper for the purposes of the corporation, and may also extend its business to any other business authorized hereby, subject to the provisions and liabilities of this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1288, ch. 854, § 633.)

CROSS REFERENCE

Sale of securities, see 15 U.S.C. ch. 2a.

§ 29-230. Diminution of capital stock when debts exceed proposed capital.

Before any corporation shall be entitled to diminish the amount of its capital stock, if the amount of its debts and liabilities shall exceed the amount of capital to which it is proposed to be reduced, such amount of debts and liabilities shall be satisfied and reduced so as not to exceed such diminished amount of capital. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1288, ch. 854, § 634.)

§ 29-231. Meeting of stockholders for purpose of increase or diminution of capital stock, or change of business—Notice to stockholders.

Whenever any company shall desire to call a meeting of the stockholders for the purpose of increasing or diminishing the amount of its capital stock, or for extending or changing its business, it shall be the duty of the trustees or directors to publish a notice, signed by a majority of them, in a newspaper in the District, at least three successive weeks, and to deposit a notice thereof in the post office addressed to each stockholder at his usual place of residence, at least three weeks previous to the day fixed upon for holding such meeting, specifying the object of the meeting and the time and place when and where such meeting shall be held. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1288, ch. 854, § 635.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Change of business

"Provision is made for a change of business; but even if we assume that this change might be made to a radically different class of business, as for example, from that of mining to that of agriculture, yet the very word 'change' implies the abandonment of the one by the adoption of the other, not the combination of both." Dancy v. Clark (1905, 24 App. D.C. 487).

Extension of business

"Extension of business is the taking in of something cognate." Dancy v. Clark (1905, 24 App. D.C. 487).

"A company organized for the making of cotton goods might well be extended to the manufacture of woolen goods, possibly even to the manufacture of iron or steel, for it is all manufacture." Id.

§ 29-232. Representatives of two-thirds of stock to be present.

If, at any time and place specified in the notice provided for in section 29-231, stockholders shall appear by proxy or in person representing not less than two-thirds of all the shares of stock of the corporation, they shall organize and proceed to a vote of those present or by proxy. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1288, ch. 854, § 636.)

(Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1288, ch. 854, § 637.)

§ 29-234. Certificate to be filed—Effect.

Such certificate shall be acknowledged by the chairman, and filed as required by section 29-202, and when so filed the capital stock of such corporation shall be increased or diminished to the amount specified in the certificate, and the business extended or changed accordingly; and the company shall be entitled to the privileges and provisions and be subject the liabilities of this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1288, ch. 854, § 638.)

CODIFICATION

(Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1288, ch. 854, § 640.)

§ 29-237. Fire insurance companies formed prior to January 1, 1902, may become perpetual.

Any company formed prior to January 1, 1902, agreeably by law, for the purpose of carrying on fire insurance, may become perpetual by filing, in the office of the recorder of deeds, a certificate to that effect, in like manner as is provided by law for the filing of the original certificate of incorporation. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1289, ch. 854, § 641.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Powers and duties

Filing of the certificate under this section merely extended indefinitely the life of the company, without affecting the scope of its powers and duties. Morgan v. Howard (1924, 293 F. 650, 54 App. D.C. 3).

§ 29-238. Amendment of charter—Procedure—Purposes.

Every corporation having capital stock and heretofore or hereafter organized or existing under this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103, or which has availed or may hereafter avail itself of the provisions of this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103 pursuant to sections 29-101, 29-102, may, by pursuing the same procedure and complying with the same requirements as are prescribed in this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103 in respect to the increase or diminution of capital stock, amend its charter so as to accomplish any one or more of the following objects: The addition to or diminution of the corporate purposes and powers, or the substitution of other purposes and powers in whole or in part for those set forth in the charter; the changing of the corporate business; the changing of the location of the place in the District of Columbia in which the operations of the corporation are to be carried on; and the making of any other amendment or amendments, not otherwise provided for under this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103, of the charter that may be desired, provided such amendment or amendments shall contain only such provisions as it would be lawful or proper to insert in an original certificate of incorporation made at the time of making such amendment or amendments. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 639b, as added Feb. 12, 1931, 46 Stat. 1089, ch. 120.)

§ 29-239. Stock—Preferred stock authorized—Classes of common—"Charter" defined—Preferences, restrictions, qualifications—Statement thereof on stock.

In addition to its common stock every corporation heretofore or hereafter organized or existing under this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103, or which has availed or may hereafter avail itself of the provisions of this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103 pursuant to sections 29-101, 29-102, may create one or more classes of preferred stock, with such preferences, restrictions, and qualifications not inconsistent with law as shall be expressed in its charter. Such preferred stock shall have such voting powers as are provided in such charter, or it may have no voting power if such charter so provides. Each such corporation may have one or more classes of common stock, with or without voting powers, and with such rights, restrictions, and qualifications as shall be expressed in its charter. The term "charter" is hereby defined to include a charter granted by Special Act, certificate of incorporation, certificate of organization, or certificate of reorganization, either as originally passed or filed or as amended, unless such construction would be inconsistent with the context. Preferred stock of any class may be made subject to redemption at such times and prices as may be determined in such charter. In the case of stock which is preferred as to its distributive share of the assets of the corporation upon dissolution, the amount and terms of such preference shall be stated in the charter. All certificates for stock which has no voting powers or is restricted or limited as to its voting powers, or which is preferred or limited as to its dividends, or as to its share of the assets upon dissolution, shall have a statement of such restriction, limitation, or preference plainly stated thereon. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 639c, as added Feb. 12, 1931, 46 Stat. 1089, ch. 120.)

§ 29-240. Sale, lease, or exchange of property or assets as an entirety—Transfer of franchise—Agreement submitted to stockholders—Rights of dissenting stockholders—Procedure—Effect of performance of agreement—Recording.

Every corporation having capital stock and heretofore or hereafter organized or existing under this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103, or which has availed or may hereafter avail itself of the provisions of this chapter and sections 26-302 and 44-101 to 44-103 pursuant to sections 29-101, 29-102, may, pursuant to a meeting of its stockholders, held upon notice given in accordance with the provisions of section 29-231, sell, lease, or exchange all of its property and assets as an entirety, including its good will, and franchises howsoever granted and/or acquired, to or with any other such corporation or any other corporation organized or existing under the laws of any state of the United States which is duly authorized by its charter or otherwise to acquire and hold such or similar property, or to or with any natural person. An agreement containing the terms and conditions of the proposed sale, lease, or exchange shall, after approval thereof by a majority of the trustees or directors of such vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation, be submitted to said stockholders at said meeting for their approval; and if approved by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of all the stock outstanding (or, if two or more classes of stock have been issued, of two-thirds of each class, including stock of any class to which the charter denies the right to vote), such agreement shall be executed and its terms and conditions performed. Any stockholder who, at such meeting, voted against the agreement submitted or who shall in writing file his protest at least five days before the holding of such meeting, may within twenty days after such meeting (but not afterwards) make upon such vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation a written demand for payment for his stock; and he shall thereupon be entitled to receive an amount equal to the fair value thereof, unaffected by such sale, lease, or exchange of said corporate property and assets. If such dissenting stockholder and said vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation of which he is a stockholder shall fail to agree upon the fair value of said stock (or if, having agreed, such corporation shall fail to pay or tender the amount thereof), such stockholder shall be entitled to file, within thirty days after such written demand (but not afterwards), against said vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation, in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia, a petition for an accounting and for the ascertainment of the fair value of his shares without regard to any depreciation or appreciation thereof in consequence of such sale, lease, or exchange; and on the coming in of the answer to said petition, which shall be filed within such reasonable period as the court may fix, the court shall pass an order referring the matter to a commissioner or commissioners agreed upon by the parties, and if the parties do not so agree, then to the auditor of said court, for the purpose of ascertaining such fair value, and such order may prescribe the time and manner of producing evidence; and the award of said commissioner or commissioners (or that of a majority of them) or of said auditor, when confirmed by decree of said court, shall be final and conclusive on all parties, and said vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation shall pay such stockholder the fair value of his shares ascertained as aforesaid, and on receiving such payment or on a tender thereof, said stockholder shall transfer his stock to the said vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation for cancellation, and until said award is paid or tendered, said stockholder shall have a lien for the payment of such award on the proceeds of such sale, lease, or exchange, prior to any distribution by said vendor, lessor, or grantor corporation and said payment and lien may be collected and enforced in the same manner as other decrees and liens are by law enforceable in said United States District Court for the District of Columbia. If the amount awarded said stockholder exceeds the amount offered by the corporation prior to the filing of said suit, costs shall be awarded to said stockholder; otherwise, costs shall be awarded to the corporation. Each party shall have the right of appeal as in other cases in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. The proceeding by a dissenting stockholder hereunder shall not prevent or delay the execution and performance of any agreement so approved by the affirmative vote of two-thirds of each class of stock: Provided, however, That the right granted to a dissenting stockholder hereunder to demand payment for his shares shall cease, if at any time prior to the entry of any decree herein provided for, the defendant corporation shall make it appear to said United States District Court for the District of Columbia that the agreement of sale, lease, or exchange has been rescinded by appropriate corporate action, so that the shares of such dissenting shareholder remain unaffected thereby. Upon the performance of any agreement of sale hereunder of all of the property and assets as an entirety of a corporation (including its good will and franchises), all property, assets, rights, privileges, franchises, and powers of said selling corporation shall be vested in the purchasing corporation or person and shall thereafter be as effectually the property of the purchasing corporation or person as they were of the selling corporation subject to the provisions of this section, and such purchasing corporation or person shall thereupon immediately file in the office of the recorder of deeds of the District of Columbia proper evidence of such sale, and thereupon said selling corporation shall be dissolved and cease, subject, however, to the provisions of sections 29-715 to 29-718. Nothing contained herein shall affect the provisions of sections 28-1701 to 28-1705, or any of the provisions of chapters 1-10 of title 43, or any amendment or supplement thereof, or of any other law regulating public-utility corporations in the District of Columbia. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 639d, as added Feb. 12, 1931, 46 Stat. 1089, ch. 120, and amended June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b) ; May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127.)

Chapters 1-10 of title 43 relate to public utilities. Sections 28-1701 to 28-1705, referred to in this section, were repealed by Act Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 774, Pub. L. 88-243, § 15(a) (7), and are now covered by section 28: 6-101 et seq.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1936, substituted "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia" for "Supreme Court of the District of Columbia." Act June 25, 1948, eff. Sept. 1, 1948, as amended by act May 24, 1949, substituted "United States District Court for the District of Columbia" for "District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Stockholder's suit
Under statute authorizing stockholder dissenting from corporation's decision to dispose of all assets to bring suit in District Court of United States for the District of Columbia, against corporation for fair value of shares, dissenting stockholder could not bring suit in Municipal Court for the District of Columbia, Civil Division, on theory that Municipal Court Act or Business Corporation Act of 1954 gave right to Municipal Court to assume jurisdiction, even though value of dissenting stockholder's shares was less than $3,000. Davis v. Universal Corporation (D. C. Mun. App. 1957, 133 A. 2d 479).
The Municipal Court is a statutory court of limited jurisdiction, and its jurisdiction is not to be extended by inference or implication unless necessary to carry out the plain intention of Congress. Id.

Payne* (1902, 20 App. D.C. 606).

United States* (1923, 292 F. 668, 53 App. D.C. 391).

(Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1281, ch. 854, § 579.)

§ 29-407. Quantity of land which may be held.

No such corporation shall hold more land at any one time than necessary for the purposes of education, as set forth in its articles of association, unless it shall have received the same by gift, grant, or devise, and in such case the corporation shall be required to sell or dispose of the same within fifteen years from the time the title thereto is acquired. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1281, ch. 854, § 580.)

§ 29-408. Excess holdings of lands to revert on failure of corporation to dispose of same.

On failure to so dispose of the land, so much of the same over and above the amount necessary to be used as provided in section 29-407 shall revert to the original donor, grantor, devisor, or their heirs. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1281, ch. 854, § 581.)

No institution heretofore or hereafter incorporated under the provisions of this chapter shall have the power to confer any degree in the District of Columbia or elsewhere, nor shall any institution incorporated outside of the District of Columbia or any person or persons individually or as a partnership or association or otherwise, undertaking to confer any degree, operate in the District of Columbia, unless under and by virtue of a license from the Board of Higher Education of the District of Columbia, which before granting any such license may require satisfactory evidence—

1. That in the case of an individual or any unincorporated group of individuals he, or a majority of them, or in the case of an incorporated institution, a majority of the trustees, directors, or managers of said institution are persons of good repute and qualified to conduct an institution of learning.

2. That any such degree shall be awarded only after such quantity and quality of work shall have been completed as are usually required by reputable institutions awarding the same degree: Provided, That if more than one-half the requirements for any degree are earned by correspondence, or extramural study, such fact shall be conspicuously noted upon the diploma conferred: Provided further, That no diploma shall be issued conferring a degree in medicine or any healing art, or in dentistry, for study pursued or work done by correspondence.

3. That applicants for said degree possess the usual high-school qualifications at the time of their candidacy therefor.

That considering the number and character of the courses offered, the faculty is of reasonable number and properly qualified, and that the institution is possessed of suitable classroom, laboratory, and library equipment. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 586b, as added Mar. 2, 1929, 45 Stat. 1504, ch. 523; Nov. 7, 1966, 80 Stat. 1430, Pub. L. 89-791, title I, § 106.)

(a) having amended §§ 29-415 to 29-418 and enacted § 29-420] shall be construed as effecting the validity of any license issued by the Board of Education prior to the date of the enactment [Nov. 7, 1966] of this title."

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Construction

In District of Columbia Code authorizing board of education to license educational institutions and providing that board "may require satisfactory evidence" along certain specified lines, the word "may" has a mandatory significance and does not confer upon board the choice whether to require proof or not before granting a license, and hence such statute is not discriminatory. Kraft v. Board of Education for District of Columbia (D.C.D.C. 1965, 247 F. Supp. 21).

Evidence

Substantial evidence including showing that school, although called the "National Art Academy" was really a school for teaching of commercial art and design sustained findings of District of Columbia board of education showing failure to comply with some statutory requirements and standards, warranting revocation of license of school to confer degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts. Kraft v. Board of Education for District of Columbia (D.C.D.C. 1965, 247 F. Supp. 21).

In action to set aside order of District of Columbia board of education revoking license of plaintiff to confer the degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts, evidence must be considered from standpoint most favorable to the board; the court does not weigh the evidence on both sides but merely determines whether there was sufficient evidence to support the findings. Id.

§ 29-416. Application for license—Recordation—Use of public school personnel authorized.

Application for the license referred to in section 29-415 shall be in writing upon forms prepared under the direction of the Board of Higher Education, and shall be filed with the secretary of the said board, whose duty it shall be, in case the institution so licensed is incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia, to forward a copy of said license to the recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia, who shall indorse upon the certificate of incorporation the fact that said license has been issued. The Board of Higher Education is hereby authorized to employ the personnel of the public-school system of the District of Columbia, so far as the same may be necessary, for the proper performance of its duties under sections 29-414 to 29-419, and it shall be the duty of all public officers and bureaus of the federal government concerned with educational matters to render such advice and assistance to the Board of Higher Education as it may from time to time consider necessary or desirable for the better performance of its duties under sections 29-414 to 29-419. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 586c, as added Mar. 2, 1929, 45 Stat. 1504, ch. 523; Nov. 7, 1966, 80 Stat. 1430, Pub. L. 89-791, title I, § 106.)

AMENDMENT

1966—Section 106(a) of act Nov. 7, 1966, amended section by substituting "Board of Higher Education" for "Board of Education", wherever latter term appeared in section.

LICENSES ISSUED PRIOR TO 1966 AMENDMENT

Saving clause with respect to licenses issued by Board of Education prior to amendment of this section by act Nov. 1, 1966, see § 106(b) of such act, set out as a note under § 29-415.

§ 29-417. Revocation of license—Hearing before Board of Higher Education—Review.

A license once issued may be revoked by said Board of Higher Education for noncompliance on the part of any individual or individuals, associations, or incorporated institution so licensed with the provisions of section 29-415. Upon the revocation of any such license it shall be the duty of the secretary of the Board of Higher Education, in the case of an institution incorporated under the laws of the District of Columbia, to forward a copy of the revocation to the recorder of deeds for the District of Columbia, who shall cause a notation to be placed upon the certificate of incorporation to the effect that its authority to confer degrees has been revoked: Provided, however, That thirty days' notice shall first have been given to such individual or individuals, association, or to the trustees, directors, or managers of said institutions, with full opportunity to be heard by said Board of Higher Education at either a public or nonpublic session thereof, as may be desired by such individual or individuals, association, or the institution threatened with revocation of its license, and the evidence upon which said board shall act in the revocation of such license shall be committed to writing under the direction of the board, and upon application therefor a copy thereof furnished to such individual or individuals, association, or the institution whose license has been revoked: And provided further, That any party aggrieved by the action of said board in refusing to license or in revoking a license previously granted may have the action of the said Board of Higher Education reviewed by the United States District Court for the District of Columbia at an equity term thereof. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 586d, as added Mar. 2, 1929, 45 Stat. 1504, ch. 523, and amended June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127; Nov. 7, 1966, 80 Stat. 1430, Pub. L. 89-791, title I, § 106.)

AMENDMENT

1966—Section 106(a) of act Nov. 7, 1966, amended section by substituting “Board of Higher Education” for “Board of Education”, wherever latter term appeared in section.

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1936, substituted “District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia” for “Supreme Court of the District of Columbia.”

Act June 25, 1948, eff. Sept. 1, 1948, as amended by act May 24, 1949, substituted “United States Court for the District of Columbia” for “District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia.”

LICENSES ISSUED PRIOR TO 1966 AMENDMENT

Saving clause with respect to licenses issued by Board of Education prior to amendment of this section by act Nov. 7, 1966, see § 106(b) of such act, set out as a note under § 29-415.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Court’s authority

In action to set aside an order of District of Columbia board of education revoking license to confer degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts, court could consider whether board was guilty of any error of law, whether its findings of fact were supported by substantial evidence, and whether its decision was arbitrary or capricious, but court could not review the weight of evidence and reach an independent conclusion on basis of evidence presented at hearing before the board. Kraft v. Board of Education for District of Columbia (D.C.D.C. 1965, 247 F. Supp. 21).

Evidence

In action to set aside order of District of Columbia board of education revoking license of plaintiff to confer the degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts, evidence must be considered from standpoint most favorable to the board; the court does not weigh the evidence on both sides but merely determines whether there was sufficient evidence to support the findings. Kraft v. Board of Education for District of Columbia (D.C.D.C. 1965, 247 F. Supp. 21).

Substantial evidence including showing that school, although called the “National Art Academy” was really a school for teaching of commercial art and design sustained findings of District of Columbia board of education showing failure to comply with some statutory requirements and standards, warranting revocation of license of school to confer degree of Bachelor of Fine Arts. Id.

Review

In statute providing that any party aggrieved by action of board of education in refusing to license or in revoking a license may have the action of board reviewed by United States District Court “at an equity term”, there is no legal significance to quoted phrase in view of abolishment of distinction between law and equity, and all that phrase means is that review shall be in a civil non-jury branch of the court. Kraft v. Board of Education for District of Columbia (D.C.D.C. 1965, 247 F. Supp. 21).

§ 29-418. Title of institution not to imply official connection with Government of United States or District of Columbia—Prohibition applicable to nonresidents and foreign corporation conferring degrees in District of Columbia—License not to be denied merely because of use of prohibited words.

No institution incorporated under the provisions of this chapter shall use as its title, in whole or in part, the words United States, federal, American, national, or civil service, or any other words which might reasonably imply an official connection with the government of the United States, or any of its departments, bureaus, or agencies, or of the government of the District of Columbia, nor shall any such institutions advertise or claim the power to issue degrees under the authority of Congress or otherwise than under the authority of the license granted to them by the Board of Higher Education as hereinbefore provided. The prohibition in this section contained shall be deemed to include and is hereby declared applicable to any individual or individuals, association, or incorporation outside of the District of Columbia which shall undertake to do business in the District of Columbia or to confer degrees or certificates therein, and any such individual or individuals, association, or incorporation violating the provisions of this section shall be subject to the penalty hereinafter in section 29-419: Provided, That no institution, incorporated prior to April 16, 1934, under the provisions of this chapter, and carrying on its work exclusively in any foreign country with the consent and approval of the government thereof, shall if otherwise entitled to be licensed by the Board of Higher Education, be denied the same solely because of the inclusion in its name and as descriptive of its origin of any of the specific words the use of which is by this section forbidden to incorporations under the provisions of this chapter. (Mar. 3, 1901, ch. 854, § 586e, as added Mar. 2, 1929, 45 Stat. 1505, ch. 523, and amended Apr. 16, 1934, 48 Stat. 592, ch. 143; Nov. 7, 1966, 80 Stat. 1430, Pub. L. 89-791, title I, § 106.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Purpose abandoned

When for practically 20 years, there has been nothing in the nature of a religious society or collective body doing or sustaining the work which it may have been the purpose of the donor to organize, a purely voluntary association, unincorporated and unorganized, cannot be said to have an existence after definitely abandoning the purpose of its creation and ceasing to exercise its functions. Rose Campbell Mission v. Richardson (1935, 73 F. 2d 661, 64 App. D.C. 21).

Secular corporation

Appropriation for Providence Hospital, a secular corporation created by act of Congress, is not unconstitutional as a law respecting the establishment of religion, regardless of the religious opinion of the members of the corporation. Bradfield v. Roberts (1900, 20 S. Ct. 121, 175 U.S. 291, 44 L. Ed. 168).

§ 29-502. Trustees.

Such society or congregation may assume a name, and any number of trustees, not exceeding ten, who shall be styled trustees of such society or congregation by the name so assumed, may be elected or appointed according to the rules or discipline governing the church or denomination to which said society or congregation may belong. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1282, ch. 854, § 588.)

CODIFICATION

(Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1282, ch. 854, § 589; June 26, 1922, 42 Stat. 665, ch. 241.)

force in the District. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1282, ch. 854, § 590; June 26, 1922, 42 Stat. 665, ch. 241.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Decisions under prior laws

When a Federal right, as the right to incorporate a fraternal organization under act May 5, 1870, 16 Stat. 98, ch. 80, was held by a State court to have been lost by subsequent conduct, that of itself involves no Federal question, and the Supreme Court may not examine the decision unless the State court in substance is denying the right. Creswill v. Grand Lodge K. of P. (1912, 32 S. Ct. 822, 225 U.S. 246, 56 L. Ed. 1074).

Where a lodge or fraternal organization was organized in Georgia in 1864, and incorporated under act May 5, 1870, 16 Stat. 98, ch. 80, complying with the statute in all respects, membership in which was limited to white males, it was estopped by laches from contesting the incorporation in the District of Columbia of an organization similar in name, organized by Negroes in Mississippi in 1880, in Georgia in 1886, and application made in the District of Columbia in 1889. Id.

White fraternal order incorporated under State law was not entitled to injunction against Negro order, organized under this act, in view of laches and acquiescence. Ancient Egyptian Arabic Order v. Michaux (1929, 49 S. Ct. 485, 279 U.S. 737, 73 L. Ed. 931).

The South Carolina subordinate lodge of a grand lodge organized under act May 1870, 16 Stat. 98, ch. 80, in the District of Columbia could not be held to account for a judgment against the Georgia division of the same lodge. Washington v. King (1931, 157 S.E. 613, 159 S. Car. 431).

Abandonment of purpose

A purely voluntary religious association, unincorporated and unorganized, cannot be said to have an existence after definitely abandoning the purpose of its creation and ceasing to exercise its functions. Rose Campbell Mission v. Richardson (1935, 73 F. 2d 661, 64 App. D.C. 21).

De facto corporations

To establish a corporation as de facto is all that is necessary to enable it to maintain an action against any one, other than the State, who has contracted with the corporation, or done it a wrong. Baltimore & P. R. Co. v. Fifth Baptist Church (1890, 11 S. Ct. 185, 137 U.S. 568, 34 L. Ed. 784).

Health association

Group health association is a "relief association, not conducted for profit." Jordan v. Group Health Assn. (1940, 107 F. 2d 239, 71 App. D.C. 38).

Group health is in fact and in function a consumer cooperative, the functions of such an organization are not identical with those of insurance or indemnity companies and the latter are concerned primarily, if not exclusively, with risk and the consequences of its descent. Id.

A group of individuals might incorporate themselves for their own mutual benefit and such corporation, not for profit but for the mutual benefit of its members, is not engaged in practice of medicine when they contracted with members of medical profession. Group Health Assn. v. Moor (D.C.D.C. 1938, 24 F. Supp. 445).

Hospital

Even if it be a fact that the appellee is incorporated as a charitable corporation and even if judicial notice could be taken that it is so incorporated, this would not conclude the question whether or not it is a charity. White v. Central Dispensary & Emergency Hosp. (1938, 99 F. 2d 355, 69 App. D.C. 122, 119 A.L.R. 1002).

Object of organization

Object for which a corporation is organized is to be determined from what is stated in its certificate of incorporation and its constitution and bylaws. Vanderbilt v. Com. Int. Rev. (C.C.A. 1, 93 F. 2d 360).

A corporation cannot deny its purposes are those set forth in its charter. Better Business Bureau of Washington, D. C. v. District Unemployment Compensation Board (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 34 A. 2d 614).

Power to confer degrees

Claiming the right to confer degrees a right in the articles of incorporation does not confer such power. "It might have taken less than the section gave but not more." National Assn. of Certified Public Accountants v. United States (1923, 292 F. 668, 53 App. D.C. 391).

Corporation organized under this section has no power to confer degrees. Id.

Proof of corporate existence

Co. v. Fifth Baptist Church* (1890, 11 S. Ct. 185, 137 U.S. 568, 34 L. Ed. 784).

§ 29-602. Formation—Signers incorporated—Powers—Taxation of property.

C. v. District Unemployment Compensation Board* (D.C. Mun. App. 1943, 34 A. 2d 614).

A corporation, whose object in part, as indicated by its charter, was for the mutual welfare, protection, and improvement of business methods among merchants and for protecting the interests of certain classes of businesses to enable them to profitably conduct their business, was not exempt as organized exclusively for "educational or scientific purposes" from District of Columbia Unemployment Compensation Act, § 46-301, notwithstanding corporation's purposes were to be accomplished by educational methods. Id.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

(Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1319, ch. 854, § 784.)

§ 29-718. Suits after dissolution—Process.

Any such dissolved corporation may be sued by its corporate name for or upon any cause of action accrued or which, but for such dissolution, would have accrued against it in the same manner and with the like effect as if it were not dissolved; and process in such action may be served upon any one of the assignees, trustees, or receivers having the management of the assets of the corporation. Action was properly brought against company in its corporate name even though it had been lawfully dissolved. Lyman v. Knickerbocker Theatre Co. (1925, 5 F. 2d 538, 55 App. D.C. 323).

Suits against dissolved corporations

A foreign corporation doing business in the District which had been dissolved by its chartering state, could not be sued in the District after dissolution since local statutes preserve litigation only as to local corporations and the chartering state did not preserve such litigation. Sedgwick v. Beasley (1949, 173 F. 2d 918, 84 U.S. App. D.C. 325).

§ 29-719. Involuntary dissolution—Suit of the United States—Petition—Order to show cause.

Whenever the United States attorney for the District of Columbia shall become satisfied that any corporation organized under the laws of said District has been guilty of such misuse, abuse, or nonuser of its corporate powers and franchises, or such violation of law as would authorize and make proper the forfeiture of its charter, corporate powers, and franchises, the said United States attorney shall file in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia a petition in the name of the United States setting forth, fully and in detail, the alleged abuse, misuse, or nonuser by reason whereof such forfeiture is sought, which petition shall be supported by affidavits of credible persons; and upon the filing of such petition the said court shall lay a rule requiring such defendant corporation to show cause, within such time as the court may deem proper, why a decree should not issue as prayed in said petition, a copy of which rule and petition shall be served on said corporation by a day therein limited. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1319, ch. 854, § 786; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 909, 991, ch. 646, §§ 1, 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Failure to pay license tax

"A charter of incorporation is not ipso facto abrogated or annulled by failure to pay a license tax, notwithstanding that the statute may provide that such failure shall work a forfeiture." Ohio Bank v. Central Constr. Co. (1901, 17 App. D.C. 524).

Parties

Statute providing in part that whenever District Attorney of District of Columbia should become satisfied that any corporation organized under laws of District had been guilty of such misuse of its powers as would make proper the forfeiture of its charter, district attorney should file petition in district court in name of United States for rule to show cause why forfeiture should not be granted, requires that proceeding be initiated by United States District Attorney, and afforded no remedy to one who sought to revoke charter of bar association by reason of its alleged misuse. United States ex rel. Robinson v. Bar Ass'n of District of Columbia (1952, 197 F. 2d 408, 91 U.S. App. D.C. 3).

§ 29-720. Answer of corporation—Verification.

The said corporation, by the day named in said order, unless further time be granted by the court, shall file an answer to said petition, fully setting forth all the defenses upon which it intends to rely in resisting the application, which shall be verified by affidavit of some officer of the corporation. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1319, ch. 854, § 787.)

§ 29-722. Trial—Decree of forfeiture—Appointment of receiver.

If issue or issues be joined on such proceedings, the same shall stand for trial at such time as the court shall direct and shall be tried by a jury if either party desire it; otherwise, they shall be heard and determined by the court. If, from the findings of the jury or upon consideration and determination of the case by the court, the court shall be of opinion that legal cause of forfeiture has been shown and the public interests require that said forfeiture shall be declared, a decree of forfeiture shall be entered and the charter of said corporation shall thereby be annulled and vacated and its corporate franchises and powers shall cease and be void; and the court shall thereupon appoint a receiver or receivers of the assets and estate of said corporation, who shall proceed to wind up the affairs of said corporation, for the benefit of its creditors and stockholders, under the direction of the court. #### § 29-724. Final decree—Power to withhold pending remedy of grievance.

If the court, either upon a hearing ex parte or after answer, shall be of opinion that no cause of forfeiture is shown or that the public interests do not demand that such forfeiture be decreed, though legal cause therefor has been shown, it shall dismiss the petition. And if the court shall determine that legal cause of forfeiture has been shown, it may, in its discretion, before passing a final decree of forfeiture, pass orders requiring the said corporation, within a time to be therein fixed, to remedy the grievance complained of, and may suspend the passage of the final decree of forfeiture until the time so fixed, and may afterwards refuse to pass such decree if the grievance shall have been remedied by the time so fixed. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1320, ch. 854, § 791.)

(Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1320, ch. 854, § 793; June 30, 1902, 32 Stat. 534, ch. 1329; June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 909, 991, ch. 646, §§ 1, 32(b); May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Unauthorized degrees

This section declares that the district attorney may file a bill in the name of the United States in the Supreme Court of the District and it applies to corporations giving degrees when not authorized. National Assn. of C. P. A. v. United States (1923, 292 F. 668, 53 App. D.C. 391).

§ 29-726. Involuntary dissolution at the suit of creditors.

When any corporation in the District has remained insolvent for a year, or has neglected or refused for that period to pay and discharge its notes or other evidences of debt, or has, for that period, suspended its ordinary and lawful business, a bill may be filed by the United States attorney, as aforesaid, for the dissolution of said corporation, or, if he shall decline to do so, on the application of any judgment creditor of said corporation, the said judgment creditor, if an execution upon his judgment shall be returned unsatisfied, in whole or in part, may file such bill. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1320, ch. 854, § 794; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 909, ch. 646, § 1.)

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1948, eff. Sept. 1, 1948, substituted "United States Attorney" for "district attorney." See U.S. Code, title 28, § 501.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

District tax claims

District of Columbia Revenue Act provision giving priority to District for unpaid gross sales taxes against a taxpayer in bankruptcy before all claimants of whatsoever kind or nature and making penalties and interest a prior and preferred claim gives District a priority in whatever local insolvency proceedings are instituted where bankrupt person or corporation involved is not eligible to become a bankrupt under the Bankruptcy Act. District of Columbia v. Greenbaum, trustee etc. (1955, 223 F. 633, 96 U.S. App. D.C. 168).

Sufficiency of bill

A bill for a receivership of an insurance company, asking for a dissolution, may be sufficient to invoke the court's general equity jurisdiction, though not for a statutory dissolution. National Ben. Life Ins. Co. v. Shaw-Walker Co. (1940, 111 F. 2d 497, 71 App. D.C. 276).

§ 29-727. Injunction against transferring assets—Receiver.

Upon prima facie proof of the facts necessary to sustain such suit the court may issue an injunction restraining the corporation, its trustees, directors, and officers from collecting or receiving any debt or demand and from paying out or transferring or delivering to any person any of its property or effects and from exercising any of its corporate rights and franchises during the pendency of the suit, unless by permission of the court. And at any stage of the proceeding the court may appoint a receiver to collect and preserve the property of the corporation and dispose of and manage the same, under the direction of the court, until final decree in the cause. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1320, ch. 854, § 795.)

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804, redesignated the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia and act June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32(b), as amended May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127, redesignated the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia as the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Collateral attack

Where a receiver for a life insurance company had been appointed, and a representative of policyholders subsequently instituted a second proceeding for a dissolution, and asking another receiver, on the ground that the court had exceeded its jurisdiction in appointing the first receiver, the second proceeding was an arbitrary exercise of discretion, as the assets had been liquidated, and only distribution remained to be made, and an unwarranted collateral attack. National Ben. Life Ins. Co. v. Shaw-Walker Co. (1940, 111 F. 2d 497, 71 App. D.C. 276).

Discretion of court

The provision for the appointment of a receiver in dissolution proceedings is not mandatory, and the appointment is at the court's discretion. National Ben. Life Ins. Co. v. Shaw-Walker Co. (1940, 111 F. 2d 497, 71 App. D.C. 276).

§ 29-728. Parties defendant in creditor's suit.

Where the action is brought by a creditor, the stockholders, directors, trustees, or other officers, or any of them who may be made liable by law for the payment of the complainant's debt, may be made parties defendant by the original or a supplemental bill, and their liability may be declared and enforced by the decree; but nothing herein shall prevent any creditor from enforcing such liability in a separate suit against such parties. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 796.)

FEDERAL RULES OF CIVIL PROCEDURE

Pleadings and motions, see Rule 7 et seq., 28 U.S.C. App.

§ 29-729. Account and distribution.

In such suit, if the court shall be of opinion that the complainant is entitled to the relief prayed, and that such corporation ought to be dissolved, the court shall cause an account to be taken of the assets and debts of the corporation and shall decree an equal distribution of the assets among the creditors, subject to existing liens; but if said corporation has no property to satisfy its creditors, or to the extent to which its property is insufficient therefor, the court may require the stockholders, who are parties defendant to the suit, to pay into court the amounts due and unpaid on the shares of stock held by them, and shall ascertain the amounts properly chargeable, in favor of creditors, to said stockholders and the trustees, directors, or other officers who are parties to the suit, and in the final decree for the dissolution shall adjudge and decree that said amounts shall be paid into court by the parties respectively liable therefor, to be applied to the payment of the debts of the corporation. (Mar. 3, 1901, 31 Stat. 1321, ch. 854, § 797.)

CHANGE OF NAME

Act June 25, 1936, 49 Stat. 1921, ch. 804, redesignated the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia as the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia and act June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 991, ch. 646, § 32 (b), as amended May 24, 1949, 63 Stat. 107, ch. 139, § 127, redesignated the District Court of the United States for the District of Columbia as the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

(2) "Member" means not only a member in a nonshare association but also a member in a share association.

(3) "Net savings" means the total income of an association minus the costs of operation.

(4) "Savings returns" means the amount returned to the patrons in proportion to their patronage or otherwise in accordance with the provisions of section 29-831 herein.

(5) "Cooperative basis" as applied to any incorporated or unincorporated group referred to in sections 29-804 (7), 29-813, 29-823, 29-837, 29-840, and 29-841 herein means—

(June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 480, ch. 397, § 1.)

§ 29-802. Who may incorporate.

Any five or more natural persons or two or more associations may incorporate in the District of Columbia under this chapter. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 481, ch. 397, § 2.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Collateral attack

A collateral attack upon the creation and existence of a cooperative, and alleged want of capacity to own and dispose of real estate can only be asserted by the state and not by parties to a private dispute. Glennon v. Butler (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 66 A. 2d 519).

Powers

Cooperative associations are specifically authorized to acquire, own, hold, sell, lease, pledge, mortgage or otherwise dispose of any properties incident to their purposes and activities. Glennon v. Butler (D. C. Mun. App. 1949, 66 A. 2d 519).

§ 29-805. Articles of incorporation—Contents.

Articles of incorporation shall be signed by each of the incorporators and acknowledged by at least three of them if natural persons, and by the presidents and secretaries, if associations, before an officer authorized to take acknowledgments.

Within the limitations of this chapter the articles shall contain—

- (1) A statement as to the purpose or purposes for which the association is formed;
  - (2) The name of the association which shall include the word “cooperative”;
  - (3) The term of existence of the association which may be perpetual;
  - (4) The location and address of the principal office of the association;
  - (5) The names and addresses of the incorporators of the association;
  - (6) The names and addresses of the directors who shall manage the affairs of the association for the first year, unless sooner changed by the members;
  - (7) A statement of whether the association is organized with or without shares, and the number of shares or memberships subscribed for;
  - (8) If organized with shares, a statement of the amount of authorized capital, the number and types of shares and the par value thereof which may be placed at any figure, and the rights, preferences, and restrictions of each type of share;
  - (9) The minimum number or value of shares which must be owned in order to qualify for membership; if organized without shares, a statement of whether the property rights of members shall be equal or unequal, and if unequal, the rule by which their rights shall be determined;
  - (10) The maximum amount or percentage of capital which may be owned or controlled by any member; including a statement of whether or not each member shall be limited to a single share, and whether such single shares shall be of various par values;
  - (11) The method by which any surplus, upon dissolution of the association, shall be distributed, in conformity with the requirements of section 29-836 herein for division of such surplus.
- The articles may also contain any other provisions not inconsistent with law or with this chapter, for the conduct of the association’s affairs. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 481, ch. 397, § 5.)

§ 29-806. Filing and recordation of articles—Fees—Effect of certificate.

The articles shall be delivered to the recorder of deeds. If he finds that the articles conform to law, he shall file the same upon the payment of a fee of $5, and he shall record the same, upon payment of a fee of $1. Said fees shall be in lieu of any other fees or payments provided in section 45-708, or in any other section of the Code of Laws of the District of Columbia, to be paid for at the time of said filing; and the last paragraph of section 45-708 shall have no application to associations organized under this chapter. After such filing and recording, he shall issue a certificate of incorporation, whereupon the corporate existence shall begin. Such certificate shall be conclusive evidence of the fact that the corporation has been duly incorporated. This shall not preclude the institution of quo warranto proceedings under sections 16-601 to 16-611. The filing or recording of the articles or of amendments thereto, or of any other papers pursuant to this chapter is required for the purpose of affording all persons the opportunity of acquiring knowledge of the contents thereof, but no person or incorporated or unincorporated group dealing with the association shall be charged with constructive notice of the contents of any such articles or papers by reason of such filing or recording. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 482, ch. 397, § 6.)

REFERENCES IN TEXT

Sections 16-601 to 16-611, referred to in this section, were repealed by Act Dec. 23, 1963, 77 Stat. 620, Pub. L. 88-241, § 21(a), and are now covered by sections 16-1301 and 16-1311 to 16-1321.

§ 29-807. Amendments of articles—Fee.

Amendments to the articles may be proposed by a two-thirds vote of the board of directors, or by petition of 10 per centum of the association's members. Notice of the meeting to consider such amendment shall be sent by the Secretary at least thirty days in advance thereof to each member at his last-known address, accompanied by the full text of the proposal and by that part of the articles to be amended. Two-thirds of the members voting may adopt said amendment and when verified by the president and secretary, it shall be filed and recorded with the recorder of deeds within thirty days of its adoption, and a fee of $1 shall be paid.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Validity of by-laws

Incorporated cooperative association's by-law providing that board of directors' selection of counsel shall be subject to approval of membership violated statute, and such by-law did not preclude counsel from recovering for services rendered under contract approved by the board. Capitol Cab Cooperative Ass'n Inc. v. W. C. Darden (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 169 A. 2d 463; see also, same case, 154 A. 2d 352).

(June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 485, ch. 397, § 19.)

§ 29-820. Removal of directors and officers.

A director or officer may be removed with or without cause, by a vote of two-thirds of the members voting at a regular or special meeting. The director or officer involved shall have an opportunity to be heard at said meeting. A vacancy caused by any such removal shall be filled by the vote provided in the by-laws for election of directors. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 485, ch. 397, § 20.)

§ 29-821. Referendum on acts of directors.

The articles or by-laws may provide that within a specified period of time any action taken by the directors must be referred to the members for approval or disapproval if demanded by petition of at least 10 per centum of all the members or by vote of at least a majority of the directors: Provided, however, That the rights of third parties which have vested between the time of such action, and such referendum shall not be impaired thereby. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 485, ch. 397, § 21.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Validity of by-laws

Incorporated cooperative association's by-law providing that board of directors' selection of counsel shall be subject to approval of membership violated statute, and such by-law did not preclude counsel from recovering for services rendered under contract approved by board. Capitol Cab Cooperative Ass'n Inc. v. W. C. Darden (D.C. Mun. App. 1961, 169 A. 2d 463; see also, same case, 154 A. 2d 352).

§ 29-822. Limitations upon the return on capital.

The return upon capital shall not exceed 6 per centum per annum upon the paid-up capital and shall be noncumulative.

Total return upon capital distributed for any single period shall not exceed 50 per centum of the net savings for that period. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 485, ch. 397, § 22.)

§ 29-823. Eligibility and admission to membership.

Any natural person, association, incorporated, or unincorporated group organized on a cooperative basis, or any nonprofit group, shall be eligible for membership in an association if it has met the qualifications for eligibility, if any, stated in the articles or by-laws and shall be deemed a member upon payment in full for the par value of the minimum amount of share or membership capital stated in the articles as necessary to qualify for membership. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 485, ch. 397, § 23.)

§ 29-824. Subscribers.

Any natural person or group eligible for membership and legally obligated to purchase a share or shares of, or membership in, an association shall be deemed a subscriber. The articles or by-laws may determine whether, and the conditions under which, any voting rights or other rights of membership shall be granted to subscribers. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 485, ch. 397, § 24.)

§ 29-825. Share and membership certificates—Issuance and contents.

No certificate for share or membership capital shall be issued until the par value thereof has been paid for in full. There shall be printed upon each certificate issued by an association a full or condensed statement of the requirements of sections 29-813, 29-814, and 29-826 herein. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 485, ch. 397, § 25.)

§ 29-826. Transfer of shares and membership—Withdrawal.

If a member desires to withdraw from the association or dispose of any or all of his holdings therein, the directors shall have the power to purchase such holdings by paying him the par value of any or all of the holdings offered. The directors shall then reissue or cancel the same. A vote of the majority of the members voting at a regular or special meeting may order the directors to exercise this power to purchase.

If the association fails, within sixty days of the original offer, to purchase all or any part of the holdings offered, the member may dispose of the unpurchased interest elsewhere, subject to the approval of the transferee by a majority vote of the directors. Any would-be transferee not approved by the directors may appeal to the members at their first regular or special meeting thereafter, and the action of the meeting shall be final. If such transferee is not approved, the directors shall exercise their power to purchase, if and when such purchase can be made without jeopardizing the solvency of the association. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 485, ch. 397, § 26.)

§ 29-827. Share and membership certificates—Recall.

The by-laws may give the directors the power to use the reserve funds to recall, at par value, the holdings of any member in excess of the amount requisite for membership; and may also provide that if any member has failed to patronize the association during a period of time specified in the by-laws, the directors may use the reserve funds to recall all his holdings and thereupon he shall cease to be a member of the association. When so recalled, such certificates of share or membership capital shall be either reissued or canceled. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 485, ch. 397, § 27.)

§ 29-828. Share and membership certificates—Attachment.

The holdings of any member of an association, to the extent of the minimum amount necessary for membership, but not to exceed $50, shall be exempt from attachment, execution, or garnishment for the debts of the owner. If any holdings in excess of this amount are subjected to such liability, the directors of the association may either admit the purchaser thereof to membership, or may purchase from him such holdings at par value. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 485, ch. 397, § 28.)

§ 29-829. Liability of members.

Members shall not be jointly or severally liable for any debts of the association, nor shall a subscriber be so liable except to the extent of the unpaid amount on the shares or membership certificate subscribed by him. No subscriber shall be released from such liability by reason of any assignment of his interest in the shares or membership certificate, but shall remain jointly and severally liable with the assignee until the shares or certificates are fully paid up. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 486, ch. 397, § 29.)

§ 29-830. Expulsion of members—Procedure—Purchase of holdings.

A member may be expelled by the vote of a majority of the members voting at a regular or special meeting. The member against whom the charges are to be preferred shall be informed thereof in writing at least ten days in advance of the meeting, and shall have an opportunity to be heard in person or by counsel at said meeting. On decision of the association to expel a member, the board of directors shall purchase the member's holdings at par value, if and when there are sufficient reserve funds. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 486, ch. 397, § 30.)

§ 29-831. Allocation and distribution of net savings.

At least once a year the members and/or the directors, as the articles or by-laws may provide, shall apportion the net savings of the association in the following order:

(1) Not less than 10 per centum shall be placed in a reserve fund until such time as the fund shall equal at least 50 per centum of the paid-up capital; and such fund may be used in the general conduct of the business. The amounts apportioned to the reserve fund shall be allocated on the books of the association on a patronage basis, or in lieu thereof, the books and records of the association shall afford a means for doing so, in order that upon dissolution or earlier, if deemed advisable, such reserves may be returned to the patrons who have contributed the same, subject to the limitations of section 29-836 herein;

(2) A return upon capital, within the limitations of section 29-822, may be paid upon share capital, or, if the by-laws so provide, upon the membership capital certificates of a nonshare association; but such return upon capital may be paid only out of the surplus of the aggregate of the assets over the aggregate of the liabilities (including in the latter the amount of the capital stock) after deducting from such aggregate of the assets the amount by which such aggregate was increased by unrealized appreciation in value or revaluation of fixed assets;

(3) A portion of the remainder, as determined by the articles or by-laws, shall be allocated to an educational fund to be used in teaching cooperation, and a portion may also be allocated to funds for the general welfare of the members of the association;

(4) The remainder shall be allocated at the same uniform rate to all patrons of the association in proportion to their individual patronage: Provided, That—

(a) in the case of a member patron, his proportionate amount of savings returns shall be distributed to him unless he agrees that the association should credit the amount to his account toward the purchase of an additional share or shares, or additional membership capital;

(b) in the case of a subscriber patron, his proportionate amount of savings returns may, as the articles or by-laws provide, be distributed to him, or credited to his account until the amount of capital subscribed for has been fully paid;

(c) in the case of a nonmember patron, his proportionate amount of savings returns shall be set aside in a general fund for such patrons and shall be allocated to individual nonmember patrons only upon request and presentation of evidence of the amount of their patronage. Any savings return so allocated shall be credited to such patron toward payment of the minimum amount of share or membership capital necessary for membership. When a sum equal to this amount has accumulated at any time within a period of time specified in the by-laws, such patron shall be deemed and become a member of the association if he so agrees or requests, and complies with any provisions in the by-laws for admission to membership. The certificates of shares or membership to which he is entitled shall then be issued to him.

(d) if within any periods of time specified in the articles or by-laws, (1) any subscriber has not accumulated and paid in the amount of capital subscribed for; or (2) any nonmember patron has not accumulated in his individual account the sum necessary for membership; or (3) any nonmember patron has accumulated the sum necessary for membership but neither requests nor agrees to become a member, or fails to comply with the provisions of the by-laws, if any, for admission to membership, then the amounts so accumulated or paid in and any part of the general fund for nonmember patrons which has not been allocated to individual nonmember patrons shall go to the educational fund and thereafter no member or other patron shall have any rights in said paid-in capital or accumulated savings returns as such: Provided further, That nothing in this section shall prevent an association under this chapter which is engaged in rendering services from disposing of the net savings from the rendering of such services in such manner as to lower the fees charged for services or otherwise to further the common benefit of the members: And provided further, That nothing in this section shall prevent an association from adopting a system whereby the payment of savings returns which would otherwise be distributed, shall be deferred for a fixed period of months or years; nor from adopting a system, whereby the savings returns distributed shall be partly in cash, partly in shares, such shares to be retired at a fixed future date, in the order of their serial number or date of issue. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 486, ch. 397, § 31.)

§ 29-832. Bonding of officers and employees.

Every individual acting as officer or employee of an association and handling funds or securities amounting to $1,000 or more, in any one year, shall be covered by an adequate bond as determined by the board of directors, and at the expense of the association; and the by-laws may also provide for the bonding of other employees or officers. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 486, ch. 397, § 32.)

§ 29-833. Books—Auditing.

To record its business operation, every association shall keep a set of books, which shall be audited at the end of each fiscal year by an experienced book-keeper or accountant, who shall not be an officer or director. Where the annual business amounts to less than $10,000, the audit may be performed by an auditing committee of three, who shall not be directors, officers, or employees. A written report of the audit, including a statement of the amount of business transacted with members, and the amount transacted with nonmembers, the balance sheet, and the income and expenses, shall be submitted to the annual meeting of the association. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 488, ch. 397, § 33.)

§ 29-834. Annual report of association.

Every association shall annually, within sixty days of the close of its operations for that year, make a report of its condition, sworn to by the president and secretary, which report shall be filed with the recorder of deeds. The report shall state—

(a) The name and principal address of the association.

(b) The names, addresses, occupations, and date of expiration of the terms, of the officers and directors, and their compensation, if any.

(c) The amount and nature of its authorized, subscribed, and paid-in capital, the number of its shareholders, and the number admitted and withdrawn during the year, the par value of its shares and the rate at which any return upon capital has been paid. For nonshare associations the annual report shall state the total number of members, the number admitted or withdrawn during the year, and the amount of membership fees received.

(d) The receipts, expenditures, assets, and liabilities of the association.

A copy of this report shall be kept on file at the principal office of the association.

Any person who shall subscribe or make oath to such report containing a materially false statement, known to such person to be false, shall upon conviction of such offense be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $200, or by imprisonment of not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or both such fine and imprisonment. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 488, ch. 397, § 34.)

§ 29-835. Notice of delinquent reports—Mandamus.

If an association fails to make such report within the required period of sixty days, the recorder of deeds shall within sixty days from the expiration of said period send such association a registered letter directed to its principal office, stating the delinquency and its consequences. If the association fails to file the report within sixty days from the mailing of such notice, any member of the association or the United States attorney for the District of Columbia may by petition for mandamus against the association and its proper officers compel such filing to be made, and in such case the court shall require the association or the officers at fault to pay all the expenses of the proceeding including counsel fees. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 488, ch. 397, § 35.)

§ 29-836. Dissolution—Methods—Procedure.

An association may, at any regular or special meeting legally called, be directed to dissolve by a vote of two-thirds of the entire membership. By a vote of a majority of the members voting three of their number shall be designated as trustees, who shall, on behalf of the association and within a time fixed in their designation or within any extension thereof, liquidate its assets, and shall distribute them in the manner set forth in this section. A suit for involuntary dissolution of an association organized under this chapter may be instituted for the causes and prosecuted in the manner set forth in sections 29-719 to 29-724, 29-726 to 29-729: Provided, That any distribution of assets shall be in the manner set forth in this section. In case of any dissolution of an association, its assets shall be distributed in the following manner and order: (1) By paying its debts and expenses; (2) by returning to the members the par value of their shares or of their membership certificates, returning to the subscribers the amounts paid on their subscriptions, and returning to the patrons the amount of savings returns credited to their accounts toward the purchase of shares or membership certificates; and (3) by distributing any surplus in either or both of the following ways as the articles may provide—

(a) Among those patrons who have been members or subscribers at any time during the past six years, on the basis of their patronage during that period;

(b) As a gift to any consumers' cooperative association or other nonprofit enterprise which may be designated in the Articles. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 489, ch. 397, § 36.)

Any person, firm, or corporation violating the above provision shall upon conviction of such offense be punished by a fine of not less than $25 nor more than $200, with an additional fine of not more than $200 for each month during which a violation occurs after the first month, or by imprisonment for not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. The United States attorney for the District of Columbia, or any individual, or association, or group organized on a cooperative basis, may sue to enjoin an alleged violation of this section.

Should a court of competent jurisdiction decide that any person, firm, or corporation using the name "cooperative" prior to this chapter, and not organized on a cooperative basis, is entitled to continue in such use, any such business shall always place immediately after its name the words "does not comply with the cooperative association law of the District of Columbia" in the same kind of type, and in letters not less than two-thirds as large, as those used in the term "cooperative." (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 489, ch. 397, § 37; June 25, 1948, 62 Stat. 909, ch. 646, § 1.)

Any association's officer, director, or agent who gives, or any person, firm, corporation or association which receives such promotion commission in violation of this section shall, upon conviction of such offense, be punished by a fine of not less than $25, nor more than $200, or by imprisonment for not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or by both such fine and imprisonment. (June 19, 1940, 54 Stat. 490, ch. 397, § 39.)

§ 29-840. Existing cooperative groups—Acceptance of act.

Any group incorporated under another law of the District of Columbia and operating on a cooperative basis or any unincorporated group operating on such a basis in the District of Columbia may elect by a vote of two-thirds of the members voting to secure the benefits of and be bound by this chapter, and shall thereupon amend such of its articles and by-laws as are not in conformity with this chapter. § 29-843. Laws not applicable.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

In determining whether proviso of this section that no corporation may be organized unless the place where it conducts its principal business is located within District prohibits a corporation from conducting business in a city outside of District, court would examine this chapter as a whole. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

Organization

Under this section providing that "no corporation may be organized" under this chapter "unless the place where it conducts its principal business is located within the District of Columbia", the word "organized" has relation only to time of incorporation and hence such provision would not prohibit corporation operating professional baseball team from transferring its franchise from District to a city outside of District since the usual meaning of word "organized" when used in relation to corporate structures is in the sense of having been brought into being or created and the word as used in the chapter sounds in praesenti and means the creation of a corporation without reference to the future. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

Place of business after organization

This chapter, considered in its entirety, contemplates that principal place of business of a corporation may be outside the District after organization in the sense of creation, and there was no intention to make the proviso that "no corporation may be organized" under the chapter "unless the place where it conducts its principal business is located within the District of Columbia" a continuing regulation. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

Retroactive effect

The proviso of this section that no corporation may be organized under this chapter unless place where it conducts its principal business is located within the District of Columbia speaks prospectively, and where corporation owning a baseball club, although reincorporated under the 1954 act, was organized under the act of 1901, imposing no restrictions upon the place where the corporation might conduct its principal business, such corporation was not required to conduct its principal business at a place within the District and was not prohibited from moving its American League franchise to any other city outside the District. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc., et al. (1959, 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

The proviso of Business Corporation Act of District of Columbia that no corporation may be organized unless the place where it conducts its principal business is located within District of Columbia did not apply to corporation operating professional baseball team as reincorporated corporation which under old act had power to conduct its principal place of business outside District of Columbia, and though not exercised, the power available by amendment to certificate of corporation was preserved under the Act, and hence proviso would not preclude corporation from transferring its franchise to a city outside the District. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

§ 29-904. General powers.

Each corporation shall have power:

(a) To have perpetual succession by its corporate name unless a limited period of duration is stated in its articles of incorporation.

(b) To sue and be sued, complain and defend, in its corporate name.

(c) To have a corporate seal, which may be altered at pleasure, and to use the same by causing it, or a facsimile thereof, to be impressed or affixed or in any other manner reproduced.

(d) To purchase, take, receive, lease, take by gift, devise, or bequest, or otherwise acquire, and to own, hold, improve, use, and otherwise deal in and with real or personal property, or any interest therein, wherever situated.

(e) To sell, convey, mortgage, pledge, lease, exchange, transfer, and otherwise dispose of all or any part of its property and assets.

(f) To lend money to, and otherwise assist, its employees, other than its officers and directors.

(g) To purchase, take, receive, subscribe for, or otherwise acquire, own, hold, vote, use, employ, sell, mortgage, loan, pledge, or otherwise dispose of, and otherwise use and deal in and with, shares or other interests in, or obligations of, other corporations organized under the laws of the District of Columbia, of foreign corporations, and of associations, partnerships, or individuals.

(h) To make contracts and incur liabilities; to borrow money at such rates of interest as the corporation may determine without regard to the restrictions of any usury law; to issue its notes, bonds, and other obligations; and to secure any of its obligations by mortgage or pledge of all or any of its property, franchises, and income. No corporation formed hereunder shall plead any statutes against usury in any action.

(i) To invest its surplus funds from time to time and to lend money for its corporate purposes, and to take and hold real and personal property as security for the payment of funds so invested or loaned.

(j) To conduct its business, carry on its operations, and have offices and exercise the powers granted by this chapter within and without the District of Columbia and to exercise in any State, Territory, district, colony, or possession of the United States, or in any foreign country the powers granted by this chapter, subject to the laws of such State, Territory, District, colony, or possession of the United States, or such foreign country.

(k) To elect or appoint officers and agents of the corporation, and to define their duties and fix their compensation.

(l) To make and alter bylaws, not inconsistent with its articles of incorporation or with the laws of the District of Columbia, for the administration and regulation of the affairs of the corporation.

(m) To make contributions to charitable organizations, and, in time of war, to transact any lawful business in aid of the United States.

(n) To cease its corporate activities and surrender its corporate franchise.

(o) To have and exercise all powers necessary or convenient to effect any or all of the purposes for which the corporation is formed.

(p) To indemnify any and all of its directors or officers or former directors or officers or any person who may have served at its request as a director or officer of another corporation in which it owns shares of capital stock or of which it is a creditor against expenses actually and necessarily incurred by them in connection with the defense of any action, suit, or proceeding in which they, or any of them, are made parties, or a party, by reason of being or having been directors or officers or a director or officer of the corporation, or of such other corporation, except in relation to matters as to which any such director or officer or former director or officer or person shall be adjudged in such action suit, or proceeding to be liable for negligence or misconduct in the performance of duty. Such indemnification shall not be deemed exclusive of any other rights to which those indemnified may be entitled, under any bylaw, agreement, vote of stockholders, or otherwise. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 180, ch. 269, § 4; Sept. 3, 1963, 77 Stat. 136, Pub. L. 88-111, § 1(1).)

AMENDMENT

1963—Section 1(1) of act Sept. 3, 1963, amended subsection (h) by adding the following "No corporation formed hereunder shall plead any statutes against usury in any action."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1963 AMENDMENTS

See note to section 29-903.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Appealable order

Whether foreign corporation, previously qualified, possessed different status when it filed in advance of suit for recovery of allegedly usurious interest a certificate of withdrawal was relevant issue in addition to question raised in first amended complaint as to whether statute allowing corporations to seek financing without regard to lawful interest rates barred a corporation's action to recover usurious interest, and order dismissing second amended complaint which presented issue of foreign corporation's status was a final and appealable order. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Ten Individual Defendants (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Place of business after organization

This chapter, considered in its entirety, contemplates that principal place of business of a corporation may be outside the District after organization in the sense of creation, and there was no intention to make the proviso that "no corporation may be organized" under the chapter "unless the place where it conducts its principal business is located within the District of Columbia" a continuing regulation. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

Usury

Filing of certificate of withdrawal by foreign corporation did not change status previously acquired by corporation's contracts so that under statute allowing corporations to seek financing without regard to lawful interest rates its complaint for recovery of usurious interest under prior contracts was barred. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Ten Individual Defendants (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

§ 29-904a. Power of corporation to acquire its own shares.

A corporation shall have power to purchase, take, receive, or otherwise acquire, hold, own, pledge, transfer, or otherwise dispose of its own shares: Provided, That it shall not purchase, either directly or indirectly, its own shares when its net assets are less than the sum of its stated capital, its paid-in surplus, any surplus arising from unrealized appreciation in value or revaluation of its assets and any surplus arising from surrender to the corporation of any of its shares, or when by so doing its net assets would be reduced below such sum. Notwithstanding the foregoing limitations, a corporation may purchase or otherwise acquire its own shares for the purpose of—

(a) eliminating fractional shares;

(b) collecting or compromising claims of the corporation or any indebtedness to the corporation;

(c) paying dissenting shareholders entitled to payment for their shares under the provisions of this chapter;

(d) effecting the retirement of its redeemable shares by redemption or by purchase at not to exceed the redemption price, but no redemption or purchase of redeemable shares shall be made which will reduce the remaining assets of the corporation below an amount sufficient to pay all debts and known liabilities of the corporation as they mature, except such debts and liabilities as have been otherwise adequately provided for, or which will reduce the net assets below the aggregate amount payable to the holders of shares having prior or equal rights to the assets of the corporation upon dissolution. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 181, ch. 269, § 5.)

§ 29-904b. Dealing in real estate as corporate purpose.

A corporation having among its purposes, as set forth in its articles of incorporation, that of acquiring, owning, using, conveying, and otherwise disposing of and dealing in real property or any interest therein, shall have power and authority so to do without limitation. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 182, ch. 269, § 6.)

§ 29-905. Defense of ultra vires.

No act of a corporation and no conveyance or transfer of real or personal property to or by a corporation shall be invalid by reason of the fact that the corporation was without capacity or power to do such act or to make or receive such conveyance or transfer, but such lack of capacity or power may be asserted—

(a) in a proceeding by a shareholder against the corporation to enjoin the doing of any act or acts or the transfer of real or personal property by or to the corporation. If the acts or transfer sought to be enjoined are being, or are to be, performed or made pursuant to any contract to which the corporation is a party, the court may, if all of the parties to the contract are parties to the proceeding and if it deems the same to be equitable, set aside and enjoin the performance of such contract, and in so doing may allow to the corporation or to the other parties to the contract, as the case may be, compensation for the loss or damage sustained by either of them which may result from the action of the court in setting aside and enjoining the performance of such contract, but anticipated profits to be derived from the performance of the contract shall not be awarded by the court as a loss or damage sustained;

(b) in a proceeding by the corporation, whether acting directly or through a receiver, trustee, or other legal representative, or through shareholders in a representative suit, against the incumbent or former officers or directors of the corporation;

(c) in a proceeding by the Commissioners, as provided in this chapter, to dissolve the corporation, or in a proceeding by the Commissioners to enjoin the corporation from the transaction of unauthorized business. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 182, ch. 269, § 7; Sept. 2, 1957, 71 Stat. 569, Pub. L. 85-254, § 1.)

AMENDMENT

1957—Subsec. (a) amended by act Sept. 2, 1957, which deleted "authorized" from the words "if the authorized acts."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1957 AMENDMENT

AMENDMENT

1957—Subsec. (a)(3) amended by act Sept. 2, 1957, which inserted the words "or incorporate".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1957 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act Sept. 2, 1957, effective on thirtieth day after Sept. 2, 1957, see section 36 of act Sept. 2, 1957, set out as a note under section 29-905.

§ 29-907. Registered office and registered agent.

Each corporation shall have and continuously maintain in the District of Columbia—

(a) a registered office which may be, but need not be, the same as its place of business;

(b) a registered agent, which agent may be either an individual resident in the District of Columbia whose business office is identical with such registered office, or a corporation authorized by the articles of incorporation to act as such agent and authorized to transact business in the District of Columbia having a business office identical with such registered office. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 183, ch. 269, § 10.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Place of business

Under this section requiring a corporation to have and continuously maintain in district a registered office which may be but need not be the same as its place of business and a registered agent, Congress intended only that the registered office and registered agent remain in District and did not require that they be at place of business which would imply, so far as events after organization are concerned, that the place of business might be elsewhere than the District. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

— after organization

This chapter, considered in its entirety, contemplates that principal place of business of a corporation may be outside the District after organization in the sense of creation, and there was no intention to make the proviso that "no corporation may be organized" under the chapter "unless the place where it conducts its principal business is located within the District of Columbia" a continuing regulation. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

§ 29-907a. Change of registered office or registered agent.

(a) A corporation may change its registered office or change its registered agent, or both, by filing with the Commissioners a statement setting forth—

(1) the name of the corporation;

(2) the address, including street and number, if any, of its then registered office;

(3) if the address of its registered office be changed, the address, including street and number, if any, to which the registered office is to be changed;

(4) the name of its then registered agent;

(5) if its registered agent be changed, the name of its successor registered agent;

(6) that the address of its registered office and the address of the business office of its registered agent as changed, will be identical; and

(7) that such change was authorized by resolution duly adopted by its board of directors or was authorized by an officer of the corporation duly empowered to make such change.

(b) Such statement shall be executed in duplicate by the corporation by its president or a vice president, and verified by him, and the corporate seal shall be thereto affixed, attested by its secretary or an assistant secretary, and delivered to the Commissioners. If the Commissioners find that such statement conforms to the provisions of this chapter, they shall:

(1) endorse on each of such duplicate originals the word "Filed", and the month, day, and year of the filing thereof;

(2) file one of such duplicate originals in their office;

(3) return the other duplicate original to the corporation or its representative.

(c) The change of address of the registered office, or the change of registered agent, or both, as the case may be, shall become effective upon the filing of such statement by the Commissioners.

(d) Any registered agent of a corporation may resign as such agent upon filing a written notice thereof, executed in triplicate, with the Commissioners, who shall forthwith mail one copy thereof to the corporation at its registered office and another copy thereof to the corporation at its principal office in the District as shown on the records of the Commissioners. The appointment of such agent shall terminate upon the expiration of thirty days after receipt of such notice by the Commissioners or upon the appointment of a successor agent becoming effective, whichever occurs first. No fee or charge of any kind shall be imposed with respect to a filing under this subsection.

(e) The registered agent of one or more domestic corporations may change the address of the registered office of such domestic corporation or corporations by filing with the Commissioners a statement setting forth:

- (1) the name of the registered agent;
- (2) the present address, including street and number, if any, of such registered agent;
- (3) the names of the corporation or corporations represented by such registered agent at such address;
- (4) the address, including street and number, if any, to which the office of such registered agent is to be changed; and
- (5) the date upon which such change will take place.

(f) Such statement shall be executed in duplicate by such registered agent in his individual name, but if such agent is a corporation, domestic or foreign, such statement shall be executed by such corporation by its president or vice president and the corporate seal shall be thereto affixed, attested by its secretary or an assistant secretary and delivered to the Commissioners. If the Commissioners find that such statement conforms to law, they shall, when all fees and charges have been paid as prescribed in this chapter:

- (1) endorse on each of such duplicate originals the word "Filed" and the month, day, and year of the filing thereof;
- (2) file one of such duplicate originals in their office; and
- (3) return the other duplicate original to the registered agent.

(g) The change of address of such registered agent as to the domestic corporation or corporations named in such statement shall become effective upon the filing of such statement by the Commissioners or on the date set forth in such statement as the date on which such change of location of such registered office will take place, whichever is later. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 184, ch. 269, § 11; Sept. 2, 1957, 71 Stat. 569, Pub. L. 85-254, § 3; July 23, 1959, 73 Stat. 239, Pub. L. 86-106, § 1; Sept. 3, 1963, 77 Stat. 136, Pub. L. 88-111, § 1(2).)

§ 29-907b. Registered agent as an agent for service.

(a) The registered agent so appointed by a corporation shall be an agent of such corporation upon whom process against the corporation may be served, and upon whom any notice or demand required or permitted by law to be served upon the corporation may be served. Service of any process, notice, or demand upon a corporate agent, as such agent, may be had by delivering a copy of such process, notice, or demand to the president, vice president, the secretary, or an assistant secretary of such corporate agent.

(b) Whenever a corporation shall fail to appoint or maintain a registered agent in the District, or whenever any such registered agent cannot with reasonable diligence be found at the registered office of such corporation in the District, or whenever the articles of incorporation of any domestic corporation shall be revoked, then the Commissioners shall be an agent of such corporation upon whom any process against such corporation may be served and upon whom any notice or demand required or permitted by law to be served upon such corporation may be served. Service on the Commissioners of any such process, notice, or demand shall be made by delivering to and leaving with the Commissioners, or with any clerk having charge of their office duplicate copies of such process, notice, or demand. In the event any such process, notice, or demand is so served, the Commissioners shall immediately cause one of such copies thereof to be forwarded by registered or certified mail, addressed to the corporation at its registered office.

(c) The Commissioners shall keep a record of all processes, notices, and demands served upon them under this section, and shall record therein the time of such service and their action with respect thereto.

(June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 184, ch. 269, § 12; Sept. 3, 1963, 77 Stat. 137, Pub. L. 88-111, § 1(3).)

§ 29-908. Authorized shares.

(a) Each corporation shall have power to create and issue the number of shares stated in its articles of incorporation. Such shares may be divided into one or more classes, any or all of which classes may consist of shares with par value or shares without par value, with such designations, preferences, voting powers, special or relative rights and such limitations, restrictions, or qualifications thereof as shall be stated in the articles of incorporation. The articles of incorporation may limit or deny the voting power of the shares of any class.

(b) Without limiting the authority herein contained, a corporation, when so provided in its articles of incorporation, may issue shares of preferred or special classes—

(1) subject to the right of the corporation to redeem any of such shares at the price fixed by the articles of incorporation for the redemption thereof;

(2) entitling the holders thereof to cumulative or noncumulative dividends;

(3) having preference over any other class or classes of shares as to the payment of dividends;

(4) having preference as to the assets of the corporation over any other class or classes of shares upon the voluntary or involuntary liquidation of the corporation;

(5) convertible into shares of any other class: Provided, That shares without par value shall not be converted into shares with par value unless that part of the stated capital of the corporation represented by such shares without par value is, at the time of conversion, at least equal to the aggregate par value of the shares into which the shares without par value are to be converted. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 185, ch. 269, § 13.)

§ 29-908a. Issuance of shares of preferred or special classes in series.

(a) If the articles of incorporation so provide, the shares of any preferred or special class may be divided into and issued in series. If the shares of any such class are to be issued in series, then each series shall be so designated as to distinguish the shares thereof from the shares of all other series and classes. Any or all of the series of any such class and the variations in the relative rights and preferences as between different series may be fixed and determined by the articles of incorporation: Provided, That all shares of the same class shall be identical except as to the following relative rights and preferences, in respect of any or all of which there may be variations between different series:

(1) The rate of dividend, the time of payment and the dates from which dividends on cumulative shares shall be accumulative, and the extent of other participation rights, if any.

(2) The price at and the terms and conditions on which shares may be redeemed.

(3) The amount payable upon shares in event of involuntary liquidation.

(4) The amount payable upon shares in event of voluntary liquidation.

(5) Sinking-fund provisions for the redemption or purchase of shares.

(6) The terms and conditions on which shares may be converted, if the shares of any series are issued with the privilege of conversion.

(7) Any right to vote with holders of shares of any other series or class and any right to vote as a class, either generally or as a condition to specified corporate action.

(b) If the articles of incorporation shall expressly vest authority in the board of directors, then, to the extent that the articles of incorporation shall not have established series and fixed and determined the variations in the relative rights and preferences as between series, the board of directors shall have authority to divide any or all of such classes into series and, within the limitations set forth in this section, fix and determine the relative rights and preferences of the shares of any series so established: Provided, That such authority of the board of directors shall be subject to such further limitations, if any, as are stated in the articles of incorporation and shall always be subject to the limitation that the board of directors shall not create a sinking fund in respect of any series unless provision for a sinking fund at least as beneficial to all issued and outstanding shares of the same class shall either then exist or be at the same time created.

(c) In order for the board of directors to establish a series, where authority so to do is contained in the articles of incorporation, the board of directors shall adopt a resolution setting forth the designation of the series and fixing and determining the relative rights and preferences thereof, or so much thereof as shall not be fixed and determined by the articles of incorporation.

(d) Prior to the issue of any shares of a series established by resolution adopted by the board of directors, the corporation shall file with the Commissioners a statement setting forth—

(1) the name of the corporation;

(2) a copy of the resolution establishing and designating the series, and fixing and determining the relative rights and preferences thereof;

(3) the date of adoption of such resolution;

(4) that such resolution was duly adopted by the board of directors.

(e) Such statement shall be executed in duplicate by the corporation by its president or a vice president, and verified by him, and the corporate seal shall be thereto affixed, attested by its secretary or an assistant secretary, and shall be delivered to the Commissioners. If the Commissioners find that such statement conforms to law, they shall, when all franchise taxes, fees, and charges have been paid as in this chapter prescribed—

(1) endorse on each of such duplicate originals the word "Filed", and the month, day, and year of the filing thereof;

(2) file one of such duplicate originals in their office;

(3) return the other duplicate original to the corporation or its representative.

(f) Upon the filing of such statement by the Commissioners, the resolution establishing and designating the series and fixing and determining the relative rights and preferences thereof shall become effective. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 185, ch. 269, § 14; Sept. 2, 1957, 71 Stat. 569, Pub. L. 85-254, § 4; July 23, 1959, 73 Stat. 240, Pub. L. 86-106, § 2.)

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1959 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act July 23, 1959, effective on sixtieth day after July 23, 1959, see section 18 of act July 23, 1959, set out as a note under section 29-907a.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1957 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act Sept. 2, 1957, effective on thirtieth day after Sept. 2, 1957, see section 36 of act Sept. 2, 1957, set out as a note under section 29-905.

§ 29-908b. Subscriptions for shares.

(a) A subscription for shares of a corporation to be organized shall be irrevocable for a period of six months unless otherwise provided by the terms of the subscription agreement, or unless all of the subscribers consent to the revocation of such subscription.

(b) Unless otherwise provided in the subscription agreement, subscriptions for shares, whether made before or after the organization of a corporation, shall be paid in full at such time, or in such installments and at such times, as shall be determined by the board of directors. Any call made by the board of directors for payment on subscriptions shall be uniform as to all shares of the same class. In case of default in the payment of any installment or call when such payment is due, the corporation may proceed to collect the amount due in the same manner as any debt due the corporation. The bylaws may prescribe other penalties for failure to pay installments or calls that may become due, but no penalty working a forfeiture of the shares, or of the amounts paid thereon, shall be declared as against any subscriber unless the amount due thereon shall remain unpaid for a period of twenty days after written demand has been made therefor. Such written demand shall be deemed to be made when deposited in the United States mail in a sealed envelope addressed to the subscriber at his last post-office address known to the corporation, with the postage thereon prepaid. In the event of the sale of any shares by reason of any forfeiture, the excess of proceeds realized over the amount due and unpaid on such shares shall be paid to the delinquent subscriber or to his legal representative. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 186, ch. 269, § 15.)

§ 29-908c. Consideration for shares.

(a) Shares having a par value may be issued for such consideration, not less than the par value thereof, as shall be fixed from time to time by the board of directors.

(b) Shares without par value may be issued for such consideration as may be fixed from time to time by the board of directors unless the articles of incorporation reserve to the shareholders the right to fix the consideration. In the event that such right be reserved as to any shares, the shareholders shall, prior to the issuance of such shares, fix the consideration to be received for such shares, by a vote of the holders of a majority of all outstanding shares entitled to vote thereon.

(c) Shares of a corporation issued and thereafter acquired by it may be disposed of by the corporation for such consideration as may be fixed from time to time by the board of directors.

(d) That part of the surplus of a corporation which is transferred to stated capital upon the issuance of shares as a share dividend shall be deemed to be the consideration for the issuance of such shares.

(e) In the event of an exchange of issued shares having a par value for a different number of shares having the same aggregate par value, whether of the same or of a different class or classes, or in the event of a conversion of shares, or in the event of an exchange of shares with or without par value into the same or a different number of shares without par value, whether of the same or a different class or classes, the consideration for the shares so issued in exchange shall be deemed to be (1) the consideration originally received for the shares so exchanged or converted; and (2) that part of surplus, if any, transferred to stated capital upon the issuance of shares for the shares so exchanged or converted; and (3) any additional consideration paid to the corporation upon the issuance of shares for the shares so exchanged or converted. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 187, ch. 269, § 16.)

§ 29-908d. Payment for shares.

(a) The consideration for the issuance of shares may be paid, in whole or in part, in money, in other property, tangible or intangible, or in labor or services actually performed for the corporation. When payment of the consideration for which shares are to be issued, which, in the case of shares having a par value, shall be not less than the par value thereof, shall have been received by the corporation, such shares shall be deemed to be full paid and non-assessable.

(b) Neither promissory notes nor future services shall constitute payment or part payment for shares of a corporation.

(c) In the absence of fraud in the transaction, the judgment of the board of directors or the shareholders, as the case may be, as to the value of the consideration received for shares shall be conclusive. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 187, ch. 269, § 17.)

§ 29-908e. Determination of amount of stated capital.

(a) A corporation may determine that only a part of the consideration for which its shares may be issued, from time to time, shall be stated capital: Provided, That in the event of any such determination—

(1) if the shares issued shall consist wholly of shares having a par value, then the stated capital represented by such shares shall be not less than the aggregate par value of the shares so issued;

(2) if the shares issued shall consist wholly of shares without par value, all of which shares have a preferential right in the assets of the corporation in the event of its involuntary liquidation, then the stated capital represented by such shares shall be not less than the aggregate preferential amount payable upon such shares in the event of involuntary liquidation;

(3) if the shares issued consist wholly of shares without par value, and none of such shares has a preferential right in the assets of the corporation in the event of its involuntary liquidation, then the stated capital represented by such shares shall be the total consideration received therefor less such part thereof as may be allocated to paid-in surplus;

(4) if the shares issued shall consist of several or all of the classes of shares enumerated in (1), (2), and (3) of this section, then the stated capital represented by such shares shall be not less than the aggregate par value of any shares so issued having a par value and the aggregate preferential amount payable upon any shares so issued without par value having a preferential right in the event of involuntary liquidation.

(b) In order to determine that only a part of the consideration for which shares without par value may be issued from time to time shall be stated capital, the board of directors shall adopt a resolution setting forth the part of such consideration allocated to stated capital and the part otherwise allocated, and expressing such allocation in dollars. If the board of directors shall not have determined (a) at the time of the issuance of any shares issued for cash, or (b) within sixty days after the issuance of any shares issued for labor or services actually performed for the corporation or issued for property other than cash, that only a part of the consideration for shares so issued shall be stated capital, then the stated capital of the corporation represented by such shares shall be an amount equal to the aggregate par value of all such shares having a par value, plus the consideration received for all such shares without par value.

(c) The stated capital of the corporation may be increased from time to time by resolution of the board of directors directing that all or a part of the paid-in or other surplus of the corporation be transferred to stated capital. The board of directors may direct that the amount of the surplus so transferred shall be deemed to be stated capital in respect of any designated class of shares. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 188, ch. 269, § 18.)

§ 29-908f. Expenses of organization, reorganization, and financing.

The reasonable charges and expenses of organization or reorganization of a corporation and reasonable compensation for the sale or underwriting of its shares may be paid or allowed by such corporation out of the consideration received by it in payment for its shares without thereby rendering such shares not full paid and nonassessable. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 188, ch. 269, § 19.)

§ 29-908g. Certificates representing shares.

(a) The shares of a corporation shall be represented by certificates signed by the president or a vice president and the secretary or an assistant secretary and sealed with the seal of the corporation. Such seal may be a facsimile. Where such a certificate is countersigned by a transfer agent other than the corporation itself or an employee of the corporation, or by a transfer clerk and registered by a registrar, the signatures of the president or vice president and the secretary or assistant secretary upon such certificate may be facsimiles. In case any officer who has signed or whose facsimile signature has been placed upon such certificate shall have ceased to be such officer before such certificate is issued, it may be issued by the corporation with the same effect as if such officer had not ceased to hold such office at the date of its issue.

(b) Notwithstanding the provisions of section 28:8-204 of the District of Columbia Code, every certificate representing shares the transferability of which is restricted or limited shall state upon the face thereof that the transferability of such shares is restricted or limited and upon the face or back thereof shall either set forth a full or summary statement of any such restriction or limitation upon the transferability of such shares or shall state that the corporation will furnish to any shareholder upon request and without charge such full or summary statement.

(c) Subject to the provisions of subsection (b) of this section, every certificate representing shares issued by a corporation which is authorized to issue shares of more than one class shall set forth upon the face or back thereof, or shall state that the corporation will furnish to any shareholder upon request and without charge, a full or summary statement of the designations, preferences, limitations, and relative rights of the shares of each class authorized to be issued, and, if the corporation is authorized to issue any preferred or special class in series, the variations in the relative rights and preferences between the shares of each such series so far as the same have been fixed and determined and the authority of the board of directors to fix and determine the relative rights and preferences of subsequent series.

(d) Each certificate representing shares shall also state—

- (1) that the corporation is organized under the laws of the District of Columbia;
- (2) the name of the person to whom issued;
- (3) the number and class of shares which such certificate represents;
- (4) the par value of each share represented by such certificate, or a statement that the shares are without par value.

(e) No certificate shall be issued for any share until such share is fully paid.

(f) As to corporations availing themselves of the provisions of section 29-952, the provisions of this section shall be applicable only to the shares of such corporations issued subsequent to such reincorporation or incorporation. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 189, ch. 269, § 20; Sept. 2, 1957, 71 Stat. 569, Pub. L. 85-254, § 5; July 23, 1959, 73 Stat. 240, Pub. L. 86-106, § 3; Dec. 30, 1963, 77 Stat. 770, Pub. L. 88-234, § 4.)

AMENDMENTS

1963—Section 4 of act Dec. 30, 1963, amended subsection (b) by changing the reference to section 28-2915 to the new section 28:8-204.

1959—Subsec. (b) amended by act July 23, 1959, which substituted the provisions set forth in the text for former provisions which read: "Every certificate representing shares issued by a corporation which is authorized to issue shares the transferability of which is restricted or limited shall state upon the face or back thereof, in full or in the form of a summary, all of the limitations and restrictions upon the transferability thereof."

Subsec. ### § 29-908h. Issuance of fractional shares or scrip.

A corporation may, but shall not be obliged to, issue a certificate for a fractional share, and, by action of its board of directors, may issue in lieu thereof scrip or other evidence of ownership, which shall entitle the holder to receive a certificate for a full share upon the surrender of such scrip or other evidence of ownership aggregating a full share, but which shall not, unless otherwise provided, entitle the holder to exercise any voting right, or to receive dividends thereon or to participate in any of the assets of the corporation in the event of liquidation. The board of directors may cause such scrip or evidence of ownership to be issued subject to the condition that it shall become void if not exchanged for certificates representing full shares before a specified date, or subject to the condition that the shares for which such scrip or evidence of ownership is exchangeable may be sold by the corporation and the proceeds thereof distributed to the holders of such scrip or evidence of ownership, or subject to any other conditions which the board of directors may deem advisable. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 189, ch. 269, § 21.)

§ 29-908i. Liability of subscribers and shareholders.

(a) A holder of or a subscriber to shares of a corporation shall be under no obligation to the corporation or its creditors with respect to such shares other than the obligation to pay to the corporation the full consideration for which said shares were issued or to be issued, which, as to shares having a par value, shall be not less than the par value thereof. Any person becoming an assignee or transferee of shares or of a subscription for shares in good faith and without knowledge or notice that the full consideration therefor has not been paid shall not be personally liable to the corporation or its creditors for any unpaid portion of such consideration.

(b) No person holding shares as executor, administrator, conservator, guardian, trustee, assignee for the benefit of creditors, or receiver shall be personally liable as a shareholder, but the estate and funds in the hands of said executor, administrator, conservator, guardian, trustee, assignee, or receiver shall be so liable. No pledgee or other holder of shares as collateral security shall be personally liable as a shareholder.

(c) Where it cannot be determined that shares which have been issued and outstanding for more than twelve years are fully paid and nonassessable, a determination by the board of directors that the net assets of a corporation applicable to such shares have a fair value at least equal to the stated capital represented by such shares, shall, in the absence of fraud, have the same effect as if such shares had been issued in consideration of such net assets upon such a determination made at the time of issuance, except that no such determination shall affect any rights of any then existing creditors. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 190, ch. 269, § 22; July 23, 1959, 73 Stat. 240, Pub. L. 86-106, § 4.)

(June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 190, ch. 269, § 23.)

The bylaws may contain any provisions for the regulation and management of the affairs of the corporation not inconsistent with law or the articles of incorporation. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 190, ch. 269, § 24.)

§ 29-910. Meetings of shareholders.

(b) An annual meeting of the shareholders shall be held at such time as may be provided in the bylaws. Failure to hold the annual meeting at the designated time shall not work a forfeiture or dissolution of the corporation.

§ 29-911. Voting of shares.

(a) Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation, each outstanding share shall be entitled to one vote on each matter submitted to a vote at a meeting of shareholders.

(b) Shares of its own stock belonging to a corporation shall not be voted, directly or indirectly, at any meeting and shall not be counted in determining the total number of outstanding shares at any given time, but shares of its own stock held by it in a fiduciary capacity may be voted and shall be counted in determining the total number of outstanding shares at any given time.

(c) A shareholder may vote either in person or by proxy executed in writing by the shareholder or by his duly authorized attorney in fact. No proxy shall be valid after eleven months from the date of its execution, unless otherwise provided in the proxy. Every proxy shall be revocable at the pleasure of the person executing it or his personal representatives or assigns; but the parties to a valid pledge or to an executory contract of sale may agree in writing as to which of them shall vote the stock pledged or sold until the contract of pledge or sale is fully executed.

(d) The articles of incorporation may provide that in all elections for directors every shareholder entitled to vote shall have the right to vote, in person or by proxy, the number of shares owned by him, for as many persons as there are directors to be elected, or to cumulate said shares, and give one candidate as many votes as the number of such directors multiplied by the number of his shares shall equal, or to distribute such votes on the same principle among any number of such candidates. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 191, ch. 269, § 27.)

§ 29-912. Closing of transfer books and fixing record date.

For the purpose of determining shareholders entitled to notice of or to vote at any meeting of shareholders, or shareholders entitled to receive payment of any dividend, or in order to make a determination of shareholders for any other proper purpose, the board of directors of a corporation may provide that the stock-transfer books shall be closed for a stated period but not to exceed, in any case, fifty days. If the stock-transfer books shall be closed for the purpose of determining shareholders entitled to notice of or to vote at a meeting of shareholders, such books shall be closed for at least ten days immediately preceding such meeting. In lieu of closing the stock-transfer books, the board of directors may fix in advance a date as the record date for any determination of shareholders, such date in any case to be not more than fifty days and, in case of a meeting of shareholders, not less than ten days prior to the date on which the particular action, requiring such determination of shareholders, is to be taken. If the stock-transfer books are not closed and no record date is fixed for the determination of shareholders entitled to notice of or to vote at a meeting of shareholders, or shareholders entitled to receive payment of a dividend, the date on which notice of the meeting is mailed or the date on which the resolution of the board of directors declaring such dividend is adopted, as the case may be, shall be the record date for such determination of shareholders. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 191, ch. 269, § 28.)

§ 29-913. Voting of shares by certain holders.

(a) Shares standing in the name of another corporation may be voted by such officer, agent, or proxy as the bylaws of such corporation may prescribe, or, in the absence of such provision, as the board of directors of such corporation may determine. A proxy purporting to be executed by a corporation shall be presumed to be valid and the burden of proving invalidity shall rest on any challenger.

(b) Shares standing in the name of a deceased person may be voted by his administrator or executor, either in person or by proxy. Shares standing in the name of a guardian, conservator, or trustee may be voted by such fiduciary, either in person or by proxy, but no guardian, conservator, or trustee shall be entitled, as such fiduciary, to vote shares held by him without a transfer of such shares into his name.

(c) Shares standing in the name of a receiver or a trustee in bankruptcy may be voted by such receiver or trustee, and shares held by or under the control of a receiver or a trustee in bankruptcy may be voted by such receiver or trustee without the transfer thereof into his name if authority so to do be contained in an appropriate order of the court by which such receiver or trustee in bankruptcy was appointed.

(d) Except as otherwise provided in section 29-911, a shareholder whose shares are pledged shall be entitled to vote such shares until the shares have been transferred into the name of the pledgee, and thereafter the pledgee shall be entitled to vote the shares so transferred.

(e) Shares standing in the name of a partnership may be voted by any partner. A proxy purporting to be executed by a partnership shall be presumed to be valid and the burden of proving invalidity shall rest on any challenger.

(f) Shares standing in the name of two or more persons as joint tenants, or tenants in common, or tenants by the entirety, may be voted in person or by proxy by any one or more of such persons. If more than one of such tenants shall vote such shares, the vote shall be divided among them in proportion to the number of such tenants voting in person or by proxy unless a different apportionment of the vote is requested by such tenants. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 192, ch. 269, § 29; July 23, 1959, 73 Stat. 240, Pub. L. 86-106, § 6.)

AMENDMENTS

1959—Subsec. (a) amended by act July 23, 1959, which added presumption of validity respecting execution of a proxy.

Subsecs. (e) and (f) added by act July 23, 1959.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1959 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act July 23, 1959, effective on sixtieth day after July 23, 1959, see section 18 of act July 23, 1959, set out as a note under section 29-907a.

§ 29-914. Voting trust.

Any number of shareholders of a corporation may create a voting trust for the purpose of conferring upon a trustee or trustees the right to vote or otherwise represent their shares, for a period of not to exceed ten years, by entering into a written voting trust agreement specifying the terms and conditions of the voting trust, by depositing a counterpart of the agreement with the corporation at its registered office, and by transferring their shares to such trustee or trustees for the purposes of the agreement. The counterpart of the voting-trust agreement so deposited with the corporation shall be subject to the same right of examination by a shareholder of the corporation, in person or by agent or attorney, as is the record of shareholders of the corporation, and shall be subject to examination by any holder of a beneficial interest in the voting trust, either in person or by agent or attorney, at any reasonable time for any proper purpose. The trustee or trustees may execute and deliver to the transferors voting-trust certificates which shall be transferable in the same manner and with the same effect as certificates representing shares. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 192, ch. 269, § 30.)

§ 29-915. Quorum of shareholders.

(a) Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation or bylaws, a majority of the outstanding shares having voting power, represented in person or by proxy, shall constitute a quorum at a meeting of shareholders: Provided, That in no event shall a quorum consist of less than one-third of the outstanding shares having voting power.

(b) The shareholders present at a duly organized meeting may continue to do business until adjournment, notwithstanding the withdrawal of enough shareholders to leave less than a quorum.

(c) If a meeting cannot be organized because a quorum has not attended, those present may adjourn the meeting from time to time until a quorum is present when any business may be transacted that may have been transacted at the meeting as originally called.

(d) If a quorum is present, the affirmative vote of the majority of the shares represented at the meeting and entitled to vote on the subject matter shall be the act of the shareholders, unless the vote of a greater number, or voting by classes, is required by this chapter or the articles of incorporation, and except that in elections of directors, those receiving the greatest number of votes shall be deemed elected even though not receiving a majority. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 191, ch. 269, § 31; July 23, 1959, 73 Stat. 241, Pub. L. 86-106, § 7.)

1959—Subsec. (d) added by act July 23, 1959.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1959 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act July 23, 1959, effective on sixtieth day after July 23, 1959, see section 18 of act July 23, 1959, set out as a note under section 29-907a.

§ 29-916. Board of directors.

The business and affairs of a corporation shall be managed by a board of directors. Directors need not be shareholders in the corporation unless the articles of incorporation or bylaws so provide. The articles of incorporation or bylaws may prescribe other qualifications for directors.

Unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation or bylaws, the board of directors, by the affirmative vote of a majority of the directors then in office, and irrespective of any personal interest of any director, shall have authority to establish reasonable compensation of all directors for services to the corporation as directors, officers, or otherwise. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 193, ch. 269, § 32; Sept. 3, 1963, 77 Stat. 137, Pub. L. 88-111, § 1(4).)

AMENDMENT

1963—Section 1(4) of act Sept. 3, 1963, amended section by adding the second paragraph relating to compensation of directors.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1963 AMENDMENT

See note to section 29-903.

§ 29-916a. Number and election of directors.

The number of directors of a corporation shall not be less than three. Subject to such limitation, the number of directors shall be fixed by the bylaws, except as to the number constituting the first board of directors, which number shall be fixed by the articles of incorporation. The number of directors may be increased or decreased from time to time by amendment to the bylaws. In the absence of a bylaw fixing the number of directors, the number shall be the same as that stated in the articles of incorporation. The names and addresses of the members of the first board of directors shall be stated in the articles of incorporation. Such persons shall hold office until the first annual meeting of shareholders, or until their successors shall have been elected and qualified. At the first annual meeting of shareholders and at each annual meeting thereafter the shareholders shall elect directors to hold office until the next succeeding annual meeting, except as hereinafter provided. Each director shall hold office for the term for which he is elected or until his successor shall have been elected and qualified. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 193, ch. 269, § 33.)

§ 29-916b. Classification of directors.

The bylaws may provide that the directors be divided into either two or three classes, each class to be as nearly equal in number as possible, the term of office of directors of the first class to expire at the first annual meeting of shareholders after their election, that of the second class to expire at the second annual meeting after their election, and that of the third class, if any, to expire at the third annual meeting after their election. At each annual meeting after such classification the number of directors equal to the number of the class whose term expires at the time of such meeting shall be elected to hold office until the second succeeding annual meeting, if there be two classes, or until the third succeeding annual meeting, if there be three classes. No classification of directors shall be effective prior to the first annual meeting of shareholders. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 193, ch. 269, § 34.)

§ 29-916c. Vacancies.

Any directorship to be filled by reason of an increase in the number of directors may be filled by election at an annual meeting or at a special meeting of shareholders entitled to vote called for that purpose. Any vacancy occurring in the board of directors for any cause other than by reason of an increase in the number of directors may be filled by affirmative vote of a majority of the remaining directors, though less than a quorum of the board of directors, unless the articles of incorporation otherwise provide. A director elected to fill a vacancy shall be elected for the unexpired term of his predecessor in office. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 193, ch. 269, § 35; July 23, 1959, 73 Stat. 241, Pub. L. 86-106, § 8.)

AMENDMENT

1959—Act July 23, 1959, substituted "by affirmative vote of a majority of the remaining directors, though less than a quorum of the board of directors, unless the articles of incorporation otherwise provide" for "by the board of directors".

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1959 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act July 23, 1959, effective on sixtieth day after July 23, 1959, see section 18 of act July 23, 1959, set out as a note under section 29-907a.

§ 29-916d. Quorum of directors.

A majority of the number of directors fixed by the bylaws or in the absence of a bylaw fixing the number of directors, then of the number stated in the articles of incorporation, shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business unless a greater number is required by the articles of incorporation or the bylaws. The act of the majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the board of directors, unless the act of a greater number is required by the articles of incorporation or the bylaws. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 193, ch. 269, § 36.)

§ 29-916e. Executive committee.

If the bylaws so provide, the board of directors, by resolution adopted by a majority of the number of directors fixed by the bylaws, or in the absence of a bylaw fixing the number of directors, then of the number stated in the articles of incorporation, may designate two or more directors to constitute an executive committee, which committee, to the extent provided in such resolution or in the bylaws of the corporation shall have and may exercise all of the authority of the board of directors in the management of the business and affairs of the corporation; but the designation of such committee and the delegation thereto of authority shall not operate to relieve the board of directors, or any member thereof, of any responsibility imposed upon it or him by law. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 194, ch. 269, § 37.)

§ 29-916f. Place of directors' meetings.

Meetings of the board of directors, regular or special, may be held at such place within or without the District of Columbia as may be provided in the bylaws or by resolution adopted by a majority of the board of directors. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 174, ch. 269, § 38.)

§ 29-916g. Notice of directors' meetings.

Except as provided in section 29-945 hereof, meetings of the board of directors shall be held upon such notice as is prescribed in the bylaws. Attendance of a director at a meeting shall constitute a waiver of notice of such meeting, except where a director attends a meeting for the express purpose of objecting to the transaction of any business because the meeting is not lawfully called or convened. Neither the business to be transacted at, nor the purpose of, any regular or special meeting of the board of directors need be specified in the notice or waiver of notice of such meeting. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 194, ch. 269, § 39; Sept. 2, 1957, 71 Stat. 569, Pub. L. 85-254, § 7.)

AMENDMENT

1957—Act Sept. 2, 1957, added the introductory words "Except as provided in section 29-945 hereof" to the first sentence.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1957 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act Sept. 2, 1957, effective on thirtieth day after Sept. 2, 1957, see section 36 of act Sept. 2, 1957, set out as a note under section 29-905.

§ 29-917. Dividends.

The board of directors of a corporation may declare and the corporation may pay dividends on its outstanding shares in cash, property, or its own shares, subject to the following provisions:

(a) No dividend shall be declared or paid at a time when the corporation is insolvent or its net assets are less than its stated capital, or when payments thereof would render the corporation insolvent or reduce its net assets below its stated capital.

(b) Dividends may be paid out of paid-in surplus or surplus arising from the surrender to the corporation of any of its shares only upon shares having a preferential right to receive dividends, provided that the source of such dividends shall be disclosed to the shareholders receiving such dividends, concurrently with payment thereof. The limitations of this subparagraph shall not limit nor be deemed to conflict with the provisions of this chapter in respect of the distribution of assets as a liquidating dividend.

(c) If a dividend is declared payable in its own shares having a par value, such shares shall be issued at the par value thereof and there shall be transferred to stated capital at the time such dividend is paid, an amount of surplus equal to the aggregate par value of the shares to be issued as a dividend.

(d) If a dividend is declared payable in its own shares without par value, such shares shall be issued at such value as shall be fixed by the board of directors by resolution adopted at the time such dividend is declared, and there shall be transferred to stated capital at the time such dividend is paid, an amount of surplus equal to the aggregate value so fixed in respect of such shares. The amount per share transferred to stated capital shall be disclosed to the shareholders receiving such dividends, concurrently with payment thereof.

(e) A split up or division of issued shares into a greater number of shares of the same class shall not be construed to be a share dividend within the meaning of this section.

(f) No dividend shall be declared or paid contrary to any restrictions contained in the articles of incorporation.

(g) Subject to any restrictions contained in its articles of incorporation, the directors of any corporation engaged in the exploitation of wasting assets may determine the net profits derived from the exploitation of such wasting assets without taking into consideration the depletion of such wasting assets resulting from lapse of time or from necessary consumption of such assets incidental to their exploitation and may pay dividends from the net profits so determined by the directors. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 194, ch. 269, § 40.)

§ 29-917a. Dividends in partial liquidation.

A corporation, from time to time, may distribute a portion of its assets, in cash or kind, to its shareholders as a liquidating dividend, in the following manner and subject to the following restrictions:

(a) The board of directors shall adopt a resolution recommending the payment of a liquidating dividend, specifying the class or classes of shareholders entitled thereto and the amount thereof, and directing that the question of such distribution be submitted to a vote at a meeting of shareholders, which may be either an annual or a special meeting.

(b) Written or printed notice stating that the purpose or one of the purposes of such meeting is to consider the question of such distribution shall be given to each shareholder of record entitled to vote within the time and in the manner provided in this chapter for the giving of notice of meetings of shareholders. If such meeting be an annual meeting, such purpose may be included in the notice of such meeting.

(c) At such meeting a vote of the shareholders entitled to vote shall be taken by classes on the question of the proposed distribution. The affirmative vote of the holders of at least two-thirds of the outstanding shares of each class shall be required for the authorization of such distribution.

(d) No such distribution shall be made at a time when the corporation is insolvent or its net assets are less than its stated capital, or when such distribution would render the corporation insolvent or reduce its net assets below its stated capital.

(e) No such distribution shall be made to any class of shareholders unless all cumulative dividends accrued on preferred or special classes of shares entitled to preferential dividends shall have been fully paid.

(f) No such distribution shall be made to any class of shareholders which will reduce the remaining net assets below the aggregate preferential amount payable in event of voluntary liquidation to the holders of shares having preferential rights to the assets of the corporation in the event of liquidation.

(g) Each such distribution, when made, shall be identified as a liquidating dividend and the amount per share shall be disclosed to the shareholders receiving the same, concurrently with the payment thereof. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 195, ch. 269, § 41.)

§ 29-918. Liability of directors in certain cases.

(a) In addition to any other liabilities imposed by law upon directors of a corporation—

(1) directors of a corporation who vote for or assent to the declaration of any dividend or other distribution of the assets of a corporation to its shareholders contrary to the provisions of this chapter, or contrary to any restrictions contained in the articles of incorporation, shall be jointly and severally liable to the corporation for the amount of such dividend which is paid or the value of such assets which are distributed in excess of the amount of such dividend or distribution which could have been paid or distributed without a violation of the provisions of this chapter or any restrictions in the articles of incorporation;

(2) the directors of a corporation who vote for or assent to the declaration of any dividend or other distribution of assets of a corporation to its shareholders which renders the corporation insolvent or reduces its net assets below its stated capital shall be jointly and severally liable to the corporation for the amount of such dividend which is paid or the value of such assets which are distributed, to the extent that the corporation is thereby rendered insolvent or its net assets are reduced below its stated capital;

(3) the directors of a corporation who vote for or assent to any distribution of assets of a corporation to its shareholders during the liquidation of the corporation without an adequate provision for, or the payment and discharge of, all debts, obligations, and liabilities of the corporation shall be jointly and severally liable to the corporation for the amount of such dividend which is paid or the value of such assets which are distributed, to the extent that such debts, obligations and liabilities of the corporation are not thereafter paid and discharged;

(4) the directors of a corporation who vote for or assent to the making of a loan to an officer or director of the corporation shall be jointly and severally liable to the corporation for the amount of such loan until the repayment thereof.

(b) A director of a corporation who is present at a meeting of its board of directors at which action on any corporate matter is taken shall be conclusively presumed to have assented to the action taken unless his dissent shall be entered in the minutes of the meeting or unless he shall file his written dissent to such action with the person acting as the secretary of the meeting before the adjournment thereof or shall forward such dissent by registered mail to the secretary of the corporation immediately after the adjournment of the meeting. Such right to dissent shall not apply to a director who voted in favor of such action.

(c) A director shall not be liable under either subparagraph (1) or (2) of this section if he relied and acted in good faith upon a balance sheet and profit-and-loss statement of the corporation represented to him to be correct by the president or the officer of such corporation having charge of its books of account, or certified by or otherwise represented in a written report of an independent public or certified public accountant or firm of such accountants to fairly reflect the financial condition of such corporation, nor shall he be so liable if in good faith in determining the amount available for any such dividend or distribution he considered the assets to be of their book value.

(d) Any director against whom a claim shall be asserted under or pursuant to this section, and who shall be held liable thereon, shall be entitled to contribution from the other directors who are likewise liable thereon.

(e) Any director against whom a claim shall be asserted under or pursuant to this section for the improper declaration of a dividend or other distribution of assets of a corporation and who shall be held liable thereon, shall be entitled to contribution from the shareholders who knowingly accepted or received any such dividend or assets, in proportion to the amounts received by them, respectively.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Liability of officers

President of "association" which filed its articles of incorporation that were first rejected but later accepted could be held personally liable on obligation entered into by "association" before certificate of incorporation was issued, and creditor was not estopped from denying existence of corporation because, after certificate of incorporation was issued, he accepted first installment payment on note executed by "association." M. G. Robertson v. E. M. Levy (D.C. App. 1964, 197 A. 2d 443).

§ 29-919. Officers.

(a) The officers of a corporation shall consist of a president, one or more vice presidents as may be prescribed by the bylaws, a secretary, and a treasurer, each of whom shall be elected by the board of directors at such time and in such manner as may be prescribed by the bylaws. Such other officers and assistant officers and agents as may be deemed necessary may be elected or appointed by the board of directors or chosen in such other manner as may be prescribed by the bylaws. If the bylaws so provide, any two or more offices may be held by the same person, except the offices of president and secretary.

(b) All officers and agents of the corporation, as between themselves and the corporation, shall have such authority and perform such duties in the management of the property and affairs of the corporation as may be provided in the bylaws, or as may be determined by resolution of the board of directors not inconsistent with the bylaws. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 197, ch. 269, § 43.)

§ 29-919a. Removal of officers.

Any officer or agent elected or appointed by the board of directors may be removed by the board of directors whenever in its judgment the best interests of the corporation will be served thereby, but such removal shall be without prejudice to the contract rights, if any, of the person so removed. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 197, ch. 269, § 44.)

§ 29-920. Books and records.

(a) Each corporation shall keep correct and complete books and records of account and shall also keep minutes of the proceedings of its shareholders and board of directors; and shall keep at its registered office or principal place of business, or at the office of its transfer agent or registrar, a record of its shareholders, giving the names and addresses of all shareholders and the number and class of the shares held by each.

(b) Any person or persons who shall be the holder or holders of record of at least 5 per centum of all the outstanding shares of a corporation shall have the right to examine, in person, or by agent or attorney, at any reasonable time or times, for any proper purpose, its record of shareholders and to make extracts therefrom.

(c) A holder of a voting-trust certificate evidencing an interest in a voting trust conforming to the provisions of this chapter shall have the same rights as a shareholder to examine and make extracts from the record of shareholders of the corporation.

(d) If any person or persons holding in the aggregate 5 per centum or more of all of the outstanding shares of a corporation shall present to any officer, director, or registered agent of the corporation a written request stating the purpose thereof, for a statement of its affairs, it shall be his duty to make or procure such a statement sworn to by the president or a vice president or by the treasurer or an assistant treasurer, embracing a particular account of its assets and liabilities in detail, and to have the same ready and on file at the registered office of the corporation within thirty days after the presentation of such request. Such statement shall at all times during business hours be open to the inspection of any shareholder and he shall be entitled to copy the same.

(e) Any corporation whose officers or agents shall refuse to allow any such shareholder, entitled under the provisions of this section to examine the record of shareholders, or his agent or attorney, so to examine and make extracts from its record of shareholders, for any proper purpose, shall be liable to such shareholder in a penalty of $50, in addition to any other damages or remedy afforded him by law. It shall be a defense to any action for penalties under this section that the person suing therefor has within two years sold or offered for sale any list of shareholders of such corporation or any other corporation or has aided or abetted any person in procuring any list of shareholders for any such purpose, or has improperly used any information secured through any prior examination of the record of shareholders of such corporation or any other corporation.

(f) Nothing herein contained shall impair the power of any court of competent jurisdiction, upon proof by a shareholder of proper purpose, irrespective of the period of time during which such shareholder shall have been a shareholder of record, and irrespective of the number of shares held by him, to compel by mandamus or otherwise the production for examination by such shareholder of the books and records of account, minutes, and record of shareholders of a corporation. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 197, ch. 269, § 45; July 23, 1959, 73 Stat. 241, Pub. L. 86-106, § 10.)

Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc.* (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

§ 29-921. Incorporators.

Three or more natural persons of the age of twenty-one years or more may act as incorporators of a corporation by signing, verifying, and filing in duplicate in the office of the Commissioners articles of incorporation for such corporation. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 198, ch. 269, § 46.)

- (e) If the shares are to be divided into classes, the designation of each class and a statement of the preferences, voting power, limitations, restrictions, qualifications, and the special or relative rights in respect of the shares of each class.

(f) A statement that the minimum amount of capital with which the corporation shall commence business shall be not less than $1,000.

(h) Any provision limiting or denying to shareholders the preemptive right to acquire additional shares of the corporation.

(i) Any provision, not inconsistent with law, which the incorporators elect to set forth in the articles of incorporation for the regulation of the internal affairs of the corporation, including any provision which under this chapter is required or permitted to be set forth in the bylaws.

(j) The address, including street and number, if any, of its initial registered office, and the name of its initial registered agent at such address.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Place of business after organization

This chapter, considered in its entirety, contemplates that principal place of business of a corporation may be outside the District after organization in the sense of creation, and there was no intention to make the proviso that “no corporation may be organized” under the chapter "unless the place where it conducts its principal business is located within the District of Columbia" a continuing regulation. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

Principal place of business

The provision of this chapter providing that each corporation "shall keep at each registered office or principal place of business, or at the office of its transfer agent or registrar, a record of its shareholders" contemplated that principal place of business might also be outside the district after organization. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

§ 29-921b. Filing of articles of incorporation.

(a) Duplicate originals of the articles of incorporation shall be delivered to the Commissioners. If the Commissioners find that the articles of incorporation conform to law, they shall, when all fees have been paid as in this chapter prescribed—

(1) endorse on each of such duplicate originals the word "Filed" and the month, day, and year of the filing thereof;

(2) file one of such duplicate originals in their office;

(3) issue a certificate of incorporation to which they shall affix the other duplicate original.

(b) The certificate of incorporation, together with the duplicate original of the articles of incorporation affixed thereto by the Commissioners, shall be delivered to the incorporators or their representatives. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 199, ch. 269, § 48; Sept. 2, 1957, 71 Stat. 569, Pub. L. 85-254, § 8.)

AMENDMENT

1957—Subsec. (b) amended by act Sept. 2, 1957, which substituted "delivered to the incorporators or their representatives" for "recorded by the Commissioners in the office of the Recorder of Deeds."

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1957 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act Sept. 2, 1957, effective on thirtieth day after Sept. 2, 1957, see section 36 of act Sept. 2, 1957, set out as a note under section 29-905.

DESTRUCTION OF DUPLICATE CORPORATE PAPERS

Section 150 of act June 8, 1954, as added July 23, 1959, Pub. L. 86-106, § 17, provided that:

"The Recorder of Deeds, after publishing notice of his intention so to do, is authorized, one hundred and eighty days after the effective date of this section [see note set out under section 29-907a] to destroy all duplicate original corporation papers filed in his office pursuant to this Act [chapter] prior to October 2, 1957. Such notice shall describe in general terms each class of papers affected, and shall be published once a week for three consecutive weeks in a newspaper of general circulation in the District of Columbia, the third publication of such notice to appear not less than thirty days prior to the date after which such papers may be destroyed. Any corporation shall be entitled to the return to it of any paper authorized by this section to be destroyed upon written request to the Recorder of Deeds accompanied by a fee in the amount of $1 for each such paper to cover the cost of postage and handling."

§ 29-921c. Effect of issuance of incorporation.

Upon the issuance of the certificate of incorporation, the corporate existence shall begin, and such certificate of incorporation shall be conclusive evidence that all conditions precedent required to be performed by the incorporators have been complied with and that the corporation has been incorporated under this chapter, except as against the District of Columbia in a proceeding to cancel or revoke the certificate of incorporation. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 199, ch. 269, § 49.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

The directors calling the meeting shall give at least five days' notice thereof by mail to each director so elected, which notice shall state the time and place of the meeting: Provided, however, That if all the directors shall waive notice in writing and fix a time and place for said organization meeting no notice shall be required of such meeting. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 199, ch. 269, § 51.)

§ 29-921f. Right to amend articles of incorporation.

Such demand shall state the number and class of the shares owned by such dissenting shareholder. Any shareholder failing to make demand within the twenty-day period shall be bound by the terms of the merger or consolidation.

(b) If within thirty days after the date on which such merger or consolidation was effected the value of such shares is agreed upon between the dissenting shareholder and the surviving or new corporation payment therefor shall be made within ninety days after the date on which such merger or consolidation was effected, upon the surrender of his certificate or certificates representing said shares. Upon payment of the agreed value the dissenting shareholder shall cease to have any interest in such shares or in the corporation.

The judgment shall be payable only upon and simultaneously with the surrender to the surviving or new corporation of the certificate or certificates representing said shares. Upon payment of the judgment, the dissenting shareholder shall cease to have any interest in such shares or in the surviving or new corporation. Such shares may be held and disposed of by the surviving or new corporation as it may see fit. Unless the dissenting shareholder shall file such petition within the time herein limited, such shareholder and all persons claiming under him shall be bound by the terms of the merger or consolidation.

(d) The right of a dissenting shareholder to be paid the fair value of his shares as herein provided shall cease if and when the corporation shall abandon the merger or consolidation. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 210, ch. 269, § 73.)

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1957 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act Sept. 2, 1957, effective on thirtieth day after Sept. 2, 1957, see section 36 of act Sept. 2, 1957, set out as a note under section 29-905.

§ 29-931. Involuntary dissolution.

A corporation may be dissolved involuntarily by a decree of a court of equity in an action instituted by the Commissioners in the name of the District of Columbia, when it is made to appear to the court that—

(a) The franchise of the corporation was procured through fraud; or

(b) The corporation has continued to exceed or abuse the authority conferred upon it by this chapter; or

(c) The corporation has failed for thirty days to appoint and maintain a registered agent as provided in this chapter; or

§ 29-931a. Venue and process.

Every action for the involuntary dissolution of a corporation on the grounds hereinbefore provided shall be commenced by the Commissioners in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia. Summons shall issue and shall be served as in other civil actions. In case a return is made thereon that no officer or agent of such corporation can be found within the territorial limits of the District of Columbia, then the Commissioners shall cause publication to be made in some newspaper of general circulation published in the District of Columbia, containing a notice of the pendency of such action, the title of the court, the names of the parties thereto, and the date on or after which default may be entered. The Commissioners shall cause a copy of such notice to be mailed by registered mail to the corporation at its registered office within ten days after the first publication thereof. The certificate of the Commissioners of the mailing of such notice shall be prima facie evidence thereof. Such notice shall be published at least once each week for three successive weeks, and the first publication thereof may begin at any time after the summons has been returned. Unless a corporation shall have been served with summons, no default shall be taken against it earlier than thirty days after the first publication of such notice. The cost of publication of such notice shall be paid by the Commissioners, unless the decree is against the corporation and such cost is collected from it. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 217, ch. 269, § 89.)

§ 29-931b. Jurisdiction of court to liquidate assets and business of corporation.

(a) The United States District Court for the District of Columbia shall have full power to liquidate the assets and business of a corporation—

(1) upon application by a corporation which has filed a statement of intent to dissolve, as provided in this chapter, to have its liquidation continued under the supervision of the court;

(2) when an action has been commenced by the Commissioners to dissolve a corporation and it is made to appear that liquidation of its business and affairs should precede the entry of a decree of dissolution;

(3) in an action by a shareholder when it is established that the directors are deadlocked in the management of the corporate affairs and the shareholders are unable to break the deadlock, and that irreparable injury to the corporation is being suffered or is threatened by reason thereof;

(4) in an action by a shareholder when it is established that the shareholders are deadlocked in voting power and for that reason have been unable at two consecutive annual meetings to elect successors to directors whose terms had expired.

(b) Proceedings under this section shall be brought in the United States District Court for the District of Columbia.

(c) It shall not be necessary to make shareholders parties to any such action or proceeding unless relief is sought against them personally. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 217, ch. 269, § 90; July 23, 1959, 73 Stat. 241, Pub. L. 86-106, § 11.)

AMENDMENT

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1959 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act July 23, 1959, effective on sixtieth day after July 23, 1959, see section 18 of act July 23, 1959, set out as a note under section 29-907a.

§ 29-931c. Procedure in liquidation of corporation by court.

(a) In proceedings to liquidate the assets and business of a corporation the court shall have power to issue injunctions, to appoint a receiver or receivers pendente lite with such powers and duties as the court, from time to time, may direct, and to take such other proceedings as may be requisite to preserve the corporate assets wherever situated, and carry on the business of the corporation until a full hearing can be had.

(b) After a hearing had upon such notice as the court may direct to be given to all parties to the proceedings and to any other parties in interest designated by the court, the court may appoint a liquidating receiver or receivers with authority to collect the assets of the corporation, including all amounts owing to the corporation by shareholders on account of any unpaid portion of the consideration for the issuance of shares. Such liquidating receiver or receivers shall have authority, subject to the order of the court, to sell, convey, and dispose of all or any part of the assets of the corporation wherever situated, either at public or private sale. The assets of the corporation or the proceeds resulting from a sale, conveyance, or other disposition thereof shall be applied to the expenses of such liquidation and to the payment of the liabilities and obligations of the corporation, and any remaining assets or proceeds shall be distributed among its shareholders according to their respective rights and interests. The order appointing such liquidating receiver or receivers shall state their powers and duties. Such powers and duties may be increased or diminished at any time during the proceedings.

(c) A receiver of a corporation appointed under the provisions of this section shall have authority to sue and defend in all courts in his own name as receiver of such corporation. The court appointing such receiver shall, for the purposes of this chapter, have exclusive jurisdiction of the corporation and its property, wherever situated. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 217, ch. 269, § 91.)

§ 29-931d. Qualifications of receivers.

A receiver shall in all cases give such bond as the court may direct with such sureties as the court may require. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 218, ch. 269, § 92.)

§ 29-931e. Filing of claims in liquidation proceedings.

In proceedings to liquidate the assets and business of a corporation the court may require all creditors of the corporation to file with the clerk of the court or with the receiver, in such form as the court may prescribe, proofs under oath of their respective claims. If the court requires the filing of claims it shall fix a date, which shall be not less than four months from the date of the order, as the last day for the filing of claims, and shall prescribe the notice that shall be given to creditors and claimants of the date so fixed. Prior to the date so fixed, the court may extend the time for the filing of claims. Creditors and claimants failing to file proofs of claim on or before the date so fixed may be barred, by order of court, from participating in the distribution of the assets of the corporation. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 218, ch. 269, § 93.)

§ 29-931f. Discontinuance of liquidation proceedings.

The liquidation of the assets and business of a corporation may be discontinued at any time during the liquidation proceedings when it is made to appear to the court that cause for liquidation no longer exists. In such event the court shall dismiss the proceedings and direct the receiver to redeliver to the corporation all its remaining property and assets. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 218, ch. 269, § 94.)

§ 29-931g. Decree of involuntary dissolution.

In proceedings to liquidate the assets and business of a corporation, when the costs and expenses of such proceedings and all debts, obligations, and liabilities of the corporation shall have been paid and discharged and all of its remaining property and assets distributed to its shareholders, or in case its property and assets are not sufficient to satisfy and discharge such costs, expenses, debts, and obligations, all the property and assets have been applied so far as they will go to their payment, the court shall enter a decree dissolving the corporation, whereupon the existence of the corporation shall cease. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 218, ch. 269, § 95.)

§ 29-931h. Filing of decree of dissolution.

In case the court shall enter a decree dissolving a corporation it shall be the duty of the clerk of such court to cause a certified copy of the decree to be filed with the Commissioners. No fee shall be charged by the Commissioners for the filing thereof. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 219, ch. 269, § 96.)

§ 29-931i. Survival of remedy after dissolution.

The dissolution of a corporation either (1) by the issuance of a certificate of dissolution by the Commissioners, or (2) by proclamation of the Commissioners for failure to pay annual report fees or file annual reports as provided in the chapter, or (3) by expiration of its period of duration, shall not take away or impair any remedy available to or against such corporation, its directors, or shareholders, or any right or claim existing, or any liability incurred, prior to such dissolution if suit or other proceeding thereon is commenced within two years after the date of such dissolution. Any suit or proceeding by or against the corporation may be prosecuted or defended by the corporation in its corporate name. The shareholders, directors, and officers shall have power to take such corporate or other action as shall be appropriate to protect such remedy, right, or claim. If such corporation was dissolved by the expiration of its period of duration, such corporation may amend its articles of incorporation at any time during such period of two years so as to extend its period of duration. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 219, ch. 269, § 97.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Claims barred by two year limitation

District of Columbia statute stating that causes of action on rights or claims of corporation existing prior to dissolution by proclamation for failure to file annual reports and pay related fees must be brought within two years applies to claims which so arose, notwithstanding statute providing that when corporation is dissolved by proclamation it shall nevertheless be continued for terms of three years for purpose of prosecuting and defending suits. Columbia Institute of Radio and Television Broadcasting, Inc. v. R. R. Shehyn (1964, 336 F. 2d 974, 119 U.S. App. D.C. 55).

District of Columbia statute provided that suit by corporation dissolved by proclamation for failure to file reports and pay related fees with reference to right on claims prior to dissolution must be brought within two years would not bar such a corporation's claim filed more than two years after dissolution that it was object of illegitimate scheme to eliminate it from the market and that purpose was mainly effectuated by improper appropriation of its corporate name, thereby frustrating its purpose to secure its reinstatement, since it was not a claim or right in existence prior to dissolution. Id.

§ 29-932. Annual report of domestic corporation.

(a) Each corporation shall file with the Commissioners, on or before April 15 of each year, an annual report setting forth—

(1) the name of the corporation, the address, including street and number, if any, of its registered office in the District of Columbia, and the name of its registered agent at such address;

(2) the address, including street and number, if any, of its principal office in the District, if such office is other than its registered office;

(3) the names and respective addresses, including street and number, if any, of its directors and officers;

(4) a brief statement of the character of the business in which the corporation is actually engaged;

(5) a statement of the aggregate number of shares which the corporation has authority to issue, itemized by classes, par value of shares, shares without par value, and series, if any, within a class;

(6) a statement of the aggregate number of issued shares, itemized by classes, par value of shares, shares without par value and series, if any, within a class.

(b) Such annual report shall be made on forms prescribed and furnished by the Commissioners, and the information therein contained shall be given as of the date of the execution of the report.

(c) It shall be executed by the corporation by its president, vice president, secretary, assistant secretary, or treasurer, and verified by the officer executing the report, and the corporate seal shall be thereto affixed. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 219, ch. 269, § 98; July 23, 1959, 73 Stat. 241, Pub. L. 86-106, § 12.)

AMENDMENT

1959—Subsec. (a) amended by act July 23, 1959, which added par. (2) and redesignated former pars. (2)—(5) as pars. (3)—(6).

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1959 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act July 23, 1959, effective on sixtieth day after July 23, 1959, see section 18 of act July 23, 1959, set out as a note under section 29-907a.

NOTES TO DECISIONS*Place of business after organization

This chapter, considered in its entirety, contemplates that principal place of business of a corporation may be outside the District after organization in the sense of creation, and there was no intention to make the proviso that "no corporation may be organized" under the chapter "unless the place where it conducts its principal business is located within the District of Columbia" a continuing regulation. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

§ 29-933. Admission of foreign corporation—Exemption from certificate requirement in certain cases—Service of process on exempt corporations—Rules and regulations.

A foreign corporation shall procure a certificate of authority from the Commissioners before it transacts business in the District, but no foreign corporation shall be entitled to procure a certificate of authority under this chapter to transact in the District the business of banking, insurance, assurance, benefit, indemnity, building and loan association, or the acceptance of savings deposits, such corporations being admitted to and shall do business in the District of Columbia pursuant to the laws relating to such business. A foreign corporation shall not be denied a certificate of authority by reason of the fact that the laws of the State under which such corporation is organized governing its organization and internal affairs differ from the laws of the District, and nothing in this chapter contained shall be construed to authorize the District to regulate the organization or the internal affairs of such corporation.

(b) <sup>1</sup> A foreign corporation shall not be required to procure a certificate of authority merely for the prosecution of litigation, the collection of its debts, or the taking of security for the same, or by reason of the appointment of an agent for the solicitation of business not to be transacted in the District, nor for the sale of personal property to the United States within the District of Columbia unless a contract for such sale is accepted by the seller within the District or such property is delivered from stock of the seller within the District for use within the District.

(c) No foreign corporation having income from loans excluded from gross income under section 47-1557a(b) (17) shall be subject to the provisions of this Act.

(d) Nothing in subsection (c) of this section shall be construed as affecting the amenability of a foreign corporation to the service of any process, notice, or demand to which such corporation would be amenable without reference to the provisions of such subsection (c).

(e) (1) Any foreign corporation having income from loans excluded from gross income under section 47-1557a(b) (17) shall be deemed to have waived any immunity to service of process and suit in the courts of the District of Columbia. Any such foreign corporation shall appoint and maintain in the District of Columbia an agent for service of process, and shall register with the Commissioners of the District of Columbia the address of its principal office and the name and address of its agent for service of process in the District of Columbia, including any changes in such addresses.

(2) Whenever any such foreign corporation does not have an agent for service of process or such agent cannot be found with reasonable diligence at his registered address, then the Commissioners of the District of Columbia shall be the agent for service of process for such corporation. Service of process on the Commissioners shall be made by delivery to, and leaving with them, or with any person having charge of their office, duplicate copies of the process, together with a fee, the amount of which shall be fixed from time to time by the Commissioners but not in excess of $5. In the event of such service the Commissioners shall immediately cause one of such copies to be forwarded by certified or registered mail, addressed to such foreign corporation at its principal office as it appears on the records of the Commissioners. Any such service shall be returnable in not less than thirty days, unless the rules of the court issuing such process prescribe another period, in which case such prescribed period shall govern.

(3) Nothing contained in this subsection shall limit or affect the right to serve any process, notice of demand required or permitted by law to be served on a foreign corporation in any other manner now or hereafter permitted by law.

(4) Any foreign corporation which fails to comply with the requirements of paragraph (1) of this subsection shall be guilty of a misdemeanor and shall be fined not more than $500.

(5) The Commissioners of the District of Columbia are authorized to make such rules and regulations as may be necessary to carry out the purpose of this subsection.

(f) As used herein, the term "foreign corporation" having income from loans excluded from gross income under section 47-1557a(b) (17) shall include any foreign corporation subject to a tax only as a result of activities contemplated by subparagraph (G) of section 47-1557a(b) (17). (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 219, ch. 269, § 99; Sept. 19, 1966, 80 Stat. 813, Pub. L. 89-591, § 2.)

AMENDMENT

1966—Subsection (c)—(f) added by act Sept. 19, 1966.

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1966 AMENDMENT

Section 3 of act Sept. 19, 1966, 80 Stat. 814, provided: "This Act [adding subsecs. (c)—(f) to this section, and adding par. (17) to subsec. (b) of § 47-1557a] shall take effect on the date of its enactment [Sept. 19, 1966]".

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Action for rent

Maryland corporation's assuming balance of third party's existing lease on certain property in District of Columbia in order to obtain third party as long-term tenant in its building in Maryland and Maryland corporation's subletting of property to several tenants in District of Columbia for remainder of term did not constitute transaction of business by Maryland corporation in District of Columbia and, although it had never been authorized to transact business in District of Columbia, it was not precluded from maintaining action for unpaid rents for District of Columbia property. 3 M Distributing Corp. v. Rugby Corp. (D.C. App. 1965, 209 A. 2d 790).

Liable to suit

Swiss corporation's filing and prosecution of civil action in District of Columbia to recover property consisting of stock of Delaware corporation established presence of the corporation in the District and subjected corporation to Attorney General and Secretary of Treasury from paying any part of corporation's share of proceeds of sale of the stock to corporation on ground that citizens and others had suffered under the "Nazi Conspiracy" and that Swiss corporation was creature of German corporation profiting therefrom. W. Kelberine v. Societe Internationale, etc. (1966, 363 F. 2d 989, 124 U.S. App. D.C. 257).

Liability of foreign corporation to suit in District of Columbia does not depend upon its doing business in the District but depends upon its being found there. Id.

Suit by foreign corporation

English corporation was not precluded from suing in District of Columbia by lack of certificate of authority to do business in District. N. A. Loe v. Normalair Limited, etc. (D.C. App. 1966, 222 A. 2d 643).

§ 29-933a. Powers of foreign corporation.

No foreign corporations subject to the provisions of this chapter shall transact in the District any business for the conduct of which a domestic corporation may not be organized or which is prohibited to a domestic corporation. A foreign corporation which shall have received a certificate of authority under this chapter shall, until a certificate of revocation or of withdrawal shall have been issued as provided in this chapter, enjoy the same rights and privileges as, but no greater rights and privileges than, a domestic corporation organized for the purposes set forth in the application pursuant to which such certificate of authority is issued; and, except as in this chapter otherwise provided, shall be subject to the same duties, restrictions, penalties, and liabilities now or hereafter imposed upon a domestic corporation of like character. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 220, ch. 269, § 100.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Appeal

Whether foreign corporation, previously qualified, possessed different status when it filed in advance of suit for recovery of allegedly usurious interest a certificate of withdrawal was relevant issue in addition to question raised in first amended complaint as to whether statute allowing corporations to seek financing without regard to lawful interest rates barred a corporation's action to recover usurious interest, and order dismissing second amended complaint which presented issue of foreign corporation's status was a final and appealable order. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Ten Individual Defendants (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

Usury

Filing of certificate of withdrawal by foreign corporation did not change status previously acquired by corporation's contracts so that under statute allowing corporations to seek financing without regard to lawful interest rates its complaint for recovery of usurious interest under prior contracts was barred. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Ten Individual Defendants (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

§ 29-933b. Corporate name of foreign corporations.

(June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 220, ch. 269, § 101.)

§ 29-933c. Change of name by foreign corporation.

Whenever a foreign corporation which is admitted to transact business in the District shall change its name to one under which a certificate of authority to transact business in the District would not be granted to it on application therefor, the authority of such corporation to transact business in the District shall be suspended and it shall not thereafter transact any business in the District until it has changed its name to a name which is available to it under the laws of the District. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 220, ch. 269, § 102.)

(June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 221, ch. 269, § 103; July 23, 1959, 73 Stat. 242, Pub. L. 86-106, § 13.)

(June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 226, ch. 269, § 117.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

In general

Filing of certificate of withdrawal by foreign corporation previously qualified does not change status corporation's contracts had acquired prior to filing. Indian Lake Estates, Inc. v. Ten Individual Defendants, Net Limited, Inc. (1965, 350 F. 2d 435, 121 U.S. App. D.C. 305).

§ 29-934e. Application to foreign corporations transacting business on the effective date of this chapter.

Foreign corporations transacting business in the District at the time this chapter takes effect for a purpose or purposes for which a certificate of authority is required under the provisions of this chapter shall, within six months after the effective date of this chapter, procure a certificate of authority and shall otherwise comply with all applicable provisions of this chapter. Failure to secure a certificate of authority within the time provided in this section shall subject the corporation to all the penalties, liabilities, and restrictions provided in this chapter for transacting business without a certificate of authority. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 227, ch. 269, § 118.)

REFERENCES IN TEXT

Effective date of this chapter one hundred and eighty days after June 8, 1954, see Effective Date note set out under section 29-901.

§ 29-934f. Transacting business without certificate of authority.

(a) No foreign corporation which is subject to the provisions of this chapter and which transacts business in the District without a certificate of authority shall be permitted to maintain an action at law or in equity in any court of the District until such corporation shall have obtained a certificate of authority. Nor shall an action at law or in equity be maintained in any court of the District by any successor or assignee of such corporation on any right, claim, or demand arising out of the transaction of business by such corporation in the District until a certificate of authority shall have been obtained by such corporation or by a corporation which has acquired all or substantially all of its assets.

(b) The failure of a foreign corporation to obtain a certificate of authority to transact business in the District shall not impair the validity of any contract or act of such corporation, and shall not prevent such corporation from defending any action at law or suit in equity in any court of the District.

(c) A foreign corporation which transacts business in the District without a certificate of authority shall be liable to the District, for the years or parts thereof during which it transacted business in the District without a certificate of authority, in an amount equal to all fees and other charges which would have been imposed by this chapter upon such corporation had it duly applied for and received a certificate of authority to transact business in the District as required by this chapter and thereafter filed all reports required by this chapter; and in addition thereto it shall be liable for a penalty of not in excess of $500. The Commissioners shall bring proceedings to recover all amounts due the District under the provisions of this section. Such charges and penalties shall be paid to the District before any certificate of authority is issued to such foreign corporation. (June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 227, ch. 269, § 119.)

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Compliance with provisions

Under provision prohibiting a foreign corporation transacting business in the District without a certificate from maintaining an action until such certificate is obtained and that such failure shall not impair the validity of any contract or act of the corporation, non-compliance with the statutes was a mere temporary disability and capable of obviation at any stage of the proceedings and hence the statute was not absolutely prohibitive of an action of a foreign corporation but was merely suspensory until compliance with the statute. Hill-Lanham, Inc. v. Lightview Development Corp. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 163 F. Supp. 475).

Purpose

Under provisions prohibiting foreign corporations transacting business in the District without a certificate from maintaining actions therein, real purpose of legislation was to bring such corporations under regulation of public officials charged with such responsibility to end that public could have the same information respecting their background and financial standing as demanded of domestic corporations and as a consequence to render them amenable to ordinary legal processes. Hill-Lanham, Inc., v. Lightview Development Corp. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 163 F. Supp. 475).

Qualification after motion to dismiss

Under provision that foreign corporation which transacts business in District of Columbia without a certificate of authority shall not be permitted to maintain an action at law or in equity in any court of the District until such a certificate is obtained, defendant was not entitled to have suit brought by foreign corporation on a contract entered into in District of Columbia dismissed for failure to qualify as a foreign corporation when plaintiff obtained a certificate of authority subsequent to filing of defendant's motion to dismiss the action. Federal Loose Leaf Corp. v. Woodhouse Stationery Co. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 163 F. Supp. 482).

Suit by foreign corporation

English corporation was not precluded from suing in District of Columbia by lack of certificate of authority to do business in District. N. A. Loe v. Normalair Limited, etc. (D.C. App. 1966, 222 A. 2d 643).

By suing in District of Columbia, English corporation voluntarily submitted to jurisdiction of general sessions court, and fact that corporation had no office or agent in District and did no business there did not preclude the court from hearing corporation's claim. Id.

(e) The Commissioners are authorized to attend and participate in the meetings of national organizations of State officials having supervision over corporations, and of the committees thereof, and there is hereby authorized to be appropriated such sums as may be necessary to defray the expenses of attendance at such meetings and to pay such annual dues or other fees as may be necessary to membership in said organizations. The Commissioners are further authorized to visit the corporation departments of the various States when in their judgment such visits are necessary or desirable in connection with the organization or proper conduct of any office or agency established by them.

(June 8, 1954, 68 Stat. 227, ch. 269, § 120.)

EFFECTIVE DATE OF 1957 AMENDMENT

Amendment of section by act Sept. 2, 1957, effective on thirtieth day after Sept. 2, 1957, see section 36 of act Sept. 2, 1957, set out as a note under section 29-905.

NOTES TO DECISIONS

Place of business after organization

This chapter, considered in its entirety, contemplates that principal place of business of a corporation may be outside the District after organization in the sense of creation, and there was no intention to make the proviso that “no corporation may be organized” under the chapter “unless the place where it conducts its principal business is located within the District of Columbia” a continuing regulation. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

Pre-existing corporation

The provision of this chapter granting to a corporation which is reincorporated under the chapter all the privileges and powers and making corporation subject to all provisions of the chapter was intended to place a pre-existing corporation on equality with one newly organized, so far as benefits and burdens under the chapter were concerned, but in order not to deprive a pre-existing corporation of that which it already had, the subsequent provision confirming and assuring all privileges and powers theretofore belonging to the corporation was intended to preserve them intact. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

Principal place of business

The proviso that no corporation may be organized unless place where it conducts its principal business is located within the District of Columbia speaks prospectively, and where corporation owning a baseball club, although reincorporated under the 1954 act, was organized under the act of 1901, imposing no restrictions upon the place where the corporation might conduct its principal business, such corporation was not required to conduct its principal business at a place within the District and was not prohibited from moving its American League franchise to any other city outside the District. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc., et al. (1959, 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

The proviso that no corporation may be organized unless the place where it conducts its principal business is located within District of Columbia did not apply to corporation operating professional baseball team as reincorporated corporation which under old act had power to conduct its principal place of business outside District of Columbia, and though not exercised, the power available by amendment to certificate of corporation was preserved under the Act, and hence proviso would not preclude corporation from transferring its franchise to a city outside the District. Murphy v. Washington American League Baseball Club, Inc. (D.C.D.C. 1958, 167 F. Supp. 215, affirmed 267 F. 2d 655, 105 U.S. App. D.C. 378).

(c) Special meetings of the members may be called by the president, the secretary, the board of directors, or by such other officers or persons or number or proportion of members as may be provided in the articles of incorporation or the bylaws. In the absence of a provision fixing the number or proportion of members entitled to call a meeting, a special meeting of members may be called by members having at least one-twentieth of the votes entitled to be cast at such meeting. In the absence of any such provision, members having at least one-tenth of the votes entitled to be cast represented in person or by proxy shall constitute a quorum. The affirmative vote of a majority of the votes entitled to be cast by the members present or represented by proxy at a meeting at which a quorum is present, shall be necessary for the adoption of any matter voted upon by the members, unless a greater proportion is required by this chapter, the articles of incorporation or the bylaws.

(b) Unless otherwise provided by the articles of incorporation or the bylaws, the members present at a duly organized meeting may continue to do business until adjournment, notwithstanding the withdrawal of enough members to leave less than a quorum.

(c) If a meeting cannot be organized because a quorum has not attended, those present may adjourn the meeting from time to time until a quorum is present, when any business may be transacted that may have been transacted at the meeting as originally called. ## EFFECTIVE DATE

§ 29-1019. Number, election, classification, and removal of directors.

(a) The number of directors of a corporation shall be not less than three. Subject to such limitation, the number of directors shall be fixed by the bylaws, except as to the number of the first board of directors which number shall be fixed by the articles of incorporation. The number of directors may be increased or decreased from time to time by amendment to the bylaws, unless the articles of incorporation provide that a change in the number of directors shall be made only by amendment of the articles of incorporation. No decrease in number shall have the effect of shortening the term of any incumbent director. In the absence of a bylaw fixing the number of directors, the number shall be the same as that stated in the articles of incorporation.

(b) The names and addresses of the members of the first board of directors shall be stated in the articles of incorporation. Such persons shall hold office until the first annual election of directors or for such other period as may be specified in the articles of incorporation or the bylaws. Thereafter, directors shall be elected or appointed in the manner and for the terms provided in the articles of incorporation or the bylaws. In the absence of a provision fixing the term of office, the term of office of a director shall be one year.

(c) Directors may be divided into classes and the terms of office of the several classes need not be uniform. Each director shall hold office for the term for which he is elected or appointed and until his successor shall have been elected or appointed and qualified, except in the case of ex officio directors.

(d) A director may be removed from office pursuant to any procedure therefor provided in the articles of incorporation or the bylaws, and if none be provided may be removed at a meeting called expressly for that purpose, with or without cause, by such vote as would suffice for his election. (Aug. 6, 1962, 76 Stat. 273, Pub. L. 87-569, § 19.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

See section 29-1099k.

§ 29-1020. Vacancies.

Any vacancy occurring in the board of directors and any directorship to be filled by reason of an increase in the number of directors may be filled by the affirmative vote of a majority of the then members of the board of directors, though less than a quorum of the board, unless the articles of incorporation or the bylaws provide that a vacancy or directorship so created shall be filled in some other manner, in which case such provision shall control. A director elected or appointed, as the case may be, to fill a vacancy shall be elected or appointed for the unexpired term of his predecessor in office. (Aug. 6, 1962, 76 Stat. 274, Pub. L. 87-569, § 20.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

See section 29-1099k.

§ 29-1021. Quorum of directors.

A majority of the number of directors fixed by the bylaws, or in the absence of a bylaw fixing the number of directors, then of the number stated in the articles of incorporation, shall constitute a quorum for the transaction of business, unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation or the bylaws; but in no event shall a quorum consist of less than one-third of the number of directors so fixed or stated. The act of the majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present shall be the act of the board of directors, unless the act of a greater number is required by this chapter or by the articles of incorporation or the bylaws. (Aug. 6, 1962, 76 Stat. 274, Pub. L. 87-569, § 21.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

If the articles of incorporation or the bylaws so provide, the board of directors, by resolution adopted by a majority of the directors in office, may designate and appoint one or more committees, each of which shall consist of two or more directors, which committees, to the extent provided in said resolution, in the articles of incorporation or in the bylaws of the corporation, shall have and exercise the authority of the board of directors in the management of the corporation. Other committees not having and exercising the authority of the board of directors in the management of the corporation may be designated and appointed by a resolution adopted by a majority of the directors present at a meeting at which a quorum is present. The designation and appointment of any such committee and the delegation thereto of authority shall not operate to relieve the board of directors, or any individual director, of any responsibility imposed upon it or him by law. (Aug. 6, 1962, 76 Stat. 274, Pub. L. 87-569, § 22.)

EFFECTIVE DATE

See section 29-1099k.

§ 29-1023. Place and notice of directors' meetings.

Meetings of the board of directors, regular or special, may be held at such place within or without the District of Columbia, and upon such notice as may be prescribed in the bylaws or, where not inconsistent with the bylaws, by resolution of the board of directors. A director's attendance at any meeting shall constitute waiver of notice of such meeting, excepting such attendance at a meeting by the director for the purpose of objecting to the transaction of business because the meeting is not lawfully called or convened. Neither the business to be transacted at, nor the purpose of, any regular or special meeting of the board of directors need be specified in the notice or waiver of notice of such meeting, unless otherwise provided in the articles of incorporation or the bylaws. In the absence of any such provision, all officers shall be elected or appointed annually by the board of directors. If the bylaws so provide, any two or more offices may be held by the same person, except the offices of president and secretary.

(b) The articles of incorporation or the bylaws may provide that any one or more officers of the corporation or other organizations shall be ex officio members of the board of directors.

(c) The officers of a corporation may be designated by such other titles as may be provided in the articles of incorporation or the bylaws.

(d) All officers and agents of the corporation, as between themselves and the corporation, shall have § 29-1025. Removal of officers.

Any officer or agent elected or appointed may be removed by the persons authorized to elect or appoint such officer or agent whenever in their judgment the best interest of the corporation will be served thereby, but such removal shall be without prejudice to the contract rights, if any, of the person so removed. Election or appointment of an officer or agent shall not itself create contract rights. (Aug. 6, 1962, 76 Stat. 275, Pub. L. 87-569, § 25.)
